A year of debate

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Controversy dogged several town departments throughout 1990.

The year opened with the board of assessors reeling under 600 requests for abatement of their property taxes and closed with them facing 87 appeals. Disgruntled owners of property in the pricey waterfront neighborhoods claimed the town disproportionately valued their property and gave other properties, primarily local businesses, a $236,000 tax break at their expense.

The property owners formed a group called the Concerned Citizens of Cohasset to pursue their appeal, recruit additional owners to file abatement requests of 1990 property tax assessments and mobilize to elect an assessor they approved of in 1991.

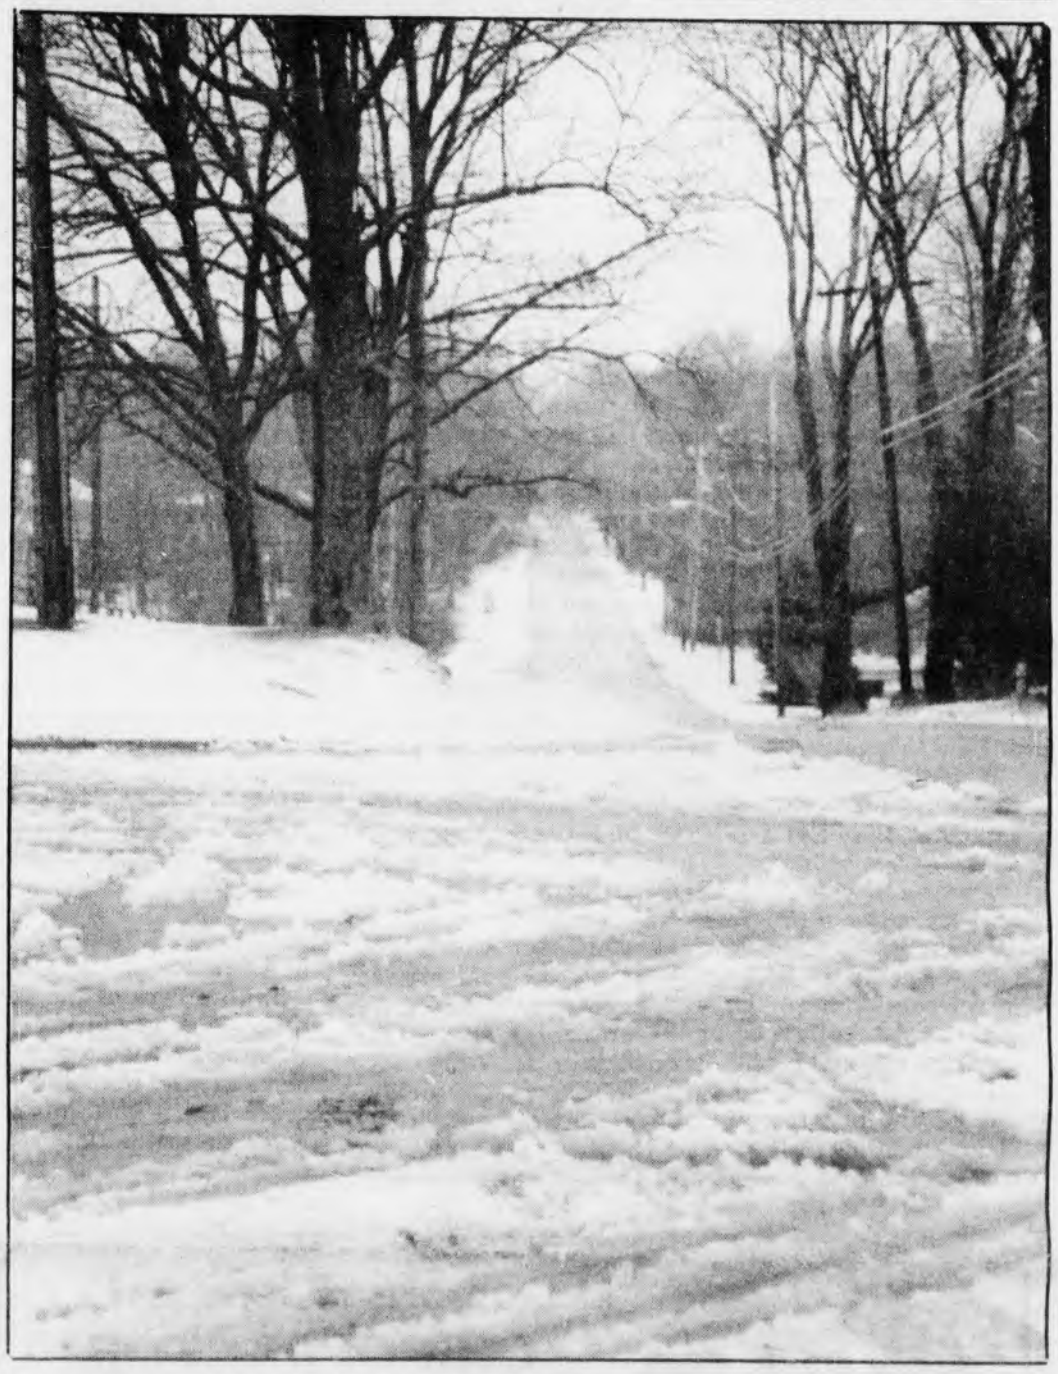
The fire department was embroiled in more than one raging controversy throughout the year.

The year opened with selectmen refusing to review the proposed fiscal year 1991 budget, claiming it was not in the proper form and the advisory board would not accept it. Things did not get much better from that point on.

Calls for Cohasset to join a privately-operated, regional advanced life support (ALS) ambulance service with Hingham, Hull, Norwell and Scituate quickly escalated into a demand by the committee studying the structure of town government to privatize the entire ambulance service.

The committee contends the town can save $90,400 to $140,400 a year by switching to a private service. Fire Chief Dan Brock claims private service will reduce the quality of emergency medical care and cost the town $12,300 more than the town-run service .

Selectmen opted to put the matter to the test by putting the ambulance out to bid to get a true picture of annual costs. Bids went out the end of November.



Town meeting burned the department by rejecting articles to buy computer equipment to bill ambulance runs, cover overtime already running in the red and maintain the chief's salary at 1.8 times the highest base salary. Only an article to refurbish the ladder truck for $11,000 made it through town meeting unscathed.

Voters rendered a split decision on the police/fire station renovation project. They approved the $396,000 project, but rejected a debt exclusion override to pay for the thing. That forced the town to fund the annual price tag of $24,000 to $48,000 out of the town's operating budget beginning in fiscal 1992.

As the year drew to a close the renovation work was well underway and under bid. Renovations include providing handicapped access, facilities for female employees, a new roof, insulation, repairs to windows and removal of asbestos.

Matters took a turn for the worse by mid-year when the town found out Fire Chief Dan Brock had been holding back on ambulance billings and deposits going back as far as November 1989. Brock claimed the department had no time to take care of the billings because the town denied them both a part-time secretary and computer equipment to handle billings.

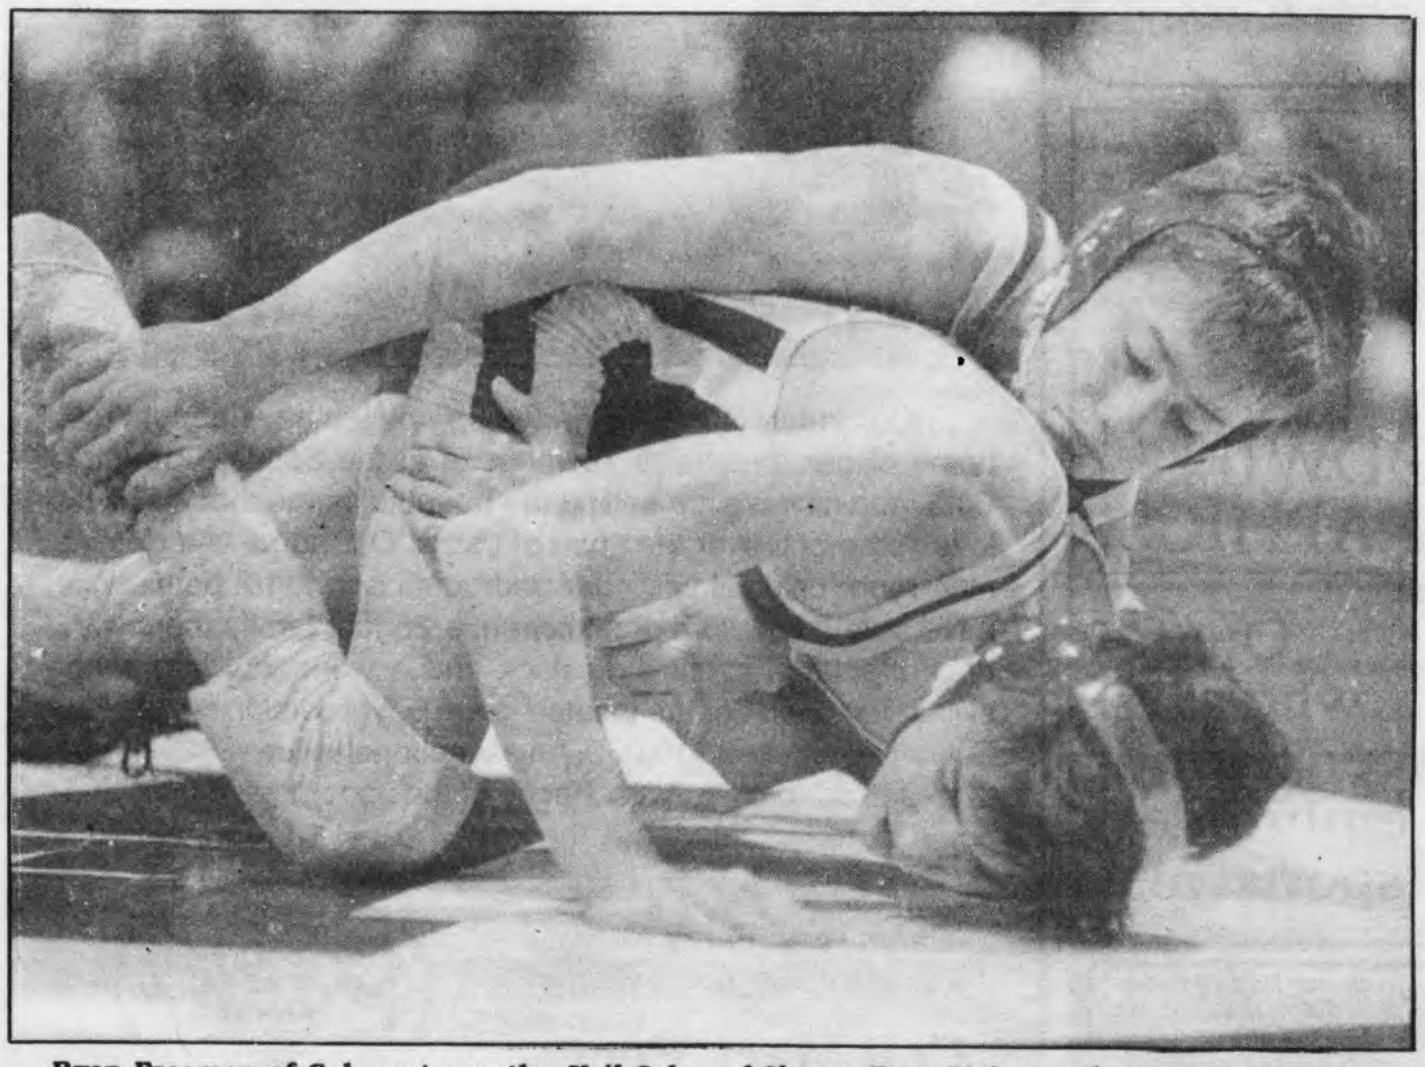
CHS wrestlers go to the mat for Sweeney



By Joseph Mont

Torrence Sweeney, Cohasset High School's Wrestling coach is very optimistic about his team's future.

Sweeney described this year's squad as a top-notch collection of talent and said the future looks even brighter.

"We have got a big squad and we are definitely building for the future," he said.

Sweeney has high praise for senior tri-captains Billy Baird, David Cullinane and Oliver Nivaud and has high hopes for their final season. He said the school has a "particularly strong" junior varsity squad he thinks will be a "strong contender" in the near future.

The team opened its season on a high note defeating North Quincy with four pins.

Bill Baird, Steve Harrington, and Jason Thayer all pinned opponents in the opener.

The following week the team kept its winning ways taking a match against Norwell by a score of 40-30.

Ryan Freeman won his 103 pound class and Carl Lagrotteria won the 112 division, both with pins.

Dave Cullinane, Jed Terry, Jason Thayer and Jon Bowen, kept pace with their teammates by pinning opponents in later rounds.

The teams early success didn't carry over to a recent match against King Phillip Academy.

"We took a beating," Sweeney said of the loss. He said that Cohasset had been plagued by injuries that week and several wrestlers were unable to compete against the powerhouse rival.

Despite their problems Sweeney said the team put up a good effort in the face of adversity. Steve Harrington managed a pin and Max Nivaud won his match on points.

The team bounced back strong with a solid victory over Dedham.

Ryan Freeman took his round with a pin. Danny Baird did his older brother Billy proud by pinning his opponent.

Sweeney said the Dedham match gave some of his younger wrestlers a chance to show there stuff.

Brian Sasso and 189-pound Nate Caldwell are both seventh graders who won their respective matches.

"They will be strong contenders if they stick it out," Sweeney said of the two Junior Varsity wrestlers. He said other JV members, such as Chris Stevens, Brandon DeVoe and Ben Chittick will also play integral roles in the near future.

The team did not fare as well as they had hoped they would a a recent non-league tournament at Marshfield High School on Dec. 29.

Conservation was buzzword of 1990

By Alison Cohen

Cohasset got into the Earth Day swing of things early.

The new recycling transfer facility and mandatory recycling programmed residents to take environmentally correct living as a matter of course. Surrounding towns envy Cohasset's recycling practices.

Local merchants and townspeople also decided to get into the act and spiff up the village, capitalizing on the Christmas season's Village Renaissance project.

Residents Jackie Dormitzer and Beth Christoffel volunteered to spearhead the efforts that saw merchants, school groups and residents painting, sweeping and otherwise beautifying Cohasset proper.

One lasting symbol of their efforts is the garden mural on Tedeschi's wall. The mural was designed by Cohasset High School art teacher Colleen Lucas and executed by her students.

Soon another lasting memento of Cohasset will return. The Village Renaissance group will oversee construction of a working replica of the old town pump.

The project has been a community effort from start to finish with residents and town employees lending their time, talent and expertise to bring a piece of historic Cohasset into the 21st century.

Earth Day proper, scheduled for Sunday, April 22, turned into Earth Month in Cohasset.

Activities were kicked off April 1 with a free celebration featuring stand-up environmentalist/comedian Evi Seidman and the ecologically-based songs of Barbara Herson.

Community groups planned lectures, activities and educational programs throughout the month.

When Earth Day dawned, Cohasset was ready. Clergy members sponsored an ecumenical service in celebration of the gift of life on earth. The service was capped off by a communal nurturing of the Liberty Elm planted by the Cohasset Garden Club.

Participants moved on to clean up the fields, forests and beaches of Cohasset. At the end of the clean-up, they gathered at the transfer facility to turn in their trash bags and claim T-shirts bearing the slogan "Cohasset Cares." The shirts were donated by the Rotary Club.

Taking care of the environment and keeping Cohasset's drinking water pure became a little easier when town meeting authorized the purchase of 37 acres of land abutting Lily Pond, the town reservoir.

The $1.9 million purchase will be financed through water department revenues, grants and donations.

For one day the west side of Route 3A was a winter wonderland. Friday's snow melted fast when it hit on the east side of town. This scene is off King Street near the water plant.

Override nixed as fiscal woes worsen

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

In a classic case of wanting to have one's cake and eat it too, residents entered a split decision by voting their pocketbooks at the polls and town needs at town meeting.

Residents voted down a Proposition 2 1/2 override to fund a $120,000 operating budget deficit, two capital outlay exclusions – one for $16,850 to purchase an all-purpose lawn maintenance vehicle for the tree and park department and $70,000 to replace the town's five-year-old ambulance – and three debt exclusion overrides that would have financed closure and capping of the Cedar Street landfill estimated at $70,000, cost of renovations to the police/fire station estimated at $396,000 and $100,000 to construct and expand the town cemetery holdings.

The only override item to pass was an $85,000 proposal covering repairs to the septic system, antiquated bathrooms and heating system at Joseph Osgood School.

After voting down the overrides, residents turned around and told the town to go forward with plans to renovate the police/fire station, comply with state orders to close and cap the landfill, and told the town to go forward with plans to purchase 37 acres abutting Lily Pond, the town reservoir. The land purchase is set at $1.9 million.

By defeating proposals to fund the capital outlays and debts through overrides of Proposition 2 1/2, the town committed itself to paying the bill through the operating budget. Payments will start coming due as early as 1992.

Meanwhile, the town needed to cut $120,000 out of the operating budget that was to take effect in July.

After much debate, selectmen and advisors opted to lop $30,500 from the school budget, $14,500 for acquisition of a second police cruiser, $5,000 from the engineering budget of the board of health, a $20,000 project to repaint the original section of town hall, $40,000 from the street paving account and $10,000 from the sidewalk paving account.

Any remaining deficit in the operating budget was to be filled in with transfers from free cash or the reserve account.

A parting glance at the year

Brock received little sympathy and a written reprimand for his pains. Selectmen said they failed to understand how his staffing and computer woes prevented him from depositing nearly $5,600 in checks and cash or billing what averages one ambulance run per day.

Town-owned property remained in the news throughout 1990 as well, with the fate of the Bates Building and the duplex on Government Island leading the pack.

The town vacated the first floor office space nearly two years ago, but hasn't been able to decide what to do with the building ever since.

The Rotary Club uses the building for its weekly meetings and wants to continue to do so. Although the club can't afford to take financial responsibility for the building, they have done repairs and made renovations to the building.

The local Veterans of Foreign Wars and Chamber of Commerce approached selectmen about holding monthly meetings in the building during the course of the year, and the council on aging thought it might be able to use space in the building for classes when the rooms at the Community Center were otherwise engaged.

In December, resident Keith Knowles suggested turning the building into a drop-in youth center. Knowles pointed out that town teens had nowhere to go and the location of the building made it an ideal choice. Selectmen gave him until early 1991 to come up with funding before they would make any decision on the fate of the building.

Waiting in the wings is a proposal by the local clergy to turn the building into affordable housing. If selectmen will turn the property over, the non-profit Habitat for Humanity will renovate the property into two units of affordable housing.

Selectmen are divided as to the best use of the Elm Street property. Selectmen Diana Kornet and Jane Goedecke prefer seeing it renovated into affordable housing; selectmen Ned Tebbetts and Martha Gjesteby support selling it at fair market value, and Chairman Rocco Laugelle wants to retain town ownership for use by the town and non-profit organizations.

Any decision the selectmen make is complicated by a town meeting promise to sell the Elm Street property to the highest bidder if voters approved the town hall addition.

The duplex on Government Island made frequent appearances on the pages of the Mariner.

Built in the mid-1850s to house the lighthouse keepers, the building contains two apartments the town rents for $600 a month.

In February, the advisory board suggested the town would be better off selling the building in order to avoid the high cost of maintenance and repairs and the thankless task of serving as landlord. Local historical groups and selectmen Rocco Laugelle promised to fight to retain town ownership of the historic old building.

A failing septic system and rental arrears kept the building in the news from March through November.

Selectmen discussed septic repairs and requested a transfer of funds to bankroll the project from March through August, but were turned down by the advisory board. No progress was made until the board of health ordered that repairs get underway within 30 days.

The advisors resisted the transfer because they consider the building a money pit and want selectmen to sell it off.

One of the two tenants was seriously in arrears on rent. Selectmen finally threatened legal action, but the tenant vacated the premises before the town was forced to go to court. Selectmen opted not to rent the vacant unit until they determined whether and under what conditions the town could sell the property.

Harbor moorings and bylaws kept the harbor committee in hot water.

In January, the harbor committee proposed changes in the bylaw that would assess boat owners and harbor users annual fees to help offset the harbormaster's budget.

Other controversial changes or clarifications would restrict mooring permits to individuals and deny them to organizations, clubs or business enterprises. Businesses and organizations holding permits at the time the new bylaw took effect were to be "grandfathered" into the new regulation for the lifetime of the current holder, but permits were not to be a transferable asset. Commercial fishermen could hold a mooring, but only in the name of one of the individuals in the venture.

Under the proposed bylaw, if a mooring holder died the permit would be immediately assigned to his or her spouse. No other relative was eligible to receive the mooring privilege.

Other changes provided that permits would be renewed only if all boat excise taxes were paid in full, mooring holders must exercise their permit during the year by being regularly moored in the harbor and notifying the harbormaster if their boat would be gone for more than seven days. Additionally, no boat larger than 45 feet would be allowed a mooring and an owner who sold or disposed of his boat could retain the mooring if he notified the harbormaster within 30 days and replaced it with a boat substantially the same size.

A look back at a year of controversy and debate

The bylaw was overwhelmingly approved at town meeting, but slightly more than six months later, the harbor committee was back in front of selectmen trying to plug holes in the bylaw by defining what it meant to be regularly moored in the harbor. Town Counsel Richard Henderson advised selectmen not to approve the proposed regulation because it would leave the town with two bodies of law with two different provisions.

Henderson said conflicting regulations led the town into legal troubles over moorings once before. He was not anxious for a return bout.

In the first instance, mooring permit renewals were denied to 18 boat owners and waiting list status lifted from 58 others for failure to meet the annual billing date. Eight boat owners appealed the decision, claiming a confusing change in billing procedures led to the missed billing deadline.

The state agreed with their contention. The state ordered the mooring rights restored to the boaters who filed the appeal.

The amount of the harbor budget was also the subject of some controversy. Selectman Ned Tebbetts argued for a reduction in the amount of the budget or an increased share to be borne by users. Tebbetts said it was unfair to expect a majority of the taxpayers to support a resource used by only 15 percent of the population.

Defining the character of the town and maintaining it kept the planning board and zoning board of appeals hopping, especially on Route 3A.

Parking and rental space controversies at the reconstructed Dwyer's cleaning store started the year off for the town. Issues concerning outdoor displays of merchandise, setbacks and signage kept things going throughout the spring and fall. As the days dwindled down to a precious few, illegal sales of Christmas trees along the highway kept planning and zoning in the news.

The future of the Curtis Estate opened and closed the year.

George E. Curtis, who died in 1931, left an estate of 53 acres, three houses and a barn on Jerusalem Road. According to his will, the estate was to be used as a "home and refuge for feeble, deformed or invalid women." Slightly less than 60 years later, a local committee was fighting to establish an Alzheimer's Disease care center on the estate, while trustees wanted to break the terms of the will so they could sell the property and add the proceeds to the $1.2 million in liquid assets they held.

In early January, Asst. Attorney General Richard Allen switched his position on the care center after becoming convinced that a center "would be too risky" on the Jerusalem Road estate because of the site's inability to support a septic system and cost of developing the center on the estate.

Allen's decision paved the way for the trustees to put the estate on the market, but the committee and the state asked the Plymouth County Probate Court to order trustees to find an alternative site for the care center and fund it under the terms of Curtis' will.

Although they expected the court to hear the case in April, no action took place until early December. In a ruling received Monday, the probate court ordered the trustees to invest a portion of the principal, not to exceed $800,000, in the establishment of a center to serve low income adults who are elderly or disabled, to lease the facility to a suitable operator and make additional grants to assist in the maintenance and operation of that facility or others serving the same population. The facility is to be located in Plymouth County or a contiguous town.

The property went on the market in February for $1.1 million. Today, it is listed for $650,000. According to a representative from Jack Conway & Associates Realtors, there has been quite a bit of interest in the property, but no solid offers. Drawbacks of the estate include 40 acres of unbuildable land, a failing septic system and three houses in various stages of disrepair.

The most exclusive property in town continues to be the local cemeteries. Only the estate of a deceased person can purchase a plot. The town hopes to buy back unused gravesites to accommodate residents while the cemetery study committee works on long-range solutions.

Plans to build a new cemetery in the Pleasant Street area were put on hold because of neighborhood objections. The committee is looking for other appropriate land. Expansion plans at Beechwood Cemetery seem to offer the only hope for the near future.

The cemetery committee has a three-phase development project. The first phase will add 50 to 70 gravesites. If the town agrees to the other phases and provides the funds, nearly 700 gravesites can be added to the cemetery.

Staying healthy got more difficult for town employees in 1990. Blue Cross terminated health insurance coverage arrangements because the town couldn't get a minimum of 20 percent of the employees to sign up for the plan.

According to Executive Secretary Greg Doyon, it was all a matter of economics. The HMO plans were considerably cheaper for town employees.

Now the town has to find a health insurance plan that provides the same kind of coverage as Blue Cross. For retired employees who moved out of state, HMO coverage is not an option.

They say every dog must have his day, but one dog in Cohasset has been in the news for the past four months. The owners promise to keep the town battling if they want to exile the dog.

Jasmin, a Labrador retriever owned by Andrew Spalt and Margaret Lincoln, hit the news when she repeatedly ran away from home and terrified a two-year-old child with severe medical problems.

Selectmen ordered the dog exiled when repeated promises to keep the dog restrained were broken. The district court ordered the owners to relinquish the dog for adoption out of town, but Spalt and Lincoln refused. They have hired animal rights activist and attorney Stephen Wise to pursue an appeal of the order.

Who will provide recreation services for Cohasset youngsters in 1991? That's another question up for debate and decision.

The Cohasset Community Center proposed taking over programs currently provided by the town recreation department in February and again in October. They say there is no need to duplicate services. They say they can provide the programs without a town subsidy because fees will cover their expenses.

The recreation commission says if the town wants to save money, this isn't the department to do it in.

According to director Jack Worley, the programs generate considerable revenue that supports other services of the department.

The recreation commission claims the Community Center wants to take only the revenue-generating programs and leave the town with the others.

In short, sometimes Cohasset affairs seemed more like a continuing drama with lots of cliffhangers to keep residents tuned in.

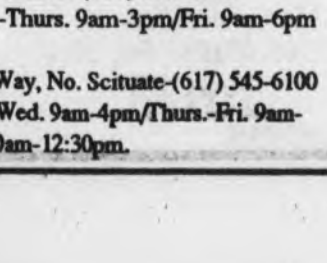
Water rates will rise 18 percent this year

By Patricia Desmond
Mariner staff

Water rates for residents rose about 18 percent with the start of the new year.

Eugene R. Babin, manager of the Massachusetts-American Water Company, released a statement on the new rate increase explaining that the state Department of Public Utilities approved the new rate.

The DPU denied the company's request to have consumers pay for water hydrant usage. Currently the town pays a fee for water hydrant usage.



Last summer the company filed for a 22 percent rate hike for the systems of Hingham, Millbury and Oxford. The DPU kept the Hingham rate separate from the rate for the two western Massachusetts towns. The Hingham rate also affects some consumers in North Cohasset and a portion of Norwell, along the Hingham line.

The new rate will increase the company's revenue by $885,718 a year, according to projections.

Company officials were unable to gage the actual impact on a residential water customer.

BULLETIN BOARD

Talking shop on Pierson

Junior Damato, host of WHDH's Radio Automotive Talkshow and owner of Junior's Automotive Shop in Hyde Park, will talk cars in the first segment of Pierson to Person this week.

The second segment guest will be Noel Ripley, Chairman of the Cohasset Historical Commission, who will review the commission restoration project of Minot's Ledge Lighthouse on Government Island.

Pierson to Person is hosted by Wigmore A. Pierson and is broadcast live each Thursday, 8-9 p.m., on Channels 3 and 53 in Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Norwell, Scituate, and Hanover.

Persons wishing to be part of the studio audience should be at the studio on Gannett Road in North Scituate by 7:45 p.m. on Thursday evening, Jan. 3.

Tuberculosis rate on rise

Tuberculosis rates continue to climb in the U.S. and experts say the 1990 increase will be the largest since national reporting on the disease began in 1953. The Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association today expressed serious concern over provisional case reports on tuberculosis from the Centers for Disease Control (CDC).

The new figures show that through November, 1990, TB incidence rose eight percent from last year. Researchers think that the increase could reach 10 percent by the end of December.

"We're seeing large increases in TB in many cities and states," said Joseph Godzik, V.M.D., of Cohasset, President of the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association. "What is of particular concern are the increases in the number of cases among children under age five."

Large increases in TB have also occurred among Blacks, Hispanics and in younger adults, age 25-44.

Experts attribute much of the rise to TB occurring in persons with the AIDS virus (HIV). Other causes include increased immigration from high-prevalence countries and transmission in institutional settings such as schools, hospitals, homeless shelters, correctional facilities and nursing homes.

The American Thoracic Society, the medical arm of the American Lung Association, is co-sponsoring a National Institutes of Health/CDC conference in Washington, D.C., on TB research aimed at finding better ways to diagnose, prevent and treat the disease. Additionally, the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association has been working with health departments in many towns to develop community action plans.

"Unfortunately, although many Americans think that TB has been eliminated, it is making a strong resurgence in this country and remains at disastrous levels in most developing countries," Godzik said. "In addition, we're seeing significant increases in tuberculosis strains which are resistant to existing drug therapies."

Budget pressures pose a threat to TB control programs. At the Federal level, Congress had authorized $36 million to intensify TB prevention and control efforts, but appropriated $9.1 million. Officials face similar problems at the state and local levels.

The Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association is an affiliate of the American Lung Association, the oldest nationwide voluntary health agency in the United States. Founded in 1904 to combat tuberculosis, today the Association and its medical section, the American Thoracic Society, are dedicated to the conquest of lung disease and the promotion of lung health. American Lung Association's public health education and research programs are supported by donations to Christmas Seals and by other voluntary contributions.

Recreation news

With cold weather, hence, ice skating season approaching, the following should be used as a guideline for safe ice. Common sense is the most important denominator, however, according to John Worley, recreation director.

Ice Safe:	0-3°	30-40°	40-50 °
Single skaters	1-3/4 in.	2-3/4 in.	6 in.
Couples	2-3/4 in.	3-3/4 in.	8 in.
Crowds	3-3/4 in.	4-3/4 in.	12 in.

These figures are for clear, fresh water ice only; for snow ice, add two inches; for water logged ice, add three inches; if skates cut in, go home! Salt water in mild climates is always treacherous, keep away from it. Also thickness in 40-50° column are safe depths for short periods of time only.

The deepest portion of Elms Meadow is towards the Spring Street dam (about 12 inches-18 inches) the shallowest is towards the back of the area, which is 3 inches or so.

Do not throw debris on the ice to check for safety. This only clutters up the ice, making skating dangerous, and does not give you an accurate indication of ice strength.

FURNITURE RESTORATION/REFINISHING

The Cohasset Recreation Department will accept telephone registrations for a furniture restoration-refinishing-revitalization class, to be taught by Kenneth Sargent of Cohasset Country Workshop, by calling the recreation office at 383-6791.

Sessions are five weeks in duration, meeting on Wednesday or Saturday mornings, 9 a.m to 11 a.m., at Cohasset Town Hall. The fee for the 10 hour program is $50 per person, and classes are restricted in size to allow for individual attention.

Participants should select a piece of furniture, that is relatively portable, for class work. A chair or small table is ideal. Participants will not only learn the arts involved with restoration and refinishing, but will also have a completed piece of furniture by the end of the session.

Participants will be required to bring some supplies with them to class, other supplies will be provided. When you call to register, please indicate what piece of furniture you will be bringing to class. Non-Cohasset residents will be accepted for enrollment upon a space available basis, and the next session is scheduled to begin during mid-January.

Light side to 1990 left reasons to smile

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Not everything was filled with doom and gloom in 1990. In spite of grim times for much of the commonwealth, Cohasset residents had much to be grateful for and managed to have a lot of fun and considerable laughter.

Residents could take pleasure in the incredible beauty the town has in ample measure. From the sandy strands of the coastline to the rolling farmlands across Route 3A, Cohasset has more than its share of Mother Earth's bounty.

Earth Day, Apples for the Students and Village Renaissance projects showed Cohasset residents at their best, pulling together to achieve a common goal.

The generation gap leapfrogged over Cohasset. The little ones from Osgood and the Community Center nursery school and its senior citizens share lunches and good times — they know they have a special bond.

Cohasset's students did themselves proud. Town scores on SATs, achievement and assessment tests showed that they were among the best and brightest in the state and the nation.

Their volunteer service efforts demonstrated their willingness to give back to the community for some of the advantages they have known.

Even Rosa B'gosa was spared to bloom again in another spring.

The plant, admittedly ungainly and unbeautiful in the leafless seasons of winter and fall, faced uprooting at the veterans memorial. But the plant that is impervious to drought and beloved by butterflies found defenders in the flower-loving legions of Cohasset.

The ability to squabble and disagree, but keep the really important things in mind marked the year. Even the resident who chastised Music Circus producer Ed Kasses at a selectman's meeting because of the noise level of the shows and traffic jams on Sohier Street left arm and arm with him.

"We'll leave together. We're still friends," they said.

Somehow it seems so very Cohasset.

Eastern Edison offers its own storm safety hints

"Safety is our first concern in every emergency," says John D. Carney, Eastern Edison Co. president. "That is especially true in case a severe winter storm knocks down electric wires."

Carney offered these safety tips for dealing with potentially hazardous situations that may exist during and after severe storms:

• Never touch any downed wire. Treat all fallen wires as if they were live electric lines.

• Do not attempt to move fallen or sagging wires. Do not remove anything that may be across them or in contact with them.

• In case of power loss, stay clear of fences. Live wires may be in contact with a fence at a spot out of your immediate view.

• Report all fallen wires, regardless of whether they are burning or sparking or not, to Eastern Edison immediately at the company's toll-free emergency telephone number, (800) 242-3850, and your local police or fire department. Be as specific as possible in describing the situation and be prepared to tell the operator the exact address of the problem.

Every utility pole is tagged with a number at about adult eye-level. It would be very helpful if you can tell the operator this number when calling in an emergency.

Eastern Edison's emergency telephone lines are in operation 24 hours a day, seven days a week, to handle such calls.

The company's first priority during an emergency is to ensure public safety by clearing hazardous conditions. Then, workers take action to restore electric service. "Prompt restoration of electric service is second only to safety," Carney said.

Eastern Edison offers specific electric safety programs at area elementary schools. School administrators and teachers may request other safety-oriented curriculum materials suitable for all grades by contacting Eastern Edison's Educational Services Coordinator, Ruth E. Stetson, at (508) 580-1213. A special program is available to instruct fire and police personnel in the proper way to treat live electric lines in emergency situations.

Eastern Edison Co. provides electric service to more than 170,000 customers in the Brockton and Fall River areas. It is one of three retail electric utilities of Eastern Utilities Associates, an investor-owned holding company.

Greenbush rail restoration makes news

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Boston-bound commuters still don't know how they'll get from here to there in the future, despite a year of environmental reviews, feasibility studies and community forums.

The South Shore Coalition told them the future studies prove it won't be by car unless they have world enough and time. Gridlock projections for the year 2000 and beyond say the expressway traffic will be going nowhere fast.

Some things never change.

Commuter rail restoration, once promised for 1992, seems more unlikely than ever, at least along the Greenbush branch of the Old Colony line. Concerns about cost and environmental impact, particularly in the historic district of Hingham, derailed Greenbush from the Old Colony package deal.

More studies lurk in wait in 1991 and financing looks grim as state and federal fortunes decline.

One thing for sure, Cohasset residents will have the opportunity to vote for or against restoration at town meeting in April.

Many commuter rail opponents tout commuter boats as the wave of the future. They push bus connections between Cohasset and the shipyard in Hingham as the commuters' prayer. But the MBTA boosted round trip fares earlier this year and then when ridership dropped off, claimed an increase in subsidy and empty seats dictated cutbacks in service.

For travelers hoping to get there and back again, the family car and lots of fuming on the highway seem to be in the cards for a long, long time to come.

Several residents flew anti-railroad flags along the Greenbush rail.

Obituaries

Marguerite Russell

Funeral services were held Dec. 28 at Sacred Heart Church in North Quincy for Marguerite "Rita" (Dugan) Russell, 80, who died Dec. 26 at South Shore Hospital.

Mrs. Russell worked 48 years for New England Telephone before retiring 15 years ago.

She was a member of the Telephone Pioneers of America.

She was born in Boston and lived in Quincy before moving to Cohasset 30 years ago.

Wife of the late William F. Russell, she is survived by a brother, Henry J. Dugan of Randolph; two sisters, Kathryn Dugan of Quincy, and Alma M. Dugan of Randolph; and six nephews and nieces, David and Jeffrey Dugan, both of Randolph, Daniel Dugan of Quincy, Deborah Dolan of Stoughton, Judith Milazzo of Idaho and Joyce Pavao of Cambridge; and several grandnieces and nephews.

Burial will be in Old Calvary Cemetery, Boston.

Funeral arrangements were by the Old Calvary Cemetery, Boston.

Editorial

We're ready for '91

We face a new year, with its new challenges, new opportunities, options for growth.

As we face the year's beginning, we seem to be looking at most of the old issues we dragged through 1990.

Money is a concern. The railroad is a concern. Transportation to Boston is a pain.

Unemployment is a big issue. Foreclosures and repossessions are becoming commonplace.

Now the situation in the Mideast has even become a local concern as more and more of our neighbors face the possibility of war.

But we bring with us — into the new year — our old values and strengths. We are a people who care immensely. We are well-educated and quite involved in political process. We are a people who work long and hard, who strive to achieve, who believe in the quest for excellence.

We are hardly perfect. But we do the best we can with our God-given talents. We are not known to be wasteful.

Coming through 1990, we dealt well with the problems at hand. But few seem to be resolved.

Our wish for 1991 is that peace and prosperity will somehow prevail.

We know that it will take hard work and a positive attitude to get through the challenges ahead.

So welcome, 1991. We'll resolve to do our best with what's at hand.

Our best guesses (and/or hopes) for the coming year

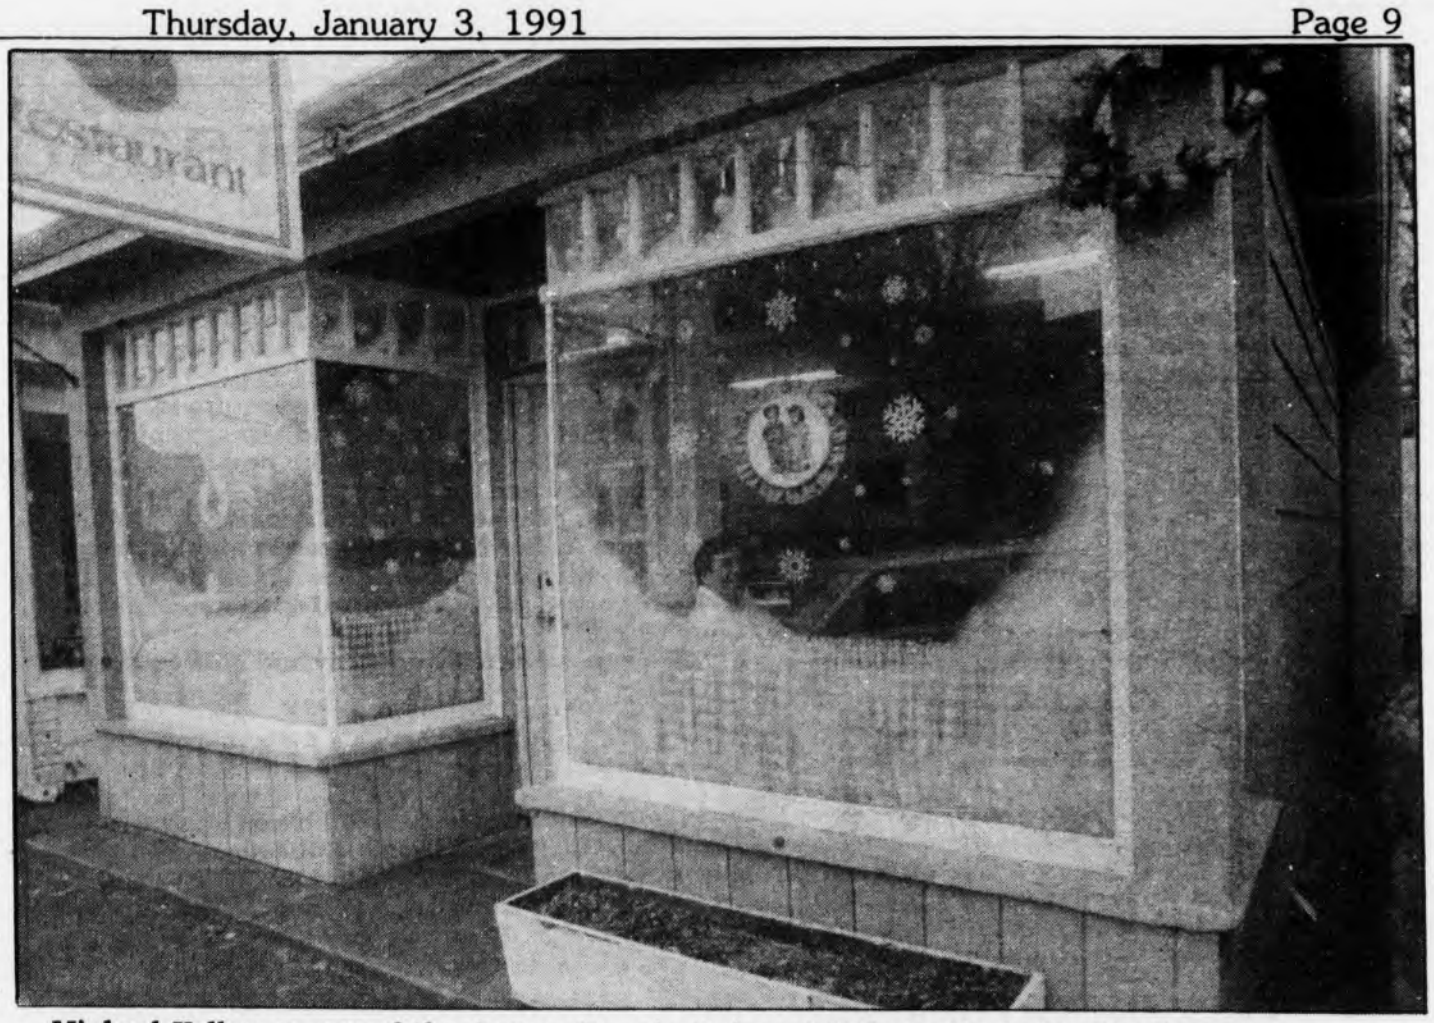
Time for a quick peak at Madame Mariner's crystal ball.

Every other tabloid issues a set of predictions for the coming year. It's time the Cohasset Mariner delivered its own fortunes.

Sure to come true:

• the Greenbush branch of the Old Colony Railroad will remain in the new throughout the new year. There will be no clear-cut victory on either side. But everyone knows, the rail opponents believe delay equals defeat.

• voters will face another override question on the spring ballot. (We give it little hope of passing, despite the need for more money to keep the present level of services.)



• the demographics of the town will begin to change (toward the younger side) as more and more young people move back with their parents.

• most letters to the editor will be written by people who know enough not to begin with "Dear Sir."

• the school system will lay off more teachers to deal with budgetary constraints.

• while school sports and extra-curricular activities will decline due to money problems, community organizations will fill the gap.

• South Shore Conservatory in Hingham will seek new ways to face the region's financial crunch and cash in on the fame of the Simpsons. The first LP on the Conservatory label will be called "Mr. Simpson's favorite pieces." Michael Jackson will not do the vocals but then the beat will be a little slow for his liking.

Getting personal

By Patricia Desmond
Mariner staff

A wise woman once said, "The personal is political."

I made two new year's resolutions this year. I guess they are political. I try to keep things simple.

• I resolved to keep my priorities in order. (I'll think about setting them sometime soon but I've come up with number one. I guess that's the beginning.)

• I resolved to lose the weight I gained when I was pregnant. (My youngest child will be 12 years old next month — it seems about time.)

Truthfully, I would like to be thin again. I can remember when I was in better shape. I don't remember being happy with my body back then. It's embarrassing, but even when I could fit into a size 9, I thought I was fat. I had this silly notion that thin meant rail-like.

It's embarrassing because I couldn't even hope to fit into a size 9.

Today I want to find a cure for my aging rate of metabolism. The cure would have to be more magical than medical because I have drug-phobia, that's the fear of the effects of pills of any sort.

And I've never been very good at dieting. I'm addicted to eating at least two meals a day. (I never did find the time for breakfast.)

It isn't the two meals that keeps the pounds around my waist but junk food is my way of life. You can keep your carrots and fruits. Let me keep starvation away with a chocolate bar now and then.

In reality losing the extra 20 pounds would probably be a snap compare with dealing with getting my priorities straightened out.

What comes first on my priority list?

I used to think my two children were my main priority in life.

But my 20-year-old daughter lives two towns away — it's pretty hard to think she needs a mother.

My almost-12-year-old son believes the reason God made mothers was so there would be someone to drive kids around. I feel as necessary as paid help.

When the children were small my priorities were more clear-cut. They had greater needs. Motherhood had a purpose. Letting go has been hard for me but it's a lesson with its own rewards.

There was a time when my career seemed to deserve round-the-clock priority. I was young then and didn't know about the dangers of workaholism. I knew I enjoyed my work. I thought that meant working 16 hour days should be fun.

There was even a time when I thought my goal in life was to make the world a better place. I was impressionable in the '60s. It took years of struggle before I realized the insanity of trying to make social change a personal priority.

In the last few years, a high priority of mine has been to pay down my credit cards. That one sounds reasonable until it's time to pay the orthodontist or fix a new and major household safety hazard.

There was a time when I thought I could be super-person and get everything accomplished if only I applied myself.

Over the years, I've tried (and discovered the error in my thinking) many different sets of priorities.

In my middle-age, I have finally accepted my limitations. I can't fix the world. I can't even stay up all night, anymore.

The bottom line is: this year my top priority will be to finally find time for myself. It's time to enjoy myself, to get to know the woman I've become. Maybe I can even find a way to lose some weight before the next new year rolls around.

Kindergarten students at Osgood School celebrate Christmas.

Now that the bid for the police-fire station renovation has come in lower than expected, maybe that controversial door between the two departments can be installed.

1991 was marked by transition & tragedy

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

If all the world's a stage, then Cohasset certainly saw its share of exits and entrances.

As 1990 began, we said goodbye to Ben Curley who resigned the helm of the water department after nine years as superintendent and nearly 23 years watching over our mains and drains.

Curley's place at the top was taken by Joe Hamilton who had toiled in the water department for eight years. Hamilton moved up from his duties as lab director and plant operator.

Frank Massa died Jan. 2. A resident of Cohasset since 1952, Massa was founder and chairman of Massa Products Corp. in Hingham.

Massa was credited by the secretary of the Navy in the 1950's for playing a major role in the Allied victory in World War II due to his development of sonar equipment to detect submarines and underwater missiles. He also worked alongside MIT, the University of Hawaii and the National Geographic Society to develop methods for tracking whales.

Cohasset High School student Melissa Christoffel found out in early 1990 that she would be one of two New England students and only a handful nationwide to spend a year as a foreign exchange student in the USSR beginning in August. This is the first year the American Field Service would be sending American students to the Soviet Union.

In late February, Robin Eric Lagemann was swept out to sea while rowing off the coastline of Cohasset. Lagemann was a staunch environmentalist and dedicated rower.

Paul Logue sold Hugo's Lighthouse Restaurant, a long-time landmark along the coastline, to the California-based Chart House restaurant chain. Chart House renamed the establishment, extensively remodeled the building and dismantled the lighthouse sign out front. Many residents were more dismayed by the artificially-induced lime green patina on the new copper roof than by any other change wrought by Chart House.

Residents living along the Gulf River formed an association to preserve and protect the quality of life along the river bank and marshes. The group won a grant from the state to conduct a water testing program to identify sources of pollution in the river and its tributaries.

The town gained a new five-member commission on the handicapped to coordinate and carry out programs to meet the needs of handicapped residents in conjunction with the state Office of Handicapped Affairs.

April town elections brought few changes. Most significant was the defeat of Burt Pratt as selectman. Pratt was magnanimous in defeat, congratulating the winners and promising to continue his 40-year tradition of service to his hometown in any capacity that he could be of use.

New faces in town government included Jane Goedecke's in the selectman's office and Lucille McLoughlin among the library trustees.

Dave Chittim resigned as Cohasset's representative to the South Shore Vo-tech. Chittim didn't get to enjoy much idle time – he joined the board of directors of the council on aging soon after.

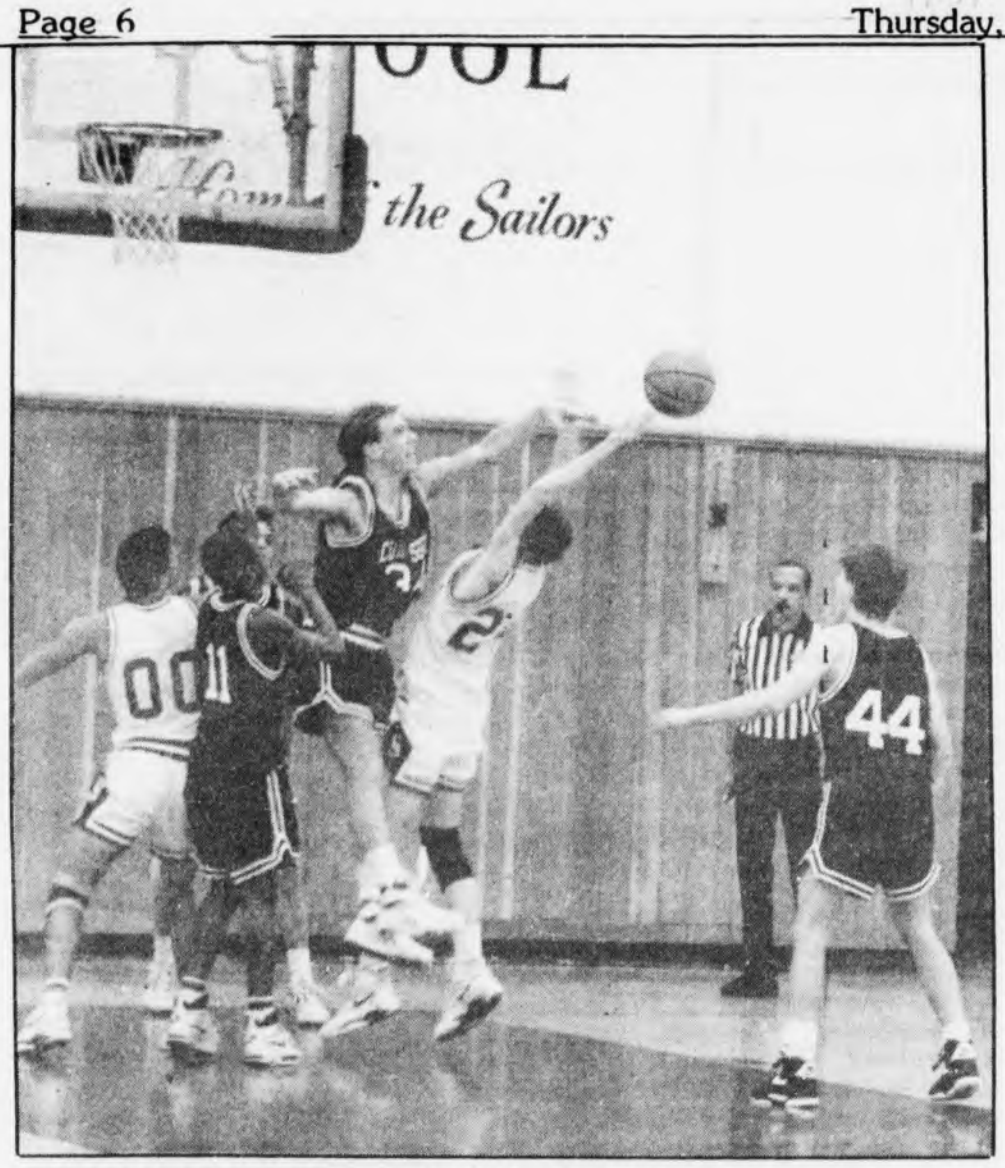
Selectmen found a replacement for Chittim in Laurence J. Mitchell. Mitchell brings a special concern to his post. He is a graduate of the regional school.

Cohasset's veterans saw a newly reactivated group form with a special interest in them. The group, Sons of the American Legion, plans to visit veterans' hospitals and undertake special projects. One of their first ventures was a project to repair and repaint the town's honor roll of war dead.

Jack Creamer, principal of Osgood School retired after 36 years with the school system, 18 of them behind the principal's desk. The school hired Linda Whitney to oversee Osgood and serve as curriculum coordinator for both Osgood and Deer Hill schools.

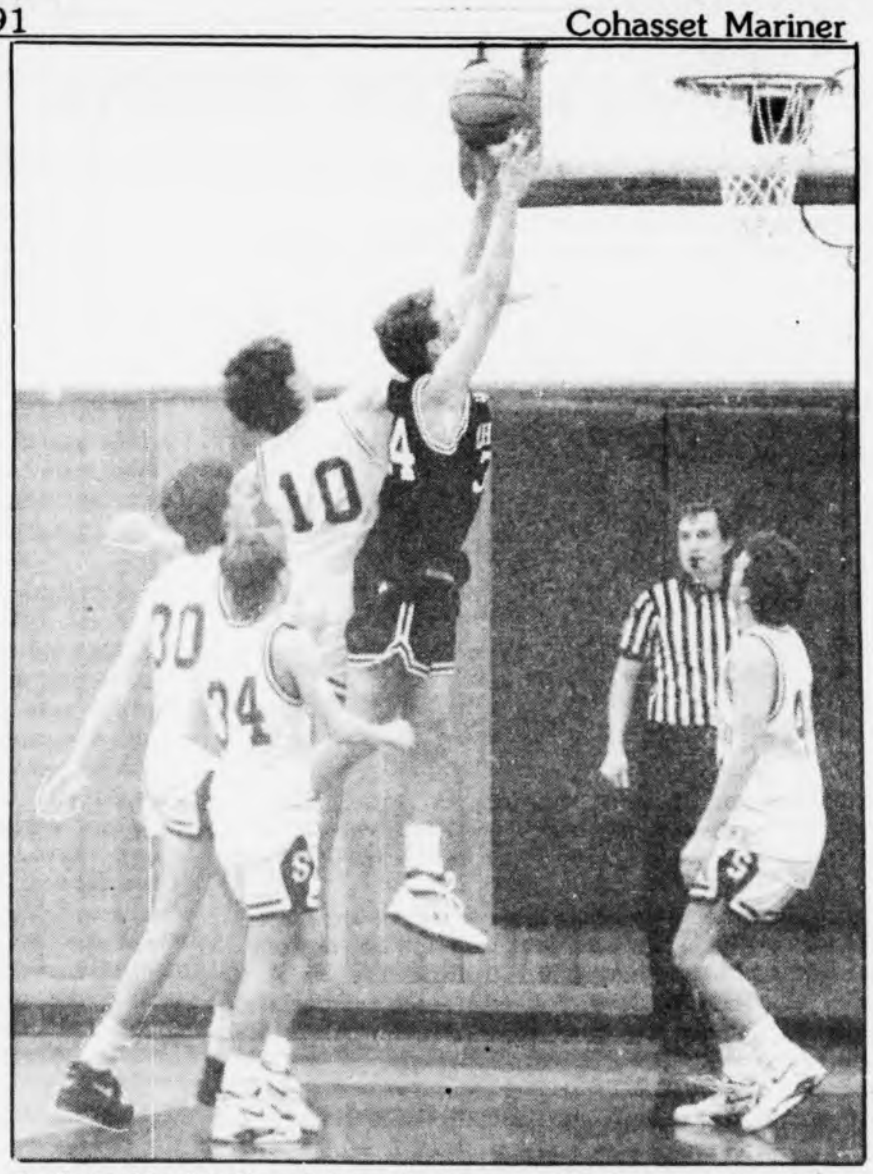
A tragic car accident claimed the life of John A. Lanata Jr., 19, a 1989 graduate of Cohasset High School. State Police investigators theorize that he fell asleep at the wheel as he was returning home from visiting a friend in New York. His family established a scholarship foundation in his name.

The guidance department doesn't seem quite the same with the retirement of secretary Mary Brennock. Brennock was a familiar and welcome sight throughout her 21-year career. Brennock shepherded countless children through their school years – although she always worked in the guidance department, at various times she also worked in the two elementary schools.



Another fixture of life in Cohasset vanished from the scene. Sgt. Richard Barrow retired after 40 years of service to the police department. Barrow was "roasted" at a combination birthday/retirement party marking these milestones in a life of service.

Barrow continues to serve Cohasset as chairman of the recreation commission.



Things will be different in the office of the board of assessors, too. Dorothy Graham, secretary to the board since its creation, announced her decision to retire at the end of December. Prior to working for the assessors, Graham was secretary to the board of selectmen. All told, Graham spent 40 years working for the town.

Happy New Year

We're ready for '91

We face a new year, with its new challenges, new opportunities, options for growth.

As we face the year's beginning, we seem to be looking at most of the old issues we dragged through 1990.

Money is a concern. The railroad is a concern. Transportation to Boston is a pain.

Unemployment is a big issue. Foreclosures and repossessions are becoming commonplace.

Now the situation in the Mideast has even become a local concern as more and more of our neighbors face the possibility of war.

But we bring with us — into the new year — our old values and strengths. We are a people who care immensely. We are well-educated and quite involved in political process. We are a people who work long and hard, who strive to achieve, who believe in the quest for excellence.

We are hardly perfect. But we do the best we can with our God-given talents. We are not known to be wasteful.

Coming through 1990, we dealt well with the problems at hand. But few seem to be resolved.

Our wish for 1991 is that peace and prosperity will somehow prevail.

We know that it will take hard work and a positive attitude to get through the challenges ahead.

So welcome, 1991. We'll resolve to do our best with what's at hand.

Our best guesses (and/or hopes) for the coming year

Time for a quick peak at Madame Mariner's crystal ball.

Every other tabloid issues a set of predictions for the coming year. It's time the Cohasset Mariner delivered its own fortunes.

Sure to come true:

• the Greenbush branch of the Old Colony Railroad will remain in the new throughout the new year. There will be no clear-cut victory on either side. But everyone knows, the rail opponents believe delay equals defeat.

• voters will face another override question on the spring ballot. (We give it little hope of passing, despite the need for more money to keep the present level of services.)

• the demographics of the town will begin to change (toward the younger side) as more and more young people move back with their parents.

• most letters to the editor will be written by people who know enough not to begin with "Dear Sir."

• the school system will lay off more teachers to deal with budgetary constraints.

• while school sports and extra-curricular activities will decline due to money problems, community organizations will fill the gap.

• South Shore Conservatory in Hingham will seek new ways to face the region's financial crunch and cash in on the fame of the Simpsons. The first LP on the Conservatory label will be called "Mr. Simpson's favorite pieces." Michael Jackson will not do the vocals but then the beat will be a little slow for his liking.

Getting personal

By Patricia Desmond
Mariner staff

A wise woman once said, "The personal is political."

I made two new year's resolutions this year. I guess they are political. I try to keep things simple.

• I resolved to keep my priorities in order. (I'll think about setting them sometime soon but I've come up with number one. I guess that's the beginning.)

• I resolved to lose the weight I gained when I was pregnant. (My youngest child will be 12 years old next month — it seems about time.)

Truthfully, I would like to be thin again. I can remember when I was in better shape. I don't remember being happy with my body back then. It's embarrassing, but even when I could fit into a size 9, I thought I was fat. I had this silly notion that thin meant rail-like.

It's embarrassing because I couldn't even hope to fit into a size 9.

Today I want to find a cure for my aging rate of metabolism. The cure would have to be more magical than medical because I have drug-phobia, that's the fear of the effects of pills of any sort.

And I've never been very good at dieting. I'm addicted to eating at least two meals a day. (I never did find the time for breakfast.)

It isn't the two meals that keeps the pounds around my waist but junk food is my way of life. You can keep your carrots and fruits. Let me keep starvation away with a chocolate bar now and then.

In reality losing the extra 20 pounds would probably be a snap compare with dealing with getting my priorities straightened out.

What comes first on my priority list?

I used to think my two children were my main priority in life.

But my 20-year-old daughter lives two towns away — it's pretty hard to think she needs a mother.

My almost-12-year-old son believes the reason God made mothers was so there would be someone to drive kids around. I feel as necessary as paid help.

When the children were small my priorities were more clear-cut. They had greater needs. Motherhood had a purpose. Letting go has been hard for me but it's a lesson with its own rewards.

There was a time when my career seemed to deserve round-the-clock priority. I was young then and didn't know about the dangers of workaholism. I knew I enjoyed my work. I thought that meant working 16 hour days should be fun.

There was even a time when I thought my goal in life was to make the world a better place. I was impressionable in the '60s. It took years of struggle before I realized the insanity of trying to make social change a personal priority.

In the last few years, a high priority of mine has been to pay down my credit cards. That one sounds reasonable until it's time to pay the orthodontist or fix a new and major household safety hazard.

There was a time when I thought I could be super-person and get everything accomplished if only I applied myself.

Over the years, I've tried (and discovered the error in my thinking) many different sets of priorities.

In my middle-age, I have finally accepted my limitations. I can't fix the world. I can't even stay up all night, anymore.

The bottom line is: this year my top priority will be to finally find time for myself. It's time to enjoy myself, to get to know the woman I've become. Maybe I can even find a way to lose some weight before the next new year rolls around.

Now that the bid for the police-fire station renovation has come in lower than expected, maybe that controversial door between the two departments can be installed.

1991 was marked by transition & tragedy

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

If all the world's a stage, then Cohasset certainly saw its share of exits and entrances.

As 1990 began, we said goodbye to Ben Curley who resigned the helm of the water department after nine years as superintendent and nearly 23 years watching over our mains and drains.

Curley's place at the top was taken by Joe Hamilton who had toiled in the water department for eight years. Hamilton moved up from his duties as lab director and plant operator.

Frank Massa died Jan. 2. A resident of Cohasset since 1952, Massa was founder and chairman of Massa Products Corp. in Hingham.

Massa was credited by the secretary of the Navy in the 1950's for playing a major role in the Allied victory in World War II due to his development of sonar equipment to detect submarines and underwater missiles. He also worked alongside MIT, the University of Hawaii and the National Geographic Society to develop methods for tracking whales.

Cohasset High School student Melissa Christoffel found out in early 1990 that she would be one of two New England students and only a handful nationwide to spend a year as a foreign exchange student in the USSR beginning in August. This is the first year the American Field Service would be sending American students to the Soviet Union.

In late February, Robin Eric Lagemann was swept out to sea while rowing off the coastline of Cohasset. Lagemann was a staunch environmentalist and dedicated rower.

Paul Logue sold Hugo's Lighthouse Restaurant, a long-time landmark along the coastline, to the California-based Chart House restaurant chain. Chart House renamed the establishment, extensively remodeled the building and dismantled the lighthouse sign out front. Many residents were more dismayed by the artificially-induced lime green patina on the new copper roof than by any other change wrought by Chart House.

Residents living along the Gulf River formed an association to preserve and protect the quality of life along the river bank and marshes. The group won a grant from the state to conduct a water testing program to identify sources of pollution in the river and its tributaries.

The town gained a new five-member commission on the handicapped to coordinate and carry out programs to meet the needs of handicapped residents in conjunction with the state Office of Handicapped Affairs.

April town elections brought few changes. Most significant was the defeat of Burt Pratt as selectman. Pratt was magnanimous in defeat, congratulating the winners and promising to continue his 40-year tradition of service to his hometown in any capacity that he could be of use.

New faces in town government included Jane Goedecke's in the selectman's office and Lucille McLoughlin among the library trustees.

Dave Chittim resigned as Cohasset's representative to the South Shore Vo-tech. Chittim didn't get to enjoy much idle time – he joined the board of directors of the council on aging soon after.

Selectmen found a replacement for Chittim in Laurence J. Mitchell. Mitchell brings a special concern to his post. He is a graduate of the regional school.

Cohasset's veterans saw a newly reactivated group form with a special interest in them. The group, Sons of the American Legion, plans to visit veterans' hospitals and undertake special projects. One of their first ventures was a project to repair and repaint the town's honor roll of war dead.

Jack Creamer, principal of Osgood School retired after 36 years with the school system, 18 of them behind the principal's desk. The school hired Linda Whitney to oversee Osgood and serve as curriculum coordinator for both Osgood and Deer Hill schools.

A tragic car accident claimed the life of John A. Lanata Jr., 19, a 1989 graduate of Cohasset High School. State Police investigators theorize that he fell asleep at the wheel as he was returning home from visiting a friend in New York. His family established a scholarship foundation in his name.

The guidance department doesn't seem quite the same with the retirement of secretary Mary Brennock. Brennock was a familiar and welcome sight throughout her 21-year career. Brennock shepherded countless children through their school years – although she always worked in the guidance department, at various times she also worked in the two elementary schools.

Another fixture of life in Cohasset vanished from the scene. Sgt. Richard Barrow retired after 40 years of service to the police department. Barrow was "roasted" at a combination birthday/retirement party marking these milestones in a life of service.

Barrow continues to serve Cohasset as chairman of the recreation commission.

Things will be different in the office of the board of assessors, too. Dorothy Graham, secretary to the board since its creation, announced her decision to retire at the end of December. Prior to working for the assessors, Graham was secretary to the board of se]ectmen. All told, Graham spent 40 years working for the town.

Happy New Year

MARINER SPORTS

Mat-men flex muscles against bigger teams

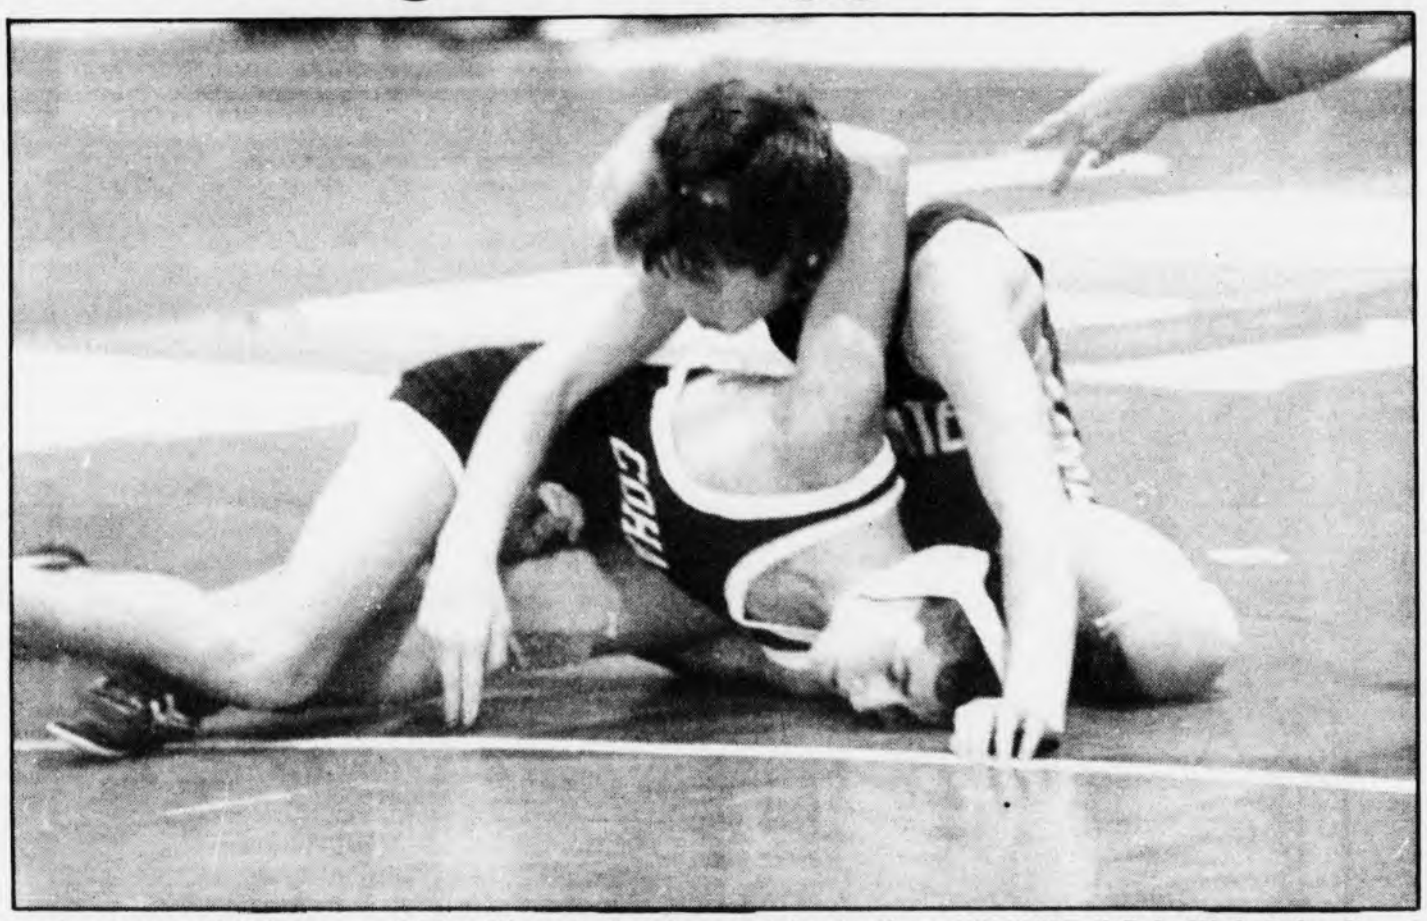
When the final mat was rolled-up after the two-day holiday tournament only two Cohasset wrestlers placed and the team ranked 14th out of a field of 17.

Sweeney said the team did as well as could be expected, and said the tournament pitted his smaller team against stronger Division 1 schools, with larger squads and greater talent.

He said the team should be proud both of its wins came in "very competitive weight classes."

Billy Baird, a 3-year varsity starter who made the state finals last year had two pins throughout the tournament.

One of the tournament's more dramatic moments came in the finals when Baird faced a Randolph High School opponent who defeated him early in the quarter finals. Baird seized upon the opportunity to avenge the loss by pinning the challenger to the mat and claiming a third place victory in the class.



Sweeney said such moments are typical of the sport.

"That kind of drama tends to happen a lot in wrestling," he said. "It was very dramatic and a great win."

Baird also had another pin in the 130-pound weight class.

Oliver Navoe managed two pins in the 160-pound weight class and placed fifth.

Sweeny admits the team may need more polish and preparation, but he is hopeful that throughout the team's remaining 15 matches and three tournaments it can prove itself a team to be reckoned with; not just this season but in years to come.

B-ball team stands 3-3 for year

The Cohasset High School Boy's basketball team just couldn't keep pace with rival Scituate and were defeated 64-53 in the host team's Christmas tournament.

Cohasset's leading scorers Linc Marsac (with 25 points), and Kywon Edwards (with 12 hoops) were not able to get by the fine Sailor's defense.

Cohasset's record now stands at three wins, three losses.

The team had a better showing in the tournament with an earlier 63-27 victory over Medeiros Hall.

Linc Marsac swished 31 points to lead the Skippers to an impressive win.

The team held onto a solid lead for the entire second half.

Gymnasts balance successfully

On December 17, Cohasset High Gymnasts met with Hanover High School at Cohasset. With star gymnast Tara Gallagher away in Ireland, and teammate Marnie DeMichele sick, Cohasset took on its second loss of the season—93.45, Cohasset, and Hanover, 95.48.

Coach Ruthann Sargent believes that Cohasset was far more talented than Hanover, but, "We just could not stay on the beam."

"We won the vault, and the floor exercise, and lost to bars by a few tenths, the meet was ours. We lost it on the beam." "Next time around we will beat them."

Top scorers for Cohasset on the bars were number one, Noel Roma, number two Nicole Haefner, number three, Erin Sutherland.

Cohasset's Erin Sutherland was the only gymnast on Cohasset's squad to place on the beam.

On the vault, Lynda Hague placed first with a personal best of 7.55 followed by teammates Rebecca Hackenburg with a second and Erin Sutherland with a third place.

Cohasset was very strong on the floor exercise with top performances by Lynda Hague, Erin Sutherland, and Rebecca Hackenburg.

Outstanding efforts by other teammates were by Tafana Fiore, Megan McNamara, Megan Fahey, Aimee Mitchell, and Caroline DeLima.

Next High School Gym meet is scheduled for Monday, January 7, at Cohasset High 7 p.m. against Duxbury High School. Charge is $3 admission.

AROUND TOWN

❑ Patrick Conroy, a freshman at Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn., and a resident of Cohasset, earned his first varsity letter in football at the college, head coach Kevin Spencer announced recently.

He served as a reserve along the defensive line and was a part of several special teams, including kickoff return and punt coverage, during the 1990 season. For the year, Conroy posted one tackle and recovered one fumble.

The 1990 season was a banner year in the football annals at Wesleyan. Equaling their best start in 21 years by pushing out to a 6-0 record, the Cardinals closed out the year at 6-2 following tough losses to unbeaten Williams and Trinity, which also finished 6-2. Wesleyan ended the season ranked no. 8 in the ECAC New England Division III poll after being rated among the top 10 teams in the region throughout the campaign, reaching as high as no. 5.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. John Conroy of Atlantic Avenue in Cohasset, Pat is a 1990 graduate of Cohasset High School where he was a multi-letterwinner in both football and wrestling, as well as a letterwinner in track. In football, Conroy was named best defensive player. He was a sectional placewinner on the mats at Cohasset.

Kindergarteners from Marie Price's class at Osgood celebrate the holidays.

❑ Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Kevin E. Dooley. Kevin and his bride, Lisa, were married recently, and are now living in Hyde Park. It sure seems funny not to see Kevin "around town," but we know that he will be happy in his new life. Best of luck to you both.

❑ Kate Tolini of Cohasset is cast as Zaneeta in the Southeastern Massachusetts University production of "The Music Man" Nov. 29 to Dec. 2.

Kate is a junior English/Writing major at SMU. She is a member of the SMU Theatre Company and a tutor at the Writing/Reading Center.

A graduate of Cohasset High School, she is the daughter of Patrica Tolini of Cohasset.

Lanci Valentine, director of South Shore Art Center, present Mary Alice Flynn her award.

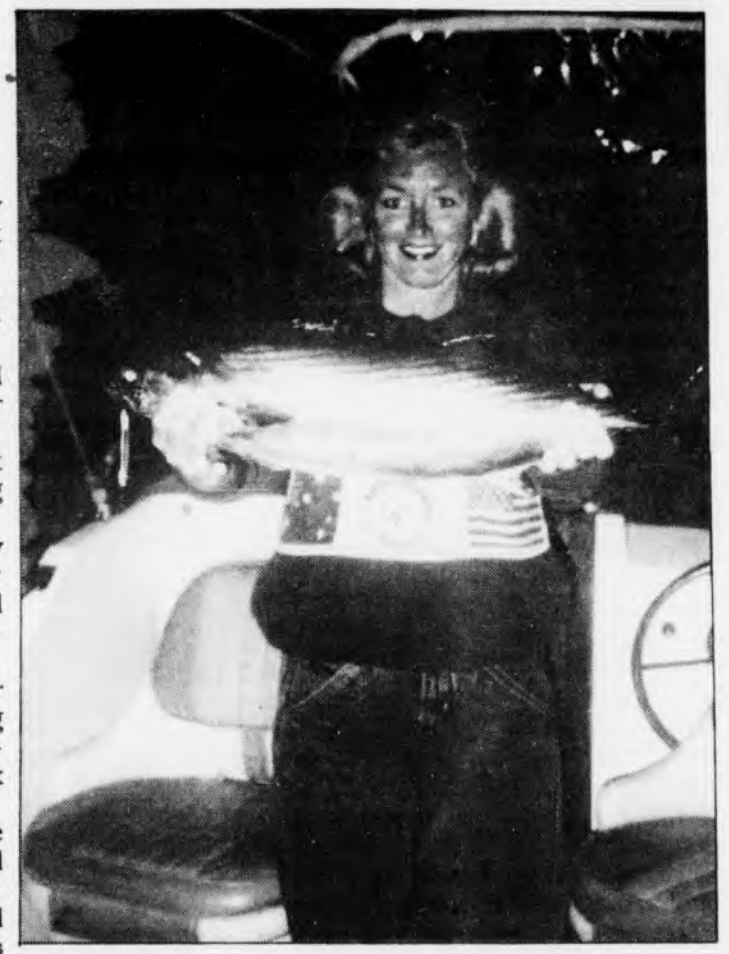
Mary Alice Flynn volunteer of year

Energetic, enthusiastic, engaging — that aptly describes Mary Alice Flynn of Scituate, the friendly volunteer at the South Shore Art Center's gift gallery in Cohasset.

Under her expert eye, she attractively presents an unusual array of fine crafts created by local artisans, and often passersby stop and buy.

When, after 25 years in Connecticut, she returned to Scituate, she spied a notice in the newspaper asking for art center volunteers and investigated.

The first person she met needed help at the gift gallery, and it was serendipity, since her training had been in retail display and merchandising.



Her work in the gift gallery put "something in my life that I was looking for when I had time on my hands, that I knew I could do and do well and feel that my contribution could make a difference," she said.

Mary Alice Flynn discovered art soon after her youngest child was born and she began taking courses in painting and art history. Later she became a docent at the Neuberger Museum for six years.

In addition to her work at the art center, she paints and sketches, plays golf and bridge and reads voraciously.

She and her husband, Bob, enjoy traveling and playing golf. They have five children, one of whom is a potter.

Last month, the South Shore Art Center presented her with a sterling silver pin created by Shreve, Crump and Low in the form of the art center's logo in appreciation of her services.

Lynda Hamill of Cohasset displays the 7 pound, 6 ounce Bonito she caught off Martha's Vineyard. The catch won her the state Saltwater Fishing Derby for the second time.

LAND COURT
42731 Conf.

To the Town of Cohasset, a municipal corporation, located in the County of Norfolk, and said Commonwealth; Florence R. Stoddard, Kathrynne L. Cummings, James Shipsky and Nan Shipsky, all of said Cohasset; Pilgrim Cooperative Bank, a duly existing corporation, having an usual place of business in said Cohasset; Catherine Hardwick, Abby C. Griggs, George Hardwick, Samuel Hardwick, Elizabeth A. Lemieux and Mary A. Richardson, all residences unknown; or their heirs devisees or legal representatives; and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Stewart S. Sargent and Eileen F. Sargent, both of Grantham, in the State of New Hampshire; to confirm their title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situate in said Cohasset, bounded and described as follows:

Northeasterly by Doane Street, 58.00 feet;

Southeasterly by land now or formerly of Florence R. Stoddard and Kathrynne L. Cummings, 30.00 feet; and Southwesterly and Northwesterly by land now or formerly of Stewart St. Sargent and Eileen F. Sargent, 58.00 feet and 30.00 feet, respectively.

The petitioners deny any rights of way as referred to in deed recorded with Norfolk Deeds Book 1014, Page 631, and seeks to have the same eliminated.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

If you desire to make any objection or defense to said petition you or your attorney must file a written appearance and an answer under oath, setting forth clearly and specifically your objections or defense to each part of said petition, in the office of the Recorder of said Court in Boston (at the Court House), on or before the twenty-first day of January next.

Unless an appearance is so filed by or for you, your default will be recorded, the said petition will be taken as confessed and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

WITNESS, JOHN E. FENTON, JR., Chief Justice of said Court, this thirteenth day of December in the year nineteen hundred and ninety.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

A True Copy Attest,
Charles W. Trombly, Jr.
Recorder

Start 1991 with a New Car.

We can help.

Once you've made your deal for your new car, let us put you in the driver's seat with our low rate, new car loan.

All that's required is a 20% down payment and you'll have up to 3 years to repay.

New Car Loans
Annual Percentage Rate

For example: a $10,000 loan would have 36 monthly payments of $322.58, finance charge of $1612.88, total payment of $11,612.88 and you can expect your check in 48 hours or less. We also have 4 year new car loans at attractive rates.

Gymnasium proposed at Osgood

By Joseph Mont
Mariner staff

The school department is considering the construction of a gymnasium at the Joseph Osgood School.

At the committee's regular meeting on Jan. 7, Kenneth Ekberg, the principal at the Deer Hill School and a member of the elementary school realignment committee gave the committee's recommendations.

According to Superintendent of Schools Stephen Hart, the addition, a multi-purpose gymnasium-cafeteria would cost an estimated $500,000.

Ekberg said his committee was charged with the task of "exploring possible solutions to overcrowding at the Joseph Osgood School."

"Of prime importance is the need for additional classroom space in the event that another third grade section is deemed desirable," he said citing a recent increase in the town's elementary school population.

He said creating necessary space for an early childhood special needs center, and the restoring library space were priorities for the committee. He said the need for a gym, play area, and school wide gathering space were also discussed.

Police chief seeks equipment, not men

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Police Chief Joseph Kealey rated new cruisers and weapons more essential for his department than more police officers.

Kealey included a $53,200 capital outlay to replace three old cruisers and the department revolvers in both the level-funded and level services budgets he prepared for fiscal 1992.

Selectmen approved both budgets and passed them along to the advisory committee for further action.

"I'm here to ask you for these things," Kealey said. "It's my duty and responsibility to ask you for the things the department needs. It's your department. Some year you just have to bite the bullet."

Kealey hopes to equip his officers with automatic weapons. He requested the change in type of weapon for the sake of accuracy and safety.

"We're way behind on weapon turnover. The weapons are more than 10 years old," Kealey told selectmen. "The criminals are using automatic weapons now. We'd like to start out even."

Kealey proposed replacing the 1984 and 1986 unmarked cars and a 1988 cruiser.

Citing the high cost of repairs, Selectman Martha Gjesteby endorsed the proposal to replace the elderly vehicles.

The police department isn't operating at full strength, despite hiring former Canton police officer Shellee Lynn Peters. The town offered a second opening to a former Weymouth patrolman, but he opted to take a position in Hingham instead.

The police chief and selectmen agreed to hold off on hiring until the results of the new police exam are in and a new rehire list has been prepared.

"The existing list practically leaves us no one," Kealey said.

Because the department detective is not included in the minimum manning calculations, the department remains down one officer. The staffing problem results in heavy use of overtime.

In past years, increasing the force beyond the bare minimum has been suggested. Kealey says he won't request any additional officers at this time.

"I'm not asking for more men now," Kealey said. "I just can't justify it, not when teachers are being laid off and they want to get rid of the best ambulance service around."

Kealey's level-funded budget totals $860,597. He budgeted about $13,000 more for fiscal 1992 to maintain services at the same level as the current fiscal year.

Most of the increase would be absorbed by higher costs for gasoline. Kealey anticipates going over his budget for gasoline in the current fiscal year.

The department already has cut back on road miles covered by cruisers in order to stay within the gasoline budget, according to Kealey.

"If we reduce any more, we might as well not go out on patrol," he said.

Lighthouse restoration project needs more $$$

Chilly weather has temporarily halted progress on the replica of Minot's Ledge Lighthouse out on Government Island in Cohasset. "The weather is too cold for the epoxy to set up, so we can't do the stone work until spring," Cohasset Historical Commission Chairman Noel Ripley said.

In the spring, workers will pin and epoxy the broken chunks of granite that form the domed roof of the watchroom. The roof will have an opening for the rotating mechanism that waits inside the watchroom.

If the huge granite block base stands in lonely contemplation of Cohasset Harbor, behind-the-scenes progress marches on.

New England Steel Tank has completed the superstructure that holds the windows and deck at its Quincy workshop. Currently, workers at the company are piecing together the dome roof.

The ornate roof dome consists of 12 curved copper panels. Karl Heine of New England Steel Tank is recreating the elaborately curved pieces alongside Cohasset lobsterman and coppersmith Herb Jason. John McDonald lends a helping hand.

According to Ripley, New England Steel Tank donated time and materials for construction of the superstructure. Workmen also sandblasted, repaired and installed the rotating mechanism.

Mark Koopman of Marshfield, president of New England Steel Tank, estimates his workers have donated 500 hours of labor to date. Ripley says the the business has donated nearly $30,000 in in-kind contributions.

150 years ago, Minot Light was created

By Marilyn Jackson
Mariner staff

After numerous shipwrecks at Minot's Ledge, the federal government decided to build a lighthouse off the coast of Scituate and Cohasset.

The lighthouse would be similar to one built at Black Rock Harbor in Connecticut, designed by Capt. William H. Swift of the United States Engineers, at a cost of $30,000.

It had nine iron stilts, 10 inches in diameter at the base that tapered to four inches, braced and counterbraced.

The piles supported the lighthouse tower, with the keeper's room and lantern above, rising 75 feet from the sea.

Work began in 1847, but it took several seasons to complete the work, for the 25-foot-wide ledge was exposed only for two to three hours at low tide.

In November 1848, Swift wrote to his superior officer, recommending that the structure stand for a winter without a keeper or lantern to test its endurance.

The final work for the lighthouse resumed in the spring of 1849.

COHASSET'S WEEK

Drama club to fly banner

Selectmen helped drama club members put on a happy face by granting them permission to hang a banner at town hall.

Tom Finegan, co-president of the drama club, said he had been told by Executive Secretary Greg Doyon that banners were banned from town hall.

Finegan said the drama club experienced a decrease in ticket sales without the banner reminding residents about the production.

According to Doyon, selectmen voted to curb flag and banner displays at a previous meeting. Unfortunately, Doyon could not find a record of the vote.

Selectmen were divided on their recollection of the provisions of the vote and suggested a compromise.

"I fought for the drama club and any organization that wants to use the town hall," selectmen Chairman Rocco Laugelle said. He suggested allowing the club to display their banner for this production since no record of the decision had been found.

"Frankly, we're overbannered," Selectman Jane Goedecke said, but conceded a sign at town hall would be fine if it was limited to a week to a week and one-half.

Resident Bob Davenport reminded selectmen that zoning bylaws permitted charity groups to display banners for two weeks before an event and one week following.

Finegan quickly agreed to a time-limited display, saying longer displays were no longer effective.

Bush backed by selectmen

Selectmen voted unanimously to support President Bush in his "critical deliberations" concerning Saudi Arabia and the Persian Gulf.

"I keep hearing talk show hosts blasting the president about Saudi Arabia and it bugs me, selectmen Chairman Rocco Laugelle said. "Does the board want to commit itself to backing him?"

Laugelle's fellow selectmen jumped at the opportunity.

Selectman Diana Kornet seconded the motion.

Kornet singled this issue out as one of the rare times when town government should get involved in foreign policy decisions "especially since there has been some question about the support of this board for people serving over there."

Kornet was referring to recent controversy over the board's belated backing of yellow ribbons signifying solidarity with U.S. hostages and soldiers in the Iraqui conflict.

After initially leaving it to individual choice, selectmen approved students tying ribbons on trees in the common as part of a candlelight vigil held the Sunday before Christmas to show support for the men and women of Operation Desert Shield.

Several Cohasset residents are serving in the Persian Gulf or are on their way.

Selectman Jane Goedecke added, "I think the motion is entirely appropriate. There is a need to show solidarity and support for the government."

Town invests in dog tags

When Cohasset bailed out of the county dog control system a year and a half ago, they forgot to add dog tags to the town budget. Selectmen tried to rectify that oversight by supporting a $212 transfer from the reserve fund.

Even with the cost of tags and licensing forms added in, going it alone leaves Cohasset ahead of the game. Although the county provided the tags and forms at no cost, they took all but $4 of the license fee.

Today, Cohasset keeps all of the $8 or $15 fees. It represents a $3,709 increase for dog licenses and approximately $2,500 in late license fees.

RTF permits on sale there

Residential 1991 Recycling Transfer Permits are now on sale in the supervisor's building at the Cedar Street Recycling Transfer Facility during operational hours on Wednesday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, 7:30 to 3:30.

The annual residential disposal fee is $52 which allows permits for two family vehicles registered at the same address. Registrations for both vehicles are to be submitted at the same time.

Checks are preferable and should be made payable to the Town of Cohasset. However, cash is acceptable. 1990 permits expired Dec. 31. Business permits will be sold only at the Board of Health office.

Town census is underway

Please be informed that the Town Census for 1991 will be mailed to each household in early January.

Compliance with state requirements provides proof of residence to protect voting rights, veteran's bonus, housing for the elderly and related benefits as well as providing information for selection of jurors. This does not register you as a voter but failure to answer this may result in the voter's name being removed from the voter's list. Please note that if a person wishes to remain a voter do not remove him from the census.

Dog forms will be enclosed for your convenience. The licenses are due January 1 through December 31.

No special numbers will be issued this year. Numbers will be issued on a first come first serve basis.

Early release day Jan. 10

Jan. 10 will be an early release day in the Cohasset Public Schools. There will be no afternoon kindergarten sessions and other students will be dismissed according to the following schedule:

SCHOOL	BUSES DEPART
Junior/Senior High School	12 p.m.
Deer Hill School	12:40 p.m.
Joseph Osgood School	12:50 p.m.

Lunch will be served in the elementary schools and food service will be available at the Junior/Senior High School.

This early release day has been approved by the Cohasset School Committee for our staff to attend a tri-district inservice meeting with the Hull and Scituate schools.

Gulf crisis topic on local cable TV

Just five days before the January 15 United Nations sanctioned deadline for withdrawal of Iraqi forces from Kuwait, Pierson to Person is featuring a two-hour special program dedicated to the men and women from Massachusetts who are participating in Operation Desert Shield in Saudi Arabia.

Headlining the guest list will be the head of the Massachusetts National Guard Major General Wayne F. Wagner, Zachary Lochman, Professor from Harvard University, State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, Kathy Tobin, WGGB-TV40 Anchor from Springfield who travelled to the desert in October, and Diane St. Laurent, the family support coordinator for the 1058th Transportation Company in Hingham which is now deployed to the potential war zone. Over 130 men and women from this unit are now stationed in the Gulf. The 1058th was the first National Guard unit in the country to be activated.

The guests will be questioned by host Wigmore Pierson and WGGB-TV Channel 40 Anchor Kathy Tobin. In this format the audience will also have the opportunity to express their views and concerns and ask questions about their loved ones in the Gulf.

Pierson to Person is broadcast live each Thursday, 8 to 9 p.m. on Channels 3 and 53 in Cohasset, Scituate, Hingham, Hull, Norwell and Hanover.

Anyone wishing to be part of the studio audience should be at the studio on Gannett Road, North Scituate by 7:15 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 10.

For more information call the Executive Producer of Pierson to Person, Robert Belliveau at 545-0643.

Tree trimming planned by light company

The Eastern Utility Company has hired a private contractor to maintain the power lines. The company, who will be cutting back branches, living or dead, over the high tension wires, will be Asphlund Tree Company. They are under contract to maintain all of Cohasset's streets, private and town owned.

The tree company has been advised by Peter Laugelle, Tree Superintendent, that if any customer wishes not to have any branches cut, they are to inform him of the house number and he will be in touch with the resident to discuss any problems that may occur.

Also the customer may contact Laugelle at 383-6709 and leave a message on the recorder and he will get back to them as soon as possible.

Town will keep the duplex on Government Island

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Selectmen committed themselves to retaining town ownership of the duplex on Government Island. What use they will make of the rental property remains to be seen.

The town advisory board has recommended sale of the waterfront property for the past two years. They contend the building is a money pit.

Currently, one of the two units in the old Minot's Ledge lighthouse keepers' house has been rented to the same tenants for more than 20 years. Tenants pay $600 per month for rent.

The other unit has been vacant since November when the tenants vacated the premises. Selectmen ordered the unit closed up for the winter pending a decision on the fate of the building.

According to a report made by building inspector Bob Egan in the summer, it will take $25,000 to $30,000 in repairs to bring the building up to code. The town already replaced the failing septic system under orders by the board of health.

Noel Ripley of the Government Island study committee told selectmen he had toured the building Monday. Ripley described the building as "basically sound, basically plumb," but in dire need of renovations and repairs.

According to Ripley, the kitchen and bathroom in the seven room, four bedroom apartment are "prehistoric, archaic." He estimated no work had been done on the kitchen since 1910.

More seriously, the floor in the kitchen is rotted through and the bulkheads need to be replaced immediately.

Ripley and the other members of the study committee contend that the building is well worth saving.

Committee member and town archivist David Wadsworth told the board that Government Island station is a candidate for inclusion on the National Register for Historic Places. Minot's Ledge Lighthouse is already listed on the register.

Wadsworth and Ripley assured selectmen that inclusion on the register would not impede town use of the building.

Ripley countered the idea that the building is a money pit. He said for years the town put the rent money in the general fund and never took care of routine maintenance and repairs.

"This is one of the million dollar views in Cohasset," Ripley said. "If we renovate the building, we certainly can raise the rent.

Selectman Ned Tebbetts agreed with Ripley.

"If we put $30,000 in renovations and get a $3,000 increase in income, it would be a good investment," Tebbetts said. Tebbetts said that would work out to a rental increase of $125 per unit.

Selectman Jane Goedecke raised the possibility allowing a tenant to exchange labor on renovations for a portion of the rent.

"We are determined to make this thing break even," she said. If it is not possible to cover repairs and maintenance through rent, she raised the possibility of discarding the notion of Government Island as affordable housing.

"We are determined to make it break even," Goedecke said.

Selectmen directed Executive Secretary Greg Doyon to pull together updated figures on repairs from the wire inspector, plumbing inspector and building inspector in the next week or two.

"We have to make a decision . . ., not let this go by the wayside," Goedecke said.

New gym planned at Osgood School

Ekberg said the committee was recommending the construction of a gymnasium at the Osgood School

"With such an addition the existing gymnasium would afford space for two additional classrooms and for a restored library," the report read.

Ekberg said the committee was aware of the difficulties the school department would have in following out the recommendation.

"Although it is our unanimous opinion that this is the best solution to the problem, we recognize that there are significant financial and political implications to this solution," he said.

The committee also discussed "short-term" solutions in the report including moving the Osgood collaborative class to Deer Hill School and increasing the number of third grade sections.

Ekberg said if there were five third grade sections there would be an increased need for an art/ music space.

He said that although it was possible to "schedule music and art in a nomad fashion, travelling from room to room" it was not a preferred alternative.

He said the committee even considered a "portable classroom to house art and music," but that it would cost as much as $15,000.

Other options included relocating kindergarten classes to Cohasset High School, town hall, church or relocating as many as five sections of the third grade to Deer Hill, and swapping Deer Hill and Osgood facilities.

Ekberg said there was little support for these options.

He suggested that the committee seriously consider the "long term solution" over a "band-aid" solution of new construction.

The committee will review the recommendations and make a decision at their next meeting.

Gulf Association mails booklet on river

The Gulf Association this week mailed to its 60 members and 80 other owners of homes abutting the Gulf River in Cohasset and Scituate a 12-page booklet of guidelines for protecting the natural environment of the tidal estuary.

Entitled The Gulf: Enjoy it. Help to Preserve It, the booklet provides detailed information on applicable laws and local regulations affecting the wetlands and bordering areas, including brush and tree cutting, use of fertilizers, herbicides and pesticides on turf lawns, care of septic systems, and motor boating and water use.

The booklet was researched and written by James H. Spelman of Scituate, a Vice President and member of the Board of Directors of the Association. Funds for its publication were provided by an anonymous donor.

"Those whose properties and businesses abut the Gulf and its tributaries have a special responsibility to preserve it," the booklet explains. "This suggests compliance with both the specific legislation governing the Gulf and the implied spirit of that legislation. It is toward that end that this informational brochure has been prepared."

Association officials point out that information in the booklet is applicable to all Massachusetts waterways and wetlands and may be of interest to homeowners outside the Gulf watershed. Copies of the booklet may be obtained, at $1 per copy, from The Gulf Association, P.O. Box 140, North Scituate, MA 02060.

William M. Stauss dies in Boston

Obituary

By Patricia Desmond
Mariner staff

William Michael Stauss, 21, died about 2 a.m. on New Year's Day in a subway station.

His death was the first homicide in Boston in the new year.

Reports about the death were conflicting, according to police reports.

What is known is that two 18-year-old twins from Roslindale, Stephen P. and Michael P. Sullivan, seniors at Catholic Memorial High School, are free on $5,000 bail each after facing arraignment in Dorchester District Court for the murder.

Police say Mr. Stauss died at the Ashmont MBTA station after a 2 a.m. argument with the twins. His head struck against a passing subway train during the course of the argument.

The Rev. John Keohane, pastor of St. Anthony's Church in Cohasset, celebrated a funeral Mass for the young man Friday, Jan. 4, as relatives and friends gathered to mourn.

Fr. Keohane called the young man's death senseless. He asked the mourners to try to look out for one another.

"Perhaps that is a small way we can cope with the violence in the world," Fr. Keohane said.

William Stauss, who was known as Mike, lived in Marshfield and Weymouth before moving to Galty Avenue in Dorchester about two years ago. He attended schools in Scituate, as well as a private school in western Massachusetts and Hingham High School, according to family members.

He planned to marry Jennifer Smith of Dorchester after her graduation from St. Gregory's High School in June. They are the parents of a four-month-old daughter, Kayla Renee Smith-Stauss. A fund for his daughter's education has been set up as a memorial.

Donations may be sent to the Kayla Marie Smith-Stauss Education Fund, PO Box 11, Hull, MA 02045.

Besides his fiancee and daughter, Mr. Stauss is survived by his parents and stepparents, Mary (Connolly) and Jack Davis of Weymouth, and Marcia and William E. Stauss, also of Weymouth. He is also survived by a brother, Paul Walton of New Hampshire; four sisters, Karen Davis of Braintree, Karyn Foley of Weymouth, Lisa Boyle of Boston and Diana Berkery of Buffalo, NY; and his grandparents, Grace and Jack Stauss of Cohasset, Kathryn Connolly of Milton and John McAllister of Deerfield Beach, Florida.

Arrangements were made by the McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home.

Cohasset Hts. groundwater's unchanged

By Joseph Mont
Mariner staff

Groundwater testing at the Cohasset Heights Landfill over the past year has shown no increase in pollutant levels, according to Cohasset Health Agent Dr. Joseph Godzik.

The board of health met on Jan. 3 to review the results of monthly testing at the landfill and to determine if pollutants were seeping into the town's nearby reservoir at Lilly Pond.

Godzik said an overview of these results show that there is no immediate danger to the water source.

"Things have not deteriorated over the year," he said. "There is not necessarily a concern over the contamination of the town's water supply."

The testing covers Ph levels, water alkalinity, and levels of Benzene, compounds, and heavy metals such as arsenic, zinc and chromium, he said.

Godzik said some well water testing has shown high levels of chlorides such as sodium.

He said representatives of the landfill have blamed the problem on a nearby Department of Public Works storage shed, although no attempt has been made to prove that salt from the facility is the culprit.

"Chlorides in some wells are fairly high," he said, "this may or may not be due to a nearby DPW salt storage shed," Godzik said.

The board originally had hoped to review November's testing results, but they were not back from the lab.

Godzik said the board will review these results when they become available on Jan. 15.

The testing is outinely conducted by Camp Dresser and McKee, a firm retained by the town.

AROUND TOWN

❑We send congratulations the Fiori way this week! Paul and Karen Fiori had their third daughter in November, the ninth to be exact. Needless to say, Leo and Mary Fiori are beside themselves again. What a fabulous Christmas that family must have had.

❑On the subject of delighted parents, be sure that you include Ronnie and Mary Goodwin right at the top of the list. Mary gave birth to a baby girl Dec. 21. Margaret weighed in at 5 pounds, 10 ounces. Margaret's grandparents, Ruth and Harry Goodwin, are still beside themselves with joy. It has been quite a while since they have had a grandchild that little. And, living in Cohasset is really great for all of them. Enjoy Margaret, everyone.

❑Probably most of you have noticed, but if not, be sure to! The vacant lot between Tedeschi's and the old Central Market is spotless, thanks to the efforts of Ken Fone and his trusty rake. Ken took it upon himself to make that little area look nice, and it certainly does. The next time you see him be sure to tell him so (you might add that he makes a terrific Santa; he does).

❑Hats off to Thomas Joseph Durkin, Teresa J. Lloyd and Janice Weaver, who were among the 400 students to receive undergraduate degrees from the University of Mass at Amherst in September. Here's to a great future for all of you.

❑I think it has been some time since our whole town has been as shaken as it is now over the death of Bob Pape. Bob touched most of our lives in some way, always good, kind, generous and helpful. It doesn't seem possible that he is gone, and one wonders what the town will do without such a fine man...we only know how much he was loved and how he loved, and he certainly will be missed.

❑To those of you who have asked, "Legz" has arrived home in Illinois, safe and sound. He did have a funny story to tell...on his train ride his Mom had packed a nice lunch for the trip, and he fell asleep secure in the knowledge that he would have a nice meal upon awakening. Instead he found that his bag had been nibbled on quite thoroughly, and that a mouse (or something) had enjoyed his repast. Needless to say he left the bag on the train for the animal to enjoy on the return trip. Hopefully, he will keep in touch so that we can let you know his latest ventures.

❑Peter Smith was in town last weekend to visit his brother Gary, and he sure looks great. Many were happy to see you, Peter, stop by more often.

She weighed 12 pounds and three-quarters ounces at birth.

Sarah is the first daughter for the Janes. She is the third child in the family. Sarah's brothers are Adam and Scott Janes.

Sarah Gjesteby Janes

Her grandparents are Arne and Martha Gjesteby of Cohasset and Dr. William and Geraldine Janes of Longmeadow. Her great-grandparents are Harry and Marian Barber Jr. of Westborough.

❑Cohasset has another team to watch this season, the Swim Team. The coach, Linda Henderson, is thrilled with her team. They have excelled so far. The team is made up of the following: Juniors Chip Anderson, John Brister, John Kisiel, Christopher Henderson and Simon Payne; Freshman David Leahy and eighth-graders Nik Hawks and Tom Greco. They would love an audience, so please look in this paper for their schedule. You'll be glad, they are all great.

❑Hats off to David Farrag, and many of you that have students in the Joseph Osgood School probably know why. As David's project to earn the rank of Eagle Scout, he cleared the paths behind the Osgood School to make it easier for the kiddos to get there from here. He even organized the building of a 16-foot bridge over a stream! David graduated from CHS in 1990 and is now at Northeastern University, but it is for sure that all of his efforts won't soon be forgotten.

❑We certainly wouldn't let the New Year begin without sending congratulations to the brand new Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Shultz. They were married on Dec. 29 in White Bear Lake, Minnesota. Many years of health and happiness, Bob and Jennifer, we look forward to hearing all of the details of the wedding.

❑That's the news for this week. Don't forget to let me know what your New Year's news is.

Library offers story hour

Registrations are currently being accepted for the winter story hour series at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library. The series begins on Jan. 31, and lasts for six weeks. Sessions will be offered at 10 a.m. on Thursdays and Fridays. Each 45-minute program consists of several picture book stories and simple fingerplays, songs and crafts. Children must be at least 3-1/2 to participate.

To register, stop by the Children's Room, or call the children's librarians at 383-1348.

Channel 53 schedule

CHANNEL 53

Jan. 10: Thursday, 5:30 p.m. Children's Corner: Bob Detwiler reads a very sensitively written Sierra Club Book dealing with human values, Peace Begins With You, the recently-published and beautifully-illustrated poem by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, Paul Revere's Ride, Jan Brett's Annie and the Wild Animals and Tomorrow Up and Away. There is a lot of variety in this program and should appeal to young and old alike.

Jan. 15: Tuesday, 8:30 p.m. Bob Detwiler's Journal. Norwell Church Hill Methodist minister Steve Harvester tells how he became a "Teller of Tales," how this art form can be learned by others and why this form of expression should be encouraged in our society.

Jan. 17: Thursday, 5:30 p.m. Children's Corner: Bob Detwiler reads the goofy, funny, recently-published A Day With Wilbur Robinson and in response to a request from one of our older viewers, Dr. Seuss' Yertle the Turtle, followed by Gertrude McFuzz and The Big Brag.

Jan. 22: Tuesday, 8:30 p.m. Bob Detwiler's Journal: "The Relevance of the Secondary School Accreditation Process to Our Communities. Featured in this highly informative program are Meg Gallagher, Cohasset High School Principal; Bob McIntyre, Hull High Principal and Pamela Gray-Bennett, Associate Director of the Commission on Public Secondary Schools, New England Association of Schools and Colleges.

Gardeners set Lothrop trip

The next meeting of the Amateur Gardeners of Cohasset will be a visit to the Lothrop House, Cohasset.

Members will meet at 1 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 15, at the Lothrop House.

Sixty-plus club to meet

Cohasset 60 Plus Club meets Thursday, Jan. 17 at Unitarian Parish House, North Main Street.

Sandwich lunch is served at noon. Business meeting follows. Bingo will be played.

Lambert speaks at LDS

Dr. Brent W. Lambert and wife, Kitty, will speak informally Thursday evening, Jan. 10, at 7 p.m. at The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, 379 Gardner St. in Hingham as guests of the women's organization.

Dr. Lambert served as a mission president in the Cleveland, Ohio area from July 1988 to July 1990. He and his wife will speak of their mission experiences.

The prominent South Shore eye surgeon and his wife spent two years away from his profession, their home, their family and friends in order to "serve" as a Mission President in another part of the country.

The Lamberts have a unique story as to why they were willing to do this, and what the experience has meant to them. Friends and members of the community are welcome to come to hear the Lamberts speak. A reception will follow the meeting.

CCC course registration

Cohasset Community Center is now conducting registration for the Winter Session for courses and workshops. The Center welcomes all to participate in their many and varied offerings. This is a good opportunity to erase the winter doldrums, learn something new and meet new people. Listed below is a sampling of the interesting programs available and their starting dates.

The first Friday of each month features a puppet show suitable for ages two to five. Tai Chi classes have just started. They will be held each Wednesday for a ten-week period. Cooking classes for preschool and after school groups start today, Thursday, Jan. 10. Also commencing today is the Science and Nature group for three to five-year olds. For older children, Nature Nuts starts today as well. Tomorrow, Friday, Jan. 11, our monthly Teen Dance will be held. This is scheduled on the second Friday of each month.

Intermediate Bridge with David Leopold starts on Monday, Jan. 14. He is ranked as one of the top bridge players in the country. The cost of this course is $90 for members and $100 for non-members. Also starting on the fourteenth is the Ballroom Dance group which is held at the Deer Hill School on Monday evenings for a ten-week period. On Tuesday, Jan. 15 Kodaly Music classes for pre-schoolers starts with Lynne Ingraham instructing. Parents and Tot Playgroup starts on Jan. 16. Beginner Bridge also starts on this date.

For those of you planning on retirement in the near future or at some nebulous date in the future, it's never too early to start planning for this step in our lives. the Center offers a two-week course on this important subject starting on Thursday, Jan. 17 from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

Assessor James Lagrotteria will speak to the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce Tuesday, Jan. 15, at 7 p.m. at South Shore Art Center.

Run for town office

The town election is slightly more than three months away — it happens Saturday, April 13, to be exact.

Potential candidate have two months to get their act together and visit the office of Town Clerk Frances Marks for nomination papers. The deadline for filing the is 5 p.m. Monday, Feb. 25. The papers must be taken out by Thursday, Feb. 21.

Nomination papers are already available in the town clerk's office.

Thirteen offices will be on the April 13 ballot. The ballot will include voting for one three-year term for selectman, two three-year terms for school committee members, a five-year term for recreation commissioner, an assessor, a five-year term for planning board, three three-year terms on the trustees of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library, a three-year term on the board of health, a three-year term for water commissioner, a three-year term for sewer commissioner and a five-year term on housing authority.

To run for office a candidate must submit the signatures of 50 registered voters on nomination papers available in the town clerk's office.

The people who volunteer their time in town government office affect all of us.

Everyone knows what they expect from town government. We expect our children to be educated, our streets and homes to be safe, our recycling and transfer station to be open convenient hours, our street lights to be bright, our zoning laws enforced, our recreational needs met, our harbor protected, our history preserved, our library well-stocked and resourceful, our water to be pure, our sewer system to remain functional, our forests and meadows kept open, and our elderly to be given special consideration.

The coming year will put a strain on the system that provides all those services. There is no way to guarantee the town will remain the same. It will take hard work and money to do keep the status quo. It will take the efforts of people with intelligence, strength, foresight and compassion.

For 1991 will be a year when our leaders will be forced to prioritize.

Running for political office is not for wimps. Running for office requires a person to put their ideas and ego on the line. And there are losers in the process.

It does take a large measure of commitment just to run for office. And if you win, the commitment must survive the length of your term.

During the campaign, the Mariner will publish items from the various candidates. We want to see candidates talk about issues. We want to see a healthy turnout of candidates for the sake of the town.

Candidates are encouraged to submit a concise announcement about their candidacy with a clear photo. The announcement is limited to a page-and-a-half, typed and double-spaced.

Candidates can submit releases on the issues at hand throughout the campaign. Only one release will be published from a candidate in a given week. We will do the best we can to find space for these items although the less timely releases may be held when space is tight.

An official from the state Office of Elder Affairs says Cohasset residents volunteer to help the elderly 5.4 times the state average — a phenomenal rate for the size of the community.

Selectmen demand budgets be pruned

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Selectmen sent tree and park superintendent Peter Laugelle back to the cutting board to look for ways to hold his budget to this year's $124,706.

Laugelle reluctantly proposed pruning $1,000 from tree maintenance accounts and taking $500 from supplies for town playing fields.

"If we cut these, the people hurt will be the ones who use these fields," he said. He also foresaw problems because the town is required to maintain the fields in a "proper and safe manner."

Laugelle suggested the town could require organizations using town fields to contribute to upkeep. Currently, the Little League organization donates grass seed and fertilizer.

"Why should the town of Cohasset maintain the grounds at the Sailing Club when they have $12,000 in their budget for maintenance?" he asked.

Selectmen opposed cutting back on maintenance of the ball fields and play areas, but failed to endorse his notion of requiring private organizations to chip in for upkeep.

"This is something we won't do," selectman Chairman Rocco Laugelle said. "We've cut down to bare knuckles."

Selectman Jane Goedecke agreed.

"I also feel strongly that we can't cut back in the area of field maintenance," she said. "They're overuse as it is and I don't think I could approve that."

Selectmen asked Peter Laugelle to look for other areas of savings before they vote on his budget. They held out little hope that he would find any.

"It is very helpful," Selectman Martha Gjesteby said. "People have got to see what will be lost if we don't get an override."

Selectmen also accepted Building Inspector Robert Egan's level funded budget, but need to find $1,600 in cuts in case the town refuses to pass an override.

Egan budgeted his department so close to the bone that selectmen may have to cut personnel in order to reduce it, according to Goedecke.

"There's not a lot to work with here," she said.

Selectman Diana Kornet echoed that thought.

"I don't know how we can cut," she said, "but we better try."

Martha Gjesteby raised the possibility that selectmen may be better served by level funding the total budget under under the board's control rather than individual department budgets.

In other business, selectmen:

• Adopted a charge for the mosquito control commission.

The town established the new commission after being caught off-guard by Cohasset's last-minute inclusion in the malathion spraying for Eastern Equine Encephalitis this summer.

Proponents of the commission want the town prepared with alternatives if there is another outbreak of disease-bearing mosquitoes. Anyone wishing to volunteer for the new committee should contact the selectmen.

• Appointed Lee Jenkins, John McNabb and Hugh Morgan to the groundwater protection committee.

• Appointed Elizabeth Bates as a regular member of the common historic district commission and Mary Larson as an alternate member. Bates replaces Francis Coffey.

• Reappointed Gjesteby as the board's representative to the Metropolitan Area Planning Council.

• Approved the following raises: Ellen Winn, secretary-receptionist for the board of selectmen, from $9.81 per hour to $10.29; Firefighter James F. Curley from $25,994 per year to $26,651.

Animal control will not see an increase

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

The animal control department boosted revenues by $7,400 by opting out of the county system and vigorously enforcing the bylaws. None of it helped Officer Bill Quigley increase his hours or his budget for fiscal 1992.

When Cohasset was part of the county animal control system, the county kept all but $4 of the fees. Under the new system, Cohasset receives $15 for a dog, which is reduced to $8 for a neutered or spayed dog.

In 1990, the department received $3,700 more in license fees, $1,220 more in fines and $2,500 in late licenses fees than in 1988, according to figures prepared by Quigley.

Additionally, a greater number of residents licensed their dogs in the past year.

"I still have 100 delinquent dogs for 1990 that I don't have time to go after," Quigley said.

Quigley sought a total budget of $9,694. Selectmen ordered him to cut it to $6,936.

He had proposed increasing his hours from 10 to 15 hours per week. Quigley said he routinely puts in as many as 14 hours per week, but is only paid for 10.

"I had 1,004 calls this past calendar year," he said. "With the new leash law, people call and they want action."

When Quigley is called in for court appearances, it easily can use up five of his ten hours.

Quigley also wanted increases to cover repairs for the department's vehicle, gasoline and equipment.

His equipment wish list included kennels for transporting animals, heavy duty gloves, a first aid kit and a portable radio.

Quigley said the portable radio could be a lifesaver if he ever got stuck out in the marshes trying to retrieve a dog.

Minot Light's history depicts some shaky ground

A lighthouse keeper, Isaac Dunham of West Bridgewater, was chosen that October, and the lantern was first lit Jan. 1, 1850.

Dunham weathered two terrifying storms in that tower, and after the second one, wrote to the government that unless the tower was reinforced, he would resign.

Dunham quit, and Swift found another keeper, a John W. Bennett who was brought from England to man the lighthouse.

Bennett favored the design of the lighthouse until he stayed in the tower during a howling northeaster. From that point, he decided to stay away during a storm and, instead, leave his assistants, Joseph Wilson of England and Joseph Antoine of Portugal, in charge.

In April 1851, the Great Lighthouse Gale demolished the lighthouse, and the lives of Wilson and Antoine were lost.

A new lighthouse, 114 feet high, was built of Quincy granite a few years later at a cost of $300,000.

But even the sturdier lighthouse in a violent storm struck fear in the hearts of the lighthouse keepers.

The following account is from Margaret Cole Bonney's book, My Scituate.

"Picture a scared, lonely, young man, 19 years old, all alone in the new Minot's Ledge Lighthouse. It is January, 1861, and a northeast gale is howling.

He is not the lighthouse keeper, only an assistant. The principal keeper, Joshua Wilder, had gone ashore and could not get back to the lighthouse because of the storm.

His assistant had no way of knowing when the keeper would return. But he knew he had to keep the lantern burning to warn ships away from the treacherous ledges that line the coastline.

"This storm was the first test of the new lighthouse which was lit for the first time in August 1860.

To while away the time, he wrote a letter to his friend, Charles Mitchell, also 19.

After finishing the letter, he took a stick of wood, hollowed a hole in it and put the letter in. Then he firmly tamped another piece of wood into the stick and hurled the stick into the raging ocean.

"He could clearly recall the fate of the first Minot's Ledge Lighthouse.

"That one was made of iron and was first lit in January 1850. It was totally demolished in a gale in April 1851.

"He felt that his letter might be the last word anyone would ever hear from him. As luck would have it, within a week, the stick was picked up by an old lady gathering driftwood on Minot Beach.

"When she got home and examined the stick, she knew what it was. She knew the boy who wrote the letter and she knew Charles Mitchell. She delivered the letter.

"This letter has been preserved by the Mitchell family. A copy of it is as follows:

Minot's Light

Jan. 16, 1861. 12 o'clock midnight

Dear Charles,

How are you — give me your hand. I really should like to shake hands with some of the shantie or woodchuck boys of the Neck in the room of being 'shook by Davey Jones. You know old Davey. I suppose that yourself, John and Edwin are making "skillies" as J.B.D. used to call Uncle Gerus' shoes. I rather guess there is one young man in the Neck that is not making shoes. You know who that is as well as I could tell you. C.H.D.

Now imagine yourself one hundred feet above the common high water mark with a sea running 25 feet above your head and then you will just begin to think of my situation.

Next imagine that every sea that strikes the tower to make it tremble so that you can hear all the stoves, pots, kettles, crockery ware, tin pans, and other articles too numerous to mention, settling and cracking so that you cannot go to sleep. Nor a hungry man could not eat. And you get an idea of what you would hear and see, and you would hear and see some d—m funny things if you were on Minot's Ledge Lighthouse in a gale of wind from the N.E.

Birds flying against the lantern every minute or two and the sea ripping and tearing around your back door as well as your front. Cannot go out to look ashore at a distance of 110 feet from the rock without getting wet through.

That, Charles, is a fact as you would see if you were here this night, Jan. 16, 1861.

It is a romantic place for to live if you call the sea romantic in a gale, I think. Ship navigation must be rather hard in such weather. Perhaps there is some poor fellow getting his bones cracked at this present moment within hale of me.

Our principal keeper, Joshua Wilder, has been ashore 14 days and I guess he won't get off at present, by the looks of things around here now. I cannot think of much to say but if I was ashore we could talk & smoke & play a game of Euchre now and then. But it blows a screamer.

Yours, with respect, W.H.S.

I nearly forgot to send my respects to your father, mother, Captain Damon, John, Edwin & Charles & Mrs. D. & my sister E. & Addison Litchfield, & Mrs. L. and the little girls & Mr. James Bailey, Henry Pettice, Mrs. P.H. Spooner.

And if you see Tether, tell him you have a telegraph dispatch from me by sea. If this ever gets to you, please answer immediately. By the way, tell Ed or John or grandpa that when they go to Egypt to give my respects to Miss Emeline and Mrs. Curtis & Uncle George & cousins.

Do not forget to write & direct to your humble servant,

William H. Sylvester.

Charles Mitchell was Margaret Cole Bonney's grandfather.

Gifts help restoration project but more is needed

"Mark has been a guardian angel who has come out of nowhere," Ripley said.

Volunteer efforts form an essential part of the project. Many people have contributed to the $20,000 spent on the project so far. The students at South Shore Vo-Tech got into the act, too.

Originally, the rotating mechanism relied on a drum filled with mercury. Mercury is a hazardous substance that causes neurological damage, so the project needed an alternative rotation method.

Project manager Joseph Lebherz of Scituate, who teaches at the Vo-Tech, posed the problem to his students who designed and built a ball bearing assembly.

The lighthouse replica represents a big chunk of Vo-Tech talent. Mark Koopman, Karl Heine and John McDonald are all graduates of the school.

In the spring, the interior stone will go in and the superstructure with its copper dome and decking will be placed on top of the granite base. When that is put in place, visitors to Government Island will get a clear picture of where the lighthouse keepers spent their work week.

Within another year the windows and lantern will be installed. The replica will look as close to the 1860 original as possible. The project directors recreated it from the original blueprints.

Lebherz spent a great deal of time chasing down blueprints and documents in dusty archives and attics. Both Lebherz and Ripley admire the ingenuity and skill of the engineers who designed the lighthouse and the workers who constructed it out on Minot's Ledge.

"Everything is going to look right," Ripley has promised. "What we need now is money."

Ripley believes it will take at least another $10,000 to complete the replica which will be opened for tours on special occasions.

If lighthouse lore and romance is strong in your blood, Ripley hopes you'll contribute to this labor of love. He encourages people to send checks to:

Animal control officer told town can't afford more

"It's a safety factor," he said. "All the other towns around here have one."

Selectmen empathized with the demands on the animal control officer, but said the town could not afford to increase his hours or provide him with any money for equipment.

"I cannot support this because we cannot afford increases in any area not absolutely required," Selectman Jane Goedecke said. "As much as I believe you need the hours, we can't give them to you."

Selectman unanimously approved his budget request contingent on no increase in the number of hours worked and no change in general expenses except for a realistic increase in the gasoline and repair and maintenance budgets.

Selectmen also approved the wire department budget.

According to wire department superintendent Stephen Wigmore, his proposed budget reflected little change over fiscal 1991 and was level funded at slightly more than $67,960.

Cellucci to speak

Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci will be the guest speaker at a dinner meeting of the Scituate Chamber of Commerce Tuesday, Jan. 22, at the Bridgwaye Restaurant in Humarock.

Cocktails will be served from 6:30 to 7 p.m. A roast chicken dinner will be served from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

Cost is $14 per person. Reservations should be made quickly. The deadline is Jan. 16.

Call 545-4000 to make a reservation. All are welcome.

Our deadline for submission is Monday at noon. There are drop spots at Cohasset Colonial Pharmacy and Cohasset News, both in the Village. Items may be mailed to the Cohasset Mariner, 165 Enterprise Drive, Marshfield, MA 02050, or to the Mariner, PO Box 71, Cohasset, MA 02043.

Kindergarten registration happens next week

January 14-18—KINDERGARTEN REGISTRATION WEEK

Kindergarten registration will be held Jan. 14 through Jan. 18, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. daily. Children who will be 5 years of age on or before Dec. 31, 1991 are eligible to attend Kindergarten in Sept., 1991. A birth certificate must be presented at time of registration if not on file in the Cohasset Town Hall. At the present time a committee is studying the entrance date. Dependent on the recommendation of the committee, the date could be changed.

January 10—Early Release Day

Afternoon Kindergarten will be cancelled. Lunch will be served and school will be dismissed at 12:55. Please Note: The morning Kindergarten will be brought home 5-10 minutes earlier than normal due to this release day. January 21—No School—Martin Luther King Day

January 28, 1991—KINDERGARTEN CHANGEOVER

Kindergarten changeover will occur on Monday, Jan. 28. Morning Kindergarteners will be assigned to the afternoon session while current afternoon assignees will become morning Kindergarteners. Morning Kindergarten hours are from 8:55 a.m. to 11:35 a.m. while the afternoon session meets from 12:15 p.m. to 2:55 p.m.

Community Center Happenings:

A new boy's gymnastics class will begin on Jan. 2 for 6 and 7 year olds at the Community Center and will run for 10 weeks. A new bowling class for children in grades K-3 will meet on Wednesday afternoons from 3-4 p.m. For more information call 383-0088.

Health Education Information:

During the period of Jan. 2-Feb. 15 students in the Deer Hill and Joseph Osgood schools will participate in Health Education Programs in their classrooms. The theme will be "Personal Health" and each grade will concentrate on age-appropriate aspects of this theme, i.e. dental health, personal fitness, hygiene, hair, skin, grooming, prevention and control of disease, etc. Through this program we are attempting to cooperate with parents in assuring the emotional, social, and physical health and well-being of the children. We feel this is best achieved by reinforcing healthy attitudes and values...Mike Gill, Health Education Coordinator.

Afterschool Childcare is available on Early Release Days. Please Contact Melissa Walker at the Deer Hill School for further details and arrangements.

McElroy studies in London

Mary McElroy of Cohasset studied abroad in London last semester as part of Boston University's London Internship Program.

While in England for the 14-week program, McElroy took part in a television internship.

A 1987 graduate of Cohasset High School, McElroy is a senior majoring in television studies. She is the daughter of Joseph and Mary McElroy of Windy Hill Road.

Boston University's London Internship Program, which is open to students from any college who qualify academically, offers courses taught by British faculty and the opportunity for an internship. Students can choose to study in one of eight areas ranging from economics to the arts.

Chief defends fire budget hike

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Fire Chief Dan Brock took selectmen on a run-through of the proposed $1.07 million fire department budget Monday night.

Selectmen asked Brock to look for trimming points.

The fire department budget will be back on the agenda at the next selectmen's meeting.

Brock prepared a level-funded operating budget, but it did not include any salary increases. The firefighter contract comes up for renegotiation this year.

Brock warned any reduction in work force would be offset by increases in the overtime account.

He hopes the renovations in the fire station will result in a reduction in fuel costs. The department already decreased the operating budget by $6,000 to $8,000 by doing as much maintenance as possible on an in-house basis.

Brock put more air boosters, improved radio equipment, tools and an EMT-D monitor at the top of his capital outlay wish list. The department's radios operate at the same frequency as a fire department in New Hampshire and another in New York.

"As the technology gets better, they get louder," Brock said.

The department needs the tools to improve its ability to do maintenance work. Currently, the department borrows from other town departments on an as-available basis. Brock wants to build a department stock year-by-year.

The four additional air boosters are required by regulation and the monitor will improve the department's ability to provide advanced emergency medical treatment.

Brock rated the air boosters and radio equipment his top priorities.

HARBOR BUDGET

Selectmen also tabled the harbor department budget and asked Harbormaster Irv Gadow to find a way to cut his budget.

Gadow had proposed a $5,200 increase in his budget, bringing the total request to $53,835.

"I think I can justify everything down there," Gadow said of his budget. "It's right to the bare minimum this year."

In addition to step increases, temporary employees and utility costs, Gadow budgeted increases for marine supplies and repairs to the floats and ramps at Margin Street.

"I could find this acceptable if Irv can come up with some small increase in user fees," Selectman Ned Tebbetts said. Tebbetts said user fees only cover six percent of the budget currently.

Increasing user fees drew some support.

"I do think it's appropriate to increase fees to pay for some of this," Selectman Diana Kornet said.

Selectman Martha Gjesteby opposed the proposed budget and the notion of any increase in user fees. She suggested closing down the department for two or three months each year.

"I am not convinced we need a harbormaster in the dead of winter," Gjesteby said. "We can rely on the police, fire department and Coast Guard."

Gadow and selectmen Chairman Rocco Laugelle countered that the Coast Guard responds only to life and death emergencies. Gadow pointed out that Cohasset has approximately 30 year-round fishermen.

Selectman Jane Goedecke cautioned against approving increased budgets.

CHS Hockey team delivers impressive effort despite odds

By John Kinchla
Special to the Mariner

Despite a 0-4-1 record, the Cohasset High School Hockey team continues to battle against their mostly Division 2 opponents in the South Shore League Small Schools League. Cohasset's four losses were against Hull, Rockland, Hanover and New Bedford. The tie came against non-league and Division 3 opponent, Latin Academy. Entering the second half of the schedule Cohasset could make up some ground. If their play improves against Scituate and Abington and then as they rematch against Hull, Rockland, Hanover, Scituate and Abington.

The team is led by veteran coach Dennis Walsh and captained by underclassmen Kevin Mulcahy and Mike Reynolds. Several reasons exist for high expectations in the second half. Goal scoring has been spread around. Most players on the first and second lines have either scored a goal or have several assists. The team is injury free. Most of the returning members of this year's team have been skating together as a unit since the end of last season; the team is better conditioned and several new players have been added.

The team skated well in 20 games at the Pilgrim Arena's spring and summer developmental program. In the summer competition their winning percentage was 500 percent; and they concluded the season on a positive note by beating Hull 6 to 5.

The boys participated in the Spring and Summer Leagues at their own expense. They offset the expense by taking summer jobs. They were also very fortunate to have received some financial help from former Republican State Senate candidate, and president of Christy's Markets, Christy Mihos, who donated 18 team shirts with the "CHRISTY'S" Market logo to the team.

Several team members supplemented their skating with weight training. Defenseman Tim Conroy is noticeably stronger as a result of his weight training in the off-season. John Kinchla improved his skating by attending power skating and hockey camp and wings Brian Donovan and Mike Reynolds and Goalie Jim Rosano attended summer hockey camps.

FOR YEARS, SALVAGERS HAVE SWEPT THESE WATERS FOR TREASURE. THEY SHOULD HAVE LOOKED ON SHORE.

Because here, at the ocean's edge, stands a ruby as precious as any explorer's treasure trove: the Cheeca Lodge, the Florida Keys' most elegant resort.

A fixture on the coastline since 1946, Cheeca has recently been reopened after a multi-million dollar renovation and expansion. It is a unique combination of casual and elegant, with 203 guest rooms, suites and villas scattered throughout our 27-acre estate.

But please, don't think luxurious accommodations are all we offer. Here you'll also find an unmatched array of scuba, snorkeling, parasailing and fishing. Along with two freshwater pools, a private 1000' sandy beach, and what Esquire magazine calls one of the best new restaurants of 1989: our Atlantic's Edge oceanside dining room. Swim team begins successful season

It was a debut to be proud of, according to the official who covered the meet. The Cohasset High School Swim Team, in its first varsity meet ever, defeated North Quincy High School in the swimming portion of the meet, 85-82, but since Cohasset didn't have a diving team, North Quincy's divers took first, second and third places, adding 13 points to North's overall score. The final score of the meet was North Quincy, 95, Cohasset, 85.

Two Cohasset swimmers, David Leahy and Christopher Henderson, have, as of Friday's meet, already qualified for the South Sectional Finals in February.

Leahy qualified with his time in the 200-yard freestyle and Henderson with his time in the 100-yard butterfly. Other swimmers are close to the cut-off times needed to qualify.

Those swimmers with individual first place finishes were Dave Leahy, John Brister, Chip Anderson and Nik Hawks.

From the first 200-yard relay event with the two Cohasset squads first and second and way out in front of the two North Quincy entries, to the last 400-yard free relay, which a tired Cohasset relay team came within five seconds of winning, it was an exciting contest. Cohasset's greatest problem was one of numbers rather than talent. A good example was the 500-yard freestyle.

Cohasset's Nik Hawks was first by nearly a minute over his closest North Quincy competitor and earned six points for Cohasset, while North, with three swimmers in the event, garnered four points for second place, three points for third, and two points for fourth, for a total of nine points for the event.

In the 200-yard medley relay, the team of Anderson, Leahy, Henderson and Hawks was first, with Cohasset's second team, consisting of Payne, Greco, Kisiel and Brister.

In the 200-yard freestyle, Dave Leahy was first and Nik Hawks was third, with North Quincy taking second, fourth and fifth places.

In the 200-yard I.M., Simon Payne was second, and John Kisiel was third, with North winning first, fourth and fifth places.

In the 50-yard freestyle, John Brister was first and Tom Greco third, with their opponents finishing second, fourth and fifth.

In the 100-yard butterfly, Chris Henderson was second and John Kisiel, third, with North Quincy in first, fourth and fifth places.

In the 100-yard freestyle, Chip Anderson was first and John Brister second. North Quincy took third, fourth and fifth.

In the 500-yard freestyle, Nik Hawks was first with North Quincy in second, third and fourth places.

In the 200-yard free relay, the team of Anderson, Payne, Leahy and Henderson was first, with North Quincy winning second and third places.

In the 100-yard backstroke, Chip Anderson was second and Simon Payne third, with North Quincy taking first, fourth and fifth places.

In the 100-yard breaststroke, Dave Leahy was first, Chris Henderson was third, and Tom Greco was fourth. North Quincy took second and fifth places.

In the final race of the day the team of Hawks, Kisiel, Greco and Brister came close to defeating three North Quincy relay teams, but finished second by five seconds, 4:29.14 to 4:24.15.

On Friday, Jan. 11, Cohasset meets "Big Three" League New Bedford at New Bedford High School.

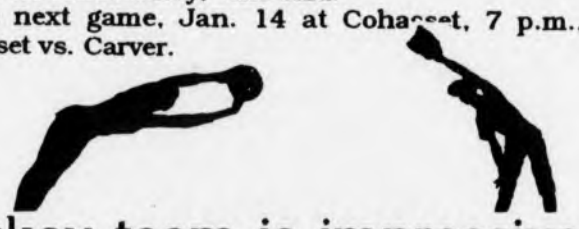
Swim team schedule

The Cohasset Swim Team schedule is as follows: Jan. 11 at New Bedford, Jan. 22 at Sandwich, Jan. 25 at Middleboro and Jan. 31 at Duxbury.

Feb. 8, Pilgrim Conference, Feb. 15 and 16, the South Sectionals and Feb. 22 the State Meet.



Gymnasts are number 2

Last year Cohasset High Gymnasts placed second in the league. Unfortunately, Cohasset lost seven gymnasts by graduation or students going to boarding school or moving away.

This year, Cohasset has four junior high students, two freshman, two sophomores, three juniors, and one senior. Cohasset Coach Ruthann Sargent says, "We are not having a winning season, but we are doing the best with what we have. What we have is a lot of inexperience. But the future looks promising."

Practicing four nights a week with studies is difficult. "Beam seems to be our main problem. We need to stay on consistently," she said.

The next game, Jan. 14 at Cohasset, 7 p.m., Cohasset vs. Carver.

Hockey team is impressive

One thing is for certain, they have entered the 1990-91 season fit and ready to play. Thus far, the team has responded well to the 5 a.m. practices and each practice has been well attended.

Finally, several new faces have been added since the end of last season; and those injured at the end of last season have healed. Most notable among the new players are Senior Defenseman, Mike Noble, Junior Goalie, Jeff Stone and Junior Wing, Charlie Shields. All three players are expected to make an immediate impact.

Other new players that have been impressive in practice have been Sophomore Brian Buckley, 8th Grader Guy Scarpaci and 7th Graders Patrick Reynolds and Chris McKenna.

Coaching this year's edition is Dennis Walsh, assisted by John Kinchla.

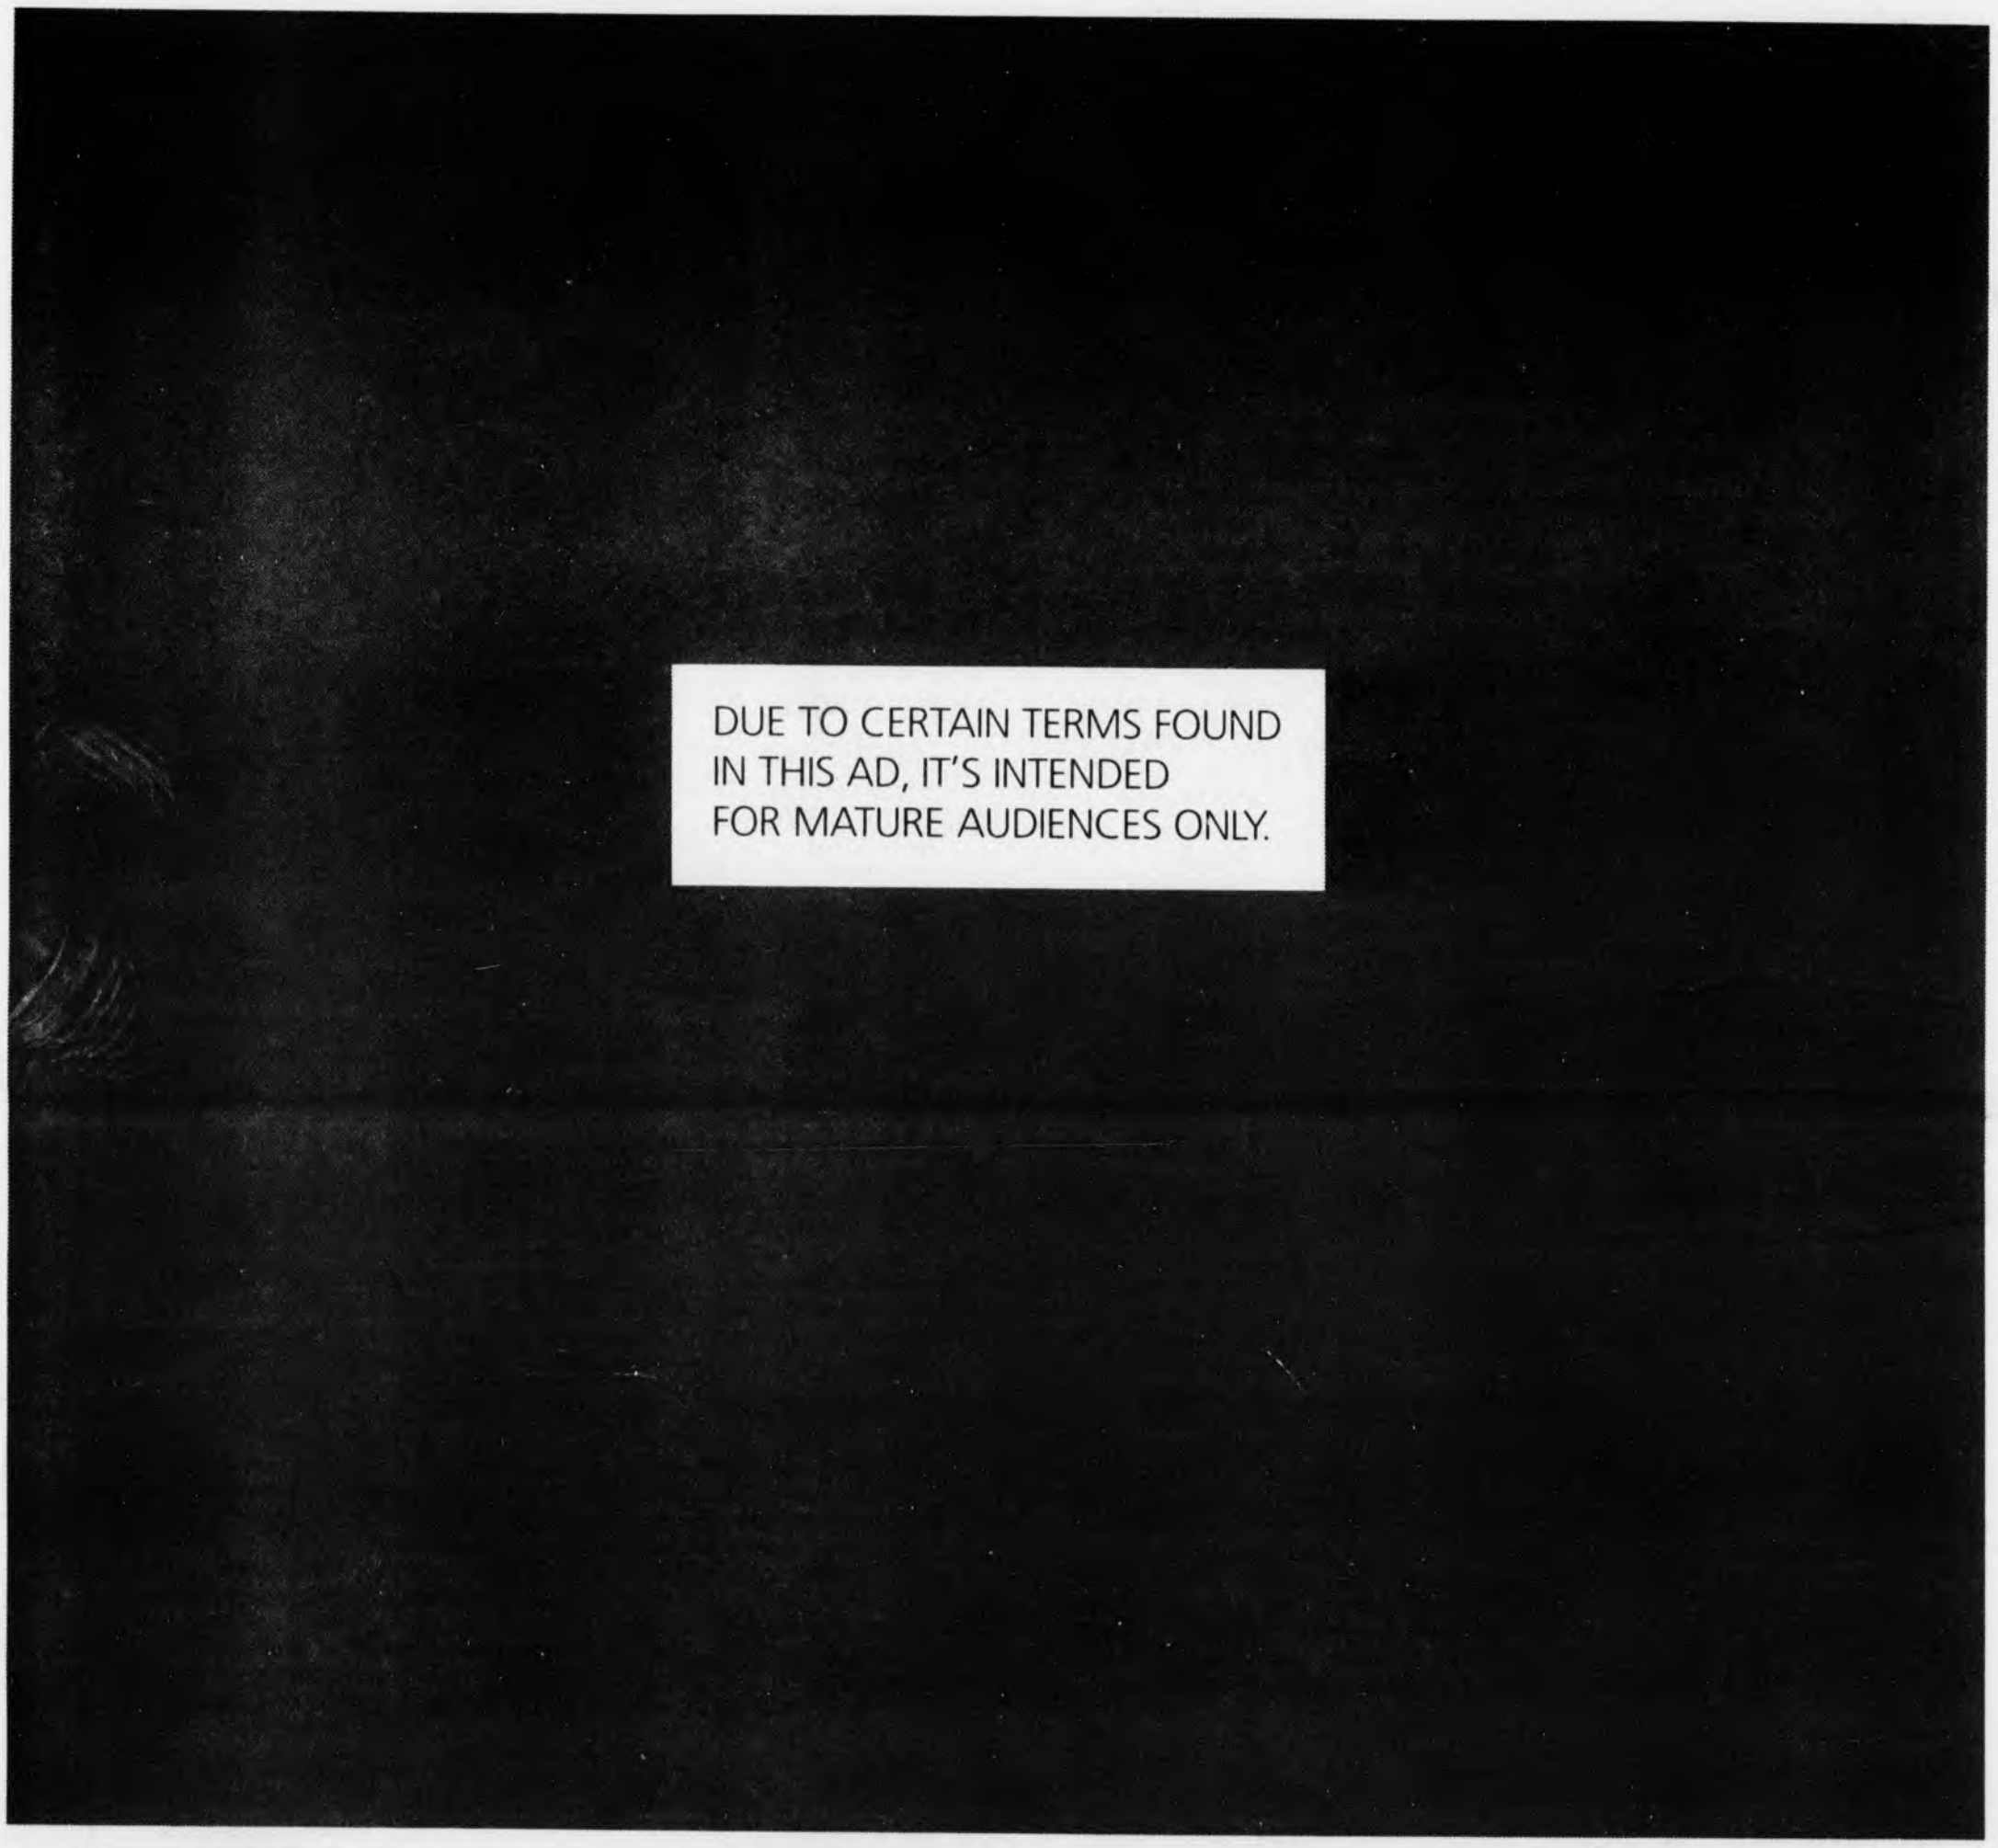
Nancy Black wins golf prize

At the Women's Golf Association of Massachusetts Annual Meeting held on Wednesday, Dec. 5, Nancy Black of Hingham, a member of the Cohasset Golf Club, was the recipient of the May Jackson Award.

This award is not given annually.

The May Jackson Award for Excellence Beyond was inaugurated in 1988 and appropriately was awarded to Mrs. Jackson who is the prototype of the recipients who will follow.



The Award reflects a woman who loves the game of golf, is a role model to other golfers and a woman who has significantly contributed to the well being of the WGAM.

Nancy Black of the Cohasset Golf Club is the worthy recipient of this year's Jackson Award.

"Nancy is a complete golfer. She approaches each round of golf with a freshness of anticipation and a certain wondrousness. From the time of her first state champion title in 1946 she has accepted with unique modesty a multitude of home club, state, and regional trophies. Her golf craft is honed with enthusiasm and she plays to a six handicap in 1990," according to Mary Hartwell.

"Nancy personifies the dignity of the game by her impeccable fairness and generosity of spirit. She promotes the game by her selfless manner and her continuous encouraging of every player to realize the full pleasure of golf.

"When she was elected to the WGAM presidency in 1968, she gave four years of her time and executive talent to reorder and energize the WGAM into a full blown women's golf association. She brought more honor to Massachusetts' golfers when she was selected to serve on the prestigious United States Golf Association Women's Committee.

Figures prove town ages rapidly

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

It should be as plain as the hair on your head. Cohasset is going gray.

According to last year's town census, senior citizens represent 20 percent of the population. Fully one-third of them are more than 75.

Another sizable chunk faces senior citizenship in the next one to 10 years.

Cohasset isn't unique. The fastest growing segment of the nation's population is people 75 and over. Currently, there are 26 million Americans in this age group. Demographers estimate it will grow to 36 million people by the turn of the century.

What is unique about Cohasset and its council on aging is the number of volunteers who serve the community through the council's programs – number of men who volunteer and participate in programs run by the council and the senior center.

According to state experts, Cohasset has volunteers at nearly five-and-one-half times the state average.

Ruth Pratt must reign as queen of the volunteers. For the past 25 years, Pratt has been a mainstay of the congregate lunch program.

The council estimates they receive the equivalent of $156,000 in volunteer time.

"There isn't a town department that can match what we do with our budget, " Gerard Keating said. Keating presides as chairman of the council's board of directors.

"For every 80 cents the town gives us, we give $1 in return," fellow board member Ed Mulvey said.

Keating emphasizes that elders represent 20 percent of the town's population, pay 23.5 percent of the real estate taxes and only lay claim to one-third of one percent of the town's budget.

Council director Kathy Bryanton said the council tries to be as creative as it is frugal in meeting the needs of a growing elderly population.

South Shore Vo-Tech made bookcases and cabinets for the senior center and prints their newsletter. The Friends of the Council on Aging raises funds to pay postage and mailing costs of the newsletter and provide other services. And volunteers from all segments of the community teach courses, drive the van and do whatever is necessary.

"It's the volunteers that make the wheels turn," Bryanton said. "Everyone comes forward. We never have to ask twice."

On the brink of war, Gulf families gather

By Joseph Mont
Mariner staff

As the countdown to war ticked away, a local talk show dedicated two hours to the men and women participating in Operation Desert Shield.

The panelists on Continental Cablevision's "Pierson to Person" show may have disagreed on several issues, but they shared the feeling that war was around the corner.

Families of servicemen have had little good news over the past week.

At the time of the Jan. 10 telecast, President George Bush's deadline for Iraq's complete pull-out from Kuwait was still five days away.

Families of reservists in the Persian Gulf have been keeping another countdown. As reservists, servicemen have traditionally held a 180-day tour-of-duty. Military officials announced this week that that too may change.

According to statements made by Defense Secretary Richard Cheney, reservists with critical support assignments may be asked to stay for as long as two years.

The 1991 defense spending bill authorized by Congress last October, authorized the Pentagon to extend reservists' active duty to 360 days. The national emergency declared by President Bush when he froze Iraqi assets enables him to extend service for a total of two years.

The audience included many wives whose husbands are reservists stationed in the Gulf.

They said a two-year tour would be disastrous.

Senator Hedlund's Rockland property hit with lien

By Eleanor Powers
Mariner staff

The town of Rockland has placed a tax lien on a three-parcel commercial property owned by state Sen. Robert L. Hedlund (R-Weymouth).

Hedlund missed last Thursday's 10 a.m. deadline to pay $3,448.30 in delinquent 1990 real estate taxes. He had 21 calendar days after the town published a legal notice in the newspaper to pay the taxes.

The state senator must also pay 14 percent interest to the tax collector's office. The accrued interest totals $603.08.

Rockland Tax Collector Paula McClure said on Monday that Hedlund also owes her office $128.22 in "incidental costs," mainly for paperwork and advertising and legal costs.

In September, the Weymouth Savings Bank put a legal notice in the Weymouth News and Gazette indicating that it had initiated mortgage foreclosure proceedings against the Rockland property as well as another property owned by Hedlund at 44 Woodrock Road in Weymouth.

Hedlund does not owe taxes on the Weymouth property, according to Weymouth Tax Collector Sulo Soini.

Once the tax lien is recorded with the Plymouth County Registry of Deeds, the property is turned over to the town treasurer, said McClure. The lien was scheduled to be recorded Wednesday, Jan. 16, she said.

The treasurer's office charges 16 percent interest, or $1.37 per day, on delinquent taxes.

The town can foreclose on a property six months after attaching a lien, according to Theresa Buffum, the town's municipal real estate attorney.

The 2.8-acre site is located at the corner of Pleasant Street and VFW Drive and contains an uncompleted retail-office building and parking lot.

Hedlund has owned the property since September 1988, according to the assessors office. It was assessed this year at $627,700.

The legislator said on Tuesday that he did not want to comment yet on the matter.

In an interview with the Mariner last month, Hedlund said he had not paid his taxes to Rockland because he was "at dispute" with the Weymouth Savings Bank.

At that time, he said he hoped to resolve the dispute with the bank and to pay the town within the next

COHASSET'S WEEK

What's open, closed on M. L. King Day

Banks, schools and government offices will be closed next Monday, Jan. 21, when Martin Luther King's birthday is observed.

According to the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce:

- federal, state, county, and municipal offices are closed
- schools and libraries are closed
- banks are allowed to be open, but most are expected to close
- manufacturing plants are open
- retail stores and supermarkets are open
- liquor stores, taverns and bars will be open
- stock markets will be open
- Post offices are closed, and there will be no mail delivery.

Selectmen hope for peace

Cohasset selectmen reaffirmed their support for the president on the eve of war. They also expressed a strong desire for a speedy and peaceful solution to the crisis that has sent several Cohasset residents to the Persian Gulf.

"I told my children it's never too late for peace," Selectman Jane Goedecke said.

Selectmen announced that area clergy will include prayers for peace at every Sunday service until peace comes.

Corrections

Sarah Gjesteby Janes is a bundle of joy — just not as big a bundle as the Mariner reported. According to her proud grandmother, Selectman Martha Gjesteby, Sarah entered the world at 8 lbs. 12 oz., not a walloping 12 lbs.

Due to a typographical error, it appeared as though only six percent of the harbor budget was offset by user fees. The correct amount is 60 percent.

Town thanks friend-in-deed

The town recreation department sent kudos to Charles E. Butman Sr. Selectmen read the compliments into the public record.

Butman keeps the grounds around Elm Meadows skating pond tidy. His volunteer efforts should put other residents to shame — he was born in 1897.

"He still trims trees," selectmen Chairman Rocco Laugelle said.

Advisory committee member Chris Duggan took umbrage after taking a stroll behind the police/fire station after the recent snowfall.

Duggan called selectmen and Fire Chief Dan Brock to complain about the uncovered forest vehicle. According to Duggan, the truck contained an unprotected generator and tools.

Duggan said it demonstrated an element of neglect. Selectmen instructed Executive Secretary Greg Doyon to have the fire department cover the truck.

Budget work underway

Selectmen quickly approved the town accountant's budget in the amount of $99,154. That amount represents both level funded and level services.

The budget was passed on to the advisory board for further action.

Town Accountant Mary Gallagher told selectmen her budget was basically unchanged from last year. The only changes were an increase in costs for computer maintenance and a capital budget outlay request for $4,000.

Gallagher said she wanted to purchase a personal computer for the office. Currently Gallagher uses her home computer for work-related assignments.

"Just about everything is done on the personal computer," she said. "It won't cut down on the work, it will make it more organized."

Specific items generated on Gallagher's home computer included the annual report, budget and monthly statements. Gallagher said she would be able to do more analyses of financial trends with a computer in the office.

In other business, selectmen

- Approved the personnel committee budget in the amount of $220. The budget was unchanged from the previous year.
- Accepted a revised harbor budget in the amount of $50,368. Harbormaster Irv Gadow eliminated his scheduled step increase and night patrols to reduce his budget by $3,467.
- Awarded the bid for the town report to Athol Press of Athol for $16.30 per page. The bid for printing the town warrant went to Fairmont Printing of Rockland for $29.80 per page.

month.

He also said he hoped to eventually finish construction on the building and to lease the space to retailers. Construction stopped in the fall of 1989, he said.

Hedlund represents the towns of Weymouth, Hingham, Hull, Duxbury, Cohasset, Scituate, and Marshfield in the state Senate.

School officials see more budget problems

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Ancient Chinese philosophers claimed times of crisis also presented times of great opportunity. The school committee gets to test the validity of that view as they try to budget for fiscal 1992.

School committee members Barbara Bliss and Nancy Sandell wonder how the school system can maintain the status quo in a time of dwindling resources.

"Cohasset's schools have a very good reputation. We're trying to keep it that way," school committee Chairman Barbara Bliss said. "But there has been an erosion in the budget for the past four years."

The school system faces challenges in the form of a baby bulge trying to squeeze into tight quarters, the consequences of long-deferred maintenance, a budget already down to bare bones in many departments, and contract negotiations due.

"We have no cushion," school committee member Nancy Sandell said.

While the school system grapples with the budget process, the high school must prepare for reaccreditation. Currently, the school is in the self-study phase that precedes review by the visiting accreditation team.

At the last reaccreditation 10 years ago, the school received warnings bases, primarily for inadequacies in the school library. Bliss worries that cuts in the school's home economics and industrial arts program may have more serious consequences.

"We've cut both departments back to a half-time person in each discipline," Bliss said. The school committee has said the cuts make it difficult for the school system to claim it offers a comprehensive educational program to the youth of the community.

Dwindling enrollments and budget needs dictated those cuts in past years, she said. No one is betting the cuts will be recaptured in fiscal 1992.

"With no salary increases, it is possible the budget could be funded with no overrice," Bliss said. Even without a new contract, automatic step increases will cost the school department $50,000 this year.

Bliss and Sandell believe the community must decide what constitutes a fair raise. If the school committee grants a raise through contract negotiations, the cost must be born by override or by cuts in staff.

In the past three years, the school department has cut 24 staff people. Those cuts repeated the experience of previous years. Since 1981, a total of 61 staff people have been lost.

"If the salary increase is not funded by the town, it is going to mean cuts. We need to let people know right up front what they will be losing," Sandell said.

"We are weakening our school system on a regular basis," Bliss added.

School committee members aren't optimistic about the prospects for an override. They know the taxpayers feel they have shelled out all they can afford.

"The mood out in the community is very, very negative," Bliss said. "A number of professionals have been laid off and the real estate profession is suffering."

The school committee placed some items on their agenda for fiscal 1992 they can't duck any longer.

The glass brick windows at the high school need to be replaced. The windows are warped and leaking. The committee fears structural damage will occur if they are not replaced soon.

They also put the classroom carpeting at Osgood School on the list for change.

Although replacing carpeting may appear to be a luxury, these carpets have been in place for the past 10-12 years. Because Osgood lacks a cafeteria, the kindergarten through third grade students eat in their classrooms. The carpeting looks — and is — the worse for the wear.

Just removing the carpeting isn't an option, Bliss and Sandell said. Only plywood flooring lies beneath the carpets. The school committee believes industrial grade carpeting is preferable to tile or linoleum for soundproofing.

Providing a writing laboratory of 20-25 computers in the high school is another priority. The laboratory can be used during class and study hall time.

Students will use the facility to write — and rewrite — assignment and college applications. In the process, they will become more proficient writers and better able to compete in an increasingly automated employment market.

"Students learn differently today," Bliss said. "They are so exposed to the visual medium."

The lab bears a $40,000 price tag, but the school system plans to equip it in phases and apply for funding from private sources.

Sandell emphasized the need to spend money for continuing staff development.

"Education comes down to teachers and students," she said. "We need to enhance teaching."

This year, Cohasset expanded the number of early release days to allow teachers to participate in training programs. Attendance at the staff development workshops is mandatory, Sandell said.

Cohasset also joined a regional staff development program with Scituate and Hull.

"We will explore more regional opportunities," Sandell said. "It makes things more cost effective.

Sandell and Bliss said the school committee was pleased with the caliber of the new teachers and administrators in the system.

"We've set some high standards," Bliss said. "Excellence is the number one criteria for hiring."

In hiring new staff, Cohasset has benefitted from the fact that other school systems are laying off staff.

When long-time Osgood Principal Jack Creamer retired, the school committee hired Linda Whitney to fill his position and serve as curriculum coordinator for both Osgood and Deer Hill schools.

"She is fulfilling all our expectations and more," Bliss and Sandell said. They said Whitney zeroed in on the math and reading curricula for study and improvement.

The school committee also defends the school system against charges that it is top heavy with administrative positions.

"We are making do with a superintendent and part-time business manager," Bliss said. "We cut a guidance counselor."

She defended the high school's assistant principal, saying he also served as department chairman. Likewise, Whitney serves two roles — Osgood principal and elementary curriculum coordinator.

If wishing made a thing come true, Sandell would wish for a single elementary school. She believes it would benefit Cohasset's children through greater continuity in curricula.

In the alternative, creating real gym and cafeteria facilities at Osgood makes educational if not economic sense.

The list goes on, but they know it constitutes pie in the sky.

The bottom line comes down the bottom line.

"The crunch is taxes," Bliss said. "We need to decide what our priorities are."

As war approaches, military families talk

Elsa Cook's husband Roger is a sergeant and a cook for the 1058th Transportation Division based out of Hingham. She said that her family's financial savings would be non-existent if her husband stayed beyond 180-days.

"What happens when all this ends?" she asked. "We will be five to seven years in debt. We could lose our house and we would have to sell our vehicles."

Despite hardships, most of the wives in the audience said they supported the president's actions.

Major Linda Dixon heads family assistance for the Massachusetts National Guard. She said home support was "vital to morale and productivity" of the troops and praised local support groups. She had high praise for panel member Diane St. Laurent, the family support coordinator for the 1058th.

"God bless Diane, she stepped right up," she said. "I want to thank the members of the 1058th support group. I see them comforting, supporting, and informing each other."

St. Laurent said the military had been "very helpful and cooperative. Host Wigmore Pierson asked her if she had any questions the military had not answered. "We would like a better answer to when they are coming home," she said.

St. Laurent also said the military should have a more up-to-date roster of the troops and their families to help support groups reach out.

"The roster isn't really as complete as it should be by now and there are a lot of really fine details that have to be worked out," she said.

Many in the audience agreed that support groups helped them deal with the call-up.

"We have become friends," St. Laurent said of the group. "We share letters. We share photos and phone calls. We will do it girls. We will make our men proud. We will do it together."

St. Laurent defended reservists when a caller inferred that their problems did not equal the concerns of full-time military personnel.

She said reservists have always been aware of the threat of war, but they had lives outside of their "part-time" military service.

She did not see their special concerns as being unpatriotic.

"Each and everyone of them is proud to serve their country and wear their uniform," St. Laurent said. "I would support my husband 100 percent if he chose the military as a career."

State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, said she would continue her vocal support of the troops.

"We are not in a war and we may not be in a war; the president has not said he is charging in," she said. "Anyone who is in the service does not want another war. I made a mistake in the Vietnam War; I thought (the troops) knew there were a lot of people, like myself, back home supporting them. I will never make that mistake again."

Throughout the day Congressional leaders were debating whether to support President Bush's Jan. 15 deadline for Iraq pulling out of Kuwait.

A similar debate weaved through the televised forum.

> 'You are constantly watching the clock. I don't think anyone should go through this hell.'
> -Charlene Phillips, National Guard wife.

Zachary Lochman, a professor of Middle Eastern studies at Harvard University, endorsed extending economic sanctions.

He said five months has not been enough time for sanctions to take full effect. He said sanctions do appear to be working and an extension could prevent a war.

"The economy is falling apart and people are starting to feel the pinch," Lochman said. He said the "unprecedented response" of the embargo will eventually weaken the Iraqi army.

"(The Iraqi army) is running out of spare parts; they can't buy replacement parts," he said. "(Saddam Hussein) has looted Kuwait but he cannot do this again. That is all he has got."

Murray said she would support extending sanctions for one year, but not beyond that.

"We do not want war, but we also do not want another Hitler," she said.

Lochman said comparisons of Hussein with Hitler were convenient, but not totally accurate.

"Those analogies are problematic; history does not always repeat itself," he said. "Hussein is a brutal dictator, no question about it. There is a strong desire in Iraq for democracy and a new regime, but I don't think he is a crazy man."

He stressed improved negotiations.

"Eventually we are going to have to negotiate ourselves out of this, whether it is before, during, or after a war," he said. "We are at the edge of a war and things look bleak, but there is still time to think about it and make your voices heard."

Major General Wayne Wagner, adjutant for the Massachusetts National Guard, the governor's military advisor, and the state's highest ranking military official, said Hussein would have to withdraw before any negotiations could occur.

He said the United States should not honor his demand to negotiate the Palestinian issue.

"You don't reward bullies for being bullies," he said "If someone punches you in the nose, you don't give him $5 if he stops, or he will look for $10 the next time."

Wagner said that even if the president activates the whole reserves, "to keep manpower it would still be necessary to reactivate the draft."

St. Laurent said her support group welcomes anyone who wants to attend. Their next meeting is on Feb. 7 at the Sons of Italy Hall in Hingham, at 7 p.m.

She said that for now, all families can do is wait.

"It is like a marked day, there is a cloud hanging over you," she said of the deadline.

Charlene Phillips, whose husband is a sergeant first class with the 1058th, said the waiting game is the worst part of the experience.

"You are constantly watching the clock," she said. "I don't think anyone should go through this hell. I want this thing over."

Seniors face move to town hall

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

The possibility of moving the council on aging and senior center into town hall space led selectmen to table consideration of the council's budget.

The council had proposed a level services budget of $42,886. The level-funded budget was set at $37,876.

T. Gerard Keating of the council said the move had been discussed with Executive Secretary Greg Doyon.

"I'd rather stay where we are," Keating said, "but if we have to move, we have to."

Moving the council into town hall would save rental costs of $3,600 per year. Currently, the council rents office and meeting hall space from the Community Center of Cohasset for $300 per month. The rent includes utilities.

Moving the council into town hall has been discussed in the past.

Selectman Jane Goedecke said she wanted more information about renovation costs before she would consider voting on the budget. Selectmen failed to set a deadline for action.

Council board member Joseph Buckley said renovations would consist of partitioning the town hall auditorium, replacing the bathroom facilities and lowering the ceiling. The heating system may require repairs or replacement as well.

Although approving renovation funds takes town meeting action, the board did not direct the council to prepare a warrant article prior to the selectmen's next meeting — and the warrant deadline date — on Jan. 22.

Goedecke also told the council the level-funded budget could only contain the portion of the outreach worker's salary paid by the town. The town picked up the salary six months into the fiscal year.

Goedecke said she was aware that a truly level-funded budget meant no outreach worker.

"We want two budgets so the public can see what will happen in each scenario," Goedecke said. "This is a prime example of why the town can't stick with a level-funded budget and provide the same service."

The council contends the outreach worker is essential.

"The person is doing more and more in the community identifying older people who need services," Bryanton said.

"I appreciate the ethical decision you made for retaining the outreach worker," Goedecke said, "but you may have to rethink that."

Keating explained that 21 percent of Cohasset's population is 65 and over. Nearly 220 residents are over 80 years of age.

"By the year 2000 one-third of the population will be senior citizens," Keating said.

He suggested good management requires planning for the future.

"Increasing needs are not theory, they are fact," Selectman Diana Kornet added. "This is not apple-pie wishing, it's demographic fact."

Council board member Dave Chittim said it was not feasible or desirable to cut the council's budget any further.

"We're already below level service," he said. "We would have to serve half as many congregate meals, cut back on van runs and reduce the repairs and maintenance on the vehicle."

Older men flock to senior offerings

Male participation starts at the top. Men fill five of the nine board seats. They include Keating, Mulvey, David Chittim, Joseph Buckley and Sumner Smith.

"Men, when they retire, do not participate as a rule," Keating said. He credits the breakfast club, known as the Chanticleers, with much of Cohasset's success.

"The breakfast club pulled them out of their haunts and their wives' hairs," Keating said. Dr. Alwin Merrill started the club as a way to reach men who tended not to come out to participate in social activities.

Today, the weekly get-togethers do box office business.

The group meets Wednesday mornings at the high school and caravans off for good food and great conversation. No women are allowed.

When they reach their destination, they plunk a wooden rooster in the center of their dining table to signify that the Chanticleers are in session. Group member Ed Niles handcarved the rooster.

When operating at full force, more than 30 diners pull their chairs up to the table. They say there is always room for more menfolk.

In addition to the breakfast feasts, the group takes an annual overnight to Vermont, goes on a leaf-peeking tour of Mt. Wachusetts, hoists anchor for a two-day sailing trip to Salem and arranges lawn bowling games.

The Chanticleers average out at 72 years, according to Keating. That number doesn't say anything significant. It definitely pays to check your stereotypes about aging at the door when you start hanging out with this crowd.

For example, Buckley finished up a college degree in gerontology recently, Smith plays a mean game of hockey in a local league and some of the women hope to get a cross country ski club formed soon.

Men take up more than half the slots in the Gourmet Club. Twice a month this group gets together to prepare a soup-to-nuts meal – then they get to eat it.

"The drawing card isn't the cooking, but the cooking instructor," Keating teases. Local dynamo Anna Abbruzzese serves as their culinary guru.

The Rev. Cliff Cutler invited the group to use the facilities at St. Stephen's. He definitely knows which side his bread is buttered on – he generally joins the group for lunch.

"We have very good cooperation from all the churches," Keating said.

AROUND TOWN

❑ There is a new family in town, which will be great news to a number of people! Their name is Payne, and they live on North Main Street. Here's the news for you, Ruth Payne is a piano teacher, and she has the credentials to prove it. Ruth was born and raised in Africa, and trained at the Teachers Training College and the Royal School of Music. She was a prize winner in numerous competitions including Beethoven Piano Competition and Eistedfford. Ruth has had music Studios in Hong Kong, Singapore, and Short Hills, New Jersey.

She has been a church music director, accompanist for numerous solo artists in both secular and sacred environments, and has been teaching for twenty years. She is a classical pianist with love for large symphonic form and emotional intensity of both romantic and contemporary periods (significant improvisation evident in playing). Ruth is a firm, caring teacher who desires to see children begin to appreciate music, at their level, and realize the pleasure they can experience playing the piano. Give Ruth a call at 383-9748, both you and your budding artist will be glad that you did.

❑ The Cohasset Community Center has a grand way of livening up this long months of January, it's their Frosty Frolic Dance.

It is scheduled for Saturday evening, Jan. 26. Marv Sullivan and Andrea Flynn are chairing this gala fund-raising dance. Festivities will begin at 8:30 p.m. A D.J. will be on hand providing a wide variety of music for dancing and listening pleasure. Dress festively and prepare to enjoy an evening of fun and friends at this highly anticipated event. Donation is $30 per couple. Tickets may be reserved or purchased at the Community Center at 383-0088 or from Sullivan or Flynn.

❑ Arthur Howe is in the Persian Gulf, and has been for several months. Arthur is a hospital corpsman on the USS Oldendorf. One more reason for all of us to say a prayer that this darn thing will end in a reasonable fashion, without warfare involved.

❑ Congratulations go to William and Jane Wasel of 20 Heather Drive on the birth of their son, who was almost a New Year's baby! He was born at South Shore Hospital on Dec. 29.

❑ Hats off to Melissa Brown who has been promoted to senior media planner at Lawner Reingold Britton & Partners.

❑ We're happy to report that Jane Cook is feeling much better after her recent bout with pneumonia and hope that she continues to feel better!

❑ Everyone was pleased with last weekend's wrestling meet, and we have to thank the town of Hull for their part in making it happen. They gave the school a mat, which enabled four towns to participate in the meet. Due to the weather, the meet had to be postponed for a day, which affected the crowd, but not the wrestlers ... they did very well. The next time there is a meet, make it a point to go, Coach Torrence Sweeney and his boys will be pleased.

❑ Wonder how Mary McElroy likes life at Boston University after spending a semester in London. Mary was involved in a television internship as part of her 14-week program, that must have been fascinating. She is a 1987 CHS grad, who is a senior at BU majoring in television studies, so it must have been interesting to compare the two countries and their operations.

The Winter '91 events are all hosted by Williams College and the Vietnam Veterans rink of North Adams.

Selectmen look for budget cuts

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Selectmen face the daunting task of finding $149,415 worth of cuts in the budgets under their direct control.

The budget total stands at $2.8 million currently.

Executive Secretary Greg Doyon prepared a menu of possible cuts in rank order. He asked selectmen to make the cuts based on town need rather than cutting departments across the board.

Selectmen ran through the list, but deferred action until their Jan. 22 meeting.

Possible cuts include changing to a three-year audit, closing town hall one day per week and using funds from the Waterways Improvement Act to cover repair work on the Margin Street floats.

Doyon said the change in audit could result in a $3,000 savings.

Closing town hall to the public one day per week would help departments cope with losses in clerical hours. Closing the building altogether would yield additional savings.

Selectman Ned Tebbetts calculated a 15 percent reduction in hours could yield a $45,000 savings in salaries alone. Additional savings on heat and electricity are also possible.

"There are problems involved, there are problems with any scenario," Selectman Jane Goedecke said, "but we are the keepers of town hall."

Goedecke favored closing town hall one day per week as a more efficient and less confusing way of cutting hours.

Doyon warned their was a risk that the employees with the most marketable skills may leave the town if their pay is cut.

"In return for a short range gain, you could lose your best people," he said. "What have you gained?"

Selectman Martha Gjesteby suggested Doyon contact towns that have tried changing town hall hours to see what their experience has been. According to Gjesteby, Saugus closed their town hall one day per week.

Cutting back employee hours troubled Tebbetts and selectmen Chairman Rocco Laugelle.

"I hate the idea of it," Laugelle told the board.

"There are going to be significant reductions in hours anyway," Goedecke countered. "It doesn't matter. We don't have the money to pay them if we don't get an override."

Doyon informed the board the town has $22,000 in the waterways improvement account. He suggested the town use it to cover repairs to the Margin Street floats.

Tebbetts asked if the funds could apply to harbor repairs made this year as well.

Selectmen will mull over their choices and look for additional areas to cut to get down to a level-funded budget.

CHS exam schedule set

The exam testing sessions are scheduled for one hour and forty-five minutes for Grades 9 through 12, and one hour and fifteen minutes for grades 7 and 8. Students in grades 9 through 12 are obliged to remain in the testing room for one-and-one-half hours and may not remain longer than one hour and forty-five minutes. Students in grades 7 and 8 are obliged to remain in the testing room for a minimum of one hour with a maximum of one hour and fifteen minutes.

Make-up provisions are scheduled for two sessions: Tuesday, Jan. 29.

Each teacher will be available for extra help on Thursday, Jan. 24 and Monday, Jan. 28 from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. and on Friday, Jan. 25 from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m.

Lunch will be available from 9:30-a.m. to 12:15 p.m. (12:30 p.m. for teachers), during the exam period. Breakfast will be available from 7:05 a.m. each day.

Buses will run a normal morning pick-up schedule. Buses will leave at 12:10 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 24, Friday, Jan. 25 and Monday, Jan. 28. On Tuesday, Jan. 29, buses will leave at 10 a.m.

THERE WILL BE NO LATE BUSES.

Students who are not taking an exam do not need to be in school. Those who choose to do so will be restricted to the following areas: Library, Senior Study Hall, Cafeteria and Sullivan Gym.

Students who are absent for an exam or exams, must present an absentee note to Mr. DeLorenzo upon his/her return to school. No make-up will be allowed unless the student presents an exam make-up form to the teacher in advance.

Hochkeppel is 'Odd' star

Molly Hochkeppel of Cohasset will star as Olive in "Female Odd Couple" at Quincy Center Dinner Theatre, 1170 Hancock St., Quincy. Presented in association with Rural Masonic Lodge, show dates are Jan. 25, 26, Feb. 2, 3, 9, 10.

Hochkeppel is no stranger to audiences on the South Shore. She has performed in several shows for Curtain Call Theatre of Braintree where she is a member. Her dinner theatre experiences include "Not Now Darling," "No Sex Please, We're British," and "Cheaters." When not on stage, she can be found behind the scenes. She designs most of the sets for Quincy Center Dinner Theatre as well as several community theatre groups. Besides designing she also paints, builds, gathers furniture; whatever needs to be done to put a professional set together!

Molly, her husband Joe, and their four sons, have lived in Cohasset for 10 years. She is also the Cohasset Town Reporter for the Patriot Ledger.

Besides being the resident Production Manager, Hochkeppel is also president of Darling Productions, producers of the Quincy Center Dinner Theatre. For further information and reservations for "Female Odd Couple," call Darling Productions at 843-5862.

Man of peace — Martin Luther King

Dr. Martin Luther King was a man of peace and determination.

His birthday was Jan. 15 — the deadline set for war in the Persian Gulf — but we celebrate his holiday Monday, Jan. 21, this year because people in government here like Monday holidays.

Dr. King died a martyr to his cause — the cause of simple human dignity. Today it would be unthinkable to turn fire hoses, billy clubs and attack dogs on people marching for a cause.

That's because Dr. King and other brave people focused public attention on the injustices of America back in the 1960s.

The real tragedy of his death is that many of the old injustices still exist here in the 1990s.

That's why it's important to take time out and think about the dream of a man who stood up for what he believed.

The real tragedy is we have yet to learn the importance of a nonviolent solution.

In his book "Why We Can't Wait", Dr. King talks about the power of nonviolence.

"One aspect of the civil-rights struggle that receives little attention is the contribution it makes to the whole society. The Negro in winning rights for himself produces substantial benefits for the nation. Just as a doctor will occasionally reopen a wound, because a dangerous infection hovers beneath the surface, the revolution for human rights is opening up unhealthy areas in American life and permitting a new and wholesome healing to take place. Eventually the civil-rights movement will have contributed infinitely more to the nation than the eradication of racial injustice. It will have enlarged the concept of brotherhood to a vision of total interrelatedness. On that day, Canon John Donne's doctrine, 'no man is an island,' will find its truest application in the United States.

"In measuring the full implication of the civil-rights revolution, the greatest contribution may be in the area of world peace. The concept of nonviolence has spread on a mass scale in the United States as an instrument of change in the field of race relations. To date, only a relatively few practitioners of nonviolent direct action have been committed to the philosophy. The great mass have used it pragmatically as a tactical weapon, without being ready to live it.

"More and more people, however, have begun to conceive of this powerful ethic as a necessary way of life in a world where the wildly accelerated development of nuclear power has brought into being weapons that can annihilate all humanity. Political agreements are no longer secure enough to safeguard life against a peril of such devastating finality. There must also be a philosophy, acceptable to the people, and stronger than resignation toward sudden death.

"It is no longer merely the idealist or the doom-ridden who seeks for some controlling force capable of challenging the instrumentalities of destruction. Many are searching. Sooner or later all the peoples of the world, without regard to the political system under which they live, will have to discover a way to live together in peace.

"Man was born into barbarism when killing his fellow man was a normal condition of existence. He became endowed with a conscience. And he has now reached the day when violence toward another human being must become as abhorrent as eating another's flesh.

"Nonviolence, the answer to the Negroes' need, may become the answer to the most desperate need of all humanity."

Amen.

Cohasset's unemployment rate is below the state rate but high

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

As the Massachusetts Miracle continues its meltdown, hard times settled in on the South Shore's gold coast.

Statewide, unemployment rates skyrocketed from 6.0 percent in October to 7.0 percent in November and 7.4 percent in December.

In October 1989, the state unemployment rate hovered around 4.0 percent.

The state department of employment and training reported 233,000 Massachusetts residents were unemployed. An estimated 113,000 collected unemployment insurance benefits.

The department painted an equally grim picture on the South Shore.

Cohasset posted a November unemployment rate of 5.6 percent, down from 6.0 percent in October. In October 1989, the rate was 4.5 percent.

In Hingham, unemployment rose from 3.3 percent in October 1989 to 4.1 percent in October 1990 where it continues to hover.

The department reports Scituate's unemployment showed an increase from 3.0 percent in October 1989 to 4.7 in October 1990. In November it rose again, coming in at 5.0 percent.

During the period November 1989 to November 1990, the state lost 125,000 jobs. The sectors suffering the greatest losses included wholesale and retail trade, manufacturing and construction.

According to the department, health services remained the strongest industry, showing a growth of 12,300 jobs.

Resources serving unemployed and marginally employed workers continued to shrink.

Families seeking rental assistance through state and federal subsidies found themselves at the bottom of long waiting lists. Fuel assistance funds were slashed at a time when fuel costs are rising.

According to Sharon Fernandes, program manager for South Shore Community Action's fuel assistance program, the maximum benefit decreased from $675 in 1989 to $525 this year.

"That represents about two tankfuls," Fernandes said. "If they have electric heat, it may not even cover one-and-a-half months. Fuel costs of $1,200 for the heating season are not unusual."

Despite the reductions, Community Action took in 765 more applications for the region in the first month of availability than the previous year despite unseasonably warm weather.

"There is a dramatic increase in all towns, including Cohasset, Hingham and Scituate," Fernandes said.

For many applicants, this is the first time they have applied for a human service program. Fernandes said unemployment pushed most of them through the door.

Susan Phippen, organizer of Scituate's Community Christmas, echoed Fernandes.

The Community Christmas program provided food, winter clothing and toys to families and individuals in need. The program served 75 families in its first year.

Each family situation was unique, but loss of a job or spouse formed a recurrent theme.

Phippen found many families woefully unaware of resources that could help them over the rough times ahead. Community Christmas referred families to welfare, food stamps, unemployment and housing programs.

Town officials worry about the effect of burgeoning unemployment as they enter budget deliberations.

Passing an override in Cohasset seems increasingly unlikely as families find themselves struggling to pay bills, yet towns are struggling to pay increased costs for fuel, health insurance and contractual pay raises.

"The mood out in the community is very, very negative," Cohasset school committee chairman Barbara Bliss said. "A number of professionals are laid off and the real estate profession is suffering.

"Many residents just can't pay any more in taxes."

Special meeting Jan. 17

Cohasset Chamber of Commerce is meeting at 8 p.m. Jan. 17 at South Shore Art Center to promote a community-wide program. Representatives from civic groups are invited.

The conservation commission is concerned that a South Main Street resident is again destroying a wildlife habitat near marshland abutting his property. They say that, along with rabbits and squirrels, rats could be among the endangered species.

An aging town provides services for its elderly

Congregational Church offered its facilities for the annual health fair and St. Anthony's opens its doors when the need arises.

The council on aging offers a wide array of services. Seniors aren't the only ones benefitting, according to Keating.

"It's a service for the whole population," he said.

"The average woman spends 17 years taking care of her children," Keating said. "She will spend 18 years caring for her aged parents."

The council views helping caregivers, family members and folks staring retirement in the face as an essential part of their mission.

The outreach worker, Sue Connolly cheerfully fields questions from other departments and adult children of elderly residents wanting to know what services are available for senior citizens.

The council hopes to start a group for people caring for an elderly person. Council director Kathy Bryanton said it is essential to provide information and support to families if home-based care is to work.

"Most elderly people live at home," Keating pointed out. "Nationally, only five percent are in institutions. We want to help keep people in their own homes, their own community as long as possible."

This year, the council sponsored a regional pre-retirement program aimed at people between 55 and 65. The five-session series covered financial and estate planning, health insurance options, housing resources, active lifestyles and leisure time opportunities.

Seniors in the community rely on the old standby services — the outreach program, the congregate lunch program, the shuttle van and the SHINE program.

The outreach worker makes sure no elder in the community goes without a needed service simply because they don't know it exists. Outreach worker Sue Connolly serves as the point of entry for seniors and their families.

The congregate meal provides good food and good company. Both are essential for well-being.

The shuttle van keeps elders in touch with their community and provides access to vital services. The van operates six days per week, including Sundays.

Thanks to volunteer Pat Sargent, the van runs Christmas Day and New Year's Day, too.

The van carts folks to medical appointments, the bank, the hairdressers, the mall — and makes runs to the Super Stop & Shop twice a day. Special trips to the theater, the concert hall and the countryside are offered regularly.

"The van is run by volunteers and serviced by volunteers," Bryanton said. "In less than two years, we've driven 15,000 miles."

The council thinks the van should last another five years.

"We're babying it to get more miles," Bryanton added.

SHINE stands for Serving the Health Information Needs of Elders. It is a state-funded program providing health insurance information and assistance. Cohasset coordinates the program for a 12-town region under the direction of Pat Ryan.

Ryan trains volunteers to provide help to seniors either in their homes or local senior centers. Soon a volunteer will be stationed at South Shore Hospital to provide information and help before an elderly patient is discharged.

Joe Buckley volunteered for the training when the program first started. The program keeps him hopping.

Buckley explains that medical insurance options can befuddle anyone — and elderly people are often asked to make any choices without any information.

Typical questions include: "If I have younger family members, should I stay with family insurance or go with Medicare? Should I buy into Medicare's Part B? If I drop Part B will it affect my other insurance coverage? Should I buy Medigap insurance? If so, how much?"

"The biggest problem is the lack of outreach," Buckley said. "There is nobody out there to tell anybody this."

SHINE volunteers can help elders sort out the options and figure out the best choice for their particular situation. Often the volunteer solves problems that arose before a senior came to SHINE.

Sooner or later, everything comes down to dollars and sense. Last year, the town cut the council's budget by $919.

As they enter a new budget season, the men of the council on aging feel optimistic that the town will recognize the imbalance between the size and needs of the senior population and their share of the budget.

"We have a good base to handle an expanding population," Keating said. "If we let it slip, we will have serious problems down the line. Just look 10 to 20 years ahead with people living longer.

"It would be pretty stupid of the town of Cohasset not to ease into this."

This year, he hopes, Cohasset will support the town's elders with a slightly larger piece of the budget pie.

Alarm stays in station bedroom

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

If lighting strikes the police/fire station and knocks out the fire alarm, repairmen won't be able to let sleeping firefighters lie.

Although renovation work turned the wire superintendent's office into a bedroom, no one included removal of the alarm box in the bid specification.

David Chase of the police/fire station renovation committee told selectmen it would cost more than $10,000 to relocate the box.

"The architect is not concerned because you can always gain admission to the room," Chase said. "There is no danger. It just means access."

Selectmen Chairman Rocco Laugelle disputed Chase on the danger issue.

"That amount of electricity draws lightning," he warned. "I would have like to have seen it moved, but not for $10,000."

Chase told selectmen the committee was trying to resolve an unexpectedly high bill for removal of the lockers and equipment to Bates Building.

Apparently the company hired to move the lockers and equipment across the street to the former town office building sent a bill for $1,400. Chase said the bill was based on man hours and did not include disassembling the units from the wall.

The bid originally required the contractor to remove the lockers and dispose of them at a landfill. Chase said the contractor will be asked to leave the lockers where they are and forget the bill.

Chase updated selectmen on a few changes.

Citing heavy use of the mens' bathroom facilities in both departments, the committee elected to install urinals, a floor drain and a better flooring material.

The committee discovered the paneling in the police department entryway was merely nailed onto the studs rather than sheetrocked. The committee instructed the contractor to sheetrock the area.

They also created an overhead storage area by enlarging the access door. Chase said the change created ample, dry storage for records.

The total cost of the changes amounted to just under $7,120.

Chase told selectmen they hoped to avoid replacing the porcelain toilet fixtures in the cell area with stainless steel fixtures. He believes they may get a waiver from state officials.

The committee also plans to design the communication system so it can adapt to changing needs.

"We are looking at phone systems compatible with both 911 and E-911," Chase said. They also want to design a system that can accommodate an improved town system.

Chase told selectmen the police department wanted a direct link to the harbor department for improved safety. Most likely the link will be a two-way radio system.

Selectmen approved payment of $38,858 to Lambrian for completed work on the renovation project.

Government Island may be rented again

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Renting out the duplex on Government Island makes good business sense. That is the conclusion Selectman Ned Tebbetts came to after analyzing the situation.

Tebbetts told selectmen he calculated the town could afford to renovate and repair the units and still make a good return on the investment.

Although commercial operations normally seek a minimum 12 percent return, Tebbetts used a 7.5 percent return as a baseline.

He calculated the cost of capital repairs at $20,000. Based on a rent of $700 per month for each unit, the town would derive a net return of 7.5 percent each year, leaving out inflation.

Using town employees or high school industrial arts students to perform some of the work could reduce renovation costs.

"I am prepared to subsidize that property somewhat based on the fact it is an asset," Selectman Jane Goedecke responded. She said she was willing to accept less than 12 percent, but wondered if 7.5 percent was reasonable.

Tebbetts said the town could achieve a 12 percent return by raising the rents by $375 a month.

Selectman Diana Kornet found a 7.5 percent return acceptable.

She said the money would be drawing interest for the town.

Whatever the town chooses, the decision must be made soon. Renovation funds must be authorized at town meeting. The town warrant closes Jan. 22.

Executive Secretary Greg Doyon told selectmen the vacant town buildings were about to cost the town more money.

He requested authorization to ask the advisory board for a $900 transfer to cover expected expenses at the duplex, Bates Building and Independence Building through the end of the fiscal year.

Doyon said the water bill was high during the period August-November. The water meter at the duplex covers water use down at the docks.

The transfer will be used to cover costs of draining the pipes and winterizing the vacant apartment and Independence Building as well.

Resident Robert Davenport asked about the status of Independence Building.

Doyon said he was waiting for a legal opinion from town counsel before recommending that it be put back on the market. Doyon said he also wanted to be sure the building could be sold "as is."

Chipper day is Jan. 23

A brush chipping day has been scheduled on Wednesday, Jan. 23 at the Cedar Street Recycling Transfer Facility from 7:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Residents are reminded the final day for accepting Christmas trees at the Cedar Street Recycling Transfer Facility is on the same day. The following restrictions apply:

No commercial tree sellers are allowed.

No wreaths will be accepted.

Place brush/trees only in area designated by the RTF Supervisor.

Please assure no tree stands, nails or wires are attached to the trees for the safety of the chipper operators.

This program was organized through the cooperative efforts of the Tree and Park Department and the Recycling Transfer Facility (RTF) personnel.

Baseball registration set

Little League and Pony League registration will be held on the next two Saturdays, Jan. 19 and Jan. 26. It will be held in the Upstairs Foyer of the high school from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Participants must be age six prior to Aug. 1, and not be 16 prior to Aug. 1. The cost for the first child is $35, second child is $25, and other siblings are free.

Photographers wanted

The South Shore Art Center issues a call for entries for the 1991 New England Photography Exhibition. Open to all photographers, the exhibition will run Feb. 8 through March 2 at 119 Ripley Road, Cohasset.

Entries in black and white, color, and special effects photography must be delivered to the Art Center no later than 1 p.m. on February 2. Artists should include a resume and an $8 fee per entry. Ribbons and prizes will be awarded.

The exhibition will be judged by Joan Alberts, a teacher at the NE School of Photography, MFA, Art Institute and Mass. College of Art, whose work is included in the Museum of Modern Art collection; Barbara Bosworth, an exhibitor at Cleveland Art Museum and the Long Beach Art Museum who held a Ruttenburg Fellowship and also teaches at Mass. College of Art; and Frank Gohlke, artist-in-residence at RISD and winner of several Guggenheim Fellowships who exhibits nationally.

Chamber seeks nominees for 'King' award Jan. 19

Preparations are underway for the sixth annual Forrest E. King Memorial Award presentation. The award will be presented annually to the member of the Chamber of Commerce (either individual or other entity) who has demonstrated during the year the highest standards of business ethics, management, employee and public relations and civic responsibility consistent with the goals of the Chamber of Commerce and whose actions have reflected favorably upon the chamber and to the credit of the member, their business organization and the Cohasset community.

If you know of a person or business that you would like to nominate please jot down a few sentences or more stating your reasons why. You do not have to identify yourself and all nominations will be confidential. Send your nomination by Jan. 19 to the "King Award Committee" P.O. Box 336, Cohasset, 02025.

The Award Committee will narrow the nominations down to three and the winner will be decided by a vote of the general membership of the Chamber of Commerce. The winner will be presented with a plaque at a gala award dinner to be held at Kimball's By the Sea in late February.

"Getting Smart About Investing" is an eight-week course designed to teach investors how to make well-informed choices. This course is appropriate both for beginners and experienced investors.

An adult CPR course will be held on Wednesday, Jan. 30 from 7 to 11 p.m. at a cost of $20 for the session.

Pre-school Gym Dandy courses start on Wednesday, Jan. 30, as well.

If you are interested in participating in any of these exciting programs, please call the Center at 383-0088 for further information. We will be glad to mail a catalog.

Art class registration set

The South Shore Art Center is offering several eight-week courses, short-term classes, and workshops in a variety of mediums for all ages and levels. Painting, printmaking photography, calligraphy, clay, and multi-media are mediums covered by some of the eight-week course options for adults.

"A Musical Interlude", a Thursday morning adult short course, considers the visualization of music of the Great War explored through slides and recordings. Other adult short courses include exploring 3-D forms in clay, plaster, wood, and mixed media; creating decorative tiles for home or garden; and learning clay techniques such as coil, pinch, slab, and wheel. Abstract painting, advanced sumi-e and advanced watercolor are also offered as short-term classes. One, two, or three-day workshops for adults include color and design, watercolor, winter landscape in acrylic, and ceramic decorative surfaces.

Children have many Young Artists course choices including Moms/Dads and tots, exploring art and imagination, multi-media sculpture, multi-media fun, multi-media sketching, creative photography, printmaking magic, around the world adventures in clay, cartooning, wheel for kids, and monoprints and collagraphs.

"Doing Art Together," a Family Workshop offered on three separate Saturdays in Jan., Feb., and March, enables parents and children to share a meaningful afternoon of creativity and discovery.

Classes begin the week of Jan. 22. Registration is underway. For more information, please call 383-9548.

Aerobic classes offered

The Cohasset Recreation Department is offering winter sessions for Low-Impact Aerobic exercise classes, taught by Margret Watson, on Tuesday and Thursday, from 6:15 to 7:15 p.m., Cohasset Town Hall auditorium.

Sessions are conducted in eight-week cycles, costing $40, for two weekly classes, for an eight week period. i.e.: 16 classes is $40. However, you may join at any time, at any class, and the fee will be prorated based upon the number of classes per week you would like to take, and the number of weeks left in the session. Checks should be made payable to: Town of Cohasset, and sessions continue on a year 'round basis. Classes are structured in order that all levels of proficiency may participate comfortably.

Watson is a well known and accomplished area exercise instructor, who has taught for the recreation department for the past decade. The program is open to both residents and non-residents of all ages, men and women, however, early registration is advised, due to the popularity of the program, classes tend to fill quickly.

Should you require further details, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department office at: 383-6791, otherwise, register at any class.

Drama workshop offered

The next session of the Drama Workshop for children and youth, co-sponsored by the Cohasset Dramatic Club and Cohasset Recreation Department, is scheduled to commence on Saturday, Jan. 12, meeting for eight weeks, culminating with a performance on Saturday, March 9.

Registrations for the winter session are currently being accepted by calling the Cohasset Recreation Department Office at 383-6791. The fee for this program is $55 per participant, for the eight week session which will meet at the 'New Study,' at Cohasset High School. Classes will be organized as follows: Ages 6 to 10 meet from 10 a.m. to noon; ages 11 to 17 meet from 2 to 4 p.m. at the new study, CHS.

Teachers for the session are Darcy Pratt and Peggy Corrigan; both are Cohasset Dramatic Club board members. Darcy is from Scituate, is a B.U. graduate in communications, and most recently directed children's productions of "Oliver," "Harvey," "Sound of Music," "South Pacific," and "The Little Mermaid" at a summer camp in New York state. Peggy played in the November 16-18 CDC production of "Silent Night, Lonely Night" by Robert Anderson, at Town Hall.

Goals of the CDC workshop are to encourage playwriting, dramatic creativity and self-confidence, and to provide children with an all-around basis in the dramatic arts. The winter Dramatic Workshop will be more advanced, depending on continued registration, bu' both workshops will give attention to makeup, costumes, set and lighting design, acting and playwriting. For information, call Pratt 545-2429, Corrigan 383-0296.

Residents of the South Shore are welcome to attend "Families of the Nineties", a conference examining the challenges and opportunities of daily living, which will be held on Saturday, Jan. 19, at The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, 379 Gardner St., Hingham from 4 to 9 p.m.

Keynote speaker, Robert S. Wood, will lead off the program speaking on the subject: "Finding Peace in a Tumultuous World." Dr. Wood is dean of the Naval War College in Newport, R.I. A Mormon, Dr. Wood has served as both a bishop and a stake president.

Dr. Wood will be followed by workshops.

There will be a dinner break from 6 to 7 p.m. with a soup and salad bar available at a nominal charge.

For more information call Polly Doggett 383-1847.

Decorative design seminar

Julie Messinger will demonstrate faux painting, including the art of art of marblizing, at a free seminar from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 27, at the New Upholstery Shop, 764 Country Way, North Scituate.

Mortgage firm donates $$$

Premiere Funding, a mortgage consulting firm headquartered in Cohasset, has instituted a policy of donating $100 to the charity of the borrower's choice upon the closing of a mortgage loan. The contribution will be made in the name of the loan borrower and will not affect the loan terms or other fees.

"We just felt that it was important to show a personal commitment to our clients," said Richard Lahar, President of Premiere Funding. "The loan field has seen some turmoil over the past year and we want people to know that there is still a lot of integrity in our profession. In fact, mortgage consultants offer a good alternative to traditional borrowing methods, since we work with approximately 20 reputable national and regional lending houses to locate rates and terms that best suit a client's needs."

Premiere Funding is paid by the lending institution, rather than the homeowner, which eliminates any risk to the borrower. Among the lending institutions Premiere Funding works with are Shearson, Lehman, Hutton Mortgage, Prudential Mortgage, and Bank East Mortgage.

Weddings and engagements

Christina and Francis Ahern

Miss Karcher marries Mr. Ahern

Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Karcher of 193 South Main St., announce the marriage of their daughter, Christina M. Karcher, to Francis X. Ahern Jr. of Needham on Oct. 5 at St. Anthony's Church. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis X. Ahern of Needham.

The ceremony was performed by Father Keohane and the bride was given in marriage by her father.

Maid of honor was Tammy Karcher of Cohasset, and bridesmaids were Susan Ross of Wrentham, Marie Watters of Connecticut, Donna Stickney of Avon, Laurie Sandblom of Cohasset and Kelley Ryan of South Boston.

Best man was David Ahern of Needham, and ushers were Sean Ahern and Paul Ahern of Needham, Eric Karcher of Cohasset, Paul Stickney of Avon and Paul Gersbucker of Norfolk.

A reception was held at the Holiday Inn in Rockland after which the couple left on a wedding trip to Greece. They are residing in Wrentham.

The bride is a graduate of Northeastern University and is an x-ray technologist at Harvard Community Health Plan. The groom graduated from the University of Mass. at Amherst and is a corporate sales representative for JWP of Canton.

Miss Corbett engaged to Mr. Brooks

The engagement of Kathryn A.Corbett of Cohasset, to Timothy A. Brooks of Crawfordsville, IN, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Corbett of Cohasset.

Miss Corbett, a graduate of Cohasset High School and Dartmouth College, is employed by Glendale Public Schools, Glendale, CA. Mr. Brooks is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Austin Brooks of Crawfordsville, IN. He was graduated from Crawfordsville High School, Dartmouth College, and is currently a third year law student at U.C.L.A.

An August wedding is being planned.

Miss Lillian Murray

Miss Murray will wed Mr. Curley

At an informal gathering of family and close friends, Mrs. Philip G. Murray, Sr. of Cohasset announced the engagement of her daughter, Lillian Marie to James F. Curley. Mr. Curley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Curley, Jr. of Cohasset.

Miss Murray is the daughter of the late Philip G. Murray, Sr. She is a graduate of Cohasset High School and Aquinas Junior College. She received a B.S. in Political Science from the University of Massachusetts. She is the granddaugher of the late Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel M. Hurwitz and t:he late Mr. and Mrs. William M. Murray.

Mr. Curley is a graduate of Cohasset High School and is employed by the Town of Cohasset as a firefighter. He is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. John J. Rooney, the late Mr. Benjamin F. Curley, Sr. and Mrs. Benjamin E. Curley, Sr. of Daytona Beach, Florida.

A June 8 wedding is planned.

Miss Tinory is Mr. Shotwell's bride

Lisa Ann Tinory, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Francis Tinory, 180 Pond Street, became the bride of Edward Carle Shotwell IV of Manchester by-the-Sea, in a ceremony at Saint Anthony's Church in Cohasset Aug. 11. Rev. John Keohane officiated.

The groom is the son of Mrs. Tamara D. Shotwell of Manchester by-the-Sea, and Edward Carle Shotwell III, of Wenham.

A reception followed at the Humarock River House, Humarock.

The maid of honor was Claire Lorraine Tinory, Cohasset. Bridesmaids were Laurel Jean Tinory, Cohasset, Jane Shotwell, Hamilton and Kathleen Ann Kendrick, Scottsdale, Arizona.

The groom had David Hayes Wykoff of Manchester by-the-Sea as best man and ushers included Dudley Shotwell, Manchester by-the-Sea, Richard Francis Tinory, Jr., Cohasset, and Daniel Scott Fraser, Manchester by-the-Sea.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda the couple is residing in Manchester by-the-Sea.

The bride is a graduate of Cohasset High School in 1983, and the University of Massachusetts, 1988. She is an advertising coordinator for the Gloucester Daily Times/Essex County Newspapers.

The groom graduated from the Pingree School in Hamilton and Macalaster College, St. Paul, Minnesota in 1981 and is marketing manager for American Fiber and Finishing, Burlington. He is a member of the Myopia Hunt Club in Hamilton.

MARINER SPORTS

CHS coach expects more wins

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

After a tentative start, the Skippers promise a rousing performance in the second half of the basketball season.

"I guess the highlight of the first half is the game we just played," Coach Arnie Reppucci said. "At one point we were 30 points ahead."

The young team scored an astounding 72 points to beat Abington by a 27-point margin. The victory gave the Skippers a 4-6 record.

Reppucci said hard work was the key to his team's success against Abington.

"Both teams are in the middle of the standings," the coach said. "We had a number of players scoring and a hard-nosed defense.

"Everything came together."

Reppucci said the Skippers' record fails to reflect just how competitive the team has been.

A tendency to fall into foul trouble in the last three to five minutes of games foiled many victories.

"We feel we can play with any team in the league," Reppucci said. "We just need to finish it off."

Reppucci plans to capitalize on several strengths in the second half of the season.

"We're a quick team, we have good speed," he said. "And at times we play a very tenacious game."

Reppucci also cited size and shooting as strengths for the Skippers.

After thanking enthusiastic fans and dynamic cheerleaders for their unflagging support, Reppucci singled out a number of players for praise.

"Linc Marsac is the top Skipper player and has been a three-year starter and captain," Reppucci said. Marsac plays forward and averages 20 points, 10 rebounds and five assists for his team.

"He's one of the best natural athletes I've ever coached and one of the nicest kids you'll ever meet," he added.

Reppucci wishes Marsac would take advantage of all his natural ability.

"Our goal is to keep Linc out of stupid foul trouble so he can display his basketball talents for the full 32 minutes of the game," he said. "Too often we lose him in the first half."

Reppucci also singled out co-captain and center Matt Marks for praise.

"He's just a bundle of energy," he said of the senior. "He fills the role we've designated for him perfectly as the middle man in control of and defending the boards."

Marks averages six points and 12 rebounds in a game. Reppucci also described him as the team leader.

"He's an indispensable part of our success," he said.

Senior Caleb Slotnick is enjoying is first year as a starter. He averages five points and five assists for the Skippers.

"He's a steadying force at our guard position," Reppucci said.

Tad Kaperowicz rounds out the senior roster with an average of nine points and five rebounds. This is his second year as a starter.

Kasperowicz provides major contributions offensively and defensively, according to his coach.

Cohasset basketball should survive graduation time nicely. Reppucci starts two sophomores and one freshman, giving the team the youngest starting lineup in the league.

Reppucci cited junior Kevin Bishop, sophomore Douglas Ellinger and freshman Kywon Edwards for their contributions to the team's success.

At 6'6", Bishop gives the team invaluable minutes off the bench in the center position, according to the coach. He believes Bishop has unlimited potential.

"You can't teach height," Reppucci said. "He'll probably be 6'8" or 6'9" before he's done."

Reppucci described forward Ellinger as a "pleasant surprise with his fine all-around play."

Point guard Edwards claimed the lion's share of praise for the undergraduates. Superlative basketball ability seems to run in his family. Edwards is brother to former Cohasset basketball star and state all-time leading scorer, Bryan Edwards.

"He's the glue that runs the offense, Reppucci said, adding, "He's the heir apparent to the success of Cohasset basketball in the next three years."

Going into the second half, Reppucci plans to work on the execution of the half court offense and their transition game.

"It's imperative if we're going to win," he said. "Our press defense is something we can improve, too."

Reppucci praised his players freely.

"We've got a lot of willing kids and very good, raw talent," he said. "They have shown they are willing to learn and willing to improve."

Reppucci claims basketball players in Cohasset work under a definite disadvantage compared to athletes from all the surrounding towns.

"We have no outdoor basketball court so our kids don't have the ability to play basketball in a full court facility," Reppucci said. "It hurts their basic skills and their concept of playing the game."

No extra hours for conservation budget

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Selectmen dashed conservation commission hopes to expand their secretary's hours and buy a computer in fiscal 1992.

The board limited the commission's level-service budget increases to a computer for $2,600 or the equivalent in secretarial time. The level-funded budget was pegged at $16,139.

The advisory board reviews the budgets and makes recommendations next.

Conservation commission Chairman Thomas Callahan told selectmen the department needed the extra nine hours because of the high volume of work, level of documentation and tight deadlines.

Last year, the commission requested 40 hours of secretarial time.

Currently, the conservation commission splits a full-time secretary with the sewer commission. The conservation commission claims 25 hours of secretary Pat Walsh's time, the sewer commission gets the balance.

Callahan said the sewer commission planned to reduce Walsh's hours to six hours per week. They offered the conservation commission the remaining nine hours. Callahan argued the salary change was not really an increase, merely a reallocation of an existing obligation from one department's budget to another.

Selectman Jane Goedecke disagreed.

"I don't think I can agree with you that it will be a wash," Goedecke said. Goedecke believes the commission will need any money saved in the salary account for other sections of their budget.

Goedecke also stressed that many departments will see reduction in staff hours.

"This is not a time when we have the ability to have the same work force we have had in the past," she said. Goedecke expressed reluctance to increase one department while cutting back others.

Selectman Ned Tebbetts posed a choice between the computer and $2,600 worth of increased secretarial hours.

"I would absolutely prefer Pat Walsh over the computer," Callahan responded. "She's an invaluable resource to us."

Both Goedecke and Selectman Diana Kornet wondered if acquisition of a computer would reduce the demand for more secretarial time. Callahan doubted it would, saying 25 hours was insufficient now.

Tebbetts said he was uncomfortable approving a $5,300 increase in the conservation commission's salary budget in lean times. Tebbetts suggested scheduling Walsh for 30 hours per week in addition to the computer purchase.

Tebbetts' compromise was rejected 3-2. Only Selectman Martha Gjesteby voted with Tebbetts.

Skippers hurt by poor facilities

He added that basketball players cannot work on basic skills during the season.

Basketball players aren't the only ones suffering from inadequate and nonexistent facilities. Reppucci claimed the lack of an outdoor track worthy of the name and overlapping sports fields handicap other athletes.

"People who live in other towns would be absolutely shocked," he said of the sparse athletic facilities available to Cohasset's children.

"I don't really know of a town that has as poor public facilities as Cohasset."

In spite of the disadvantages, Reppucci promises spectators a thrilling finish to the basketball season.

The Skippers have the home court advantage as they take on Norwell Friday, Jan. 18 and Hull on Tuesday, Jan. 22. Both games start at 7 p.m.

"Based on the steady improvement of the first half, it should be a very exciting second half," he said. "Linc and Kywon are worth the price of admission."

No frills school budget rises 1.1%

By Patricia Desmond
Mariner staff

The school budget, as proposed by the school administration, would be $5.6 million, up $61,949 from the current budget — a 1.1% increase. That proposed budget contains no raises for the unions now involved in collective bargaining, nor does it allow for inflationary increases in fuel prices.

Salary negotiations with the teachers are currently underway.

Stephen Hart, superintendent of schools, referred to the request as a level services budget as he presented it to school committee on Jan. 16.

School committee began its painstaking process of sifting through the education budget for the coming fiscal year. That process of questioning the charts and figures continued on Jan. 22. Meetings have been set for Jan. 28 and Feb. 4. By the week of Feb. 12, school officials hope to meet with the full advisory board to discuss the issue.

So far there have been no official votes on the proposed budget.

On Jan. 16, there was 10 minutes of silence at 9 p.m. as everyone in the administration wing of the high school paid attention to President George Bush, talking about the assault against Iraq he had launched two hours earlier. But when the President finished his message, the TV was turned off.

"I know it's hard but we've got to get back to it," School Committee Chairman Barbara Bliss commented as the focus of attention went from the small TV brought into the room just for the special address to Hart.

There are few raises tucked into the budget. Most are for staff members who will qualify for step raises in the coming year. Raises for custodians are included since this is the last of a three-year contract for custodians.

The budget provides for the same number of staff positions for the coming year as are currently employed. There are changes in special education aides at Osgood and Deer Hill.

Hart also gave school committee a separate

Local groups organize a new Harborfest

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Mother Nature blessed Cohasset with a spectacular harbor. Representatives from 11 organizations think it's time to celebrate that fact.

The group endorsed a proposal to hold the first annual harbor festival. The group opted to piggyback on the summer arts festival sponsored by the South Shore Arts Center.

This year the summer festival runs June 20-23. Festival organizers hope the Minot's Light replica will be ready by that time as well.

The idea of a harbor festival originated with Jim Lagrotteria, assessor and representative of the Lobsterman's Association. Lagrotteria told the group he missed the camaraderie developed during Cohasset's bicentennial celebration 20 years ago.

"What I remember distinctly was the great time I had meeting people, the friendliness," he said. "We need to do something to bring this town together and get people talking with each other."

Lagrotteria said it would be good for morale in tough financial times. In addition to having the local clergy bless the fleet, he thought the fisherman and sailing club could sponsor boat races.

Lighthouse replica reaches for support

By Patricia Desmond
Mariner staff

Noel Ripley keeps the beacon shining on the lighthouse tower, under construction on Government Island.

People from outside of Cohasset seldom know where Government Island is located. Once the tower is in place, it will be hard to miss. The island, which is attached by bridge at Border Street, can be seen easily from the Chart House .

The replica of part of Minot's Lighthouse, now rising slowly on Government Island, needs more financial support, according to Ripley of Cohasset Historical Society.

So far $16,000 has been spent on the replication. Another $2,000 is needed just to buy more copper to work on the dome.

But Ripley and Joseph Lebherz of Scituate, another lighthouse enthusiast working on the project, agree that the work already accomplished would have cost well over $100,000 if it were not for donations of labor, materials and equipment.

"The project needs about $10,000 more," Lebherz said recently as he displayed his collection of old photos of the granite tower as it grew on the small ledge off the coast of Scituate. Ripley's own collec-

Lobsters, out of seaon and style

Lobstering and the Salvador family used to be synonomous. Man and boy, the Salvadors have been hauling traps out of Cohasset harbor forever.

"Forever has ended," Manuel Salvador said recently. "I'm the last one."

Manuel's brother Bernie and Bernie's sons bailed out of the lobstering life that started back with their father and grandfather before him.

Proposed school budget hits $5.6 million

"growth" budget which would restore positions cut recently. The growth items would increase the $5.6 million by $125,000. For that extra amount, the high school industrial arts program, foreign language and physical education would all see a restoration to the staff level of a year ago.

According to conservative projections, there will be an increase in school enrollment next year. The current school population is 1,161. Next year if everyone merely moves up one grade, the school population will be 1,173. Last year there were more than 20 additional students moving into the high school.

The proposed budget contains little expansion and no construction plans,.

There is $5,000 for painting the trim at the Joseph Osgood School. And there is a plan to finish the paint job at the junior/senior high school.

School committee members want to see an increase in the user fee amount or a decrease in the number of athletic offerings at the high school. The number of varsity sports increased this past year without an increase in budget but next year the additional coaches would have to be paid.

The proposed budget, as it stands before the committee takes action calls for:

- lacrosse team, $6,450
- swimming, $3,300.
- ski team, $3,300.
- sailing team, $3,100.

None of those four sports have any money allocated in the present school budget.

The football budget would increase from the present $14,928 to $21,749 under the plan, with increases in just about all accounts within the category. This year there is no varsity football team.

The net athletics budget proposed is $101,769, up from $82,798. Actual spending would be $141,769, with $40,000 from user fees used to offset the total.

There is nothing allocated for field trips. Students and the PSO pay the cost of field trips currently.

Nor is there any construction cost for work at the Osgood School — although the possibility of an addition has been discussed. The proposal calls for four grade 3 teachers at Osgood to handle the 97 children now in grade 2. (This year there are five grade 2 teachers. Next year there will be 109 children in grade 2.)

As it looks now class size will be increasing, with 24 students as the maximum at Osgood.

One item missing from the proposed budget that is included in this year's spending is $20,000 for unemployment benefits. There are no further staff cutbacks planned.

The $3,245 proposed for "enrichment" at Osgood would be used to increase the offering of the Great Books program, Hart told the committee. Most of the money would be used to buy books. A whole language program is another addition. It's cost is mainly reflected in textbook costs.

Boosters have funds, but few volunteers

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

The local boosters club faces a rare problem. Their till is full, but they can't find volunteers to help them spend it.

For the past 12 or 13 years, the boosters honored Cohasset High School athletes and supported other extra-curricular activities.

Each year, they sponsored three sports banquets a year. They awarded trophies and letters and singled out an outstanding player and cheerleader for each sport.

With 30 active volunteers to call on, it took no great effort to put on a feed for 300 people.

The boosters provided the meal at no cost for athletes, coaches and school officials. Parents paid $2 or $3 for tacos, coffee and dessert.

"When you were done paying for everything it might cost $200-$300," Grassey said. "It seemed a pretty small price to pay."

The boosters also gave money to groups like the drama club, chess team and Special Olympics. Start-up money for the sailing, lacrosse and ski teams came from their treasury.

They award two scholarships annually.

All this may all come to an end. year. The two surviving volunteers, Ernie Grassey and Pat Tolini, can't pull it off alone. Already they have been forced to skip the fall sports banquet traditionally held in late November or December.

"Everybody seems to be sort of volunteered out," Grassey said. He believes the rise of the specialty booster clubs rang the death knell for the general group.

The soccer team can call on the soccer boosters, the football team relies on the Gridiron group, but Grassey believes there is still a need for a general group.

"For example, one year we bought a batting cage," he said. The group prided itself on filling in wherever a gap appeared.

Giving up goes against Grassey's grain. He hopes volunteers step forward or another organization offers to take on the boosters' function and treasury.

Grassey thinks it could dovetail perfectly with a group like the PSO or Rotary Club, for example.

"It could simply be a committee of another organization," he suggested. Grassey said former boosters would work with a new group until they felt comfortable taking over.

"If push came to shove, a core group of 10 would work with a new group," he said. "This isn't rocket science.

"Organizing a banquet is no more than ordering taco ingredients for 200-300 people and the school cafeteria people help out," he explained.

Grassey said there was still time to honor athletes from the fall sports if volunteers could be found quickly.

"Now we're running into the end of basketball season," he said.

Grassey encourages would-be volunteers and interested organizations to get in touch with him. Grassey can be reached at 383-6857.

"I think it would be nice to have it maintained," he said.

Scouts start cookie sale

Girl Scouts will be knocking on doors through Friday, Jan. 25 taking orders for Girl Scout Cookies.

Responsibility, leadership and goal setting are skills we all use in life. By participating in the sale, girls actively use those skills at an early age and gain self-confidence in doing so successfully. From customer service to accounting, Girl Scouts gain valuable experience each time they visit a home.

If a Girl Scout missed you at home and you would like to order cookies, please contact Patriots' Trail Girl Scout Council at 482-1078 or (800) 882-1662.

Lobster fishing falls upon troubled waters

"It got to the point where you couldn't make a living," Salvador said. "I'm holding on and that's just about all."

Salvador hauled his pots and boat out of the water around November or December. He won't put out to sea until the weather turns friendlier.

At 77, Herbie Jason fishes year round.

"I've been fishing year-round for 60 years," he said. "Sometimes it gets a little chilly out there. If it's not blowin' too hard, I go out."

Jason makes only one concession to the weather. In the winter, he only sets about 250 pots. Summers, he hauls about twice that.

Salvador and Jason are just two of the 44 commercial lobstermen in Cohasset harbor. Another 31 work out of Hingham harbor. They harvested a total of more than 1.1 million pounds of lobster in 1989.

Even so, both Jason and Salvador agree this has been one of the worst years for lobstermen.

Obviously, it's not that there is any shortage of lobsters. Homarus americanus, as the lobster is known to scientists, abounds in Massachusett's water. The market for their catch remains high.The only problem is the price.

"The price is way off," Jason said. "It's only $2.50 per pound. Usually it's at least $3.50 to $4 in the winter."

According to Bill Adler, executive director of the Mass. Lobsterman's Association, the price just hasn't been there since spring. In the summertime, when the fishermen usually salt money away against the lean times in the winter, the price plummeted to a heartbreaking $1.75 a pound while gas and bait soared.

"They're all hard up against it this winter because of the price this summer," Adler said. "It just killed them."

The heart of the lobstermen's problem lies in a glut in the market and the recession besetting consumers' pocketbooks.

"There have always been gluts," Adler said. "And Americans in a recession aren't buying lobster and aren't going out to eat."

The lobster business fell on hard times beginning two years ago. In 1989, Canada harvested an estimated 95.2 million pounds of lobster. U.S. lobstermen hauled 52.9 pounds, most of them taken in New England waters.

Statewide, more than 1,650 commercial lobster permits are out there and being used. That does not include something along the lines of 9,000 to 12,000 recreational permits.

Many of them jumped into the market and set as many traps as they could when the price was high.

"The price got too high and drove the market away," Adler said. "People couldn't afford to buy lobster anymore. The price had to go way down to bring the market back."

The solution, according to Adler and Jason, lies in getting the haul in sync with demand. "The fishermen are looking for some kind of trap limit they can live with," Adler said. "But unless dragging for lobsters is stopped, they don't want to go to a trap limit."

Adler also hopes markets in Europe and Asia open up to the U.S. catch. Right now, Canada scoops up the bulk of the export business.

Most lobstermen just want to make a living off the ocean.

"It's the worst it's ever been," Salvador said sadly. He ticked off the expense a lobstermen faces, "A new boat runs about $50,000 and traps cost about $50 each plus the cost of fuel and bait . . ."

Unless things change, it won't take long before lobster fishing from Cohasset harbor becomes something you only see in historical society displays.

Fishermen flounder with lack of groundfish

Unlike lobstermen who find the law controlling abundant supply and low demand working against them, fishermen find there just aren't enough groundfish out there anymore.

According to a report released by the Massachusetts Offshore Groundfish Task Force, overfishing seriously depleted the supply of cod, haddock, flounder and other groundfish.

The task force urged the adoption of stringent controls on fishing to protect the resource before it is too late.

According to the task force, consumers are paying more than $19 million more per year over what fish would cost if fish stocks were adequately maintained. Depleted stocks mean the state harvests 88 million pounds less groundfish per year, costing the state $193 million in revenue and 8,000 jobs.

Unless the state halts the resource depletion, the future of commercial and sport fishing remains in jeopardy.

The recommendations of the task force include:

- Species-specific quotas and limits for commercial and recreational fishermen.
- Protection of juvenile fish populations by closing areas to fishing if juveniles exceed 20 percent of the total catch. Gillnetters must continually tend their nets to reduce wasteful adult mortality as well.

Gillnetting involves the use of nets with mesh large enough for the target fish to swim half-way through. When they can swim no further because of their fins, the line catches in their gills preventing them from backing out.

- Stringent compliance regulations must be adopted and enforced. The task force recommended dock-side enforcement and sanctions.
- Groundfish data gathering and monitoring must be improved.
- Groundfish catches must be allocated among the components of the fishing community.
- State fishing regulations must be at least as restrictive as federal limits and a strong conservation ethic must be the prime focus of the New England Fisheries Management Council.

Harborfest planned for June

Someone else suggested a chowder contest with local restaurants vying for the title "best chowder on the South Shore."

Arthur Lehr from the local boy scouts troop quickly got into the act. He put in a pitch for floats.

Local organizations designed and built floats for the bicentennial celebration. Some of Lehr's favorite memories of the time involved skulking around local barns and garages to see who was building what.

Tom Finegan of the Cohasset Drama Club said he couldn't commit his group before discussing it with the board, but he thought the group might be willing to put on a special performance.

"Nothing but good can come from it," Bob Martin of the Chamber of Commerce said.

The chamber views the festival as a way of getting people to see all that Cohasset offers in beauty — and wares.

Other groups supporting the concept included the South Shore Art Center, Veteran's of Foreign Wars, Rotary Club, Social Service League, Booster's Club, local clergy, and the Parent School Organization.

The group approved a five-member steering committee. Members include Lagrotteria, Martin, Lanci Valentine of the South Shore Art Center, and representatives from the local clergy and Rotary Club to be named later.

The steering committee will hold their first meeting Wednesday, Jan. 23. Any individuals or groups interested in developing a harbor festival should get in touch with the Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 336, Cohasset, MA 02025.

Girls b-ball team works to score

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

The lady Skippers face an uphill climb from the league's cellar. With nine games behind them, the Skippers have yet to claim a win.

"The main thing really hurting us is no height," coach Debby Bostwick said. "Our tallest girl is 5'9".

"Height-wise, we can't compete with any team. We're probably the shortest team in the league."

The team labors against an additional disadvantage — a low shooting percentage from the floor.

"With no height, we need a shooting percentage of 50-60 percent from the floor," Bostwick said.

Bostwick remains optimistic about her team.

"On the plus side, the kids hustle from the first jump ball to the final buzzer," she said. "They never give up. They're always giving 110 percent."

With no height, the Skippers resort to an aggressive and quick defensive game.

"We do everything possible to keep the other team from rebounding," Bostwick said. "The kids just play very, very aggressively.

"Against Abington, we stayed within two points for a long time, then the height killed us," Bostwick added.

In the past few games, the Skippers have started

Government Island led to Minot Light

This 1850s photograph was provided by government archives. The Cohasset shore was the site where granite heading to Minot's Light was assembled as part of the construction. The site is now being used to hold a replica of the tower.

tion of photos include some printed from glass negatives that show Cohasset Harbor in the 1800s.

Construction of Minot's Light was a customized job back in the mid-1800s. The construction actually took place on Government Island since the ledge itself was considered too dangerous a site. After the structure was built in Cohasset, the pieces were ferried out to Minot's Ledge, one block at a time.

The tower was built in a way that the pounding of the waves strengthened the structure.

The granite tower went into use in 1860, replacing a steel lighthouse tower that toppled into the sea after only about a year of existence. The tragedy of the steel tower left two of the lighthouse keepers dead in1851. A lightship served as a beacon in the years after the first tower crashed into the sea.

Lebherz is still looking for photographs of the original steel lighthouse.

He has a series of photographs of the granite structure, provided from government archives.

Lebherzis sharing the precious photos long ago. He has made some available for publication. He is also developing a display that will soon be available locally.

The replica on Government Island won't follow the original tower exactly — the cost of materials having risen greatly over the years. Cost isn't the only problem. In some cases, the original designs are not available.

While Lebherz discovered a full set of blueprints for the tower, he believes there never were true blueprints for the granite base. The closest thing to a blueprint for the base shows the granite blocks interlocking. It fails to point out a cornerstone or detail vents and other anciliary portions of the structure.

Use of some the original materials is out of the question. One pivotal piece used 300 to 400 pounds of mercury to keep the tower turning. Lebherz came up with a design for a pivot of a different sort. The 20 inch barron was made under specification by students at South Shore Vocational Technical School where Lebherz works.

Another change is the substitution of other materials for some of the bronze used in the original.

But many nuts and bolts are being cast in a Whitman foundry just for the project.

"We've had to work hard to preserve the lighthouses," Lebherz said, pointing out that while the government has honored requests to turn over the old materials, the government only responds to requests.

"They have cooperated," Lebherz said.

In perspective

The first lighthouse on Minot's Ledgewent into operation in 1850.

On April 17, 1851 the steel tower toppled.

Construction on the granite tower began in 1855.

In 1857 the first stone was laid on the ledge.

In 1860, Minot's Light was again operational. Bonfires were lit along the coast of Scituate and Cohasset in celebration.

It was in May 1, 1894, when Minot's Light off the coast of Scituate began to flash it's 1-4-3 code, which as many romantics know means "I love you."

Before that date, the light burned steady.

In 1947, the light was automated. At the time Coast Guard crews sent to the lighthouse tossed furnishings and other pieces of history into the sea.

Computer champions

The following students were high scorers in the America Computer Science League competition: Jason Hunter, Andrew Ross, Carol Smith, Tara Volungis, Ire Sakamoto, Peter Smith and Steve Almeida. Jason Hunter had a perfect score. The event is in two parts. One is a test on different topics in computer science. The second part is a program the students have to write to solve a specific problem.

Why every student should learn how to learn

Are you a test-taker or faker?
Has school stopped being fun?
Do you feel good about yourself?
Do you spend hours studying the wrong things?
Do you know how to take notes?
Learning is a skill. It can be improved, perfected and mastered.
Students who "know how" are more motivated, self confident and successful.
We provide the "know how."

AROUND TOWN

❑ Under the leadership of Pat Baird and Elaine Smoot, The Apples For The Students Campaign had another successful year. Through the entire community's efforts, they were able to collect $900,000 worth of register slips to use in trade value. School Superintendent, Stephen Hart, has placed an order for some very expensive computers, printers, and disc drives along with a large amount of software to be used to enhance the usage of the computers obtained last year. The entire community should be applauded for its participation, without it this truly would not have been possible. The Stop & Shop and the Bradlees Companies should also be thanked for making this program available to our schools. Thank you everyone.

❑ Congratulations go to Katherine Lalonde and Thomas Young. They became engaged last month, during a very romantic dinner at the Navona restaurant. They haven't set the date yet, here's hoping they let us be the first to know when the big date is set. Meanwhile, have a happy engagement.

❑ The Deer Hill School is planning to have another quiz show this year, if you remember last year's, you'll look forward to it with eagerness. The entire sixth grade takes part in the production, and it is shown on cable TV. The students even run their own equipment for the taping of the events. They will compete twice, the first one being held live on Feb. 13 at 10:30 a.m. At that time two classes will face off, then in March two more classes will challenge each other. The two winners will then meet in March for the championship. We will be sure to fill you in on the details as they come in, in the meantime save Feb. 13.

❑ Jen Anstead phoned to say that the Community Service Club at Cohasset High School sponsored a Toy Drive to benefit Head Start in Plymouth. Toys were collected by high school students to benefit children who were going to have a limited or no Christmas celebration this year. The following local businesses donated toys: The Good Sport, Buttonwood Books, Woolworths, and Kit and Kaboodle. Without their support the Toy Drive would not have been such a huge success, our hats are off to them. Remember to support them as they did the less fortunate children.

❑ Judy Volungis wanted everyone to be sure to know about the latest good news at the Cohasset Community Center. On Friday, Jan. 25 at 10 a.m., they are running a body composition analysis...you can find out your percent body fat with a quick, easy and accurate test using infra-red technology. Runners, cyclists, tennis players, aerobic dancers, swimmers, walkers, golfers, bodybuilders, high school athletes and fitness enthusiasts should all have their body fat tested. The testing will be conducted by Patricia Messing, M.S., Nutritionist and you will receive a computerized printout which includes percent body fat, pounds lean weight, amount body water, and recommended maximum weight. The cost is $10. Call Judy at the Center for more information at 383-0088.

❑ Jack Cibelli, the new chairman of the Cohasset Red Cross Community Bloodmobile, wishes to announce that the next Bloodmobile will be held on Tuesday, Jan. 20 from 2 to 7 p.m. at the First Parish House, 23 North Main Street. Please join them in sharing the most precious gift, the gift of life. As an added comment, we heard an appeal on the radio that the armed services would especially appreciate O-positive type blood.

❑ Normandie Nigh called last week, to say they are underway with plans for a new step training program at the Cohasset Community Center on Feb. 5. That date will be the introduction, and it is a fund-raiser for the Special Olympics. For $5 per person you can see it, try it, watch it or do it. It begins at 7 p.m. and Normandie will be the instructor.

❑ Don't forget the Frosty Frolic Dance this Saturday night at the Community Center, it promises to be a wonderful way to shed the winter blahs for an evening.

❑ Hats off to the CHS hockey team, they had two big wins last week, against Hull and Scituate. They promise that they will provide you with an action-filled evening, be sure to attend their next game to cheer them on.

❑ In closing for the week, let us all say a prayer for our boys and for peace.

❑ Call me with your news.

❑ Bill Baird certainly should be proud of himself and his record — he was nominated by U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds to both the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md. and the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colorado.

'FIT TIPS'

with Normandie Nigh

By Normandie Nigh
Special to the Mariner

There's a world of information available about fitness and health, ranging from the miraculous to the ridiculous. It can be confusing at times, even dangerous, if we don't make the effort to sort out fact from fallacy.

Trust me. I know from experience. I've spent most of my life involved in some type of physical activity or exercise program, having started 'tumbling' at four and now teaching aerobics at near 40. I've learned alot along the way and I've experienced much that I don't care to repeat... the battle of the bulge, the aches and pains from doing too much, and the agony of an injury which kept me from working out when I was physically and emotionally addicted. (Luckily, I've mellowed in my quest for the holy fitness grail and I won't go off the deep end if I can't fit in a workout.) Believe me, as far as fitness is concerned, I know many of the wrong things, as well as the right things to do.

I've made fitness my business and it has been for the past 14 years. Prior to moving to the South Shore area, I was President of a consulting firm in San Diego that specialized in fitness marketing and instructor training programs. I traveled extensively and had the opportunity to work with exercise specialists in many countries. My work in fitness and promotions opened a door for me at Reebok, where I became the business development manager of the West Coast and later the International aerobics and fitness manager. It became apparent to me that there was a need for better communication within the fitness industry so that all people could benefit from the research done by exercise scientists from all over the world. I left Reebok and started the consulting company, Fit For Success, so I could help others experience first-hand the tremendous feeling of being fit without going through the same learning curve that I did.

So, what are some of the pitfalls to avoid and the short-cuts that really work? Here are six do's and half a dozen don'ts to help you get the most from your endeavors.

Do 's:

- Determine your reasons for exercising and set realistic goals for yourself.
- Decide which activities are best suited for you based on your current physical condition, strengths and weaknesses, personal preferences, time restraints and goals.
- Start slowly and build up gradually. Begin with gentle stretching and easy movements before jumping right into a strenuous program.
- Stretch daily, especially before and after exercise, to avoid injuries and muscle soreness, and to reduce many common aches and pains.
- Drink plenty of water before, during, and after exercise - and as often as possible throughout the day and evening.
- Make fitness a serious commitment - but have fun!

Don'ts

- Do not use 'random' or indiscriminate exercises - know what you're doing and why you're doing it. (Don't do it just because everyone else is!)
- Don't do hazardous exercises such as windmills, twisting with feet planted, forward bends while standing, straight leg sit-ups, and deep knee bends.
- Don't use a scale to judge your progress if your goal is to 'lose weight'. (You can lose body fat but not weight - muscles weigh more than fat!)
- Don't expect changes overnight, give it at least two months.
- Don't get burned out or bored by limiting yourself to one type of activity.
- Don't continue an exercise if you feel severe discomfort or pain. There's a reason for it. Find out why.

In future columns I'll elaborate on these points and several others. I welcome your suggestions for any topics which you would like to address or any specific questions which you may have. My goal for this column in upcoming issues is to simplify the issue of fitness. I hope to make it a little easier for non-exercisers to start and for exercise veterans to excel by sharing my resources and by passing on some simple tips I've learned over the years that truly make it safe and fun to get fit.

Please send suggestions for topics, questions or comments to: Fit For Success, 115 Ripley Road, Cohasset, MA 02025.

(Normandie Nigh is the President of Fit For Success, the Director of the International Council on Sport and Exercise Safety, and the host of the 'Fitness Connection' TV show.)

Praying for the safety of our troops

As we watch our thousand points of light turn into a 1000 bombs over Baghdad, we weep inside.

We pray for the safety of our troops.

We pray that the nation will not be divided.

There is no thinking person who wants war. There is no feeling person who is not behind the troops.

Somewhere in between, there will be levels of disagreement.

The country has a collective guilt complex because of the way Vietnam veterans were treated at the end of, and after, that disastrous was in Southeast Asia.

So we are afraid that diversity of opinion might seem that we are not supporting our troops.

This is not true.

Is there anyone in this country who is not praying with every fiber of his or her being for their safety.

We think not.

However, there is a feeling that the morale of the servicemen will suffer if they know there are differences of opinion at home.

We think not.

These young men and women have lived in this eclectic United States their whole lives.

They're very strong. Diversity has strengthened them.

They know people demonstrate for civil rights, gay rights, abortion rights, animal rights, women's rights, environmental rights.

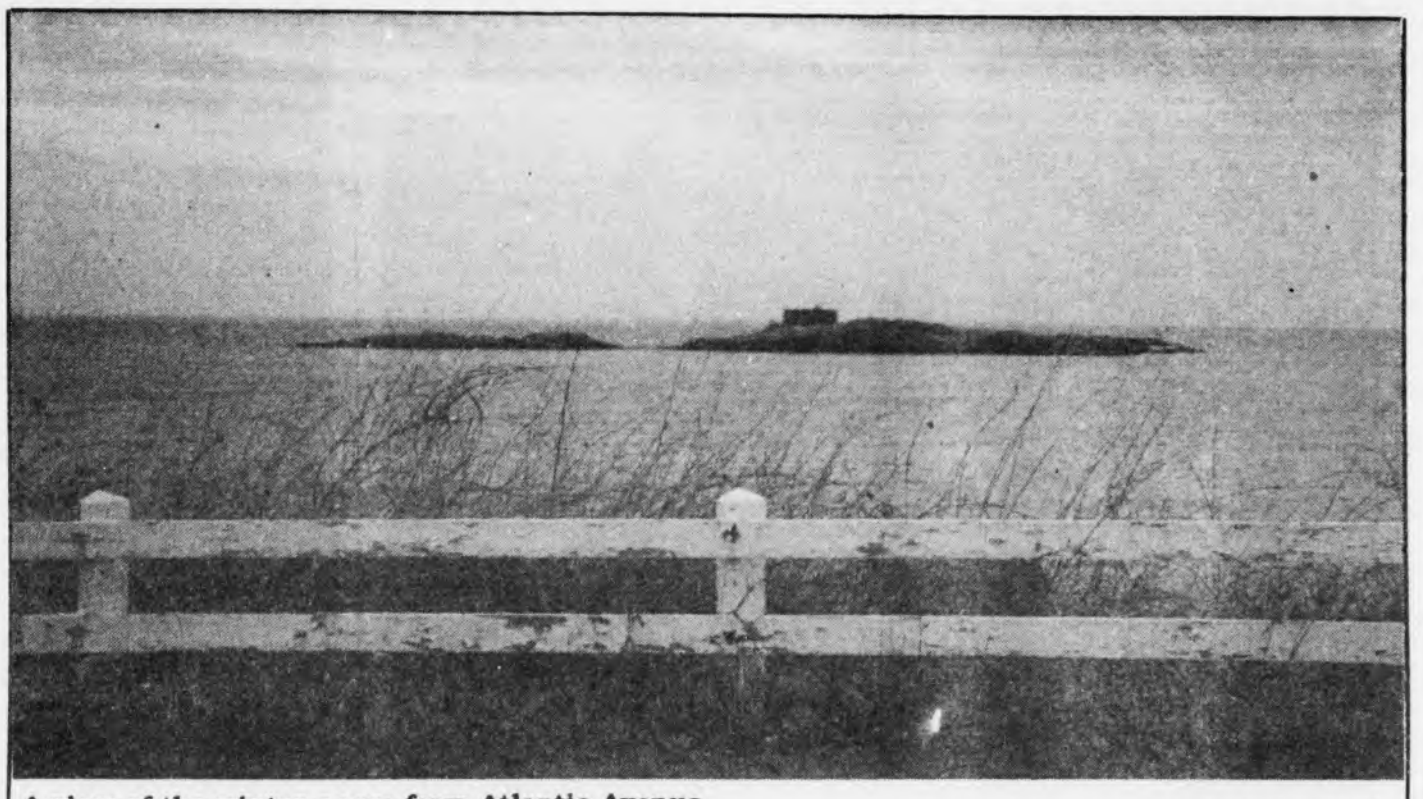
How could anyone believe that one of the most history-changing actions the United States has taken in 40 years would not bring intense reaction from the people.

We're all scared.

But to a person, we support our troops. We want them safe.

Next week the Cohasset Mariner will begin a series called "Those Who Serve"—a salute to the Cohasset men and women who are serving in the Persian Gulf.

We know there are many other families waiting at the edge of the conflict — families whose sons, daughters, husbands, fathers, mothers, cousins and friends have been given orders putting them on alert for combat service. Our prayers are with them. We wish we could do more.



From time to time, we will print a list of the names of those who are serving in this war. Our list comes from unofficial sources. We have only word of mouth information. We ask families to send the Cohasset Mariner the names of any other Cohasset residents in the Persian Gulf, along with the telephone number of the family.

So far we know of only a few members of Operation Desert Storm from our town.

They are: Capt. Stephen Winn, Staff Sgt. James J. Smith, PFC Brian Curran, Sgt. Laurence Hoogeveen and Sgt. Joseph Tolini.

If you want to write to our servicemen and women, we will include the addresses of those provided by the families.

If you want to pray for them, that address is always the same.

Letters

Reader seeks 'rational' solution, not war

(Editor's note: The following copy was sent to the Mariner for publication.)

President George Bush
The White House

Dear President Bush:

I am an 80-year-old retired physician and I fear the consequences of a shooting war, even a short one. You have a wonderful opportunity to lead us into a more rational post-cold war world.

Our predominantly Judeo-Christian-Western Culture has deep roots in the East and Middle East, with nutrient rootings in the Arab, Muslim, Jewish, Greek and Roman civilizations. In the valleys of the Tigris and Euphrates, now a part of Iraq, the Arts and Sciences of Mesopotamia and Babylonia were born and the outgrowths of these ebbed and flowed through a diversity of cultures and civilizations into our own very wonderful but very troubled modern era.

Ancient and more recent antagonisms are still with us: Religious, Ethnic, Racial, Nationalistic, Political and Economic. We all want peace but somehow there may be a war with all its horrors. A defeated or dead Saddam Hussein will only add to the Mid-East turmoil, probably requiring continued military presence. A peaceful settlement requires strength, patience and wisdom. A wide Middle East settlement would be a harbinger for other areas.

Dear President Bush, troubled Americans are demonstrating.

Painfully I shall join them.

Sincerely,
Dr. Robert O. Barstow

P.S. Now that war has begun I wish the best for our military forces, and for you, President Bush. However, it is easy to get in but difficult to get out. We are still in Japan, Germany, Korea, Panama and El Salvador. A takeover of secular Iraq by Muslim fundamentalism could be a disaster and fundamentalism could spread throughout the Moslem world. Dear President Bush, you now need even more wisdom than ever.

Social Service League thanks patrons

To the Editor:

The Social Service League of Cohasset is most grateful for the many gifts and contributions received during the Christmas and holiday season from the following: the Cohasset High School 9th grade Humanities class and students; The V.F.W. Post 9146 of Cohasset; the Democratic Town Committee; the Second Congregational Church; and many individual donations from Cohasset residents. These contributions made it possible for the league to distribute the gifts to those in need and add to the joy of the holiday season.

The Board of Directors and the staff of the league wish everyone a Happy New Year. Thank you.

Hussein seen as threat to world peace

To the Editor:

The horrors of war are exceeded by the horrors of the vastly greater war that will have to be waged later if Saddam is allowed to escape and become the lord of the Middle East, with all the weaponry that its combined oil revenues would afford, with all the manpower he then would control, with all the disaffected Arabs that would flock to his banner.

"Peace" is a delusion; it is merely postponement of war, to a much more destructive war when Saddam has nuclear weapons and has increased his arsenal of chemical and biological devices.

"No Blood For Oil" is a brainless slogan. The war isn't about oil; it's about the horrendously dangerous power Saddam would have and would use if he is allowed to realize his ambition to dominate the region and use the colossal oil revenues to bully the world, militarily and economically.

That the U.S. is guilty of supporting Saddam (and other bad guys) in the past hasn't much relevance. What's relevant is realization of the situation (however belated) and what must be done about it before the cancer grows to unstoppable dimensions. It's regrettable that the President didn't explain it well, but that's no excuse for us not grasping the situation and supporting resolute and realistic action to excise the cancer before it's too late. Saddam destabilized the region, not the actions against him.

The lugubrious maundering about body bags gives journalists and politicians much opportunity to demonstrate their writing and oratorical skills, and to enjoy twanging the heartstrings of softhearted or emotionally involved people. But it doesn't help avoid that future and far more horrible war. Only destruction of Saddam's machine can do that. Appeasement, sanctions, diplomacy, prayers, sophomoric demonstrations, partisan ranting, blind criticism and wishful thinking won't do it.

Obituary

Dorothy E. Fraser

Private funeral services were held last week for Dorothy E. Fraser, 82, who died Jan. 19 at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth after a short illness.

Mrs. Fraser was a bookkeeper for the John Pratt Express Co. for four years and a member of the Rebekahs.

She was born in Somerville and graduated from Abington High School. She lived most of her life in Scituate and Cohasset.

She leaves her husband, Neal H. Fraser; two sons, Robert N. Fraser and John H. Fraser, both of Cohasset; two daughters, Margaret Salvatore of Quincy and Priscilla Andrews of Holbrook; a brother, Herbert Marsh of Cohasset; a sister, Alberta Pratt of Cohasset; four grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Mount Hope Cemetery in Scituate.

Arrangements were made by the Gaffey Funeral Home, North Scituate Village.

Donations may be made to charity.

BULLETIN BOARD

Environmental course set

Environmentally conscious citizens will have an opportunity to learn political action skills to protect the environment at a course offered by the Cambridge Center for Adult Education this month.

The course, "Individual Political Action to Protect the Environment," will inform CCAE students about the legislative process and how an individual can act as an effective "citizen lobbyist" to protect the environment.

The course is taught by John K. McNabb Jr., of Cohasset, who is a veteran Beacon Hill lobbyist and President of McNabb Associates, an environmental public policy consulting firm.

"The objective of this course is to give ordinary citizens the political action skills to influence the passage of environmental legislation at the State House," said McNabb.

The course begins Thursday, Jan. 17, and is held 8-9:30 p.m. at the CCAE facility at 42 Brattle Street, Cambridge. There are a total of six class sessions, held Thursday evenings.

For more information, or to enroll in the course, contact the Cambridge Center for Adult Education, 42 Brattle Street, Cambridge, MA 02238, 547-6789. The course code is "IPAC" and costs $68 plus the $5 CCAE registration fee.

Plan for King awards

The first board meeting of the new year for Cohasset Chamber of Commerce was held on Wednesday, Jan. 2 at Kimball's. The board has decided to change the meeting date to the first Thursday of the month and therefore the next meeting will be held on Feb. 7. Please contact one of the directors if you would like the board to discuss some problem or proposal.

The chamber is in the midst of the annual membership enrollment and asks members to return checks and applications soon. There is space on the application for any comments you wish to make.

On Wednesday, Feb. 27, the chamber will hold the King Award Dinner at Kimballs' By The Sea. This is always a festive occasion. Plan on arriving about 6:30 p.m. and meet and greet fellow business people.

The March meeting will be held at Kimball's By The Sea on Tuesday, March 12 and will be our Candidate's Night in preparation for the elections. The April meeting will be a breakfast meeting on Wednesday, April 10. More information on these meetings will follow.

Nursery school offered

The Cohasset Community Center Nursery School Program registration for the 1991-1992 school year will begin on Monday, Feb. 4. Registration will take place at The Community Center in the Activity Room located on the first floor of the Center (in the back of the building beyond the vending machines).

There is a $50 non-refundable registration fee to be paid at the time of registration. Parents registering their children in the 3 years old program should bring the child's birth certificate.

Scholarship applications and handbooks will be available at the Nursery School Office.

Classroom slots are filled as applicants are registered — spaces are filled on a first come basis.

Registration is open to the public on Feb. 13 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 12:45 to 1:45 p.m.; Thurs., Feb. 14 12:45 to 1:45 p.m.; Fri., Feb. 15, 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

Underwater art show set

Even though you won't be taking the family to some tropical shore this February vacation, your children can still spend the time exploring undersea life. 'Undersea Exploration" is just one of the February Vacation Workshops being offered by the South Shore Art Center this year.

Young artists from grades 1-3 will create a large mural of undersea life using paint and mixed media in the three-day workshop offered February 19-21 from 10 to 11:30 a.m. The children will also take home small works they created with monoprint and casts of undersea creatures.

Also scheduled for February 19-21 is "Cartooning" for grades 4-6, offered from 1 to 2:30 p.m. Children will create their own cartoon characters about whom they will develop, compose, and execute a story.

Four-day video adventures are being offered to grades 1-3 from 10 to 11:30 a.m. and grades 4-6 from 1 to 2:30 p.m. February 19 - 22. "Video Fun!!!" lets children find their niche either in front of or behind the camera acting out and shooting skits, stories, and commercials. Students may bring a video tape to make their own copy.

For more information about the February Vacation Workshops, please call the Art Center at 383-9548.

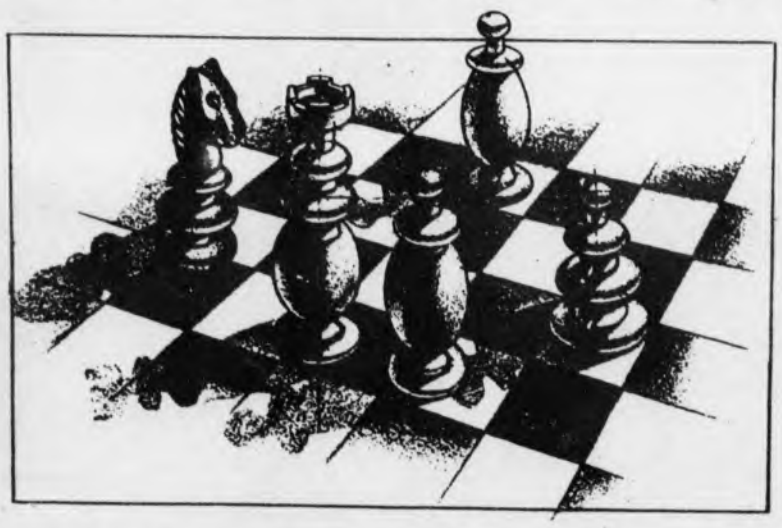
Aerobic classes offered

On Tuesday evening, Feb. 5, there will be an introduction to the Step Reebok fitness program at the Cohasset Community Center. The class begins at 7 p.m. and will give everyone an opportunity to try out this exciting new low-impact conditioning workout which will be taught by Normandie Nigh. The cost is $5 and all proceeds will be donated to Special Olympics. Call Judy at 383-0088 to reserve a space.

The Fitness Connection, a co-ed low-impact/high intensity aerobic workout show is aired on Monday and Wednesday evenings at 5 and 7 p.m. on Channel 53. The host of the show is Normandie Nigh, International speaker and President of the consulting firm Fit For Success. The show features a variety of local scenic backgrounds and emphasizes fun, but effective movements.

Hedlund sets office hours

Tuesday, January 29 from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. at the Cohasset Town Hall, Meeting Room, has been set aside by Sen. Robert Hedlund, R-Weymouth, to meet with Cohasset constituents. For those unable to meet with the senator, please call the State House at 722-1646.



Frosty Frolic on Jan. 26

The Community Center's Annual Frosty Frolic Dance happens Saturday, Jan. 26 from 8:30 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Mary Sullivan and Andrea Flynn will co-chair this gala fundraising dance. Together they have been working with a dance committee whose great ideas and talents will create a festive atmosphere and ensure a good time for all.

DJ Jay Fiori will be on hand providing a wide variety of music for dancing and listening pleasure. Donation is $30 per couple and tickets may be reserved or purchased at the Community Center Office.

Lagrotteria faces the chamber on taxes

By Patricia Desmond
Mariner staff

Assessor Chairman James Lagrotteria went before the Cohasset Chamber Jan. 15 at South Shore Art Center to explain the work of his board.

His board is in the process of fighting 82 taxpayers before the state Appellate Tax Board. After the last revaluation there were 661 applications for exemptions and abtements filed with the local board, that's out of a total number of parcels of 3,300.

"Nowadays it is not fashionable or prudent for assessors to be seen in public," he joked at the start of his prepared speech.

Lagrotteria is the business manager at Glastonbury Abbey in Hingham. He is serving his second three-year term on the board, having served nine years on the advisory committee.

He pointed out to his audience that the other two members of the board, Thomas Duggan and Michael Patrolia, both have some education and experience in the building trade. Duggan, a retired plumbing supplier who now works part time for Lincoln Trust, is a three-term member of the board. Patrolia has served on the board more than 20 years. He is a former builder who with his brother built most of the homes at Fairoaks.

Lagrotteria said he is convinced that under Proposition 2 1/2, managerial skills are required to "mass appraise homes."

He pointed out the simple part of the job is to arrive at the tax rate.

"When town meeting is finalized and the town budget set (as in FY1991) at $9,438,776.82 we divide that sum by the total valuation of the town's parcels, some 3,300, and arrive at a tax rate. In FY 1991 a tax rate of $9.90.

"The difficult part is in establishing the valuation of all property, real and personal. The total budget for the assessors office is some $81,000, including salaries and expenses. Yet we are charged with raising some $9,000,000 in revenue. That means the town of Cohasset is spending $.0085 cents for every dollar raised. I don't know about the rest of you in business, but I, as a business manager know that if I could do that once in my line of business I most certainly would be given a professorship at Harvard Business School. Just imagine the cost of your doing business to be 85 one hundredths of a cent, incredible.

"So how can we accomplish the assessing of some 3,300 parcels on such a small budget?

"Under Proposition 2 1/2 it is mandated that towns revalue all property every three years at full and fair cash value."

Lagrotteria pointed out his board hired a consulting firm to do the physical appraising for $70,000.

He explained that sales were tracked over the three year period and compared with the assessments.

"As most of you know, there are those taxpayers who feel that their assessment and taxes are too high. They have a right to their feelings."

Bob Martin, president of the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce greets Assessor James Lagrotteria before his speech to the chmaber.

He said regulations prohibit spot devaluation.

"So if we, as assessors, felt that the assessments were proven to be too high through sales ratios, we are mandated to reduce the assessment town wide, real and commercial. We cannot reduce assessments by areas or neighborhoods.

"Let me say that it is unfortunate for the town to have so many disgruntled taxpayers, as it will prove costly to defend our position in court."

He pointed out that it was impossible for his board to meet with all 661 applicants for exemptions and abatements. If each had been allowed 20 minutes, it would have taken 220.3 hours or six-and-a-half weeks of continuous hearings.

Under law the board has 90 days to act on the requests.

Lagrotteria said the basis for assessment isn't what a home would sell for today in this slowing economy. The basis was established on Jan. 1, 1990, using sales figures for 1989.

Lagrotteria took responsibility for ending the position of part-time appraiser and contracting the work out to a consulting company. He defended the action by saying a true appraisal of all property would cost the town $250,000 to $350,000 a year.

He also stated that an appraisal company does not require sick time or vacations.

"Let me say that these are difficult times, never before experienced. Finalizing of federal and state budgets are well behind local budget setting processes and do not appear to be improving. Valuations of homes are on a decline, nationally as has never happened before. The costs of running our town are becoming uncontrollable in the areas of fixed costs such as health insurance, utilities, county assessments, etc.

The assessors are considering the use of estimated tax bills — under law the spring estimates would equal one-half of last year's bill. If there were a large increase in taxes, the additional amount would show up on the fall bill.

"I cannot speak for the rest of the town departments but, in the case of the board of assessors, you have three dedicated workers, " Lagrotteria said.

He pointed out that his board met three times a week from October through March last year.

CHS gymnasts rebuild using young & agile team

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

This year represents a rebuilding year for the Cohasset High gymnastics team.

"We lost seven seniors last year," coach Ruthann Sargent said. "This year we have four junior high students on the squad."

One senior competes for Cohasset. Freshmen, sophomores and juniors round out the squad. The squad consists of 12 students.

The team finished its fourth meet recently. The record stands at 0-4.

"We're losing, but that doesn't tell you anything," Sargent said. At one recent meet, the squad competed without two of their strongest members. They lost by two points.

"If Tara Gallagher and Marnie DeMichele hadn't been away, we would have won," Sargent said.

The strongest events for the squad include floor exercise, the uneven parallel bars and vaulting.

"Our only problem is staying on the balance beam," she added.

Gallagher ranks at the top of squad and fills the role of team captain although she is only a sophomore. Sargent believes she probably be chosen for the state competitions.

"If anyone makes it, she will," Sargent said. "Her strongest events are vaulting and the balance beam. She'll probably make it in both events."

The state championship competition is slated for March.

DeMichele is only a freshman. She competes as an all-around gymnast.

"She's coming along quite nicely," Sargent said. She looks great on the beam and is coming along on floor exercise."

According to Sargent, DeMichele is working on on her performance on the bars.

Other members of the team include senior Noelle Roma and juniors Linda Hague, Erin Sutherland and Rebecca Hackenburg.

Sargent described Roma as a real consistent performer for the squad.

"She is one of our top scorers," the coach said. Roma specializes in the uneven bars.

Hague just returned to the team after a three-year recuperation from a broken ankle.

"She broke her ankle in three places in a simple dismount from the beam," Sargent said.

Hague is doing well vaulting and just got back up on the beam.

"She looks great, but needs to overcome her nervousness," Sargent said. "She was terrified to get off."

Sargent maintains great hopes for Hague's career.

"She has such grace and such form," she said.

Sutherland claims the record as squad veteran. She has competed for Cohasset since the seventh grade.

"She's coming into her own this year," Sargent said. "The improvement is incredible. Everyone comments on it, especially her floor exercise routine."

Hackenburg rejoined the squad after taking off for the life of a cheerleader.

Sargent appreciates the difficult choice Hackenburg made.

"She's a very good cheerleader, one of the best," Sargent said. "I think she's really happy with her choice. Gymnastics is more challenging and fulfilling."

Despite some back problems, Hackenburg puts in a reliable performance.

"I can put her in any event and she always pulls through," Sargent said.

Several underclassmen work hard on behalf of the team as well.

Freshman Aimee Mitchell fills the role of alternate now. Her strongest events are the bars, beam and floor exercise.

Sophomore Nicole Haefner concentrates her energies on the bars, but Sargent just developed a floor exercise routine to use her talents more fully.

Four seventh graders round out the squad.

"Tafana Fiore and Caroline DeLima are very talented," Sargent said. "I can just throw them in. They can always come through."

Megan Fahey and Megan McNamara specialize in the vault and bars respectively. Sargent looks forward to seeing their talents grow and develop in the coming years.

With six meets and the all-league meet ahead, Sargent hopes her squad gets the chance to prove just how good they are.

They get to show off their talents with a home gym advantage Monday, Jan. 28, against Norwell at 7 p.m.

"We're looking good," Sargent said.

Lady skippers hustle hard to gain a win

to regain some of the confidence they lost in the early part of the season. Bostwick said the girls were slow to develop team spirit.

"When you're losing, it doesn't help," she pointed out. "Now they're starting to have fun."

Bostwick views this as a rebuilding year. She wants to build on the team strengths for the balance of the season.

"Every game we do something positive," Bostwick said. She thinks it's just a matter of time before everything comes together and the team walks off the court with a notch in the win column.

Bostwick praised her players.

"Barbara Lagrotteria is our top scorer," she said. "She's a great kid."

As point guard, Lagrotteria has racked up 79 points so far and claims the best foul shooting percentage for the team.

"She's 80 percent from the foul line," Bostwick said.

Maureen "Mo" Long and Allison Ludlow are tied for second place in the top scoring position. Both girls lay claim to 48 points and average about 50 percent from the foul line.

Mo Long splits her playing time between forward and center even though she barely tops 5'5" or 5'6". She leads the team in defensive rebounds with 29 points to her credit.

Ludlow plays off guard or point guard for the Skippers. Just a sophomore, Bostwick plans on big things from Ludlow in the coming years.

Mo Long's twin sister, Kay and Heather Bass keep the defensive fires burning.

"They're busting their rumps under the basket trying to rip down rebounds," Bostwick said.

The team also relies on wing guard Kerry Murphy.

Up and comers include Sarah Douglas and Jennifer Knowles.

Douglas probably takes the title of tallest Skipper.

"She comes off the bench and does a good job defensively," Bostwick said. "We're working on her shooting percentage."

Knowles singlehandedly fills the role of team cheerleader.

"Jen is the sparkplug of the team," Bostwick said. "She keeps the team pumped up — her mouth is never shut."

Although Knowles doesn't see a lot of playing time this year, Bostwick said her job is set for next year.

"We just need to work on her shooting," she said.

Eighth grader Katie Carroll sees more playing time than some of the older girls. Carroll fills in at guard.

"Katie is very smart and knows the game. She's just a little inexperienced and a little timid," Bostwick said. "We're getting her feet wet."

Bostwick thinks Carroll will be a formidable player once they convince her to play a more physical game.

With four seniors, Bostwick looks to the junior varsity team for new blood.

"We have a couple of sophomores and juniors coming up with some height," she said.

Seniors on the varsity team include Lagrotteria, the Long twins, and Murphy.

In the games ahead, Bostwick's girls plan to shut down the leading scorers and keep the score as close as possible.

Upcoming home games include Friday's game against East Bridgewater and Tuesday's matchup with Carver. Both games start at 5:15 p.m.

"We have good support from the parents, but we don't pack the stands like the guys do," Bostwick said. "We wish we had more support from kids and townspeople."

Kindgarten age rises to stem retentions

By Patricia Desmond
Mariner staff

The age for starting kindergarten will change — in September, 1992, all students will be five before beginning school.

The new birthday cutoff date for kindergarten registration will be Sept. 1.

Currently children are allowed to begin kindergarten if they turn five before Dec. 31.

School committee adopted the new policy at the board's regular meeting Jan. 28 at the high school after hearing a report given by Osgood School Principal Linda Whitney, one of the members of a retention study committee.

The change in age requirements will not affect children beginning school this coming September, although Whitney said she hoped parents would consider their option to wait.

There are eight children already registered for kindergarten whose birthdays fall between Sept. 1 and Dec. 31, according to School Superintendent Stephen Hart.

Whitney said her committee's study showed that children who begin kindergarten before turning five are more likely to be kept back a grade.

Three Curran brothers serve in Desert Storm

Three more Cohasset residents shipped out for the Persian Gulf recently. A total of nine Cohasset men serve in Operation Desert Storm.

The newest addition to the Cohasset contingent in the Gulf is Timothy Curran of Doane Street. Curran left so recently that no address is available at this time.

He joins two brothers in the Middle East conflict, P.F.C. Brian Curran and Cpl. Daniel W. Curran.

P.F.C. Glenn E. Dukes and P.F.C. Prescott Hobson also left for the Persian Gulf.

According to information received by selectmen, Dukes was a dean's list student at Massasoit preparing to transfer to the University of Massachusetts. His family lives on Bancroft Street.

Hobson is the son of Cohasset resident and sports writer Ron Hobson.

The current roster of residents in Operation Desert Storm includes:

Schools bring the War home

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Once upon a time, children talking about patriots and tomahawks meant they were studying Colonial America in social studies. Today, talk of Patriots and Tomahawks signals another night of televised coverage of missile attacks on Tel Aviv and Dharan.

"There isn't any way to keep children protected from it," Osgood third grade teacher Marion Atkinson said.

Atkinson finds her students are very well informed about events in the Persian Gulf. She credits media reports and family discussions for the depth of their knowledge.

"They are taking it pretty well in stride," she said.

Atkinson's class was one of many that decided to send messages to soldiers in Saudi Arabia.

Her class prepared Christmas cards with the assistance of senior citizens. They sent the cards for distribution to soldiers who hadn't received any mail from home in care of a Cohasset soldier who attended Osgood School as a youngster.

Another third grade class plans to send valentines to the men and women serving in the Armed Forces.

Atkinson's class also started the ball rolling — or

COHASSET'S WEEK

Speeders, beware

Selectmen found a few surprises in a traffic speed survey conducted on Sohier Street. The survey is the first step in establishing a speed zone on the heavily trafficked road.

"The results are somewhat startling," Executive Secretary Greg Doyon said. According to Doyon, experts consider the prevailing speed of 85 percent of the traffic to be the acceptable engineering standard for the speed limit on a given road.

Norfolk County conducted the survey using a speed gun. They found 85 percent of the traffic traveling west of the Green Street intersection moved along at 38.4 miles per hour or less.

At the Music Circus, traffic was clocked at 47.3 miles per hour or less.

Between Deer Hill School and Fair Oaks Road, 85 percent of the vehicles kept their speedometers set at 44.9 miles per hour or less.

The fastest speeds measured were on the straightaway by the Music Circus. Six percent of the traffic clocked in between 51 and 80 miles per hour.

The results came as no surprise to one Sohier Street resident.

"I don't have a problem with the Music Circus," neighbor bob Davenport said, " but I do have a problem with the speed."

On unposted roads, the state contends drivers should adhere to a self-imposed speed limit of 40 miles per hour in thinly settled areas and 30 miles per hour in thickly settled areas.

Doyon said Sohier Street falls under the definition of thickly settled between North Main and Fair Oaks Streets.

Although the state has the final say on speed zones, the town can request a lower speed limit based on the presence of the two elementary schools, the Music Circus and the thickly settled nature of the area.

Capital items considered

Selectmen opted to put three items on the capital budget list for fiscal 1992.

Painting the old town hall got top billing. The project is expected to cost $20,000.

Renovations for the town-owned duplex also merited high priority. Selectmen were told the work will cost $30,000.

The last item on the list provides for renovations to the Eastern Edison garage on North Main Street. Selectmen would like to use the garage to house the vehicles owned by the tree and park and highway departments.

What's up front?

Selectmen reviewed several possibilities for the cover of the town report. They postponed the day of decision pending further input.

A design honoring the fire department's 100 years of service earned the most interest. Executive Secretary Greg Doyon doused the excitement. He said the department celebrates the birthday this year while the town report covers 1990.

Residents can plan on a fire department theme next year.

Government Island probably will claim pride of place. The two top choices remaining after elimination of the fire department feature the island.

Selectmen could opt for a photograph of the Minot's Ledge Lighthouse replica under construction on the island. A sketch of the lighthouse keepers' duplex in its heyday also drew interest.

Route 3A X-ing plans debated

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Reconstruction of the dangerous intersection at King and Beechwood Streets inched another step closer to becoming a done deal this week.

Selectmen unanimously approved a new plan designed by Norfolk County engineer Al Downs. The next step requires town meeting approval of an additional $3,000 to fund the work.

Downs' newest draft includes a channeling lane and a second traffic island controlling cars making left turns into the intersection. The islands also offer harried pedestrians a bit of respite as they negotiate the wide intersection.

Downs still plumped for removal of three trees, but selectmen balked. The consensus ruled and selectmen approved the plans, but spared the trees.

Beechwood Street resident Ken Ingber, one of the leading proponents of a redesigned intersection for safety's sake, expressed satisfaction with the design.

Voters approved $3,000 for work in the intersection at the last town meeting. The revised plans boosted the total costs to $6,000.

The costs cover materials for reconstruction. The town highway department plans to do the work, saving the town considerable expense.

"If Harold Litchfield can do it, it's cheap money," selectmen Chairman Rocco Laugelle said. "Lets decide to do something."

Unsafe roadways came up at the end of the selectmen's meeting when Anthony Finegan, 91 Doane Street, asked the board when the culvert in his neighborhood would be repaired.

Finegan said town meeting voted to repair the bridge on Doane Street nine years ago. The bridge continues to deteriorate, but no action has been taken.

Executive Secretary Greg Doyon said design work has been completed for the bridge repair project. Additionally, temporary easements have been granted by two of the four abutters.

Selectmen approved insertion of an article in the town meeting warrant permitting taking by eminent domain if the remaining abutters won't grant the easements on a voluntary basis.

Even if that obstacle is removed, the bridge project faces the problem of funding. According to Doyon, the bridge repair is a state-funded project.

"State funding is still up in the air," he said.

An obviously frustrated Finegan compared the lack of action on Doane Street with the rush to repair the duck pond on the common and plans to construct a $9.3 million dollar sewer system.

"I'm just waiting until an oil truck goes through," he said. "Nine years ago you were told the bridge was unsafe. If there is an accident now, the suit would pay for two sewers."

Selectmen can't find the needed cuts

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Selectmen face the dismal prospect of making $77,000 worth of cuts in the budget under their control but say there is nothing left to cut.

The board agreed to present voters with two budgets: a level-funded budget and a level-services budget. Board members said they hoped the difference would let voters know precisely what failure to pass an override would mean.

The selectmen discovered they had little stomach for the decisions a level-funded budget requires. No one wanted townspeople to think they condoned the kind of cuts a level-funded budget requires.

Selectmen took another look at several budgets this week, but failed to make progress toward the $77,000.

They found nothing in the budget for tree and parks and cemetery to cut. Last week's reduction by $4,500 left superintendent Peter Laugelle with less money this year than last.

"He is really taking it on the chin this year," selectman Jane Goedecke said.

The council on aging budget continues to present difficulties as well.

If the council on aging maintains its outreach worker as voted by town meeting and continues to rent space at the community center, a level-funded budget is not possible.

A state grant paid the first half year of the outreach worker's salary this year. That grant is no longer available.

A special town meeting in October voted to pick up the cost of the salary. Because only one-half of the annual salary will be paid out by the town in the current fiscal year, only one-half of the outreach worker's salary can be included in the level-funded budget for fiscal 1992.

The council expressed willingness to relocate their offices and the senior center to town hall to save rent and utility costs. However, the cost of renovations exceeded the minimal rent they pay at the community center.

The council reached its level-funded budget of nearly $38,000 by including a half-year's salary, but submitted a town meeting article to fund the remaining half.

At the selectmen's Jan. 22 meeting, Goedecke expressed disapproval of the council's solution.

Goedecke wondered what would happen if every department followed the council's lead and made an end run around the budget process.

The wire department budget left them equally at a loss.

"I don't feel as if we can cut, but I think we're going to have to anyway," Goedecke said.

She wondered if it would be possible to cut the wire superintendent's hours. Last year, his assistant was reduced to part time.

Selectmen Chairman Rocco Laugelle immediately objected. He said they might as well close the department in that case.

Laugelle defended the work of the department.

"I don't know how many times the fire department calls him in," Laugelle said.

"I don't disagree," Goedecke emphasized. She reiterated the message the level-funded budgets will sent.

"That means when we have emergencies, nobody will come," she said.

"We have a serious problem here," Goedecke said of the inability to make cuts.

Selectmen will tackle the budget dilemma again Feb. 4.

School budget talks

School committee will meet Friday at 9 a.m. at the junior/senior high school to discuss the coming year's budget.

So far the committee has discussed the budget at length but no decisions have been made.

The actual budget hearing is scheduled for Monday, Feb. 4, at the high school.

Phone company to upgrade lines with fiber-optics

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

New England Telephone wants to replace old underground cable leading from Hingham to Cohasset with high tech underground fiber technology. Selectmen allowed the work contingent on the telephone company moving ahead with removal of double poles.

Telephone company engineer Kristin Peterson said the new system represents improved service to Cohasset.

Any time a cable breaks along the line from Hingham village to Route 3A and Sohier Street, all service to Cohasset breaks down. The fiber replacement ends those communications problems.

Selectmen agree Cohasset deserves improved telephone service, but insisted the company make progress removing double poles before any construction begins.

"I would not give permission or okay any plan until removal of the double poles begins," selectmen Chairman Rocco Laugelle said.

Selectmen Diana Kornet and Martha Gjesteby concurred. They said the problem of broken promises to remove double poles had been raised many times during their tenure in office.

Laugelle estimates there are 35-40 double poles in Cohasset.

Peterson said part of the increased number of double poles resulted from the electric company's replacement of deteriorated and unsafe poles.

"The electric company has replaced more than 200 poles in Scituate and Cohasset combined in the past four months," she said. "That's why the telephone company needs to catch up."

Peterson said the new system required an underground vault for connections. The construction projects above ground about two feet. It is about the size of an average desk.

The telephone company will landscape the area in keeping with the surroundings, Peterson promised. The town can dictate the landscape design.

Laugelle remained optimistic Cohasset could have its fiber and no double poles, too.

"Once we push them a little, they always come around," he said.

Sewer commission wants $9.3 million for expansion

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Expanded sewer service could become reality if voters approve several sewer commission articles at town meeting. The price tag on the project totals $9.3 million.

According to sewer commissioner Ted Guild, the Cohasset/Hull sewer project is moving forward. Guild said the state is actively pursuing the project.

Of the total project cost, all but $800,000 qualifies for financing through the state revolving fund, Guild said. The town will borrow $8.5 million through the revolving account.

According to information provided to Guild, the town will only be required to repay what it authorized previously.

The state guarantees a fixed amount over 20 years at no interest, resulting in a tremendous subsidy of the project by the state, he said. He promised to return with final construction figures as soon as they were available.

The sewer commission is preparing all the necessary paperwork for approval by the environmental protection agencies and funding sources.

The sewer line will be laid along North Main Street rather than follow the railroad bed to avoid conflicts with the Old Colony Railroad restoration project.

At this point, Guild believes the pumping station will be sited near the Greek Church on Jerusalem Road. He advised holding on the the West Corner Fire Station in case a fallback site is needed.

Guild said the state plans to float a bond issue at the end of March. They want the town ready to move as soon as funds become available.

Selectmen authorized inclusion of the articles in the warrant contingent on the availability of state funding.

In other business, selectmen:

- Agreed to transfer the sewer department pickup truck, previously declared surplus property, to the highway department.
- Appointed Alix White, 224 Jerusalem Road, to the mosquito control commission.

Slow Drains?

You'll never have a slow running, or clogged drain again!

The secret? Clean drains don't run slow. Slow drains, or periodic clogs, are signals that a thick layer of "gook" is choking your pipes. This gook coats the entire length of your pipe- from sink to sewer, or septic.

Conventional drain openers cannot remove this build up. Even a small tunnel through the waste lets them flow through the pipe, leaving the gook behind!

Now, with just a few minutes each month, you can easily clean out your pipes like new... and KEEP them clean with Plumb Clean. Its totally unique formula clings, and penetrates deep into the gook. That allows it to liquefy even years of build up. Plumb Clean will clean the entire length of your pipes. It will make your drains run like new, when used as directed. This penetrating action is so revolutionary, Plumb Clean is money-back guaranteed!

Save Money. A 1 lb. container of Plumb Clean holds up to 41 drain treatments. Even if drain openers could fix slow drains, you would have to buy over 10 quart bottles to get the same number of treatments. Plumb Clean costs about 35¢ per treatment. We don't know of anything that cleans drains for less.

Safety. Conventional drain openers are dangerous chemicals. They can injure eyes on contact. They can release deadly vapors, in some situations. Some, may damage your fixtures. Plumb Clean will not burn skin, or eyes. It will not release harmful fumes. When used as directed, it is 100% safe for people, and of course for all plumbing.

So, if your drains are signalling you, get safe, guaranteed Plumb Clean today! Available at:

'FIT TIPS'

with Normandie Nigh

By Normandie Nigh
Special to the Mariner

Thinking about exercising? Don't do it!! That's right. Don't even think about starting an exercise program until you go through some preliminary motions which might make the difference in being successful or just another drop-out statistic. Current research has determined that half of the people who start a formal exercise program, quit within the first six months to a year after starting.

Why is it that so many people find it impossible to stick with an exercise program, even though most know the benefits to be derived from a lifetime of fitness? Some of the reasons I've heard include - I'm simply too busy. Couldn't fit it it. I wasn't making fast enough progress. I lost interest. It's impossible with the kids. I'm too tired at the end of the day. My back started bothering me. I wasn't losing weight. I hurt myself. Or my personal favorite - Some people just aren't meant to exercise, and I'm one of them!

If you can relate to any of these rationalizations, you should stop, look, and listen before you start to exercise or before giving up your current program. Careful thought and planning can make the difference between success and failure.

Before Beginning

l) Set a realistic goal for yourself. We are all unique individuals with different strengths and weaknesses. Fitness goals must be right for who we are, based on our current physical condition, personal preferences, time restraints and environment. The first step is to take stock of yourself in order to determine a plan of attack that will work. You might want to test yourself with the following questions:

- What am I trying to accomplish with my exercise program?
- Am I in fair shape now (just need to improve) or am I 'starting from scratch'?
- Do I have any injuries or physical problems which might keep me from doing certain movements or activities? (A physical exam may be in order.)
- What activities do I really enjoy? Which new ones might be fun to try?
- How much time can I devote to my fitness program?
- What am I currently doing in the way of fun or functional exercise? (Walking the dog, playing in the park with the kids, housecleaning, etc.)
- Do I prefer morning, afternoon, or evening activities?
- Do I prefer exercising alone, with one other person, or with a group?
- Am I an indoor or outdoor participant (or is it determined by the weather)?
- Do I need competition to keep me interested?

Write down your answers and review them. You should be getting a picture of who you are in order to determine a fitness goal and plan of action.

2) Be specific with your goals and action plans. It's true that most people who are successful in life know specifically what they want and how to get it. Don't just decide you want to get in shape. Know specifically what area of fitness you plan to address, whether it's improved flexibility, stronger heart and lungs, leaner body, or greater strength. These are all fitness goals that are specific and measurable. How do you know you're making progress if your goal is to 'get in shape'? That's tough to measure because it's not specific. If you can't see any real results after a few months, you might lose interest and drop your program. But if you set specific, measurable goals and chart your progress as you continue, your chances of success will be much greater.

Starting the Right Way

The method to reach these goals is equally important. People often fail because they have unrealistic expectations of what certain exercises or activities can do for them. One of my private clients, for example, came to me after failing on his own. He had decided that he wanted to lose some weight and get in shape so began a strength training program at a local gym. Instead of reaching his goal, his weight remained the same. He started experiencing low back pain and quit before he was able to see any noticeable changes. The reason he did not reach his rather non-specific goal is that he chose the wrong exercises, not fully understanding what he was doing. Together we determined which activities and exercises were appropriate for him, and which would help him to effectively and safely reach his new goals in a realistic period of time.

It is sometimes easier for a beginner to start getting fit by joining a quality health club or fitness facility with qualified, informed personnel. Make use of their expertise and make sure you are planning the right activities to help you reach your goal. If you are embarking on a fitness program on your own, it is a good idea to invest in certain books or manuals which can make your efforts more effective. There are two publications which I consider to be invaluable, even for people already in great shape: If It Hurts, Don't Do It, by Drs. Peter and Lorna Francis, published by Prima, and Fit or Fat, by Covert Bailey, published by Houghton Mifflin.

Also important to remember in realistic goal-setting is that we can't all look like Arnold Schwarzenneger or Jane Fonda (thank goodness!), nor should we try. Rather, try to set goals that help you make the most of who you are, to be the best you can be.

So... start an exercise program without taking the time to do it right? Don't do it. Don't take a chance at becoming just one more statistic. To increase your likelihood of success, take a close look at yourself, then set goals and make plans before you start.

Please send suggestions for topics, questions or comments to: Fit For Success, 115 Ripley Road, Cohasset, MA 02025, 383-2515; FAX 383-2732.

❑ Gail Varallo had some news about the Cohasset Dramatic Club this week ... they are now in rehearsal for a charming family play, "Cheaper By The Dozen," the story of the Gilbreth family in the 1920's. It will be held on March 8, 9, and 10 at the Town Hall. Gayl is directing (making her directorial debut after ten years in community theatre) and Yvonne Julian is producing. To enhance their fun, their husbands are in the production, Ed Varallo as the father, Frank Gilbreth, and Bob Julian as the family doctor, Doc Burton. Other Cohasset denizens in the cast are Elizabeth Deveny as 17 year-old Anne, Elizabeth Myers as 9 year-old Lillian, Ronnie Nicynski as 10 year-old Bill, Robert Whittaker as Anne's suitor Larry, Angi Walsh as the cook, Mrs. Fitzgerald and David Ingber as the 5 year-old Jackie. Gayle says this play is a lot of fun and helps us relieve the tension of the War! Do come see it. Gayle would also like to invite anyone interested in learning more about participating in the Dramatic Club to come "meet the Players" at a party at the home of Peggy Corrigan and Bob Gaughan this Saturday evening, Feb. 2, by calling her (Gayle) at 383-2366 for a reservation. Sounds great!

❑ Also had a call from Larry Shultz, in honor of all you soccer parents who are trying to make plans for your summer vacation (sigh ...). The South Shore Soccer Camp dates are the week of Aug. 5 for the boys, and Aug. 12 for the girls. More details are sure to follow, but at least you know your dates and can plan accordingly.

❑ Speaking of the Shultzes and soccer, we hear good news from Bowdoin College this week. David Shultz has been selected as a soccer captain. No real surprise as he is a super player and a wonderful guy. Congratulations go to you from all of us Dave.

❑ Congratulations go to George and Kiki Lazaris of Hillside Drive on the birth of their daughter who was born on Jan. 10 at South Shore Hospital.

❑ Ran into Ed McCarthy the other day, he was on his way out in his boat to race. In Scituate Harbor. It was freezing! Ed said there is a group that goes out every Sunday to race, they must not be bothered by the cold, or they cannot bare to be without the ocean for a season.

❑ If you and the kiddos haven't seen it yet, be sure to tune into the Children's Corner on Thursdays at 5:30 p.m. This week Bob Detwiler reads two stories, Oscar, Cat-About-Town, and the Market Square Dog, both by the children's author/veterinarian James Herriott. Don't miss his shows, you'll like them a lot.

❑ Cohasset sure has some computer whizes in our midst. How about Jason Hunter who had a perfect score in the America Computer Science League Competition. Andrew Ross, Carol Smith, Tara Volungis, Ire Sakamoto, Peter Smith and Steve Almeida were all high scorers. The competition is made up of two parts, one is a test on different topics in computer science, the second is a program the students have to write to solve a specific problem. Congratulations go to all of you, and you deserve it.

❑ We want to wish Mr. and Mrs. Toby Chamberlain a long and happy life as a married couple. They "tied the knot" last Saturday, it was a beautiful day and a great way to begin their life together. Here's to a lifetime of health and happiness.

❑ We've been asked to remind you that if you are interested in becoming a member of the Boosters Club, they are more than happy to have you. Most know of their "duties," to support the athletes and other extra-curricular activities. They really need you to keep their program going, and the sports won't be the same without the fine club. If you would like to help, call Ernie Grassie at 383-6857.

❑ Congratulations go to David O'Connell this week, he will be getting married the ninth of February. We wish you tons of happiness David, and many wonderful years ahead.

❑ From all accounts, the Frosty Frolic was a rousing success. Looks like all of the hard work done by Mary Sullivan and Andrea Flynn paid off. Course Disc Jockey Jay Fiori always helps to insure a successful event, he really is good.

❑ That's the news from here for this week, please call me with your item, we all love to hear it!

Kindergarteners will be 5 in '92

"Twenty-five percent of the retentions at the elementary level in the last three years have been of children who entered kindergarten prior to age 5," the report states.

"A child's self-esteem and confidence in self as a learner are made more vulnerable by retention.

"The ability of the kindergarten program to meet the needs of children who are 5 is reduced if the class is comprised of many children who are under age 5."

The report pointed out there is a growing trend in other schools to increase the age requirements for starting kindergarten.

"Between the years 1985 and 1989 50 children were retained (in elementary grades)," the report says. "Of that number 57% of the students who entered kindergarten before age 5 were retained, while only 17 percent of the children who entered kindergarten after age 5 were retained."

Another of the recommendations of the study committee will be implemented administratively. That recommendation calls for a change in the present retention practices.

Currently the decision to keep a child back a grade is made, for the most part, by the child's teacher.

The new plan is to use a child study committee (soon to be created) to review all cases where retention is under consideration. The teacher, building principal and a special needs staff member would observe the child and work out a decision. Diagnostic testing would be required for any child in grades 1 through 6.

The child's parents would be informed before the team study would begin and the parents would meet with the team later to discuss the possibilities.

Tests on Gulf River will focus upstream

Water in the Gulf River was swimmable, if not pollution-free, in seven of nine sites tested weekly last summer and fall. However, the fecal coliform colony count at two sites – where Bound Brook and Pegram Brook enter the Gulf – was consistently and substantially higher than acceptable levels.

These are the overall findings from the analysis of 94 water samples taken from the river and tested by Cohasset High School students in the Town's Water Department laboratory, under supervision of Laboratory Director John Pereira and guidance of biology teacher James Franey and Cohasset's Health Agent, Dr. Joseph Godzik.

As a result of these findings, future testing will concentrate on Bound and Pegram brooks, both entering the Gulf at points near the intersection of South Main Street with Mordecai Lincoln Road. Starting this spring, students will take samples at selected sites upstream, looking for "hot spots" that reveal the sources of the high coliform counts. Dr. Godzik explained that the presence of fecal coliform in water is usually an indicator of failed septic systems or barnyard runoff, with human or animal wastes which frequently contain other, more hazardous pollutants, such as streptococci bacteria.

Aiding in the water testing program is the recent purchase of a State-certified incubator, which will soon be installed in the Cohasset Water Department laboratory. The $1,200 incubator was paid for in part by a $500 grant from the Massachusetts Bays Program to support the unusual School-Town-Association collaboration. Cohasset's Water Department and Health Board shared in the balance of the incubator's cost, which they said will more than justify its savings. "The new incubator has the precise temperature control needed for coliform colony formation at an accurately measurable rate," said Pereira. "That's why the State will certify our findings from now on," he added.

Dr. Godzik said the new incubator will enable the Health Board to have all of the Town's water samples analyzed for bacteria at the Water Department instead of sending them to commercial laboratories. "Over time, this will save Cohasset's taxpayers a fair amount of money," he said.

Franey said students continue to be highly enthusiastic about the water testing program, which is an extra-curricular activity. "Dozens of them want to participate in this spring's testing effort," he said.

Singles on cable TV show

On Thursday, Jan. 31, the first segment guest on Pierson to Person will be Paul A. Falzone, President, TOGETHER, a personal introduction service discussing the "singles scene" on the South Shore.

The second guest will be one of the grand dames of the National Republican Party, Mrs. Edward F. Logan, affectionately known as Polly. She will talk about new State Republican Party leadership and the state of the two-party system nationwide.

Pierson to Person is hosted by Wigmore A. Pierson and is broadcast live each Thursday evening, 8 to 9 p.m. on Channels 3 and 53 in Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Norwell, Scituate and Hanover.

The general public is invited to be part of the studio audience and should be at the Continental Cablevision studio on Gannett Road, North Scituate by 7:30 p.m. on Thursday evening.

Richard Henderson bucks a big city trend

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Keeping towns and cities out of trouble has become big business for lawyers. One community after another has hired big guns from Boston to take care of business. The whole idea of a local town counsel is fading away.

But not in Cohasset.

Cohasset has opted to buck the trend and stick with a hometown guy for legal advice. For the past 17 years — eight as assistant and nine as town counsel, that guy has been Richard Henderson.

Henderson thinks it's a marriage made in heaven.

As a resident, he's naturally on top of things and town officials can get him to drop in for a consultation or opinion in the middle of a meeting if necessary. As a parent, he never has to miss a ball game, swim meet or school function.

In addition to representing Cohasset, Henderson specializes in administrative law, estate planning, probate work, real estate and representing some national franchises. It keeps things interesting.

Of all the kinds of law he practices, municipal law is his favorite area. He thinks some of the credit goes to the people he works with.

"I'm extremely impressed with the caliber of people sitting on our boards and committees," Henderson said. "Cohasset is better governed now than ever. I'm impressed with the amount of time people put in."

He thinks the most important task a town counsel can perform is preventative legal work.

"The thing we should be doing is trying to prevent legal problems," he said. "One case could eat up the entire town budget."

That means keeping a watchful eye on how the town conducts its business. Henderson singled out three areas where an ounce of prevention can keep Cohasset out of a ton of trouble.

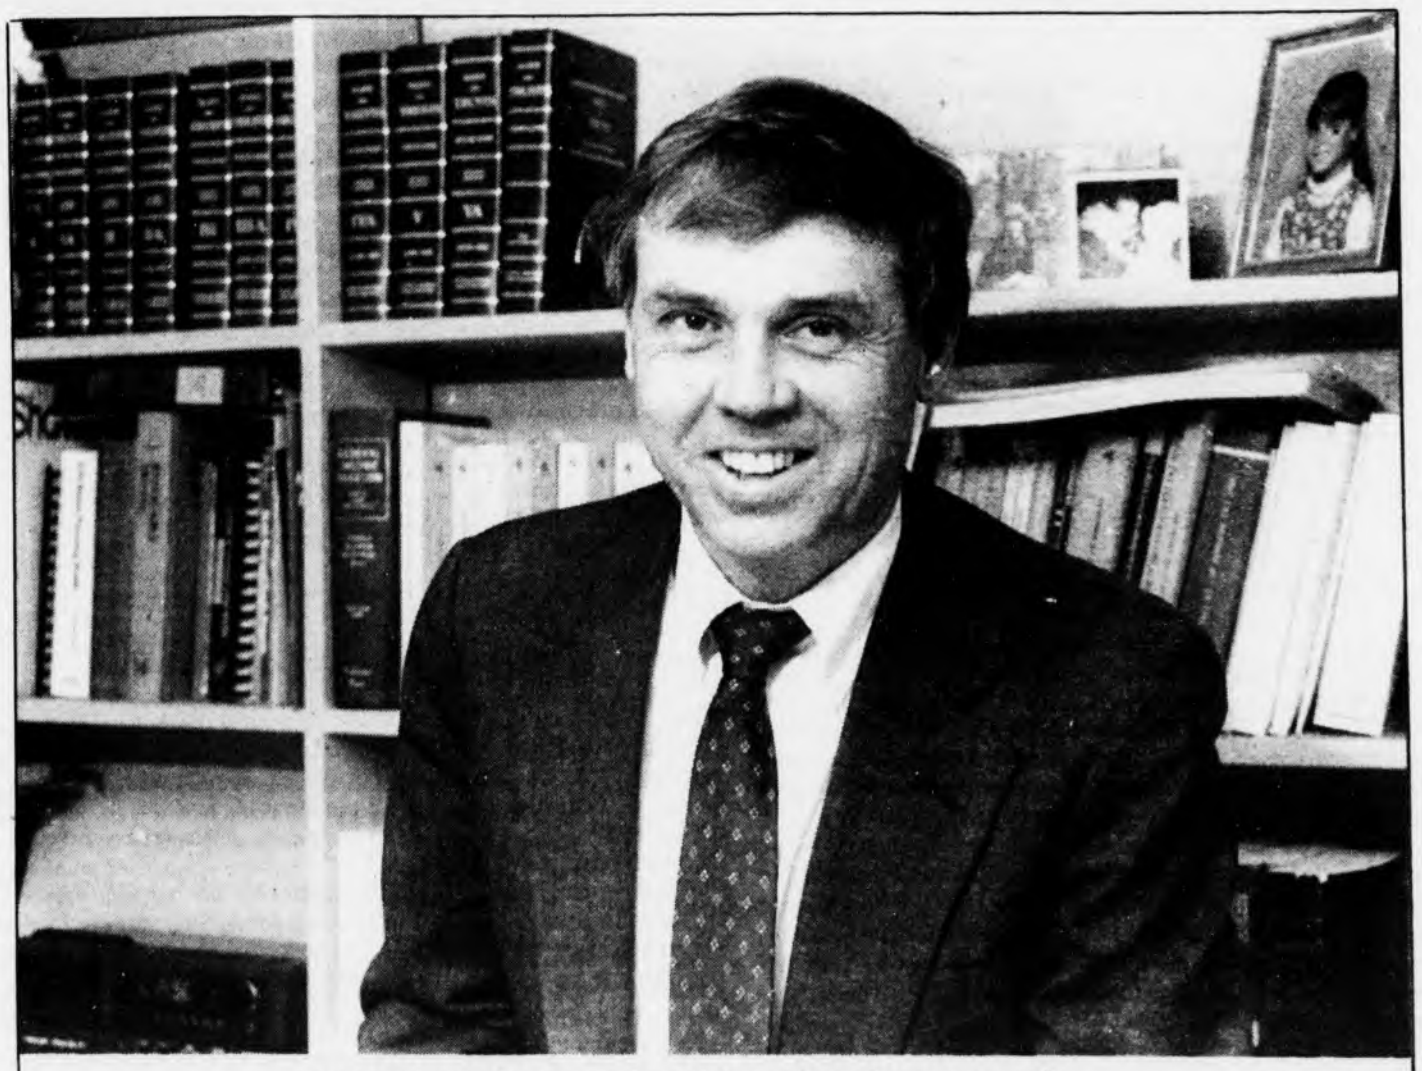
"All contracts should be reviewed no matter how insignificant they may seem," Henderson said.

Another potential pitfall comes in the form of bylaw revision.

"Cohasset has two sets of bylaws, general and zoning," he said. "Several committees and subcommittees have the power to make regulations and they have the same status as legislation. They need to be reviewed."

In recent years, Cohasset has wound up in litigation because of conflicting provisions or interpretations of bylaws involving zoning matters and harbor privileges.

No matter how well intentioned the committee, drafting bylaws that can't be pulled apart by an aggrieved party and his attorney is an art and a science, according to Henderson. If he had his 'druthers, Cohasset would adopt a bylaw prohibiting any bylaw being adopted unless it was approved by town counsel first.



"The third thing that drives me crazy is the drafting of decisions," he said. "Those decisions form the basis of an appeal."

Even a dog hearings result in decisions that can be appealed, as Cohasset learned to its dismay recently.

Luckily, several of the boards and commissions that render decisions have members who are attorneys. That eases some of the burden.

What's on tap as Henderson and the town enter 1991?

Dealing with the loss of Blue Cross medical coverage and the requirement that the town offer an indemnity medical insurance policy is sure to eat up a considerable piece of Henderson's time, for one thing.

"There's a lot of work on zoning enforcement, too," he said.

Henderson has found a cheaper and more efficient way of dealing with a lot of the violations of the town's zoning bylaws. He and Building Inspector Robert Egan use criminal procedures.

"Intimidation works," Henderson said with a laugh. "We got rid of the old cars and signs."

Unfortunately, Cohasset seems to be able to generate an unlimited supply of illegally displayed Christmas trees, oversized signs and undersized parking lots.

And the biggest chunk of time on his planning calendar may well be eaten up by property tax abatement appeals.

Henderson said 98 percent of abatement appeals settle out of court. He expects that pattern may well hold this time around as well — but 20 appeals or so is the normal number and, according to the assessors' office, Henderson has four times the normal number waiting for him.

More residents are threatening to file abatements this year.

In any event, Henderson has time on his side. It takes a year before they will begin to come to trial.

"And probably another year before all of them are resolved," he said.

When Henderson isn't chasing zoning scofflaws and keeping Cohasset's contracts and bylaws in proper order, family life more than keeps him busy.

His wife, Linda, is a special needs aide at Deer Hill School and the varsity swim team coach at Cohasset High School.

Henderson has two children, Christopher, 17, who is a junior at the high school and Emily, 11, a sixth grader at Deer Hill.

Henderson is a confirmed fishing fanatic (with a preference for trout, bass and salmon) and "totally loyal" to the Red Sox. Both passions require patience and the ability to cope with disappointment.

He also loves skiing and is a season subscriber to the Boston Symphony.

In case you've wondered about that faint accent that definitely does not hail from Massachusetts, Henderson has roots in the Canadian maritime provinces of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

Henderson clearly thinks he lives — and works — in the best possible of all worlds.

"I'm doing what I like," he said, "and I can spend time at the schools. I have to ability to be able to observe all the things a lot of fathers couldn't do."

BULLETIN BOARD

Tablescapes II at SSAC

Inspired by last year's success, TABLESCAPES II returns to the South Shore Art Center to again prove that business and the arts can work together.

TABLESCAPES II will display the efforts and talents of 27 businesses and artists who have designed table settings in the style or period of particular artists. Philip Smith of Smith Place Inc. in Cohasset will feature "Breakfast with Henri Bendel." Ellen Wallack Interiors' "Lunch by the Seaside" will profile antique porcelain place settings while Dorothy Adams' "Nantucket" focuses on Wedgewood and Flemings' "Breakfast in the Bunny Patch" features Dedham Pottery.

New to this year's event is Ingrid Gouldston, an interior designer who has been featured in House Beautiful and whose table theme will be "A Midsummer Lunch." Roy Gallery of Rockland is also a new exhibitor who will feature a variety of local artists' handmade furniture and place settings in "Magic and Mystery."

Tiffany's and Shreve, Crump & Low will also be participating along with Marbles of Cohasset, No Place Like Home, Inc., Fleuri, Lonborg Feeney Fine Art and many other local talents. Tickets are $10 and available from the participants as well as the Center at 119 Ripley Road, Cohasset.

The event, scheduled for Feb. 5 from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Feb. 6 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. will begin with a champagne reception at 6 p.m. on Feb. 5. Several raffle items will be awarded and a silent auction of vacation homes will complement the exhibit which has been coordinated by Mary Larson of Cohasset. All proceeds benefit the Art Center, a non-profit organization. To reserve tickets, call 383-9548.

Society has slice of past

On Sunday, February 24 the Cohasset Historical Society will hold an Old Fashioned Pie Sociable at its headquarters, the Caleb Lothrop House, 14 Summer Street, Cohasset. Featuring a selection of old-fashioned pies specially made for the occasion, the event will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. Admission for members and the general public will be $3 per person, and visitors will be invited to sample the various culinary delights offered by the Society's expert piemakers.

Accompanying the event will be a presentation of photographic slides of old Cohasset, arranged for viewing. The slide presentation will feature old photographs of Cohasset taken from the Society's archives.

Further information may be available by calling the Society at 383-6930.

Bank of Boston gives to art

"There is a lot going on around the city in the communities themselves that people should know about," states Bank of Boston Art Curator Lillian Lambrechts.

The lobby gallery of the Bank of Boston on 100 Federal Street in Boston is hosting an exhibit of 50 South Shore artists in collaboration with the South Shore Art Center of Cohasset. The exhibit, including a whole range of visual arts from textiles to photography to oils and watercolors, was selected by the Bank's art jury.

Lambrechts directs various art programs for the bank which is very involved with the community. "This gallery space enables artists who might not have the chance to exhibit elsewhere in Boston," says Lambrechts. "The space itself is so open and such a public space. It's very accessible."

Close to 15,000 people per day go through the lobby, which has access from both Congress and Federal Streets. Because it is such a crossroad in downtown, it doesn't take any effort to get to the gallery and people can visit during lunch hours.

The Bank of Boston recently opened a branch in Cohasset where they are exhibiting Marshfield artist Ann Marguerite Murphy's work. But they decided to give more South Shore artists an opportunity to exhibit downtown.

Lambrechts reports that the exhibit has had a lot of attention thus far. The gallery, which is open Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. until 6:30 p.m., will display the South Shore Artists Exhibit through Feb. 22. For more information on the exhibit, call the Art Center at 383-9548.

Step into shape with class

Tuesday evening, Feb. 5, will be an introduction to the new Step Reebok fitness program at the Cohasset Community Center. Step training uses low benches for stepping up and down to music. Research on the program has found that stepping produces similar impact on the body as walking, but the conditioning effect of running seven miles an hour. It is said to burn 30 percent more body fat than typical aerobics.

The class begins at 7 p.m. and will give everyone an opportunity to try out this exciting, new low-impact conditioning workout. It will be taught by Normandie Nigh and the cost is $5. All proceeds will be donated to Special Olympics. Call Judy at 383-0088 to reserve a space.

Town gets meeting tapes

Continental Cablevision has donated a total of 37 videotapes of Cohasset's Town Meetings for the years 1986, 87, 88 and 89 to the Cohasset Historical Society. Deborah Duggan, Continental's program director for the town, has indicated also that as each future Town Meeting occurs, the tapes from the previous meeting will likewise be turned over to the Historical Society.

Continental has traditionally aired the Town Meetings live each spring. The tapes generated by these transmissions represent an archival collection of historical interest to future generations. Continental is pleased to donate this library to the town.

The tapes will be housed in the Historical Society Archives in Cohasset. This is an extensive collection pertaining to the history of Cohasset and the surrounding area. Residents wishing further information should contact David Wadsworth at the Historical Society.

Schools harvest Apples

Cohasset harvested another bumper crop of Apples in the latest computer giveaway program sponsored by Stop & Shop and Bradlees.

The school system amassed $900,000 in trade value. Residents of all ages donated register tapes to the schools.

The school system placed its final order and will soon be the proud owner of a MacIntosh Classic 2-40 for the library, two Apple IIe color systems, an Apple Imagewriter II printer for the IIc and IIGS, an Apple Imagewriter II printer for the IIe, three Apple 3.5 disk drives and $151,700 worth of software.

According to Supt. Stephen Hart, the school system would not be able to purchase the computer equipment without the Apples for the Students program given the current budget crisis.

Hypnotist does part for war

If you have a loved one in the Middle East and are feeling stressed, South Shore Hypnosis Center is offering a complementary stress relief session to you, to be given by a Certified Hypnotherapist.

For appointment, please contact: South Shore Hypnosis Center, 183 Whiting St., Hingham. Call 749-9050. Patricia MacIsaac said she decided to offer the session as her "small part." She said her husband served in Vietnam and she had a son while he was stationed in that war.

Cutting is hard to do

Without an override, the town will have to reduce current services.

Oh, it's true that if none of the town employees received a pay raise in the coming year, then it might be possible to keep what we have.

But we're talking reality here.

Some town workers have already negotiated new contracts guaranteeing percentage hikes. Others are still bargaining.

We happen to think it's unlikely the voters will buy an override this year. The economy stinks. Extra money doesn't seem available anywhere.

The advisory committee has been laboring diligently several evenings a week in an attempt to deal with the hard choices.

Indeed there will be hard choices.

We think it's a good time for townspeople let officials know whether they will back an override and higher taxes — or what services they might be able to do without.

The slow economy affects all of us. We see the tough choices everywhere. At the Mariner — like everywhere else — money is tight. Our regular advertisers are coping with their own problems and have pulled back on their own marketing efforts.

This newspaper runs with a news hole that's 50 percent of the paper. The other 50 percent of the paper is taken up by paid advertising.

Obviously the Mariner this week is small in comparison with our newspaper only a month ago. But that paper wasn't as large as the Mariner of the same week in 1989.

Times are tough everywhere.

Believe it or not it takes as much time to produce a smaller product. We face tough decisions of our own on a weekly basis.

News copy is being trimmed. We do the best we can to get all timely items into our reduced space, but there are times when something slips through the cracks. Mistakes are reality.

We would like some help with the decisions. If you feel we're missing something important please let us know.

Below is a simple questionnaire designed to help us give you the best newspaper we can with the resources we have available.

Videos from home

"Operation Troop Support," an all-volunteer effort to videotape messages from local residents for troops in Saudi Arabia, will be conducted at the Hanover Mall on Sunday, Feb. 3, at 11:30 a.m. The rain or snow date is Sunday, Feb. 10.

Those wishing to participate are asked to arrive at the Route 53 side of the Hanover Mall at 11:30 a.m. Volunteers, wearing yellow arm bands, will sort the crowd into groups for each South Shore troop. There will be sections for all units of the Armed Forces so that families, friends and well-wishers from the general public will have an opportunity to send brief messages.

Videotaping is scheduled to begin st noon, after which the crowd will sing "America the Beautiful - at about 12:50 p.m.

Anyone interested in volunteering to help with "Operation Troop Support" is asked to call Sorgi at 826-2659 or 826-4170.

Help make the hard choices

Would you rather see more in depth coverage of a few important issues in town or brief coverage of many issues?

Would you rather see photos of school programs, community events and social items than read about these happenings in detail?

Would you rather read the police log than school honor rolls?

Would you rather news items be held until there is space available or boiled down to the bare bones and printed in more timely fashion?

How important to you is timely news about births, weddings, engagements and obituaries?

How much do you want to know about town government: (A.) Everything that's available. (B.) The tax rate. (C.) Major changes planned or proposed.

Do you care to read about school and PTO news? Do you already know as much as you want to about the school system?

Social Service League gives thanks for gifts

To the Editor:

The Social Service League of Cohasset is most grateful for the many gifts and contributions received during the Christmas and holiday season from the following: the Cohasset High School ninth grade Humanities class and students; The V.F.W. Post 9146 of Cohasset; the Democratic Town Committee; the Second Congregational Church; and many individual donations from Cohasset residents. These contributions made it possible for the League to distribute the gifts to those in need and add to the joy of the holiday season.

Selectman attacked

To the Editor:

My name is Staff Sergeant James J. Smith of Cohasset, currently serving with the 1058 Transportation Co. in Saudi Arabia. We have been very grateful to our communities for the support they have given to the troops that are taking part in Operation Desert Shield. The other day I received a copy of the Cohasset Mariner at mail call. My folks sent me the subscription to find out about local news while I'm over here. When I read the comment about Diana Kornet not caring for yellow ribbons being displayed in the town, it really disgusted me!!! I cannot believe that anyone, especially a Selectman would say something like that! We have people from Norwell, Hanover, Hingham, and Marshfield that are stationed here with the 1058, that not only receive mail from their towns explaining that their towns display the yellow ribbons, but even change the old faded ones with bright new yellow ribbons. Cohasset, like all surrounding towns, should be proud to have us serving with the Armed Forces here in Saudi Arabia.

Sincerely,

Minot's Light was nation's worst engineering disaster

By David Wadsworth
Special to the Mariner

The destruction of the iron lighthouse at Minot's Ledge on the night of April 16-17,1851 has been described as "the worst engineering disaster suffered by the U.S. Lighthouse Establishment since its beginning."

That first ill-fated lighthouse was of a design called "ironpile" construction, having nine wrought iron legs set into the ledge at the bottom, with its Keeper's dwelling house and lantern at the top. The legs, some 35 feet in height, formed an octagon 25 feet in diameter, with an additional pile in the center. Above the piles, the storage room, Keeper's house and lantern room extended some 30 feet higher, giving a structure about 65 feet in total height. A type of construction used successfully in shallow waters having a sandy bottom, the iron pile structure at Minot's represented a unique adaptation of the design for use on a granite ledge. Under construction during 1847 and 1848, the lighthouse began operating in early 1850. Sixteen months later, during a fierce ocean storm now called the "Lighthouse Gale," the nine piles supporting the light broke apart, plunging the entire structure into the storm-wracked ocean. Its two Assistant Keepers, Joseph Antoine and Joseph Wilson, on the light, perished in icy seas.

History records that the architect of the first Minot's Ledge Light was Capt. William H. Swift of the U.S. Army Topographical Engineers. Capt. Swift, ironically known mainly for his ill-fated Cohasset lighthouse, actually was a highly-successful Officer in the Army Corps of Engineers, who in later years distinguished himself as an able engineer and administrator in the canal and railroad industries. In 1853, Capt. Swift was awarded an M.A. degree by Harvard University. He served as President of the Boston and Albany Railroad, and was instrumental in the running of several midwestern railroad lines.

William H. Swift was born in Taunton, Mass. in 1800, was educated in New Hampshire and entered the U.S. Military Academy at West Point at the age of 13, in the summer of 1813. His first major assignment was to accompany an early U.S. Army exploration mission into the Rocky Mountains as a surveyor. Following graduation, he was assigned to the Topographical Engineers, and spent some 15 years, from 1820 to about 1835 as surveyor of U.S. military installations, waterways, harbors and railroads. During that time he also compiled the first comprehensive map of Postal Routes throughout the nation. In the latter 1840's, Capt. Swift undertook the designing of the lighthouse at Outer Minot's Ledge, having studied examples of iron pile lighthouses in Europe. For the lighthouse at Minot's Ledge, the government had appropriated $39,000, or about one-eighth the construction cost of a solid stone tower. It was this cost constraint that made necessary the skeletal frame of the iron pile tower. As events were to show, it was not enough.

During the time the first Minot's Ledge Light was under construction or operating, Capt. Swift carried on correspondence by letter with Capt. John Wilson of Cohasset. Several of these letters clearly indicate that the architect himself was worried about the strength of the new tower, for in an early letter discussing the lighthouse he asks: "How is it, has there been any injury to the structure during the winter, or is there any prospect that it will not weather the storms?" Later, on January 11,1851, just three months before the lighthouse fell, Capt. Swift asks, "I would like to know, also, what is really the condition of the Light, is it up, or is it down?" He is known to have thought that the diameter of the octagon base was not large enough to support the structure in bad weather, instead of being 25' across, it should have been 40', and the height of the tower 100'. The small surface area of the ledge itself had forced a more slender design than was desired. During the gale of April 16,1851, ocean waves carried away a heavy storage platform built below the storage room and Keeper's House. The platform drifted ashore several hours before the structure itself collapsed. It is believed the breaking seas then crashed upwards against the floor of the Keeper's House itself. In this way the entire structure was caused to "shake two feet each way, now" as recorded in the note placed in a bottle, written by the trapped Assistant Keepers. The note was recovered the following day by a Gloucester fisherman, hours after the tower itself had fallen. Sometime after midnight, the 650 pound fog bell of Minot's Ledge Light was heard onshore to be clanging frantically, followed by silence.

The worst fears of its designer were realized on that stormy night, and four years later the newly-organized U.S. Board of Lighthouse Engineers decided to spend $300,000 to construct the 114-foot high granite lighthouse that still stands on Outer Minot's Ledge.

Cutting is hard to do

Without an override, the town will have to reduce current services.

Oh, it's true that if none of the town employees received a pay raise in the coming year, then it might be possible to keep what we have.

But we're talking reality here.

Some town workers have already negotiated new contracts guaranteeing percentage hikes. Others are still bargaining.

We happen to think it's unlikely the voters will buy an override this year. The economy stinks. Extra money doesn't seem available anywhere.

The advisory committee has been laboring diligently several evenings a week in an attempt to deal with the hard choices.

Indeed there will be hard choices.

We think it's a good time for townspeople let officials know whether they will back an override and higher taxes — or what services they might be able to do without.

The slow economy affects all of us. We see the tough choices everywhere. At the Mariner — like everywhere else — money is tight. Our regular advertisers are coping with their own problems and have pulled back on their own marketing efforts.

This newspaper runs with a news hole that's 50 percent of the paper. The other 50 percent of the paper is taken up by paid advertising.

Obviously the Mariner this week is small in comparison with our newspaper only a month ago. But that paper wasn't as large as the Mariner of the same week in 1989.

Times are tough everywhere.

Believe it or not it takes as much time to produce a smaller product. We face tough decisions of our own on a weekly basis.

News copy is being trimmed. We do the best we can to get all timely items into our reduced space, but there are times when something slips through the cracks. Mistakes are reality.

We would like some help with the decisions. If you feel we're missing something important please let us know.

Below is a simple questionnaire designed to help us give you the best newspaper we can with the resources we have available.

Students send soldiers love & support the ribbons unfolding — at Osgood.

They designed a ribbon decoration to display in every window. Eventually, they hope every class will follow their lead until the yellow ribbon decor wraps its way around the building.

"It is a sign of our caring," she said. "It shows we are thinking about our soldiers and hoping for their safe return and for world peace."

School personnel took the decision on how the schools should respond to the crisis in the Middle East seriously. At the elementary level, they decided to let the needs and interest level of the children dictate their responses.

Principal Linda Whitney said Osgood School is trying to keep everything going at a steady, normal pace to reassure children that life is going to continue as usual for them.

"We're not doing that much," she said. "The teachers talk about it a little, depending on the interest of the children."

Students and teachers at Osgood have demonstrated their support for America's troops through letters and ribbon decorations. They discuss the war during current events and deal with the emotional aspects as necessary.

Whitney has noticed an increased tendency among boys to draw pictures of ships and planes and act out battle themes during recess.

Deer Hill principal Ken Ekberg finds a fairly high level of interest and information among the children in grade four through six.

"It's quite revealing hearing them talk," he said.

The curriculum at this level includes current events as a regular classroom feature. The events play into geography and social studies units as well.

Many of the classes have written to soldiers. Some classes have received replies.

Writing letters is not unusual for Deer Hill students.

"We do a lot of pen pal things in our curriculum," Ekberg said.

The elementary schools have not neglected the frightening aspects of war. This war has already given them images of children wearing gas masks to bed and birds suffocating and drowning in thick, gooey oil.

Ed Leonard, adjustment counselor for the schoc system, routinely visits classrooms once a month for "Magic Circle." During this time, he raises issues of concern with the children.

Leonard discusses feelings, problem solving techniques and "getting along" in the circle.

"We addressed the issue before it was a war," Leonard said. "When the war started, we brought it up as a topic for discussion."

Leonard said all the children were aware of the war — but their interest and involvement varied. For those who know someone who is part of Operation Desert Storm, the war becomes very concrete. Others seem almost oblivious.

The war is too abstract for the youngest children to react to, he said.

"They are not into news," he explained. "News bulletins are just interrupt their shows."

On the other hand, older children are very interested and aware.

"There is a sense of excitement among the boys," he noted. He said they tend to talk about weapon systems and missile attacks in the same way they might discuss baseball statistics.

"I don't hear girls expressing the same excitement," he added.

Leonard said parents should deal with the war the same way they deal with other topics of concern.

Parents should not overreact, he cautioned Leonard encourages them to look at the whole situation.

"Trust your instincts," he tells parents.

Leonard said good parenting skills work well no matter what curve ball life throws families.

Taking time to talk to your children remains the best advice experts can give.

Parents should open the lines of communication, Leonard said.

"Talk about feelings, develop a dialogue," he urged. "Have the child express his feelings. Be honest and talk openly."

If a child asks why such terrible things happen, Leonard suggests parents turn the question around and ask such questions as "How does that make you feel?"; "What are you concerned about?" and "What do you think about it?"

If the child seems uninvolved — and untroubled, parents can probably leave well enough alone.

On the other hand, parents shouldn't hesitate to reach out for help if a child experiences troubles like nightmares and excessive fear.

Leonard urges parents to contact him or other members of the school guidance department for information, suggestions and help.

Dennis Walsh leads CHS icers patiently

By John Kinchla
Special to the Mariner

Despite a 1-5-1 record, the Cohasset High School Hockey team continues to battle against their mostly Division 2 opponents in the South Shore League. Now at the halfway mark of their season, the Skippers have improved their play in each successive game.

Last week the team recorded their first win of the season in a 4 to 2 game against Scituate and lost a 3 to 1 squeaker to Abington. Cohasset's four previous losses were against Hull, Rockland, Hanover and New Bedford. The tie came against non-league and Division 3 opponent, Latin Academy.

Entering the second half of the schedule Cohasset could make up some ground, if their play continues to improve. The Skippers lost in a rematch against Hull on Saturday 5 to 3 but play Hull again on Wednesday, before finishing the season with games against Hanover, Scituate and Abington.

This year's Skippers team are led by veteran coach Dennis Walsh. Walsh's teams have a patient, controlled playing style. This style has served the Skippers well since penalties and injuries are minimized and the team is physically intact for the second half of the season. This game also has forced opposing teams to adjust to a slower, less aggressive style of play where team endurance and intelligence become factors in the contests outcome.

Team Co-Captains, Kevin Mulcahy and Mike Reynolds have played exceptionally well. Kevin plays defense with such zeal that opponents think twice at Cohasset's Blue Line. Mike Reynolds and his brother, Patrick give Cohasset a highly mobile and youthful offense. Both brothers can slip and dodge their way to an opponent's net and each has recorded several goals thus far this season. Mike's "White Line" mates, Chuck Endris and Charles Smith, should be credited with elusive assistance as well. Both of them have contributed with goals and solid skating. Senior defenseman, Mike Noble is Cohasset's not so secret weapon. Mike entered Cohasset High this fall, but the South Shore League is now aware of his devastating two way play. Tending goal for Cohasset and improving with every game is Senior, Jim Rosano.

Speedy senior center, Scott Varisco, and hard-working wingers Brian Donovan and Charlie Shields make up the powerful "Yellow Line." This line's hard checking play gives Cohasset "muscle" in the offensive zone. Freshman Defenseman Tim Conroy often joins either Mike Noble or Kevin Mulcahy in backing up the Yellow Line. Tim is notoriously tough in the corners and in front of his own net.

Cohasset's Blue Line has Patrick Reynolds at center and John Kinchla and Matt Graves at wings. This line was exceptionally effective in the games against Scituate, Abington and Rockland.

Cohasset's Red Line consists of Chris McKenna, Brian Buckley and Anthony Wigmore. All three boys have been attentive and hardworking in practice but their playing time has been limited.

Junior Goalie Jeff Stone and 7th Grader Jeff Tosi are gaining experience in the net.

Several reasons exist for high expectations in the second half of the season. Goal scoring has been spread around. Most players on the White, Yellow and Red lines have either scored a goal or have several assists and the team is injury free.

Gymnastics team stretches

The Cohasset High Gymnastics Team picked up its third loss of the season Monday Jan. 7, against (Non-League) Duxbury. However, Cohasset's team score did go up 104.7 to Duxbury's 111.2.

Starting with the uneven bars, Cohasset had some personal bests for the season. Captain Noel Roma with a 6.9, captain Tara Gallagher had a personal best and a second on bars, and teammate, seventh grader Caroline Delima, hit a personal best on bars.

Balancing on the beam for Cohasset were captain Tara Gallagher with a second place. Other outstanding performances on beam were captain Erin Sutherland, Rebecca Hackenburg, and Marnie DeMichele.

Tara Gallagher took a first on the vault with a score of 8.40.

On the floor exercise, Freshmen Marnie DeMichele took a second place while teammate Tara Gallagher took third.

Cohasset met with Carver on Monday Jan.14.

Scituate will be at Cohasset on Tuesday, Jan. 22, at 7 p.m. Admission is $3.

CPR course at the Knoll

The South Area Red Cross office will be offering the following courses in the month of February at the Cohasset Knoll Nursing facility: Feb. 21 and 28: Infant and Child CPR from 6 to 10 p.m.

For registration or for further information, call 262-1234 ext. 221.

Cheerleaders look fine

The Varsity Cheerleading squad for basketball is looking great this season. This is the first time in the history of Cohasset to have four Junior High students on the squad. Usually, the Varsity consists of 9th-12th grade students. Cohasset's Cheering Coach comments that, "The Junior High girls who made the squad are much more mature than most 7th-8th graders in the past."

The squad practices Monday, Tuesday games, Wednesday practice and Friday games. "Most of the girls on the squad are dedicated this season to the sport, and are working much harder than past squads."

Much credit goes to Captains Lisa Kondrat, Tracey Stohl, and Patti Tolini.

Hockey team ices opponents

By John Kinchla

SPORTS

The Cohasset High School Hockey team extended their win streak this week. On Wednesday, the team rattled Hull with an 8 to 5 win. On Saturday, the team dominated Scituate with a 3 to 2 win.

The win against Division 2 rival, Hull was exceptionally impressive for several reasons. It featured an awesome demonstration of two way play. Offensively, Cohasset got a three goal outburst (hat trick) by Mike Noble and individual goals by Charlie Shields, Mike Reynolds, Scott Varisco, Tim Conroy and Brian Donovan. Charlie Endris had three assists and Goalie, Jim Rosano made 23 saves. Defensively, Cohasset's closing checking defenders, Kevin Mulcahy, Tim Conroy and Charles Smith limited Hull's All-State wings, Pat Henderson and Eric Healy, from scoring on Goalie Jim Rosano. (Hull's Henderson and Healy currently lead the state with a combined scoring total of 110 points in 11 games.)

According to Coach Dennis Walsh, "the win against Hull demonstrated that Cohasset Hockey is improving. Hull is a good team, rated 20th statewide in Division 2 Hockey. Within the South Shore League, Hull is the only team to have beaten League Leader, Hanover rated 10th statewide. I'm happier now. The Blue Line Corp is really doing the job."

The win against Scituate was a total team effort. Hard-hitting Freshman Defender, Tim Conroy began the assault with a blistering slap shot into the right corner of the goal. Conroy then preserved Cohasset's slim lead by rejecting any Scituate player that dared enter his zone. Cohasset's second goal was scored by tenacious Sophomore Wing, Mike Reynolds assisted by Sophomore Defender, Charles Smith. Cohasset's third goal was scored by Junior Defender, Kevin Mulcahy, whose energized rink-long rushes and punishing defense kept Scituate wary of trespassing in his zone.

Cohasset's hardworking Senior Center, Scott Varisco backchecked effectively. Wingers Charlie Shields, Brian Donovan, Mike Noble and Charlie Endris refused to let Scituate play the puck off the boards. Their play forced Scituate to pass across center ice, where the Cohasset defenders were able to intercept and reverse the play. Coach Walsh commented, "Each win is vital now. We need to stay healthy. We need to continue to skate hard. If we can continue to disrupt our opponent at the Blue Line and keep the puck out of our own end, we should win more than we lose. That's our objective for this year.

years and older will be held at the South Shore Baseball Club in Hingham on Sunday, Jan. 20, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Barry "No Hit" Needham of Randolph, well-known fast-pitch softball star and a former pitcher in the Kansas City A's organization, will put on the clinic for young women at the South Shore Baseball Club's indoor training facility at 100 Recreation Park Road. Needham gained national attention in the early 1960s when he threw four consecutive no-hit games as a schoolboy phenom at Randolph High School.

Instruction will be divided into two sections, with 6th, 7th, and 8th grade girls from 10 a.m. to noon, and 9th graders and above from noon to 2 p.m. The clinic is free to the public. Attendance is limited and advance registration is recommended .

For information, please call the South Shore Baseball Club at 740-2240.

SUPERIOR COURT
No. 91-176

TO Yong S. Doucette, individually and as Trustee of Red Rad Realty Trust and to all persons entitled to the benefit of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940 as amended

GREETING:

Richard W. Stilphen individually and as trustee of Kim-Rich Realty Trust Claiming to be the holder of a mortgage covering real property situated in Cohasset, County of Norfolk, Massachusetts given by Yong S. Doucette individually and as successor Trustee to Richard W. Stilphen dated August 1, 1988 and recorded with the Norfolk Registry District as document #549659 and with Norfolk County Registry of Deeds book 8053 page 185 has filed with said court a bill in equity for authority to foreclose said mortgage in the manner following: by entry to foreclose and by exercise of power of sale set forth in said mortgage.

If you are entitled to the benefits of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940 as amended, and you object to such foreclosure, you or your attorney should file a written appearance and answer in said court at Dedham on or before March 6, 1991 or you may be forever barred from claiming that such foreclosure is invalid under said act.

Witness, Robert L. Steadman, Esquire, Chief Justice of our Superior Court, the 22nd day of January in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ninety one.

Nicholas Barbadoro
Clerk

Public notice

RECYCLING
REGULATIONS

AUTHORITY: These regulations are promulgated pursuant to the authority granted by Massachusetts General Law, Chapter 111, Section 31 for the purpose of administering Article VII, Section 31 of the General Bylaws of the Town of Cohasset.

PURPOSE: To promote and protect the public health by reducing the waste stream and the by-products thereof which can pollute air and water.

DEFINITION: For the purpose of this Bylaw the expression "Person" shall include any individual, business, or state or municipal authority or department; and, any other business entity which operates a commercial trash haulage business within the Town of Cohasset servicing either commercial or residential customers.

ITEMS TO BE RECYCLED: All newspaper, corrugated cardboard, returnable cans and bottles, glass, aluminum and metal, *steel and tin cans, plastics, used waste oil, tires, boat and auto batteries shall be recycled.

Leaf and yard waste and chipped brush will be composted and accepted at the Recycling Transfer Facility (RTF) only in the area designated for the receipt of these materials.

OPERATION: The RTF will be open for disposal on Wednesday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday from 7:30 A.M. to 3:30 P.M.

INSPECTION: The supervisor of the RTF is authorized to and shall randomly inspect any refuse other than commercial hauler refuse to be deposited at the RTF.

The health agent or a Board of Health member shall inspect commercial hauler refuse. Each load is subject to inspection.

ENFORCEMENT: In addition to the right to impose fines as set forth in Massachusetts General Law Chapter 111, Section 31 and other regulations of the Board of Health promulgated thereunder of the General Bylaws of the Town of Cohasset, any person found not in compliance with the provisions of these regulations shall also be subject to the following:

First Offense: Warning letter explaining the mandatory recycling program.

Second Offense: Warning letter indicating that a third offense could result in dumping privilege revocation.

Third Offense: Notice of hearing time, place and date for dumping privilege revoked.

SPECIFIC REQUIREMENTS APPLICABLE TO COMMERCIAL TRASH HAULERS

(a) Recyclables will be accepted on Monday only.

(b) Newspapers and corrugated cardboard and aluminum will be dumped directly into their appropriate bins.

(c) Metals will be dumped into the metal pile.

(d) Glass will be accepted in containers which will be dropped off at the RTF. A separate container for each color is required. Returnables will be placed in a separate container. The empty containers can be picked up on the same afternoon on which they are dropped off if received in the morning or on the following Wednesday if received on a Monday afternoon.

These regulations shall apply to any individual, corporation, partnership, limited partnership, joint venture, business trust, or any other private, business or governmental entity ("user") which uses the Cedar Street Recycling Transfer Facility for commercial use.

Each commercial trash hauler shall ensure that all users/customers are complying with the recycling regulations. Accordingly, each commercial trash hauler shall:

1. instruct all customers (users) and employees with respect to the application of these regulations.

2. establish and maintain a program of random inspection of refuse picked up by hauler, sufficient in scope, to ensure substantial compliance with the recycling regulations.

3. notify each user in writing of such non-compliance and present user with a letter explaining the mandatory recycling program.

4. any subsequent finding of non-compliance by any user, send a copy of the notice given to the user to the Board of Health.

Any non-compliance of a user which requires a copy of the notice to be sent to the Board of Health shall be deemed an offense within the meaning of the enforcement section of these regulations and the user shall be subject to the penalties and actions provided for therein.

Hauler shall not accept refuse from any user whose dumping privileges have been suspended by the Board of Health.

APPEAL: Any person aggrieved by the decision of the Board of Health may seek relief therefrom by filing an appeal within thirty (30) days of the date of final action of the Board of Health in any court of competent jurisdiction.

SEVERABILITY: Should any section, paragraph, sentence, clause or phrase of these regulations be declared illegal, invalid or unconstitutional for any reason, the remaining sections, paragraphs, sentences, clauses, phrases or provisions of these regulations shall not be affected thereby.

Sincerely,
FOR THE COHASSET

School committee seeks $5.6 million

Override considered as budgets exceed $

By Patricia Desmond
Mariner staff

School committee voted Monday to go after a budget of $5,615,212 for the coming school year, an increase of 1.4 percent over the current $5.5 million budget.

Later this week town officials were scheduled to go over some critical financial questions on the possibility of an override. Advisory Board Chairman Arne Gjesteby had asked all town departments to develop budgets without any increase. Gjesteby wanted the departments to level fund. Raises were to be offset by reductions elsewhere, according to his request.

School committee met three times within seven days to discuss details of the budget.

The process was slow. The final public hearing Monday night brought out a dozen or so parents and educators. Those who spoke wanted to see more money allocated for one program or another. No one suggested further cuts.

Patrick LaPlante asked the committee to restore the industrial arts and home economics programs at the junior/senior high school.

LaPlante taught 27 years before his retirement. Recently he has done some substitute teaching for a teacher who was out sick.

LaPlante said he was upset at the way the program is being run. He criticized the space allocated to shop.

"I don't think money should be an excuse for not having those programs," he said. He said he believes those programs were cut because the parents of industrial arts students were unlikely to complain.

He pointed out that the additional high school sports will cost about the same as the amount needed to restore either the home economics or industrial arts teaching position to full time.

School Committee Chairman Barbara Bliss said the sports are somewhat self-supporting. She said her committee was not ahppy with the reductions in industrial arts and home economics. The decision was made after the school budget voted on by both the committee and town meeting was reduced when the override failed last spring.

School Committee Member Ralph Kidder likened what is happening to

New ambulance makes top of chief's wish list

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Although his capital budget wish list for 1991 includes a new ambulance, a pumper truck, a forestry truck and a rescue boat, Fire Chief Daniel Brock only requested a warrant article for the purchase the ambulance.

Selectmen warned Brock voters would not be supportive unless the department cleared up outstanding ambulance bills.

A proposal to transfer the ambulance service to a private provider could also sidetrack the warrant article. The town was slated to open bids on the contract earlier this week. A decision is expected before town meeting.

The proposed starting date for a private ambulance service is July 1.

Brock estimates a new ambulance will cost $85,000 to $90,000. The current ambulance went into service in 1985 and has 60,000 miles on it. Brock told selectmen the average lifespan for an ambulance is five years because of the wear and tear on the motor and body.

Brock told selectmen initial ambulance bills have been sent out in a timely fashion. They have generated more than $15,100 in revenue. Brock said disruptions caused by renovation work stymied efforts to pursue collection.

Many of the charges may be covered by insurance, he said, but the department lacks the information to bill the insurance company directly. The fire department relies on individuals to fill out and return the insurance forms to the department.

Currently, a total of $55,105 remains outstanding. Brock hopes to aggressively pursue payment as soon as his office is back to normal.

"I am extremely unhappy about this," Selectman Jane Goedecke said. "I don't believe the disruption in the office is an excuse."

Richards removes barriers

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Deborah Richards relies on a wheelchair to get around. Unfortunately, some people just can't seem to get past the wheelchair to see the dynamic young woman who operates it.

Richards finds people assume she must be hard of hearing and speak loudly. Others assume that her intellectual abilities are impaired.

People with disabilities say these misconceptions are all too common.

Today, Richards works as vice chairman and head of the commission for the handicapped to overcome stereotypes and remove barriers preventing all citizens from participating fully in the life of the town.

Richards did not attend Cohasset public schools. She turned five in the days when public schools tended to exclude children with physical handicaps.

"My parents got the cold shoulder whenever they approached the public school about enrolling me," she said.

Turned away by the local school system, they sent Richards to the Massachusetts Hospital School in Canton. She lived there during the Tough shots keep Skippers from scoring close win

By Brian W. Saxton
Special to the Mariner

This past week was a tough one for the boys basketball team, dropping a 58-55 decision to Carver on Jan. 29, then losing to undefeated Rockland 69-56 on Feb. 1. The Skippers now stand at 4-9 in the league, 5-10 overall.

At Carver, Cohasset fought to a 25-25 half time tie, and opened up the second half with a surge, but midway through the half, the shots just wouldn't fall and the game got away at the end.

"It was a touch-and-go game" said Skipper coach Arnold Repucci, now in his second full year at Cohasset. "We lost Matt Marks at the end of the game, and had some key turnovers. We just went cold."

Leading the way for Cohasset was senior co-captain Linc Marsac who tossed in 17 points and grabbed 20 rebounds. Freshman Kywon Edwards chipped in 14 points and 10 boards, while freshman Paul Biladeau added 11 points and had eight rebounds.

Against Rockland, Cohasset faced a formidable task, as the Bulldogs were undefeated and looking to clinch the league title. It was a physical game that saw Rockland jump to a 33-18 half time lead, but the Skippers hung tough in the second half, getting within six points with two minutes to go.

"This game was typical of our games this year" Repucci said, "We played our worst half of the year in the first half, but our kids responded in the second half and played them tough."

Linc Marsac led Cohasset with 18 points, senior co-captain Matt Marks added 10 points, and Kywon Edwards had nine points.

Girls' Basketball

Last week the Cohasset girls basketball team had two games that were at opposite ends of the spectrum. On Jan. 29, the girls won their first game of the season, beating Carver 48-46, then ran into a buzz saw called Rockland on Feb. 1 and the result was a 60-25 loss. The girls now stand at 1-12 overall and in the league.

Against Carver, second year coach Debbie Bostwick saw her team trailing 26-24 at half time, but played all-out in the second half to take the narrow win.

COHASSET'S WEEK

Festival OK'd for common

Selectmen granted permission for South Shore Art Center to use the common, William Long Road and the auditorium in old town hall for the annual summer arts festival. This year the festival will be held June 20-23.

Executive Secretary Greg Doyon suggested selectmen might want to request a donation for use of the common. The art center already pays a fee for use of the auditorium.

The request was driven by the cuts selectmen made in the budget for the tree and park department. Doyon hopes to recoup some of the costs of returning the common to its pre-festival state.

"It's hard to ask the first group for a donation," Selectman Jane Goedecke admitted. "We need to set a policy."

Selectmen had no donation amount in mind, but warned the center they would be back in touch before the festival date.

"We do have to start somewhere," Selectmen Chairman Rocco Laugelle said.

Cuts loom for selectmen

Selectmen agreed the only way to cut $77,000 and arrive at a level-funded budget was by reducing personnel costs. They postponed a decision on the cuts until next week.

"Level funding the services we have here is ludicrous," Selectman Jane Goedecke said. "What we have to do is explain to the taxpayers what will happen here."

Selectmen said they hope voters will approve an override to maintain services at the present level.

Selectmen discussed cutting staff hours in their office and eliminating the part-time assistant to the wire superintendent to achieve the level-funded budget's bottom line. All departments are vulnerable to cuts.

Closing town hall on Fridays remains another possibility.

Selectmen considered the discussion bleak, but necessary.

"These are terrible times," Goedecke said. "There is no way to whittle away at this unless we cut personnel."

Selectman Diana Kornet worried about the fallout from reducing hours of town employees.

"We may lose people who need to work full time," she said.

Wire Superintendent Stephen Wigmore came to the meeting when he learned the fate of his office was up for grabs.

Wigmore, celebrating 24 years with the department and 18 as superintendent, spoke from his heart.

"It hurts me. I built the department up," he said. "I knew it was inevitable...I don't want to see him go, but you're holding the reins."

In his long tenure, Wigmore has worked alone for periods of time. At other times the department has been flush with employees. Once, Wigmore said, the wire department consisted of three full-time employees and a helper.

Last year, selectmen reduced his full-time assistant to 20 hours.

Eliminating the position doesn't come without costs. The town will be liable for unemployment compensation and insurance costs. It will also be necessary to dip into the overtime account and hire temporary help from time to time.

Currently, the department has no money budgeted for temporary help and only $600 remains in the overtime account.

With only three selectmen present, they elected to wait until the following week to make personnel decisions.

Robert Davenport of Sohier Street suggested the town could save a considerable sum in the police department overtime account by filling the vacant patrolman's slot. He suggested the town explore savings in overtime before cutting hours and personnel in other departments.

"It's worth homing in on those numbers tightly," Kornet agreed.

Too many RR questions?

Selectmen worry that residents are signing a petition about the Old Colony railroad restoration project under a false understanding.

According to Selectman Jane Goedecke, some people seeking signatures on the petition are giving residents the impression the warrant will have no question about the railroad project without their petition.

Goedecke said selectmen put a question asking if residents favored the restoration given the environmental concerns and financial implications. The petition will add a second question that merely asked whether voters favor the restoration.

Town resident ships out

Another Cohasset resident headed off for Operation Desert Storm recently.

Residents can send cards and letter to:
HM1 Arthur B. Howe
USS Oldendorf DD-972
FPO San Francisco CA 96674-1210

Selectmen would like to receive the names and addresses (both home and military) of Cohasset residents serving in the Middle East. They plan to display an Operation Desert Storm honor roll. in several locations around town as soon as possible.

DO YOU NEED A NEW HOUSE?

Applications are being accepted thru 3/1/91 by the South Shore Regional School District from any resident of the District who is interested in having a full 5/6 room house built by the school (Towns of Abington, Cohasset, Hanover, Hanson, Norwell, Rockland, Scituate, Whitman) beginning 91-92 school year. Selection is based on the educational value to our Carpentry, Electrical, and HVAC departments. For further information call Mr. Anderson at 878-8822 week and returned home for weekends, holidays and vacations.

Richards completed her elementary and high school education at the school, graduating in 1982.

After graduation, Richards wanted to continue her education. Some people thought Richards couldn't cope with college life because she can't walk and has limited use of her hands. They failed to reckon on her mind and her determination.

"My parents and I persisted," Richards said. "We did it more or less on our own."

Richards enrolled in Massasoit Community College in Brockton. Her mother, Marge Richards, provided more than just moral support.

"I have to give credit to Mom. She drove me back and forth to school, took notes and sat at the computer and typed my papers from direct dictation."

Massasoit was a perfect choice to test her mental abilities because it didn't try her physical disabilities. The college prides itself on being completely wheelchair accessible.

Richards graduated in 1986 with an associate degree in human services. Despite the obstacles she had to overcome, it only took her four years.

Those four years whet her appetite for more. She decided to get a bachelor's in psychology.

Richards elected to enroll at Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston because it was close to home. They transferred her credits and admitted her as a junior.

Attending Eastern Nazarene took dedication and determination on her part because only two of the campus buildings were accessible.

At first it meant she needed to find people willing to carry her up and down stairs. Later, the college moved all her classes into the two accessible buildings.

Richards also devised a method enabling her to take her own notes.

She received her degree 1989, just two years after enrolling.

Today, Richards occupies her time and talents volunteering on the commission and for the South Shore Coalition while she hunts for a job. She thinks it will take incredible luck — and perhaps an advanced degree — to find an employer willing to hire her.

Richards may pose a few challenges to an employer. The building must be wheelchair accessible, her computer must have adaptive equipment and she requires the services of a personal care attendant. Richards knows that scares off most employers.

While she searches for work, Richards is exploring graduate programs in social work and paralegal studies.

"If I can find a school, it may mean I need to move into town and live independently," Richards said.

In the meantime, she lives a quiet life in Cohasset.

"I never go out much," she said. "Transportation is the most difficult thing."

In addition to her mother, Richards has been able to use the MBTA's Ride service for handicapped transportation. They extended the program to the South Shore in July 1990.

"It isn't much," Richards said, "but it's better than nothing."

To use the service, Richards needs to call seven days in advance of the time she wants to go someplace. They let her know the day before if they can accommodate her request.

The service is just too limited.

Richards says a van service with a wheelchair lift offers an avenue to full participation in the life of the community. It is one of the commission's goals.

Given how far perseverence and gritty determination has gotten her so far, Cohasset residents shouldn't be surprised to see the van tooling down the highways and byways in the not-so-distant future.

Handicapped discover inaccessible town haunts

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Cohasset holds many treats for residents and visitors. The village and harbor offers quaint shops, fascinating museums and great restaurants. The seacoast and beaches are breathtaking.

Unfortunately, some people know you can't get here from there.

Residents and visitors confined to wheelchairs or with other mobility impairments find barriers like stairs, narrow aisles and inaccessible bathrooms bar them from enjoying what others boast of. Just getting to the village taxes the ingenuity and patience of handicapped residents.

The commission on the handicapped wants to change all that.

The commission decided to begin with a needs assessment to survey to determine what problems and needs local residents with disabilities face. When they complete the study, they hope to find ways of matching residents with existing services and develop programs to fill unmet needs.

The committee hopes widespread response to their survey will help them generate the kind of statistics that will help them get funding for a van equipped with a wheelchair lift.

"We need to know how many people need the service and how it should operate," commission vice chairman Deborah Richards explains.

The committee needs to determine whether the van should have set routes or operate more like a taxi service. They also need to find out whether they can rely on volunteer drivers or need a cadre of paid drivers.

"Drivers who operate a wheelchair van must have medical training and handicap sensitivity training," Richards said. "In many cases, people with that kind of training, like EMTs, want to be paid."

Richards said the committee is also trying to develop an information and resource library for the community. Information in the library would range from books on adaptive equipment to information about supportive living programs to the provisions of the American Disabilities Act.

"There are a lot of services out there that people don't take advantage of," Richards said. "They don't they exist or there is misinformation. Today, you need a scorecard to keep up with the changes."

The committee also wants to know where there are gaps that need to be filled.

"We don't want to duplicate the services of other agencies," she explained. "If we can't help, we will refer people to other agencies like the Social Service League and the Council on Aging.

Copies of the survey are available at town hall, the library and many businesses and organizations in town.

the school budget to construction of a bridge. He wanted to know whether it is better to lop off the top of the bridge or undermine the supports.

School Superintendent Stephen Hart pointed out during the public hearing that 66 positions have been cut since 1980. While some of the positions have been reduced to part time rather than eliminated, there have been 58.5 full-time equivalent positions dropped from the system.

All of the items in the $5.6 million school budget were requested by the administration.

Water board unready if Hamilton goes to the Gulf

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

The water commissioners will ask town meeting to authorize the use of commissioners as temporary employees in the event water department Superintendent Joe Hamilton is called up for active duty in the Persian Gulf.

Most of Hamilton's administrative functions will be transferred to his staff members. The proposal would allow the department to avoid hiring someone for routine labor.

Water Commissioner James R. Sheerin told selectmen he had worked for the department for two years.

"I could always jump in in case of an emergency," he said.

Sheerin assured the board they had reviewed the matter with the state Ethics Commission. According to commission, town meeting must approve the action in order for it to be legal. The commissioners will have Town Counsel Richard Henderson review and approve the language contained in the article.

Selectman Jane Goedecke expressed some concerns.

"This has very definite precedent-setting implications in a negative way," she said. She suggested the article specify that commissioners could only be hired in the event Hamilton was called to active duty, only for the duration of his tour of duty and only to fill in.

The water commissioners also submitted several other warrant articles.

One would convey land owned by the water department to Henry Rattenbury. Rattenbury promised to grant a full easement in case the department ever had to extend a pipe across the land.

The commissioners said the transfer will create a win-win situation: the land goes on the tax rolls and the water department retains access.

Two special town meeting articles take care of some unfinished business relating to the acquisition of the land abutting Lily Pond. When the town meeting voted to purchase the land, no money was provided for closing costs.

The first article authorizes a transfer of $18,983 from surplus water revenue for closing costs. The other article asks town meeting to transfer $52,500 from surplus water revenues to cover interest costs.

Town meeting asked for new ambulance

Selectman Diana Kornet warned Brock town meeting might favor a private ambulance company based on ability to recoup expenses.

Robert Davenport of Sohier Street reminded selectmen when the department had a part-time secretary billings were up-to-date.

Davenport said the secretary worked 20 hours for approximately $9,000 and made money for the town.

"But that was the first thing that was cut," he pointed out.

Brock restricted his capital budget request to the ambulance because of the town's financial crisis. Brock put the other items on his wish list on hold.

The most expensive item on the list is a pumper truck for $200,000.

Brock told selectmen the lifespan of a pumper truck is 15. The town's current pumper is 30 years old.

Brock said he doesn't want to keep the truck on hold indefinitely. He worries that parts may not be available if the old truck breaks down.

The fire department hoped to get $12,000 to refurbish the brush fire truck in order to turn it into a year round piece of equipment.

Ideally, the department would like to acquire a pickup truck with a slide-in tray for the pump. When not fighting brush fires, the pump can be removed and the truck can be used to haul hose and other equipment.

"It may not be worth it to put money in it," Brock said. "It is still very functional the way it is."

Brock also put the rescue boat on hold.

He told selectmen he requested it for pond and river rescues. Currently, the department relies on the harbormaster who hauls his boats out of the water for the winter months.

Brock said he and the harbormaster plan to coordinate efforts to find a more easily deployable boat and provide training in rescue techniques.

Brock told selectmen the boat stored behind the fire station is used primarily for ice rescues. Because it is a narrow aluminum boat with a low freeboard, it is inappropriate for use in salt water.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Conway: On leadership

(Jack Conway gave the following speech at the annual Eagle Scouts dinner of the Bay Colony Council held Jan. 10 at the Blue Hill County Club in Canton.)

By Jack Conway
Special to the Mariner

I feel rather privileged to have been asked by Dr. Bob Downey to speak before such an illustrious group of young men. As you are honored tonight for your long series of accomplishments, I am also being honored for having been allowed to be with you and to add my voice to the chorus which sings, "Congratulations on a job well done."

The other day Sharon Robb, a fine writer for the Sun Sentinel Newspapers in Fort Lauderdale, was writing a piece about championship swimmers Todd Pace and Joel Thomas who want desperately to set world records and make the United States Olympic team which will compete in Barcelona, Spain, in 1992.

In the article Jack Nelson, former Olympic swim coach, was asked about the prospects of the young athletes. He answered, "It's like having two Eagle Scouts who are going to be great, great athletes. They know nothing is automatic. They just can't roll out of bed and bust records. They know that it is a tough job."

This analogy, I thought, was perfect as I dwelt on your own illustrious careers. You have successfully completed a long and successful mission as you proceeded from one level of meritorious accomplishment to another, all over a long span of years, and this worthy effort has culminated in the receipt of your Eagle Scout designation.

You, like Jack Nelson's swimmers, are true Olympians. You set your eyes and hearts upon a worthy goal, and through dedication, devotion, time, effort, and just plain hard work, you won your own Gold Medal.

You are now on the way to become leaders of a world that needs the leadership that Olympians and Eagle Scouts can provide. You have proven that if a thing is worth doing you are up to the challenge of winning on any field.

Young men and women enter the business stream today and what they look desperately for are role models on which to pattern their careers.

Role Model One – "The thing is the buck," said Drexel Burnham trader Michael Milken as he broke all of the rules of the game as he amassed his billions. And then Milken was fined $600 million and sentenced to 10 years in jail.

Is this a role model of which to be proud or would we rather pattern one's self after a woman named Marie Sheehan who, day after day, looked at the poorest of Brockton's poor huddled and shivering in empty doorways and as a result she conceived, started and opened MainSpring House, the most efficient shelter for the poor in Massachusetts.

Role Model Two – "I guess I just wanted to have it all," said Charles Keating as his Lincoln Savings and Loan Association of California plunged into a hopeless $2 million abyss. Shortly after Keating was handcuffed and led away in a police van, an 86-year-old Los Angeles man, who had lost everything because of Keating's bank failure, committed suicide.

Is this a role model of which to be proud or is it more worthy to dwell on the meteoric career of Wayne Budd, son of a Springfield policeman, who studied at Boston College, became president of the Massachusetts Bar Association, and later was appointed by President George Bush the first black United States District Attorney in American history. He is eloquent, manly, incorruptible, an intelligent, decent person who fights crime and wrongdoers. He is my Dick Tracy.

Role Model Three – Adolph Hitler had great leadership qualities. He had amazing charisma. He had a world vision. He commanded the thought processes of Germany, one of the great nations of the world. Yet this man criminally led his armies in Czechoslovakia, Poland, the low countries of Holland and Belgium and orchestrated the death of four million Jews at death camps like Belsen, Buchenwald and Auschwitz.

Is this a role model of which to to be proud? I think not. I would rather think of Dwight David Eisenhower, Supreme Allied Commander in World War II. Ike was born in rural Kansas. He industriously worked his way from nothing to a career at West Point. By hard work, determination and sheer guts, he rose in the army and was appointed by President Roosevelt and General George C. Marshall to lead the decisive allied armies. He skillfully confronted the British peacock, Field Marshall Bernard Montgomery, he balanced the oftentimes precipitous move of his own Star General, George S. Patton, and through use of tact, hard work, dedication to duty, honesty and truthfulness, led the allies to victory over the insane Adolph Hitler.

Role Model Four – General George McClellan had been appointed to the command of the Army of the Potomac, a great force of men and materials, that everyone predicted would bring the Civil War to an early conclusion. But this vain, scheming, pompous, inactive, disrespectful Union general did not have the ability to move. As a leader he was a failure.

Is this a role model of which to be proud? I look instead at General Ulysses S. Grant, who led Union forces at Vicksburg and in battle after battle to Appomatox Court House where he accepted General Lee's sword ending the horrible war. Grant was a hard-driving, direct, dedicated workhorse who never let vanity or false pride deter him from his course.

Role Model Five – George III was King of England during the years immediately preceding our Revolutionary War. He commanded a great nation, a power among powers, but he was arrogant, indolent, prejudiced and inconclusive. He thought of the American colonists as serfs, as peasants, whose only mission was to exist for the gratification of the English crown. His disastrous lack of concern for his American subjects led directly to the beginning of the Revolution when the first shots were fired at Concord and Lexington.

Is this a role model of which to be proud? I think not and would prefer to emulate the tenacious, even handedness of George Washington, a Virginia planter who became General of the Continental Army at Cambridge in 1775. He drove the British out of Boston Harbor, he saved the army at Long Island, he endured winters at Valley Forge and at Morristown, he kept his starving, bedraggled army together by careful leadership, sensible planning, kindness of spirit, dedication to cause and finally, after six years of war, presided over the defeat of England's General Lord Charles Cornwallis at Yorktown. Washington gave us our independence and he perhaps should be remembered as the greatest of our role models.

Yes, my good friends, you Eagle Scouts, it is not easy to always find the right role model when you need one the most. The Christians among you can look to Jesus Christ as the ultimate role model, but if you are looking for a role model of this world, it is not too easy.

It is a little sad, I guess, that too often the heroes are thought to be people like Donald Trump, Madonna, the actress, Frank Lorenzo who wrecked an airline, J. Paul Getty who ignored the cries of help of his grandson, Milli Vanilli who faked out the entertainment world, Manual Noriega who amassed millions through drugs and corruption, and people of all professions and walks of life who get rich walking on the rights of other people.

The real heroes – the real role models of the day are not always the rich and the famous, the kind of people who make the Man of the Year cover on Time Magazine – the real role models, the kind of careers that we should want to emulate, are many times the people we meet in our everyday life – our mothers and dads, our teachers and coaches, our brothers and sisters, our priests and clergymen, our den mothers and scout masters, our everyday people.

But as I look around me for heroes and for role models, I think I would do well to look to you, the Eagle Scouts of the Bay Colony Council, and to think of you as the kind of a role model that I would be proud to have.

Community Center seeks Recreation Dept. takeover

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Members of the board of directors of the Community Center approached the board of selectmen looking for an endorsement of their plan to take over most of the recreation department programs as of July 1.

The Community Center claims their takeover will save the town $60,000 while providing the same level of services to townspeople. The center hopes to benefit by drawing more users to their programs.

Center officials also planned to ask the Advisory Board for its approval Thursday night.

Under the proposal, the community center will provide the recreational and athletic programs offered by the recreation department. Dooley claimed program costs would decrease or remain the same.

The center reserves the right to require membership for participation in programs similar to center offerings.

Membership will not be required for recreation department programs. Those programs will be restricted to Cohasset residents.

Center official Brian Nohe promised the center will continue the no-cost programs like the Easter egg hunt.

The directors offered to hire recreation Director Jack Worley to run the center's recreation programs at the same salary he makes now. The center could not match the $9,500 in benefits the town provides.

Dooley said the center's board of directors offered to take on the town recreation programs "because we are taxpayers in town. We just wanted to help out."

Selectman Jane Goedecke characterized the proposal as a "smart cut." She thanked the Community Center for being creative and trying to find a solution to the program of maintaining services in difficult financial times.

"This is truly a community-based service," Goedecke said. "It will certainly be a relief to me that those services will be met."

Goedecke did warn the center officials that they would not get any special breaks in user fees for town fields and playgrounds. She anticipates increases in the fees to offset reductions in the budget for the tree and park department.

The community center may propose a trade-off. Dooley suggested the rent charged to the senior center could be swapped for use of the fields.

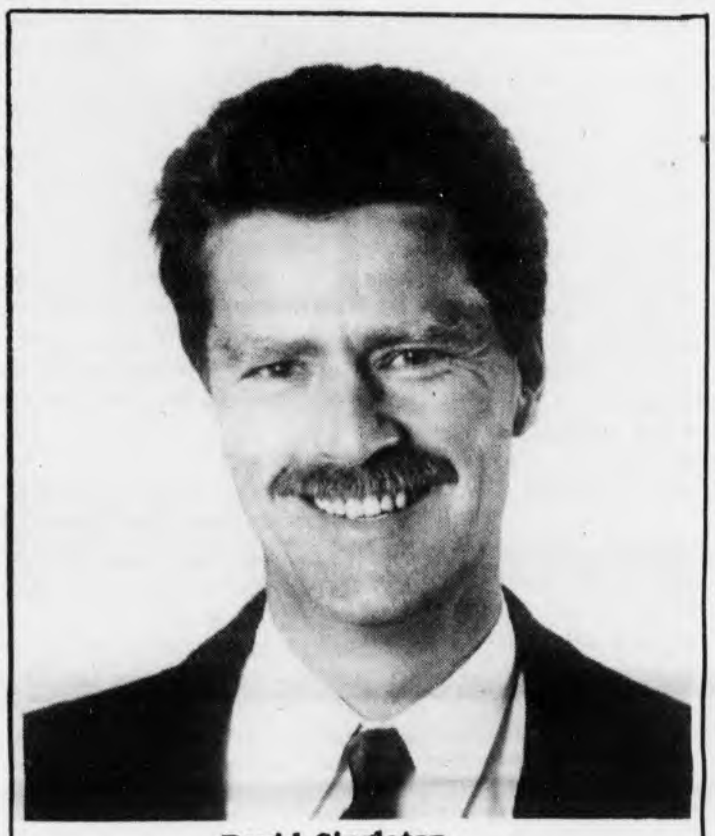
"I think this is a great effort," Selectman Diana Kornet said. "You're town citizens and this helps town citizens."

MILESTONES & AWARDS

Berents joins PR firm

Nick Berents, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Berents, Jr. of Cohasset, has joined Boston-based public relations firm Agnew, Carter, McCarthy, Inc. as an account coordinator.

Berents, a 1986 graduate of Washington & Lee University in Lexington, Virginia, will be working in the financial and professional services group of ACM, representing such clients as 3i Capital and 3i Ventures, National Financial, and Liberty Mutual Insurance Group. Prior to joining ACM, Berents served as a junior financial analyst for Hoyts Cinemas Corporation.



Agnew, Carter, McCarthy, Inc. is a full service public relations and marketing communications firm with special strengths in consumer products, professional and financial services, public affairs, real estate development and special events.

The agency is the New England office of Pinnacle Worldwide, a consortium of independent public relations firms throughout North America, Europe, the Far East and Australia.

AROUND TOWN

❑ Talk about planning ahead, listen to Ellery Clark's training schedule. On Saturday, July 13 he is planning to compete in the American National 10 Kilometer Race Walking Championships at Niagara Falls, New York, age group 80-84. The race is 10,000 meters! He has had previous experience at 10,000 meters when he walked for the Boston A.A. back in the 1930's. Ellery has five months to train for the race and it will "furnish some idea of whether I'm a real old man or just semi-old!" He will be in Cohasset at the end of next month and he will train for his two big races, the one mentioned above and the Senior Olympics National Championship 1,500 kilometers. Ellery also has plans to take part in the Quincy Sr. Olympics in mid-May, too. Ellery says the only thing he promises is that he will not go over the Falls in a barrel.

❑ A special salute goes to Joe Laugelle (Doc Skinna) this week. He got people together to purchase two flags to support our troops. One hangs at the transfer station, the other at Wayne Robbins garage. Joe wishes to extend special thanks to the Building Department, Alco Oil, George Haley, Dean Williams, Jean Hajiar, Wayne Robbins, Jim Lagrotteria and Greg Doyan. Cohasset thanks all of you and you can bet our boys over there will appreciate them when they get home!

❑ Speaking of Cohasset servicemen over serving with Operation Desert Storm, 2nd Lt. Timothy Curran and his bride-to-be Paula Mary O'Brien's engagement was announced in the paper last week. A September wedding is being planned, and we are sure that there will be tons of letters going back and forth between now and then. Best wishes go to both Tim and Paula!

❑ There has been a change of dates for the Valentine Cabaret and Art Auction, it will be held on Feb. 26 instead of the usual date of Feb. 14. It will be held at Kimball's, and preparations are underway at Cohasset High School. There will be a light buffet, with art and music, and it will cost $10 for a ticket. The evening will be sponsored by the Art Boosters, for more information and reservations, call 383-9485.

❑ We certainly hope that Ray Remick is feeling better as he reads this.

❑ Received a nice letter from Nanci and Walt Sweeney last week. Nanci reports that things are great with them! Her son, Scott, was one of the first men to go over to the War, so he was the first back. She's not sure that he won't return though, she is worried about that. They are living on a boat and loving it, and Walt is doing silk screening with two of his friends, doing well. Glad that all is well with them but lots of us miss them. And love them of course.

❑ The Cohasset Bloodmobile reports that 152 people presented themselves at the First Parish House and donated 143 pints of blood on Tuesday, Jan. 29. Co-chairpersons Jack and Shirley Cibelli wish to express their thanks to all the volunteers who contributed to the success for the Blood Drive and particularly to the donors for their patience and perseverance. The increase in the number of donors, approximately 40 percent above the number of donors at recent blood drives, and the new procedure in taking blood histories causes a longer processing time. And thanks is due to the Red Cross Staff for their extra efforts in this unexpected large blood drive.

❑ Wigmore Pierson has some exciting shows scheduled for Feb. 7, James Bush, "I Have A Dream: Program"; the 14th, Michele Buckley, Commander on Handicapped, Cohasset; Dr. Gregory Mertz, Northeast Wildlife Center; 21st, Middle East Discussions; and, the 28th, Divorce: Ann Webb, Donal Siegel, Vicki Lyall and Gerald Cyr. Tune in each Thursday, 8-9, on Channels 3 and 53.

Jeffrey Lloyd

Am I doing this right? Nicole Kreitz was in charge of cooking the sausage before it was added to the main dish at a cooking class sponsored by the Cohasset Community Center.

❑ Everyone be sure to keep Mrs. Bates in your thoughts and prayers this week, and hope that she will be better! She is one grand lady.

❑ Michael Anderson, a junior at Fairfield University in Fairfield, Connecticut, made the Dean's List for the first semester. Michael is a math major and to attain the Dean's List you must have at least a 3.5 point average.

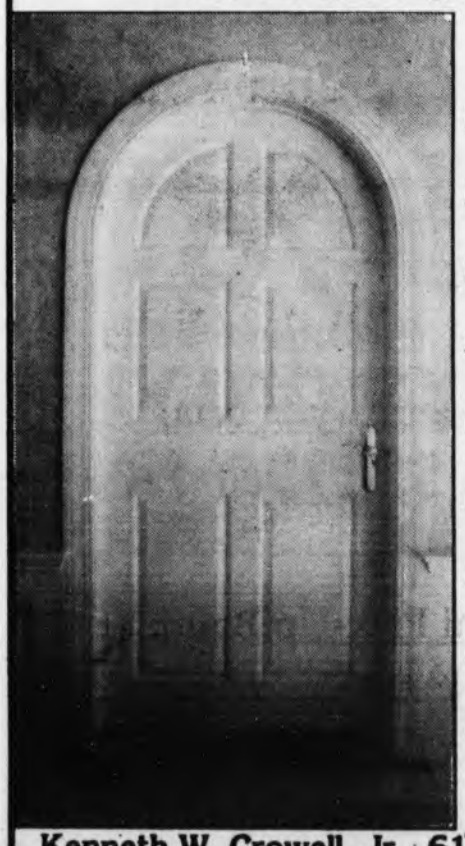
❑ Congratulations go to Jeffrey Lloyd, son of James and Marguerite Lloyd, who made the dean's list at Springfield College with a 3.8 average. He is majoring in business and will be graduating this May.

❑ Andrew Nawn of Cohasset, son of Joanne Young-Nawn of North Main Street, recently returned from a Junior semester of study at Regents College in London. He interned at the Queen Elizabeth II Conference Center, doing research in the Houses of Parliament.

Andrew is a 1988 graduate of Cohasset High School and is majoring in Political Science and Law at Franklin Pierce College in New Hampshire.

During his semester abroad, Andrew toured Europe, visiting Prague, Berlin, Paris, Amsterdam, Brussels, Dublin and the English and Irish countryside.

❑ Come join the Cohasset High Gymnastic Squad for an afternoon of gymnastic fun. If you like gymnastics, or if you wish to be on the High School team someday, this is your chance to strut your stuff. Each girl will participate in groups on the Floor Exercise, Vault, Bars, Beam and Dance.



Girls will also watch some demonstrations from Captain Tara Gallagher, Captain Noel Roma, Captain Erin Sutherland, Lynda Hague, Rebecca Hackenburg, and many many more girls you may know.

Call Gymnastic Coach Ruthann Sargent at 545-3058 for more information.

❑ Be sure to let me know what is going on at your house, it's what makes the news.

"The Function of Pain"

Pain is important to your well-being. It is nature's early warning signal. A message relayed through your nervous system that tells you when something is wrong. As such, pain is merely a symptom and not the cause of most health problems. Therefore, the sensible approach to health is not to merely turn off the pain (or treat the symptom). But rather to find the causes and correct them.

'FIT TIPS'

With Normandie Nigh

By Normandie Nigh

Health Is A Question of Balance. Sounds interesting, but what does it mean? This was my first reaction when an acquaintance in California invited me to attend a workshop he was presenting. He had also written a book by the same name and I was very curious to learn more. This man was an M.D. who had given up his traditional medical practice and began teaching people to improve their health by balancing the critical areas in their lives. Many professionals believe that being out-of-balance is a major cause of stress and stress-related illnesses, and that the people who can learn to take time for themselves often experience much better mental and physical health. I have personally learned this lesson over the past few years: it is absolutely necessary for me to balance my career, family, relationships, and time for myself in order to be healthy and happy.

Improved health and less stress are goals for many people, while others may simply want to look and feel better. Exercise is one way that these goals can be obtained, but as I mentioned in last week's column, many people believe that they do not have the time or energy to exercise. There are too many other demands in their lives that take priority over fitness. I have found that if I don't make the time, I feel out of whack and can't function to my full potential. And yes, finding the time is easier said than done. In fact, lack of time seems to be the number one reason that people do not exercise. It is a major obstacle which will preclude many people starting and sticking with their fitness program. This is unfortunate, because most people will find that they are more successful in all areas of their lives once they have made a commitment to a personal fitness program and they take the time to do something good for themselves. Sounds easy, but for most of us, it's not.

But wait, I have some very exciting news for you. In fact, this may be the most important revelation which I have to share. Ready? Making a commitment to become more fit does not mean that you have to spend hours 'working out.' There are endless activities which can contribute to your better health and improved fitness level without taking a lot of time. Really! Believe me, if this weren't true, I wouldn't even try to help today's busy people get fit, because I know I would be fighting a losing battle.

Finding Time

Fitness is not restricted to formal programs such as an aerobics class, one hour work-out at the gym, a five-mile run, or a heated game of racquetball. These are great, but take a great deal of time from start to finish and you may or may not have time to commit to these activities on a regular basis. Fortunately, you're not restricted to just formal exercise in developing a fitness plan. Stop and think about all of the ways you use your body throughout the day.

- Do you park your car in a lot and then walk to the office building or to the T?
- Do you chase after the kids, pick up clothes, sweep the floor, then make the beds?
- Do you take the dog out for a walk, walk the mall, shovel the snow, or play catch on the weekends?

All of the things you do make up your current fitness picture and it may add up to a lot more than you imagined. These activities can be a combination of formal, functional, and fun exercise. Functional exercise includes walking from your car to your destination, taking the dog for a walk, cleaning house, or shoveling snow. Fun exercise can be playing with the kids in the yard, walking in the evening after a nice meal, playing volleyball on the beach, or skating on the pond. These activities are just as important as the formal programs you commit to and can greatly enhance your health and fitness level without taking a great deal of time. In fact, you may actually be a lot more fit than you realized, and to improve your current level of fitness, it may take something as quick and simple as adding stretching for five minutes a day or walking as often as possible. There are many 'quick fix' activities that can help you get fit, and next week we'll talk more about a simple way to get started.

The Big Picture

Now we should have an even better picture of who we are and what we need to do to be successful with our fitness goals. Combine the personality profile we discussed last week (group participant, loner, indoor or outdoor type, competitive, etc.) with the activity profile we just created and you will be better able to plan a successful fitness program. Be sure you include a balance of formal, functional, and fun exercise in your plans which will help you feel more balanced in all that you do.

The most important thing to remember is this - take time for yourself, whether it's ten minutes a day or two hours. I'm reminded of the hair color commercial which states 'Sure it's expensive, but I'm worth it!' The reality is that your health may be at stake if you don't balance the important time commitments in your life with the time it takes to improve your fitness level and general health. I believe the real question is - can you afford not to?

EDITORIAL

The school budget deserves support

The budget adopted by school committee Monday night — the $5.6 million — will require an override vote unless unexpected money magically appears in the town coffers.

The cost of public education in Cohasset is amazingly low. The state average per pupil cost is listed as $4,862. Cohasset puts up $4,753 per student. Those figures are the most recent available — they cover the 1989-90 school year.

While the budget for fiscal '92 is up 1.4 percent over the current figure, it may well change before town meeting. The number includes no raises for the teachers. Negotiations are just beginning. If negotiations move quickly, the budget could change to reflect any new contract.

At $5.6 million, the school committee has approved a bare bones budget. There is nothing frivolous about the proposal. True, there are some new sports at the high school level. Students pay a user fee of $75 for the first sport, $50 for the second and $25 for the third. Students are willing to pay the fees for lacrosse, sailing, swimming and skiing. It seems reasonable. And there is an amount of $16,000 to add a part-time physical education teacher at the junior/senior high school. The change would allow the health coordinator to teach a health course he had to drop last year when he was pulled into gym classes. The additions found inside the budget book are small and few. They are hard to argue with.

There are no more layoffs projected in this budget.

The layoffs have happened already.

Back in 1980 there were 66 more positions in the Cohasset school system. Some of the reductions have been by percentages of teachers. Now the home economics department is half a teacher. So is industrial arts.

The full-time equivalent loss to the system has been 58.5 positions over the span of 10 years.

From 1980 to 1989, there were 38 positions cut from the budget, according to School Superintendent Stephen Hart.

From 1989 through this fiscal year, there were 28 more reductions in staff. Twelve of the 28 were teachers.

"We have tried to make the cuts in a way that would have as little impact as possible on direct services to students," School Committee Chairman Barbara Bliss said.

So there were three bus drivers who were let go and more students walked — or found private transportation.

Cohasset's per pupil transportation cost is $99 a year. The state average for pupil transportation is $215 a year.

The cuts have pared maintenance and supplies. Some of the cuts were justified when they were made.

There was a time when enrollment was declining.

Enrollment is no longer declining. This year there are 1,161 students. Next year there will be 1,173, according to conservative projections.

This is a small school system that has maintained a comprehensive high school curriculum despite the fact that the numbers offer few economies of scale.

Last year a senior class of 70 students graduated. This year there are 75 seniors. In 1992 there will be 83 seniors. But the larger numbers are in the elementary grades where there are 109 students in grade 1.

Some potential cuts have been identified by school committee in the event they are forced to make due without an increase over last year's budget.

The school committee could have talked about dropping the sports program or running grade 2 classes with 30-something children. School officials have acted in good faith and tried to devise ways that would create the least amount of pain for the people who are most important — our children.

It's time to call a halt to the cutting.

The school committee has voted for a viable and lean budget.

We believe other town officials and indeed the voters of the community need to stand up and be counted as willing to pay reasonable costs to educate our children.

Recreation board opposes CCC bid

(Editor's Note: The following letter was submitted for publication.)

To the Cohasset Community Center, Inc.

The Cohasset Recreation Commission extends their gratitude to the Cohasset Community Center, Inc. for your recent presentation of Cohasset's leisure services.

The recreation commission has discussed and evaluated the content and anticipated effects of your proposal and it is our unanimous conclusion that privatization of Cohasset's municipally administered leisure services does not represent the best interests of residents and Town government.

Our conclusions were made from evaluation of your proposal from a number of perspectives, estimating impact and effect upon residents over the short, as well as long term. Essentially, your proposal transfers most of the recreation commission's assets to the Community Center, while leaving the Town, (taxpayers), with liabilities of on-going, built-in costs that would no longer be offset. In synopsis of our findings, we offer the following observations:

Financial considerations —

Your presentation of recreation commission data were taken from context of our overall operation, causing a myopic, fragmented and misrepresented picture. The projection of savings to the Town was inaccurate and excluded other cost factors you may not be aware of that the Town would have to continue to absorb irregardless of the proposal. Since our full-time operations began in 1976, we have been able to provide an increase of services to residents each year, while decreasing our cost to taxpayers. Realization of 100% financial self-support is close at hand as demonstrated by our current, Fiscal Year 1991, figures. Last Fiscal Year, 1990, our adjusted budgetary cost to each taxpayer was only 1.5 cents, while providing in excess of $200,000 in services to residents of all ages.

Because we have been able to provide most of our services via 100% self-supporting financial systems, savings have been passed on directly to residents with fee charges reflecting the "at cost" price of the service. That is not, most often a prerogative for private enterprise.

Philosophical concerns —

We feel that the approaches, concepts and philosophies between public and private administration of recreation/leisure services are vast and often in direct conflict. Membership, for example, can manifest both social and financial exclusion and under the conditions of your proposal, partial enforcement of membership can often create a class system, causing inequitable access and opportunity.

As a seven member, town elected Commission, our first and primary responsibility is directly to residents and their needs. Once assumed within the structure of private enterprise, the main obligation must always be to the needs of the corporation.

The scope of our responsibility and duties is more inclusive than programming. Your proposal considers only revenue producing programs, but does not consider the other functions which are prescribed to us by state statute and by-law of the Town. Most of these functions are accounted for through time, effort and technical knowledge and are not revenue generating activities.

Historical data —

We find it ironic that a previous Community Center board of director's, in 1955, initiated the formation of the Cohasset Recreation Commission, to "better serve the recreational needs of the Town." It becomes less surprising then, to note that during 1976, the Community Center proposed an agreement with us, pre-designating general areas of programming to each entity, negating duplication of efforts and direct competition. It was our perception in 1976 that your proposed agreement represented the best interests of residents, as it allowed for expanded leisure opportunities. However, within a relatively short period of time, the Community Center began conducting programs disregarding our agreement and directly competing with existing recreation commission services. As demonstrated historically, there appears to be a lack of continuity of thought, purpose, goals and objectives of the Community Center.

In summation, we understand and remain sympathetic to your prerequisite, as a private function, to retain financial stability. However, we also feel that it might be within the context of our 1976 agreement, that the Community Center could achieve this, while at the same time, offer residents a wider scope of opportunity and access to leisure services.

Richard P. Barrow, Chairman

Recreation gives thanks

(The following letter was submitted for publication.)

Dear Mr. Butman,

No less impressive this, than in previous years, is your attention to the Ellm's Meadow Area. The recreation commission extends their most sincere gratitude to you for your continued labors keeping the area free of debris.

Your time and efforts go neither unnoticed, nor unappreciated and I feel certain that all residents of Cohasset join us in our thanks for a job well done, as well as your continued demonstration of leadership.

Kornet supports war effort

To the Editor:

Enough is enough! Will you please print this same letter for your readers which I am sending to Staff Sergeant James J. Smith in Saudi Arabia.

Dear Sgt. Smith,

It is so unfortunate that local press coverage of an insignificant comment should cause you any dismay, or disgust you, much less give you the totally wrong impression about my support for you and all the men and women serving in the Persian Gulf. Your Board of Selectmen, indeed, the entire town supports you and looks forward to your safe return. Last week in Boston I passed a small group of demonstrators against the war in the Gulf and one of their signs read "Support Our Troops! Bring Them Home! This illustrates very well the attitude of pride and support for you all even among those who disagree with our reasons for being there. I personally happen to believe very strongly in the U.S. role in preventing aggression in the world; it is hard to imagine what would have happened if we had stood by and let Saddam Hussein "have" Kuwait.

There are yellow ribbons around the Common, on the base of the flagpole, in the village, and on houses spotted all around town; there are flags of all sizes in new locations — in fact, the standard sizes are sold out in many stores! Flag companies are manning shifts around the clock to meet the demand across the country. I wear a bow of red, white, and blue ribbons in my lapel, which seems to me a better symbol of patriotism, pride in our armed forces, and admiration for the courage you display in serving your country than the color yellow, which has traditionally been associated with cowardice! I have had this opinion ever since the seventies when yellow ribbons began to abound in connection with our hostages being held in Iran. I have never protested if someone wanted to display yellow ribbons; likewise, in this great country with freedom of speech I should be tolerated when I say I like red, white, and blue ones better! The only reason my preference became known was because of a comment made to our Mariner reporter, who generally does a very good job reporting news accurately, when we were correcting whose idea it was at a Selectmen's Meeting to put yellow ribbons on Christmas wreaths.

We are very proud of you, and are with you in spirit during every minute of your duty, whether boring, frightening, tedious, lonesome, or joyous. I hope there are also occasional moments of humor, as it is such good therapy during trying times. Write to us if you want to share more thoughts; we will respond. I look forward to visiting with you upon your return.

Sincerely,
Diana D. Kornet

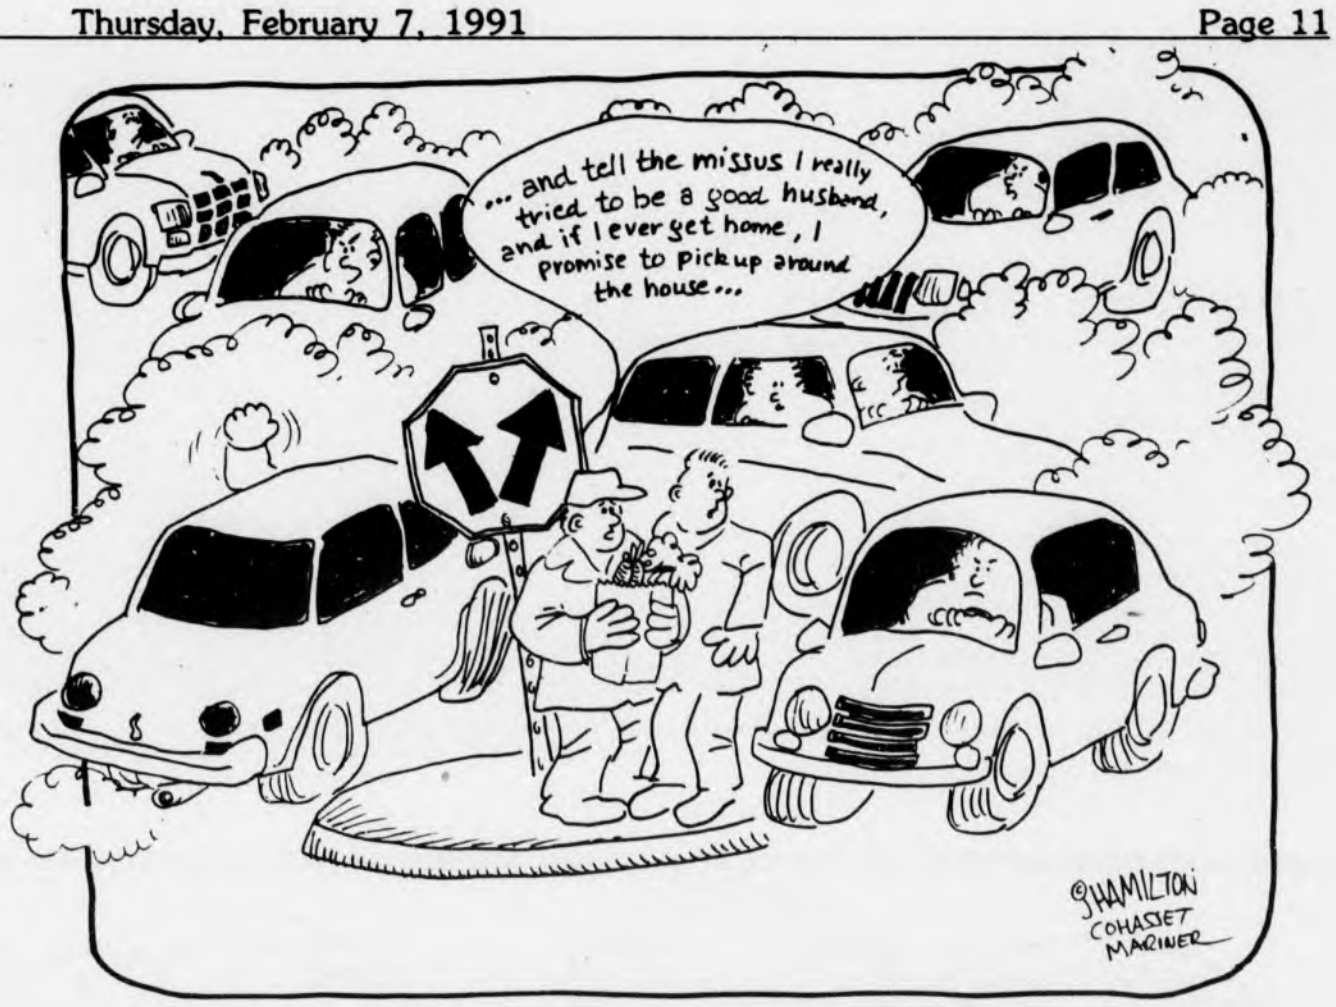
College student likes paper

To the Editor:

I am a freshman at the University of Florida and a graduate of Cohasset High School. I have been receiving the Mariner since I arrived in Gainesville. The beginning of the year was rough for me with the slaying of five students. The Mariner has been an extra, pleasant link to home. It has been so nice to hear the local news despite the distance. Thank you very much.

Sincerely,
Adrienne S. May

Pilgrim challenged by Ott



Mary Ott, Co-Chairman of Duxbury Citizens Urging Responsible Energy (CURE) and a stockholder of the Boston Edison Company, has filed a resolution and supporting statement with the company citing continuing health, safety and economic concerns associated with the operation of the Pilgrim Nuclear Power Station, and urging its immediate closure.

At last year's annual meeting of Edison stockholders, Ott proposed a safety conscious resolution calling for the orderly retirement of Pilgrim Station if preliminary adverse monitoring data could be scientifically validated. She was denied a vote on her motion and ruled out of order by the Chairman of Boston Edison.

The following resolution has been delivered to the Boston Edison Company at this time in order to be included in the proxy statement for the April 1991 annual meeting:

"Resolved, that the stockholders do hereby recommend that the Board of Directors carry out the immediate shutdown of Pilgrim Nuclear Power Station and arrange for its orderly retirement, it being the sense of the stockholders that the potential for physical harm and the risk of plant-related liabilities outweigh the inherent profit potential from continuing Pilgrim operations."

"Health and safety concerns, and the economic exposure of potential class action lawsuits, warrant an immediate shutdown of the Pilgrim Nuclear Power Station," Ott said.

Selectmen have approved a plan to improve the dangerous intersection at King and Beechwood streets. The plan includes a traffic island to create a resting place for pedestrians attempting to cross the wide intersection.

Social Service League help

Services for Seniors is a job registry of 70 private pay workers who offer in-home support services to elders. Names of these workers are provided free of charge to elders in need of assistance with personal care, meal preparation, light housekeeping, shopping, errands, companionship, or respite care. Those wishing to learn more about the program are encouraged to call Mary Beth Worrick, Program Coordinator, at 383-0771 or 383-0821, Tuesday or Thursday from 9 a.m. until noon.

Services for Seniors is a program of the Social Service League of Cohasset and is partially funded by South Shore Elder Services.

Traffic moves slowly on Route 3A these days as construction by King Street causes a bottleneck.

Too many automobiles?

Selectmen expressed frustration with Cohasset Imports. Residents complain on a regular basis that the Route 3A basis exceeds the allowable number of vehicles parked on the lot.

Cohasset Imports is licensed for 20 cars awaiting sale. The most recent complaint accused the business of having more than 40 vehicles on the premise.

"He's continually pushing the limit and going further and further," selectmen Chairman Rocco Laugelle said.

Selectmen think the company has a loophole since the limit applies to the number of vehicles offered for sale. The building inspector has been told the overflow capacity represents cars waitingfor repairs and employees' vehicles.

Selectmen directed Executive Secretary Greg Doyon to find out precisely what recourses they have for dealing with violations of license conditions.

Millie Mitman helps South Shore Hospital raise funds

Millie Mitman has been named Cohasset town chairman of the South Shore Health and Educational Foundation's capital campaign.

The Foundation seeks to raise community support for new projects and programs at South Shore Hospital. The capital campaign is raising funds for the hospital's $15.9 million emergency department and obstetric unit, which is currently under construction and scheduled to open in 1991. Eighty percent of the project's cost is being financed through tax-exempt bonds; the remainder, $3.2 million, is being raised through community donations.

A former teacher, Mitman has been active in the community, including having served as president of the League of Women Voters and as chairman of the parish committee for the First Parish Unitarian Church in Cohasset.

Cohasset woman works for a nonviolent world

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Shuma Chakravarty loves to show the videocassette, Our Planet Earth, with its images of Earth from outer space and interviews with astronauts and cosmonauts. It conveys the urgency she feels about protecting earth.

From outer space, Earth looks like a fragile, blue Christmas ornament. The men and women who have looked down at it from space speak of their hopes that people will take care of this irreplaceable bit of blue and green floating in space.

Chakravarty has developed a resource center dedicated to taking better care of the earth and its inhabitants. The center operates through Hingham-based OMNI Designs for Life, a non-profit educational and health center.

The resource center will offer participants an opportunity to become more involved in ecological, humanitarian and cultural issues. The center will hold meetings and events, establish a newsletter and provide an extensive library of print and media offerings.

Chakravarty takes as her guide the old adage that it is better to light a candle than curse the darkness.

"Although these are dark days, they are filled with enormous hopes," she said. Chakravarty hopes to link forces with others hoping to light a candle and shield it from stormy weather.

Although Chakravarty is the assistant minister of the Vedanta Centre, she stresses that the resource center is entirely separate from the Vedanta Centre.

"I think it is important for people, particularly clergy, not to be too dependent on their institutions, but to allow themselves the freedom of independent, creative, altruism," she said.

"My commitment is to spiritual and humane values. I will continue to be a peace pilgrim wherever I happen to be and to serve these ideals of peace, ecology and culture to the best of my ability."

OMNI Designs for living is the perfect home for the resource center. For the past ten years, OMNI has devoted its energies to helping people balance the physical, mental, emotional and spiritual aspects of their life.

Rita Roberts founded OMNI in 1980 as alternative evening school offering courses on life management skills, preventive health care, awareness and fitness. Today, she shares the responsibilities of the center with co-director Cara Gallucci.

The center had its first homes in the Old Ship Parish House and the New England Friends' Home in Hingham. In 1984, it moved to Norwell where it remained until returning to its Hingham roots.

OMNI
Designs for Life
Center for Balancing Body, Mind, and Spirit

Although classes and lectures are held at a variety of locations in the greater Boston, Cambridge and South Shore areas, OMNI makes itself at home on Lafayette Avenue in Hingham.

OMNI expanded its services over the years. The center added health practitioners and associated health care to meet the needs and interests of residents of the South Shore.

In addition to traditional Western psychotherapies and chiropractic, trained practitioners specializing in meditation, guided imagery and visualization, dream work, reiki healing, applied kinesthesiology, acupuncture, and Kripalu bodywork provide private consultations and individual appointments.

Additionally, OMNI offers Ayurvedic medicine in association with the Maharishi Ayrurveda Health Center.

Gallucci specializes in relaxation and visualization therapies, as well as reiki healing. Many people find these therapies helpful in dealing with stress, anxiety and fear, she said. Gallucci particularly recommends them as an adjunct to traditional medicine for people suffering from severe illnesses such as heart disease or cancer.

Learning to control stress helps maintain wellness, Gallucci said.

"It enhances the natural healing process and allows us to cope with pain and fear," she explained.

One example Gallucci gave dealt with managing the stress produced by the war in the Persian Gulf. Individuals feel powerless because they cannot affect the course of war and peace, she said.

"But we can control stress by deciding how much news we will watch and when we will watch it," Gallucci explained. Choosing not to focus on war at mealtimes or immediately before going to bed helps to maintain a healthy "inner ecology."

Each quarter, OMNI presents a wide variety of educational programs. Instructors represent the cultural richness of the greater Boston area.

Participants can read and create romantic poetry, study of the world of Tudor England, explore the world through film and photography or learn how to nurture themselves through a healthy diet. Other programs focus on the spiritual needs of children, an evening of sitar music and a vegetarian feast in honor of Valentine's Day and Sri Ramakrishna's birthday and exploring life after death.

If we are facing in the Right Direction,
all we need do is keep on walking. . . .
-- an ancient Buddhist expression

Some programs continue for seven to eight weeks, others are one-day workshops.

For more information about the resource center or the winter programs, call 749-4908, or write OMNI Designs for Life, P.O. Box 242, Hingham, MA 02043

METCO plans conference

The METCO Directors Association is announcing its Seventh Annual Spring Conference, scheduled for Friday, March 22, at the Burlington Marriott in Burlington. The conference is entitled "The Urban African-American Child in the Suburban School Setting: Revisioning Success."

The intended audience includes METCO staff, superintendents, other school administrators, teachers and other education leaders from suburban communities participating in the METCO program.

For more conference information, telephone the Newton METCO office at 552-7655.

Math League results set

The eighth grade at Cohasset Junior High School participated in the third Continental Math League Contest on Jan. 10. All eighth graders in the Honors and the Advanced level classes participated.

In The Pythagorean Division there were several excellent scores. The following students received exceptional scores. Dean Volungis had six points which is a perfect score. Those scoring five points were Chris Adams, Corinna McMackin, Brendan Mulligan, Jeremiah Stevenson and with four points Jessica Connor, Caitlin Hurley and Dawn Meehan.

In the Euclidean Division those receiving four points were Jemeliah Afshar, Aaron Coon, and Tom Lavoie. Good work eighth graders.

The following students are the leading scorers so far this year: Corinna McMackin and Dean Volungis in the Euclidean Division which is given to Honors students and Thomas Lavoie in the Pythagorean Division which is given to Advanced students.

There will be two more contests this year during February and March.

Vacation program offered

The Cohasset Recreation Department will be hosting a February vacation program at the Deer Hill School, Tuesday, Feb. 19 to Friday, Feb. 22 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The program will be open to children 3-12 years of age. The program includes game time, bowling, arts and crafts, and much more. Please call the recreation office at 383-6791 to register.

The Cohasset Recreation Department's annual Christmas vacation week program at the Deer Hill School turned out to be a hit with the 25 children who attended the program. The children spent the week playing games, hanging out with friends and showing off their Christmas gifts. Not to mention, they went bowling and spent an afternoon with Nancy Connolly from the Art Center, who taught them a few things about clay. Ted Carroll directed the program, assisted by Lyn Pompeo, George Umbrianna, Liz Muncey, Liz O'Leary, Jen Endris and Jessica MacDonald.

The Recreation Department will hold vacation programs during February and April school vacation weeks. Please call 383-6791 for information.

'Cheaper by the Dozen'

"Cheaper By The Dozen," a comedy for the whole family based on the book by Frank Gilbreth and Ernestine Gilbreth Carey, will be presented by the Cohasset Drama Club at the Cohasset Town Hall, March 8 and 9 at 8 p.m. and March 10 at 2 p.m. For tickets call 545-1549.

Sexton runs pre-school

The Carriage House Nursery School recently announced the appointment of Anne Sexton as head teacher for the four-day Pre-Kindergarten program.

She has extensive experience in early childhood education. Her training includes certification for teaching in England, and degrees from both Norwalk Community College and Norwich University. Anne's graduate education was at Wheelock College.

Prior to moving to Cohasset, Anne was head teacher at the Westport-Weston Cooperative in Fairfield County Connecticut. Most recently, she was program director at Country Academy Children's Center in Weymouth.

For more information about the Pre-Kindergarten program, call the Carriage House School at 383-9785. Registrations began Feb. 8.

Pioneer Financial, A Cooperative Bank, with an office at 69 Washington Street in Norwell, along with the Higher Education Information Center, will host a free Financial Aid Fair for college-bound students and their parents on Saturday, Feb. 9. The Fair is from 10 a.m to 1 p.m. and will be held in the Grand Ballroom of the Newton Marriott.

In an effort to educate those interested in obtaining financial aid, Pioneer Financial and the Higher Education Information Center have invited experts including Thomas O'Hare from the Massachusetts Higher Education Assistance Corporation (MHEAC) and Marilyn Molnar of Bentley College to explain how to complete the Financial Aid Forms (FAF), who is eligible for financial assistance and which financial aid programs are available.

Representatives from various Boston area colleges and universities are participating in this event and will be present to provide useful information and answer questions on a personal basis. Among those schools participating are Bentley College, University of Massachusetts–Boston, Suffolk University, Wheaton College, Wheelock College, Boston University, Framingham State, Emerson College, Boston College, Clark University, Gordon College and Harvard Graduate School of Education.

Those interested in registering for the Financial Aid Fair, should call 321-3700 extension 2232.

TNT presents show

That New Theater's production of "A Flea in Her Ear" opens Thursday, Feb. 7 at 8 p.m. at Cushing Center, Route 123, Norwell.

Performances continue Feb. 8 and 9 at the same time. Reserved-seating tickets can be ordered in advance by calling 878-1298 or 826-7983, or purchased at the door. Tickets are $10 general admission, and $9 for seniors.

The deliciously naughty comedy features 14 of the South Shore's most talented performers and is directed by Judy Holmes. When "A Flea in Her Ear" opened on Broadway in 1969, the New York Times drama critic wrote, "It is witty, graceful, and, I assure you, provides one of the best evenings, and certainly one of the funniest, you will get in the theater this season."

Rediscover World's End

As Discovery Day draws near, The Trustees of Reservations members focus on events for celebrating the 1891 founding of the trustees by Charles Eliot.

On Saturday, June 22, World's End activities will include music, hay rides, sheep herding, horse-drawn carriages, picnics, birds of prey, boat races, and more. The public is invited free of charge.

Those interested in helping plan the event should call Lynne Layman at 545-0096, or the Trustees of Reservations office at 821-2977.

Bush featured on 'Pierson'

On Thursday, Feb. 7, James L. Bush will be the only guest on Pierson to Person.

Bush, President George Bush's nephew, is president of Bush & Company of Hingham and the founder and president of the "I Have a Dream—Boston" program.

The Boston effort has selected 111 fifth grade students at the Mather School in Dorchester to assist them to stay in school and ultimately continue on to college. Bush and his wife, Sue, established the Boston program two years ago.

I have a dream—Boston, Inc., is one of 140 programs of its kind in 40 cities across the nation. Nearly 10,000 school children are involved. More than $40 million in private funding has been committed to these programs.

Pierson to Person is hosted by Wigmore A. Pierson and is broadcast live each Thursday evening, 8-9 p.m. on Channels 3 and 53 in Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Norover.

For further information call Robert Belliveau, Executor Producer of Pierson to Person at 545-0643.

Substance abuse talk set

The Cohasset Drug and Alcohol Committee cordially invites parents and students to an Open House/Forum on Sunday, Feb. 10, from 2 to 4 p.m., at Bates Hall at the Second Congregational Church.

The purpose of the reception is to discuss future possibilities and to evaluate the program.

Wilcutt Fund aids elderly

Fifty-eight years ago the Levi Lincoln Willcutt Fund was founded for the benefit of Aged Protestant couples, residing in Plymouth County Towns and the town of Cohasset.

The Social Service League of Cohasset provides the casework services necessary for the implementation and continuance of the conditions of the Trust.

Recipients who qualify for the Fund receive a monthly supplement of reimbursement for Trustee approved expenses e.g. medical, or maintenance of household.

The League will be reviewing the eligibility of Protestant couples and invites any inquiries regarding the Fund. Please call the Social Service League Office for further information Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., at 383-0771 or 383-0821.

Girls Basketball team finally delivers win

"The girls really wanted it" said Bostwick, "they were diving on the floor for loose balls, communicating with one another, and they out-hustled Carver."

Leading the Skippers was sophomore Allison Ludlow who scored 22 points, including three 3-pointers, and senior Barbara Lagrotteria added 19 points.

At Rockland, Cohasset was facing the league's leading scorer in Colleen Reale, and the league's top team. Rockland got ahead by 28-8 at the half and never looked back. "The girls attitude was to do their best" Bostwick said. "They hustled and played well, but were oversized by Rockland."

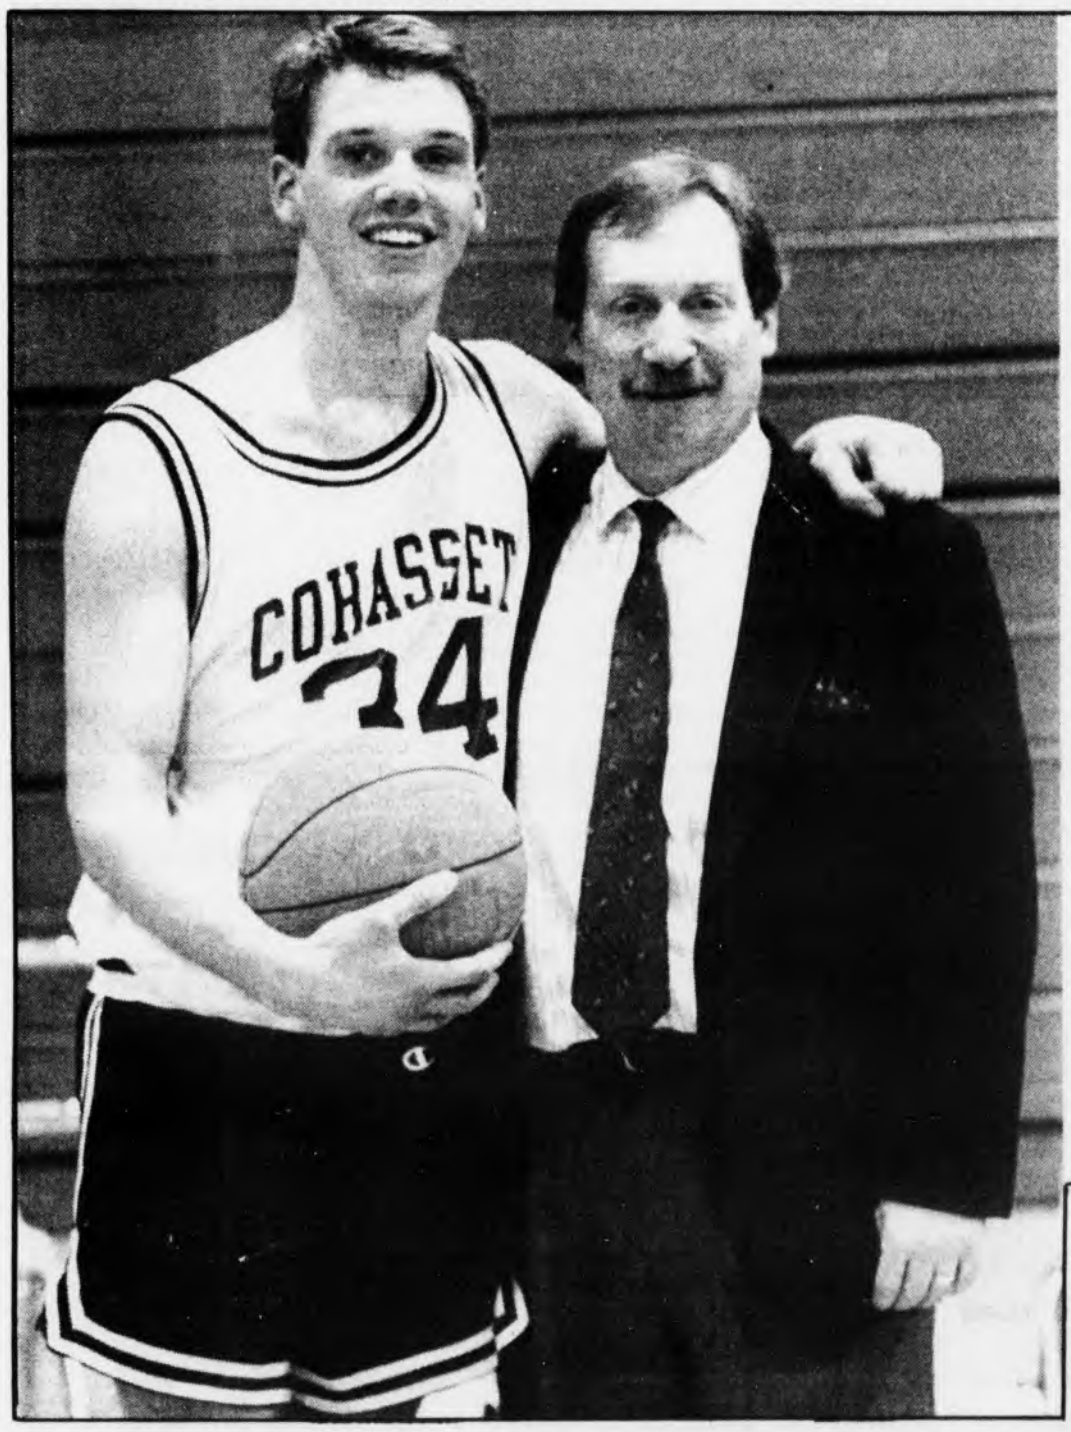
Bostwick gives credit to the girls who have contributed all year, including her three captains, seniors Kay and Maureen Long, and junior Heather Bass. Kerry Murphy, Allison Ludlow, Barbara Lagrotteria, Jennifer Knowles, and Katy Karroll have all contributed to the cause this year.

Swimming

The foundation is being laid here this year, as Cohasset competes in swimming for the first time ever as a varsity sport. Consider the facts; they don't have a pool to practice in, and the school does not have a large population from which to draw swimmers, but for what they lack in facilities and numbers, they make up for with spirit and enthusiasm.

"There has been a long history of interest in swimming during the summers at Cohasset, so it seemed a shame that the kids couldn't swim as a high school sport" said coach Linda Henderson. "I'm hoping that as swimming becomes more popular, we will have more people come out."

The first year team has already compiled accomplishments, such as beating North Quincy in the swimming portion of their meet 85-82, only to lose the diving section. A similar pattern occurred against Sandwich, as Cohasset tied them in the swimming portion, only to lose the diving.



Cohasset has qualified two swimmers for the South Sectional Finals February 15 and 16 in Quincy; junior Chris Henderson in the butterfly and freshman Dave Leahy in the 100 breaststroke. Cohasset has also qualified three relay teams; the 200 medley relay team of junior Simon Payne, Leahy, Henderson, and junior Chip Anderson; the 200 yard freestyle team of Henderson, Anderson, junior John Brister, and Leahy; and the 400 yard freestyle team of eighth-graders Nik Hawks and Tom Greco, junior John Kisiel, and Payne.

On the year, Nik Hawks has swum the 500 freestyle and finished first against North Quincy, second against Sandwich, and third against New Bedford. John Brister came in first in the 50 freestyle against North Quincy, and John Kisiel has finished second or third in the 200 individual medley in all his meets. Dave Leahy has finished first in three of his four meets in the 100 yard breaststroke. Tom Greco "has competed with lots of spirit and has reduced his times" Henderson said. "He never gets discouraged and has accumulated points for us." Chip Anderson and Chris Henderson have been the mainstays of Cohasset all year.

"I'm proud of these kids" Henderson said. "All year, they've done very well."

Gymnastics

In a meet on Jan. 28, the Cohasset gymnastics team lost to Norwell 111.3-103.7. In the meet, Tara Gallager finished third in the bars, third in the beam, fourth in the vault, and fourth in the all-around. Noel Roma finished fourth in the bars, and fourth in the beam. Erin Sutherland was tied for third in the floor exercises and finished third in the all-around. Marnie DeMichele finished fourth in the floor exercises to round out the scoring for Cohasset.

Coach Arnold Repucci congratulates Linc Marzac on scoring 1,000 points over his basketball career.

Gymnasts take first win

On Jan. 30, Cohasset met with Hanover High at Hanover Junior High School and took on their first victory of the season. Cohasset 105.3 to Hanovers 94.5.

"With two girls out sick and one gymnast limited because of a back injury, we were still able to blow Hanover away." "It was a win greatly deserved, after having six losses," Coach Sargent said.

Tara Gallagher led Cohasset with a 30.55 all around score taking first place on every event with a second on the balance beam.

"On Bars Cohasset took first through third place" comments Sargent.

First Place, Tara Gallagher; Second Place, Noel Roma Sr., and Third Place, Nicole Haefner.

"Hanovers' Kristen Korseniewski took first place on the balance beam with Tara Gallagher second. Tara missed first place by less than a tenth of a point." Noel Roma took a third on the beam.

During the vault exercise, Tara Gallagher placed first once again, followed by Hanovers' Heather Richards second, and Rebecca Hackenburg third for Cohasset.

Tumbling over to the floor exercise, Cohasset again took first through third place. Tara Gallagher first, Erin Sutherland second, and Marnie DeMichele third on floor.

"It was a great win, Cohasset came in first through third on every event except for Beam and Vault."

Marnie DeMichele placed third in the all-around competition with 24.0.

Ski trip to Black Mt. set

The Cohasset Recreation Department will accept telephone registrations for a day, ski trip, scheduled for Sunday, March 3, to Black MT., Jackson, N.H. The per person cost for this trip is $44 and checks should be payable to: 'Town of Cohasset.' Payments must be made prior to Friday, Feb. 15.

Participants who wish to rent equipment at Black Mt. may do so by bringing $16 cash the day of the trip. However, should you want to rent, please indicate so at the time you register. Lessons are available at Black Mt. and cost $14, which also should be brought in cash the day of the trip.

The motor coach will leave from Town Hall at 5:30 a.m., on Sunday, March 3, and return at about 7:15 p.m., to Town Hall. Participants may call for a ride from the recreation office, once the bus has returned that evening. All participants are asked to report to Town Hall no later than 5:15 a.m.

To register, please call the Cohasset Recreation Office at: 383-6791, as soon as possible. Mr. and Mrs. Earle Bestick will chaperone this trip, as they have volunteered to do many times before.

The Cohasset Recreation Department will continue new sessions for the winter-adult programs to March: Furniture Restoration-Repair-Refinishing; Aerobic Exercise classes, (low impact); Mixed Adult Volleyball, (beginner and advanced groups); Bridge lessons; Ski Trips, (on Youth bus, when space allows); Indoor Golf classes for beginners and Dog Obedience Training classes, (beginner thru advanced levels).

Details will be announced during late winter for spring, adult programs, which will include: Scuba Diving Classes; Seaside Landscape Design classes; U.S.C.G.A. Safe Boating Course/Certification, (ages 12 and over); Tennis Lessons and expanded Outdoor Golf Lessons. Many adult programs are offered on a year-round basis and for further information, or registration, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department office at 383-6791. Special events and activities will be announced at least two weeks prior to date of the event.

Troop 28 has busy winter

November and December were busy months for Troop 28 of Cohasset. The beginning of November found the Scouts, accompanied by Webelos from Pack 38 of Cohasset, camping in tents at Mount Moosiluake, Warren, New Hampshire. The boys awoke to four fresh inches of snow that had fallen during the night.

The troop held a Court of Honor later that month. Congratulations to Jerry Cogill, Frank Abadie, and Dan Preston for advancing to Tenderfoot rank and to Josh Preston for achieving First Class. Jay Nothnagle was awarded the annual Silver Paddle Award, he also received a scout jacket for 100 hours of service at Cohasset's Recycling Transfer Facility. Thanksgiving Day Josh Preston, Frank Abadie and Dan Preston traveled to Little Brothers Friends of the Elderly, in Boston. There they helped distribute Thanksgiving dinners to elderly people, in their homes. One Scout said, "This is what Scouts is all about," showing his pride.

December started with another camping trip to the White Mountains. That weekend the Scouts went snowshoeing and climbed to the summit of Mount Middle Sugarloaf. Everyone commented on the awesome views from atop and the spectacular star gazing that evening. The program, at the weekly meetings, focused on First Aid and Safety. There was also, a discussion of proper emergency equipment and use, while hiking. Ending the year with a holiday party, Patrol Leaders Josh Preston and Lodovico Sestito made presentations on Chanukah and Christmas.

Future scheduled troop activities include: winter camping, Bruins' game, Klondike Derby, scout swim, canoeing, rock climbing, and island camping. Any boys interested in participating are welcome to attend one of the meetings. The Scouts meet on Monday nights, at the Joseph Osgood School, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Howie Motenko, Scoutmaster, may be reached at 545-0127 for further information.

Step aerobic classes set

The Cohasset Community Center is offering an exciting new class on Saturday mornings from 9 to 10 a.m. The class is a Step Aerobics Class led by Normandie Nigh. If you are looking for variety in your workout and increased aerobic efficiency, this is the answer. Step Aerobics is the perfect exercise for all levels of fitness, male or female. This program provides an intensive workout in a relatively short period of time based on the principals most orthopedics use in patient rehabilitation. This program combines cardiovascular training with muscle toning in a unique, low-stress, high intensity program. It uses an adjustable platform from four to 12 inches high and participants step up and down in a variety of basic movements. Hand weights can be added to enhance muscle toning and strength training. The Step program claims to burn 35 percent more fat than regular aerobics programs. The stress on the body is the same as in walking and the aerobic benefits are similar to those associated with running at seven miles an hour. Classes are available on a monthly basis ($20) or you may drop-in for $6 per class. Call 383-0088 to register.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS SUPERIOR COURT NORFOLK, ss. NO. 91-223

To Rita Cann aka Rita R. Cann and to all persons entitled to the benefit of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940 as amended.

GREETING: Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation Claiming to be the holder of a mortgage covering real property situated in 23 Cedar Acres Lane, Cohasset, County of Norfolk, Massachusetts given by Rita Cann a/k/a Rita R. Cann to Home Owners Federal Savings and Loan Association dated May 3, 1984 and recorded with Norfolk Registry of Deeds in book 6391 page 133 has filed with said court a bill in equity for authority to foreclose said mortgage in the manner following: by entry to foreclose and by exercise of power of sale set forth in said mortgage.

If you are entitled to the benefits of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940 as amended, and you object to such foreclosure, you or your attorney should file a written appearance and answer in said court at Dedham on or before March 8, 1991 or you may be forever barred from claiming that such foreclosure is invalid under said act.

Witness, Robert L. Steadman, Esquire, Chief Justice of our Superior Court, the 24th day of January in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ninety one.

Nicholas Barbadoro
Clerk.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS THE TRIAL COURT THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT NORFOLK DIVISION DOCKET NO. 90P2142E1

Estate of ROBIN E. LAGEMANN AKA: ROBIN LAGEMANN late of COHASSET In the County of NORFOLK
NOTICE

A petition has been presented in the above-captioned matter praying that the last will and codicil of said decedent be proved and allowed and that PETER J. LAGEMANN of GREENWICH in the State of CONNECTICUT be appointed executor named in the will without surety on the bond.

If you desire to object to the allowance of said petition, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before 10:00 in the forenoon on March 6, 1991.

In addition you should file a written statement of objections to the petition, giving the specific grounds therefore, within thirty (30) days after the return day (or such other time as the Court, on motion with notice to the petitioner, may allow) in accordance with Probate Rule 16.

Witness, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court at Dedham, the twenty-eighth day of January, one thousand nine hundred and ninety-one.

Thomas Patrick Hughes

Police log is the first to go

By Patricia Desmond
Mariner staff

Answers to our questionaire on our readers' priorities have once again pointed out the need for local news — brief, timely and relevant.

While the results are only preliminary, there was a definite point of agreement. Readers buy newspapers for news. They buy local newspapers for local news.

One reader suggested we drop South Look and concentrate on truly local stories.

Well, South Look is included within the Cohasset Mariner every week as a second section — it is also included within every other Mariner newspaper in the group. It is our advertising department's way of competing with the daily newspapers for advertising dollars. Newspapers are a business. Without advertising revenue, they could not exist.

Because South Look brings in money that might have gone to the dailies, rather than money the Cohasset Mariner had a chance of attracting, our news hole — the space allocated for stories and artwork — would not change.

The Cohasset Mariner is produced totally separate from South Look. We try to avoid duplicating materials that appear in South Look's calendar. We leave the tide chart to SL. We count on the fact that people who run events with a regional following will send their releases to SL, the regional part of the Mariner. SL has its own deadline, eight days prior to publication — its own editor, Laurie Kaiser — its own philosphy.

So SL stays.

What will be going, based on the first batch of surveys, is the police log. So far only one reader answering the questionaire wanted to read the log.

Should the trend change as more results flow into the mailbox, the decision may be reconsidered. And certainly we expect that the time will come soon when we will need more material as the number of pages available rise along with the overall economy.

Some of the answers have been a surprise. While there is bound to be disagreement about most every issue, we were surprised to see some replies that picked out our sports and school coverage as being too heavy.

We happen to think that covering the schools is an important local news function. We also think school and community sports coverage is valuable.

But we are open to trimming excess words everywhere.

As we explained last week, this newspaper runs with a news hole that's 50 percent of the paper. The other 50 percent of the paper is taken up by paid advertising. As soon as advertising increases, the space available for news will increase.

Protulis injured fighting fire in Hingham

Robert Protulis, a veteran firefighter, was injured Wednesday, when he fell through the first floor of a burning house in Hingham.

Protulis was transported by a Hull ambulance to South Shore Hospital in Weymouth. As the Mariner went to press there was no word on the extent of his injuries, or whether he received neck or back damage.

Protulis was responding to a two-alarm house fire on Fisher Road in Hingham. Other than a Hingham firefighter who was treated for smoke inhalation no other injuries were reported.

The cause of the fire, which gutted the home, is still under investigation.

Schools and police head town pay list

By Joseph Mont
Mariner staff

School and police officials led the list of the best paid town employees for 1990, according to town records.

Only 22 of the town's 556 employees earn more than $45,000; nine employees earn more than $50,000 a year.

School Supt. Stephen Hart tops the list of the town's best paid employees, earning $69,506.

Mary Ellen Gallagher, the principal at the high school, comes in second with earnings of $58,369.

John Leary, the head of the school guidance department comes third with a salary of $55,784.

Kenneth Ekberg, the principal at Deer Hill School earned $55,401 for a fourth place showing.

Police Chief Joseph Kealey earned $55,355.

Fire Chief Daniel Brock was the fourth best paid town employee with $55,021.

David Pomarico, a police sergeant, earned $51,688. This amount includes $7,913 he earned in off-duty detail pay.

Private ambulance companies reject specifications

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Plans to privatize the town ambulance service appear to have run into a brick wall.

Only two private ambulance companies submitted bids on the service and neither bid meets the bid specifications.

"We cannot award the bid," Executive Secretary Greg Doyon told selectmen. He anticipates it will take two weeks to fully analyze the returns. The town could opt to rebid the contract or put out a request for proposal.

Doyon said the bid specifications were drawn up to replicate the service currently provided to townspeople. Eight ambulance companies requested copies of the specifications.

Only four companies sent returns. Two of them simply outlined the reasons they were declining to bid on the service.

The two companies that did not bid were Fallon Ambulance and Norfolk-Bristol. They declined because they specifications were set too high, according to Doyon.

Some of the specific problems they cited were the high number of EMTs required on staff, the high level of qualifications and experience for the EMTs, excessively high insurance requirements compared to their present coverage and inability to meet the fee system required under the bid.

Norfolk-Bristol wrote that the level of services in the bid package was well beyond what they currently provide.

Chaulk Ambulance submitted a bid that ranged rom $177,908 to $227,608 depending on the options. Brewster Ambulance said they would charge 339,375 to $396,575.

The town offered four options, varying according o whether the town provides garage, office and dispatch service or not.

None of the bids adhered to the specifications. Doyon said the largest area of discrepancy was in he fee schedule. Rather than use the town's fees for ransport, the companies said they would bill in accordance with "usual and customary fees." Those ees were not spelled out, Doyon said.

The specifications were carefully designed to determine whether a private service could provide mbulance coverage at less cost.

"It was hard to get enough apples to compare," Selectman Diana Kornet said.

Selectmen move behind recreation takeover plan

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Selectmen endorsed the Community Center of Cohasset's plan to take over town recreation programs in a 3-1 vote. Selectman Martha Gjesteby voted against the proposal.

Under the proposal, the community center would provide the programs currently offered by the recreation department at no cost to the town. They said there will be no increase in cost to participants.

The recreation commission would retain some functions, such as issuing beach stickers and managing the skating pond.

The recreation commission opposes the takeover. John Worley, recreation director, said new changes in state regulations will allow the department to operate on a budget raised through user fees alone.

Last Saturday the community center asked the advisory committee to recommend a zero budget for the recreation department at town meeting to push the takeover process along.

Selectman Jane Goedecke thought the request put the advisory committee in an awkward position.

Goedecke said the advisory committee is not supposed to set or influence policy decisions. The course the community center asked them to take would be setting policy by line item veto.

"It is not appropriate for the advisory committee to dictate policy through the budget process."

Skippers endure more close finishes

By Brian W. Saxton
Special to the Mariner

The Cohasset boys' basketball team had a tough week, dropping a 51-50 decision to Norton on Feb. 5, then lost to Hanover 57-43 on Feb. 8. The Skippers fell to 4-11 in the league, 5-12 overall.

The bright spot in the Norton game was Linc Marsac scoring his career 1,000th point. It came on two free throws at the 9:00 mark of the first half. "This is the result of three years of outstanding basketball by Linc" said Cohasset coach Arnold Repucci. "I want to thank all the fans and parents who have supported us all year; it's deeply appreciated by myself and the players."

Cohasset was able to jump out to a 29-21 halftime lead on Norton, and stretched the lead to 14 points with four minutes to go in the game. Norton then came with the full-court press that rattled the Skippers, who were missing the ball handling of Kywon Edwards in the game due to an earlier injury.

Linc Marsac scored 14 points for Cohasset, sophomore Sheldon Morgan had 12 and senior Caleb Slotink added 10 points.

Against Hanover, the Skippers "ran into an emotional team" Repucci said. "They were up and we were flat." Hanover had dedicated the game to their coach, Eddie Anarel who was stricken with cancer this year. Hanover came out flying, jumping to a 17-2 lead and never looked back.

Linc Marsac led Cohasset with 28 points. "We don't have the personal experience to handle a team that is emotionally intense" summed up Repucci.

COHASSET'S WEEK

Override splits board

Selectmen failed to reach consensus on the best way to present an override to Cohasset voters. The issue will be on the agenda when they meet again Feb. 25.

Town officials plan to introduce a override of at least $250,000 to fund the operating budget for fiscal 1992.

Selectman Martha Gjesteby strongly recommended a single override question.

"The town is one town," Gjesteby said. "We need it for everybody. It's just the mathematics of it all.

"When everything is so strapped, you don't want to pit one department against another."

Gjesteby also worried that it would be impossible to get a citizen lobby group for split questions.

Selectmen Chairman Rocco Laugelle took the opposite tack.

"I think you have to keep them separated," he said. "There are some I want to vote on and some I don't."

Selectman Jane Goedecke was torn between the two positions.

"In my heart I feel it all has to be together," she said. On the other hand, she believes voters will veto a single override but might pass specifically earmarked overrides.

Several times they referred to the fact that last year's modest general override of $120,000 was defeated. They fear the same fate may lie in store for this year's override if they don't find the key to convince voters the override is essential.

Gulf War honor roll grows

Cohasset's honor roll of residents serving in the Persian Gulf expanded by one this week.

Selectmen learned that Sgt. David D. Cuddahy Jr. of Oak Street was deployed to Saudi Arabia in August 1990. He serves with a heavy armor tank company.

According to a recent letter received by his mother, Cuddahy is camped approximately 10 miles from the Kuwaiti border.

Letters and packages should be sent to:
Sgt. David D. Cuddahy Jr.
0115-56-5915
C Co. 4th Batt. 64th Armor Cobras
Operation Desert Storm
APO New York 09315

Selectmen are trying to compile a complete list of Cohasset men and women serving in Operation Desert Storm. Names, home address and military address should be sent to the selectmen's office in town hall.

Selectmen Chairman Rocco Laugelle said the American Legion also is collecting the names of people in the service.

Students at Deer Hill School were recently awarded gold medals for their work for a recent read-a-thon that earned more than $7,816. (Staff photo by John Stobierski)

Village Gourmet licensed

Selectmen granted a common victualler's license for the Village Gourmet at 5 So. Main Street.

The tiny restaurant opened a few weeks ago. Owner/operator James M. Charves Jr. apologized for neglecting to apply for the license earlier. He told selectmen he was not aware that an establishment as small as his needed a common victualler's license. The restaurant only seats eight patrons.

Charves received unsolicited testimonials from fellow businessmen and two selectmen.

The abutting businessmen praised his efforts to create an attractive business in the village.

Selectmen Diana Kornet and Jane Goedecke praised the food.

"Their cookies are great," Kornet said.

"This is a great asset to the town," Goedecke added. "I speak from experience.

Little League to parade

The Little League will be able to kick off their season in the traditional manner again this year.

Selectmen approved the Opening Day ceremony and parade for Saturday, April 27 at 8:15 a.m.

Selectmen Chairman Rocco Laugelle encouraged residents to turn out for the festivities.

Board approves fee increases

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Selectmen approved a package of fee increases to help keep their budget in balance.

Under the new scheme of things, resident can expect to pay more for parking tickets, street opening fees and beach stickers.

PARKING FINES

Parking fines will rise from $10 to $15 effective Jan. 1, 1992. The new fee matches the maximum fine currently permissible under state law.

Executive Secretary Greg Doyon thinks the town will gain an additional $2,500 in revenue.

Most of the fines are imposed during the winter months when residents violate the overnight parking restrictions.

Fines for illegally parking in handicapped parking spaces are currently set at $15 for the first offense and $25 for the second. Selectmen have asked the handicapped commission for their recommendations on an increase. State law permits fines as high as $100.

STREET OPENING FEES

Residents would pay $50 for the first 150 feet of a street opening rather than $25. An additional $25 would be charged for each increment of 150 feet.

Fees for emergency street openings — those done in the winter months or without prior permit — would rise to $100. Selectmen justified the higher fee saying the roads required closer scrutiny for a longer period of time following an emergency opening.

Doyon expects to get $2,000 more with the increases.

The town water department would be excluded from fees for street opening.

BEACH STICKERS

Residents will pay $10 for a trip to the beach instead of the current $7 under the new scheme of things. Business owners will pay the same fee. Special rates will continue to be available for replacement stickers and senior citizens.

Additionally, non-resident mooring holders will pay $20 instead of $15 to park at Government Island.

Doyon calculated increased revenues of $5,600 through these fees.

Selectman Jane Goedecke voted for the increase reluctantly. She said the last time the rates were raised, selectmen did not raise them high enough.

"So here we are, nickel and diming the populace to death," Goedecke said.

Selectman Diana Kornet refused to vote in favor of the increase.

"I will not vote for the rise until the whole issue of the recreation department is put to rest," Kornet said. Currently the beach sticker revenues go into the recreation department budget although they have no responsibility for caring for the beach or parking lot. Kornet was the lone objector.

Selectmen want beach stickers handled by mail to reduce demands on staff time.

Override of $250,000 possible

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Town officials agreed to recommend one budget at the April 6 town meeting.

They estimate funding that budget will require an override of approximately $250,000.

Officials will present the budget at town meeting, but postpone the vote until after the April 13 election results on the override question are in.

They made the decision last week during a long range planning committee meeting. The committee consists of members of the school committee, advisory committee, the town accountant, the executive secretary and selectmen.

Originally, town department heads were told to prepare a level-funded budget and a level-services budget for presentation at town meeting. Town officials believed the difference would make it clear what services would be lost if an override request failed.

"The positive part of having two votes is it reassures voters that what you say will happen, happens," Selectman Jane Goedecke said.

Others argued that including two budgets in the warrant sends mixed messages to voters.

School committee member Ralph Kidder said two budgets "would muddle the issue."

School committee Chairman Barbara Bliss agreed.

"The implication is that plan B (the level-funded budget) is also OK which is bad psychologically," Bliss said.

The school committee, selectmen and advisory committee said they have been unable to level fund several budgets under their control without severe cuts in personnel and essential services.

According to Town Accountant Mary Gallagher, the town only has $75,000 more to spend in fiscal 1992 than this year.

Cohasset could have even less to divide among departments if the the state follows through on Gov. William Weld's recommendation to cut local aid by 10 percent. Although Weld promised to soften the impact by easing mandates on communities, Executive Secretary Greg Doyon said legislative action cannot be accomplished in time for the fiscal 1992 budget.

According Doyon, Cohasset stands to lose $87,000 if local aid is slashed. Advisory committee Chairman Arne Gjesteby warned the committee that more affluent communities like Cohasset could lose a greater share to lessen the impact on urban areas.

Gjesteby believes Cohasset could lose as much as 15 to 20 percent of its local aid. Gjesteby and Doyon recommended earmarking $125,000 of free cash reserves for offsetting cuts in local aid.

According to Gallagher, Cohasset has $369,000 in its free cash account.

Members of the committee agreed not to include projected cuts in local aid in the override request.

Goedecke said it would be dangerous to ask voters to pass an override based on a cut that may not materialize.

The budget could fall out of balance for other two other reasons as well: The town faces contract negotiations with town employees and a number of property tax appeals are pending.

According to Gjesteby, every one percent raise granted to employees increases the total budget by $75,000. Gjesteby recommended the school committee make raises contingent on passage of an override.

"Regardless of what you do, there's no money," he said.

The committee discussed whether voters should be presented with a single override question or a "menu" to pick and choose from. The final decision rests with selectmen.

"The downside is it pits departments and interest groups against each other," Goedecke said. "The upside is something is better than nothing."

Bliss disagreed.

"This is a small town. I think I'd rather all sink or swim together," she said. "I've been in this town when it was all torn apart. It's not very nice. I don't want it to happen again."

Barbara Power, chairman of the library trustees, took a slightly different tack.

"I'm afraid I'm a little more pragmatic. If you give voters a choice, we may get half a loaf rather than none."

Although Kidder agreed with Bliss personally, he said some school parents wanted the school override in a separate question.

The committee agreed on the need for a citizen group to push for an override. No town money can be spent lobbying for or against the issue.

"If there isn't anybody out there to fight for this, maybe they're telling us something," Bliss said.

Last year voters rejected a $120,000 override by eight votes.

COHASSET'S WEEK

Victoria's II seeks license

Selectmen granted approval of a wine and malt beverages license subject to waiver of the 10 day notice period by the Alcohol Beverage Control Commission.

Victoria Forman of Victoria's II appeared for a public hearing on her request only to find it had been scheduled one day prematurely.

According to Executive Secretary Greg Doyon, ABCC laws require 10 days between publication of the request for approval and the public hearing.

Selectmen had no problem approving the license. Forman has been the assistant manager and part owner of Victoria's, a package store selling beer and wine, for 15 years. She told selectmen she has never had any problems with the ABCC and her taxes are paid in full.

If ABCC denies the request for a waiver, the hearing will be rescheduled for late February.

Forman plans to open the restaurant in Tedeschi's Plaza on Route 3A March 1. She said the restaurant would be open from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. on Sundays.

Budget for disabled voted

Selectmen approved a budget for the handicapped commission totalling $125.

The commission requested the budget to cover postage and educational and informational material.

Selectman Martha Gjesteby opposed the budget request. In part, she did not want to deal with a request made after the deadline on procedural grounds. Gjesteby also said she did not want to create a new budget when the town was trying to cut costs.

"I would rather leave this as a transfer than create a new budget," she said.

Selectmen Diana Kornet and Jane Goedecke disagreed.

Kornet said she wanted to approve some amount to avoid getting hung up in the advisory committee transfer procedure.

Selectmen should make some allowances for ignorance of budget procedures on the part of volunteer committees, Goedecke said. She also said transfers from the reserve fund were meant for unforeseen expenses, not postage.

"If there is no budget, how can we expect to hold the line on spending," she asked.

When Gjesteby cast the lone vote against the budget, she said it was for procedural reasons alone.

New banner rules created

Selectmen set up new rules for hanging banners on town property.

Under the new system only non-political, civic, charitable or other not-for-profit organizations can hang banners across town property to advertise functions, fundraisers or other events.

Selectmen reserved the right to reject or remove a banner if they found it was not in the best interest of the public safety and order.

Banners cannot be put up more than two weeks before an event and must be removed no later than one week after the event ends. All costs involved with putting banners up and removing them must be borne by the organization.

Recreation takeover

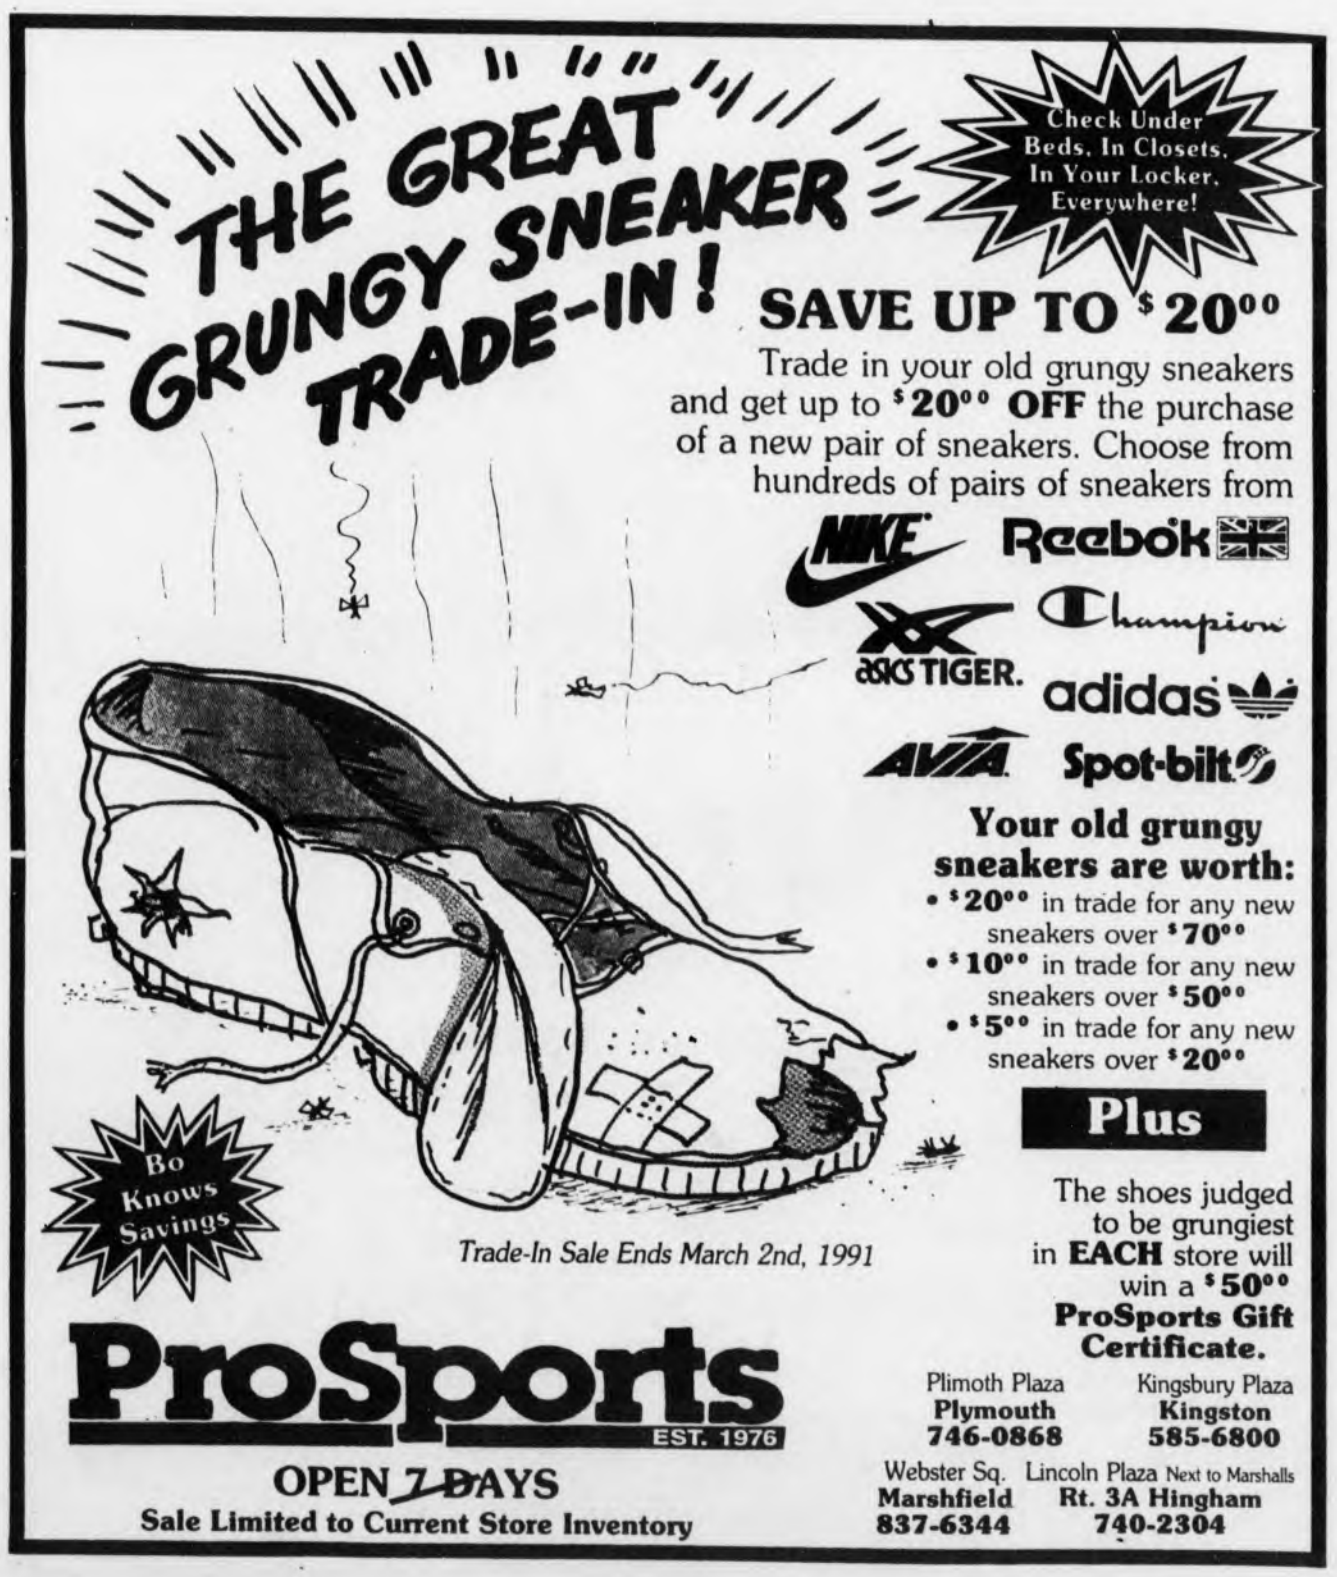
Goedecke said. "A citizen should raise the issue at town meeting and request an amendment of the budget."

Selectman Diana Kornet agreed.

"We are not the ultimate decision makers on this," she added. "The appropriate decision would be on town meeting floor."

Kornet said citizens could open and amend article four.

That worried resident Bob Davenport.



"If Article 4 is opened up town meeting might never end," he warned.

"I don't feel this in any way invalidates our recreation commission," Kornet added. She believes the commission can work with the community center recommending and advising on programs.

Gjesteby argued selectmen had no business tackling another department's budget when they had yet to finish their own.

"We really should take care of our own business," she said. "It is a Draconian stand to take to eliminate the budget of another department."

Goedecke and Kornet favored the takeover. They believe it represents a creative and positive solution to maintaining town services in tough economic times.

Budgets exceed target goals

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Selectmen finished work on the budgets under their direct control. They did not meet their goal of preparing both a level-service and level-funded budget.

The budgets will now be passed on to the advisory committee for further action.

SELECTMEN

They approved only a level-service budget for the selectmen's office. That budget is set at $75,089.

Midge control is included in the selectmen's budget. That item contributes $2,000 to the total costs.

TOWN HALL

They approved a $57,674 level-service budget for town hall. They reduced that sum to $54,852 by reducing the custodian's hours to 35 per week.

Selectman Martha Gjesteby recommended maintaining the custodian's hours.

Gjesteby said the custodian's job duties included maintenance work. Proper maintenance will save the town money in the long run, she argued.

Doyon said town hall received heavy use by town officials and community groups.

The vote on the level-funded budget was 2-1 with Selectmen Chairman Rocco Laugelle abstaining.

TOWN BUILDINGS

They unanimously approved a level service budget of $2,300 for town buildings. The increase is required to maintain the HBAC system, the sprinkler system and the elevator.

"There is no fat there," Doyon said.

FIRE DEPARTMENT

The fire department presented a real challenge. They approved a $1.05 million budget. It represented an overall increase of $35,000.

"It is impossible to offer a level-funded budget to the advisory committee," Selectman Jane Goedecke said. "We have tried. We cannot do it."

Selectman Diana Kornet concurred.

"We are not being obstinate," she said. "Lacking a new contract, we are obligated to fund according to the old contract. The only thing we could cut is the capital outlay."

To that end, selectmen voted to remove the air booster for the self-contained breathing apparatus from the capital outlay list. That represented a $6,000 savings.

WIRE DEPARTMENT

Selectmen passed a level-service budget for the wire department weeks ago. They have debated the level-funded budget ever since.

With only four selectmen at Monday's meeting, they found themselves hopelessly deadlocked when it came to a vote.

Selectmen wrestled with the issue of whether the cost of laying off a part-time employee and replacing him with occasional labor would result in any real savings to the department.

"I am very sympathetic to the problem of how you string wire with just one man," Goedecke said. A potential savings of $7,000 tipped the balance for her.

Goedecke and Kornet voted for the level-service budget, but Laugelle and Gjesteby lined up on the other side of the ledger.

BUILDING INSPECTOR

Selectmen readily approved a level-services budget of $59,039 for the building inspection department.

They came closer to a level-funded budget of $53,707 by reducing the inspector's mileage by $200 and cutting the department secretary's hours. The vote on that budget was 3-1 with Laugelle opposed.

The reduction in secretarial time means the office will be closed to the public during the hours the inspector is on the road. It also means other office personnel will have to absorb telephone reception duties normally provided by the secretary.

In other business, selectmen:

- Approved Cohasset's share of the South Shore Vo-tech budget. This year the budget rose by $500 to $20,993.
- Approved the town accountant's contract at a salary of $35,416.
- Approved payment of $46,709 to Lambrian Construction Company for work on the police-fire station renovations.
- Named Sgt. Brian Noon acting police chief from Feb. 18 through Feb. 24 while Police Chief Joseph Kealey is on vacation.

Deer Hill faculty do the best they can to follow the Bamidele Dancers.

Deer Hill students enjoy the music, as well as the chance to see a principal dance.

Deer Hill moves with rhythm and spirit

The Bamidele Dancers and Drummers arrived in Cohasset on Wednesday, Feb. 6, bringing with them a spirited music and dance repertoire. Infusing all onlookers with the rhythm and beat of their music, this group's performance yielded a surprise ending that delighted the students of the Osgood and Deer Hill Schools.

The program began with a Haitian dance, followed by the Brazilian Samba, which the students participated in. Next came a demonstration of the dun dun, a Nigerian drum, also called a talking drum, which was originally used to send messages from one village to another. Two West African dances, the Lengen and the Mandiane, a celebration dance, preceded the long-awaited surprise.

The music began again, and as the dancers worked their way through the crowd, the students were surprised and delighted to see that this time, it would be their teachers who would participate in the dance! Following the lead of the group's dancers, the teachers (including Mrs. Whitney and Mr. Ekberg), gave a rousing and good-natured performance.

This production was brought to the schools by the PSO Curriculum Enrichment Committee.

AROUND TOWN

❑ This must begin on a sad note this week, due to the passing of Dorothy Bates ("Ma" to so many). It would be impossible to count the number of lives she touched, in some cases it would be three generations. She was a teacher that one certainly remembered, she had a gift for getting math into the toughest of students. From the day she came to Cohasset, she was involved with the Girl Scouts. She certainly was a pillar of the Second Congregational Church, wearing many hats over the years that she served there. Her fellow teachers respected and admired her, and her family is a tribute to her. A true legend, she will be missed, and our love and sympathy goes to her family and her many friends.

❑ Applause goes to Robin DeVito, a student at Thayer Academy who recently participated in the 300 students' dance and workshop in the Bay State Festival vocal and dance workshops with Festival Director and Middle School Music Teacher Charlene Lorion Haugh. After the workshops they performed three numbers in the Saturday evening showcase.

❑ We are happy to report that Barbara Dunn is home and feeling wonderful after her recent heart problems, and as good as new. Just goes to show you, "you can't keep a good gal down."

❑ Happy belated birthday to Kevin Mulcahy.

❑ Theodore Michael Jones was recently named to the dean's list for scholastic achievement during the fall semester at Wentworth Institute of Technology in Boston. Hats off to you Theodore, keep up the grand work! His major is computer science!

❑ Lauren Wood recently spent a weekend at Williams College, where she skated in the Bay State Games (the Massachusetts Olympics). Lauren did very well indeed, earning a gold in Couples, a silver in Artistic Solo Freestyle, and a silver in Precision. As an added treat she met fellow CHS classmate Jim Reidy, who was able to show her around Williams College.

❑ Good news from Massasoit Community College, Ann M. O'Connor was named to the dean's list for the Fall Semester.

❑ More news from Thayer Academy comes our way! Robin DeVito was named to the honor roll, and so was Stephen R. Izzo. Meanwhile, there was a National Model U.N. Conference at Harvard University and Jessica Klein was present as a member of Model U.N. Thayer Academy.

❑ For all of you that know Zane Aikau, here is some great news. He just won first place in the state for his age group in a surfing contest and will get his way paid to California to surf. If and when he makes Wide World of Sports (he will someday, lots of his relatives have), we'll be sure to let you know when to tune in. Hopefully the Ludlow family will be able to catch him catching a wave when they are enjoying their stay in Hawaii.

❑ Two groups from CHS are to be applauded this week...first of all, how about that swim team. They had an outstanding day at the Pilgrim Conference swim meet. Chip Anderson, Simon Payne, Chris Henderson and Dave Leahy won the 200-yard medley and David won the 100-yard breaststroke. Also, the same four boys were named to the all-star team, there were 18 All Stars named to the Pilgrim Championship All Star Team. And, our cheerleaders did very well in the competition that was held last Saturday. Hats off to Captain Tracey Stohl, Captain Lisa Kondrat, Heather Brennock, Crystal Plummer, Karen Kristiansen, Julie Cox, Jenn Cox, Dawn Meehan, Laura Slotnick and Alison DeLorenzo, you did an admirable job!

❑ If you are wondering where all of the wonderful yellow ribbons that are adorning the flag pole, town hall, and veteran's memorials came from, we can thank Jean Salvador. She has made them all, and hung them with the greatest of care (along with some help from Jean Higgins). We think that they are admirable, and that you are to be commended for your patriotism, as well as your love of the town Jean. If there is a spot that you can think of that Jean may have missed, just give her a call.

❑ Ann Leonard called the other day, really singing the praises of our fine firemen. It seems that Ann had an accident and she had to be transported to the South Shore Hospital. Ann said that the firemen who were called to assist were compassionate, kind and helpful. Ann reiterated what many of us have so often thought in time of need, we are lucky to have such competent pros during an emergency.

❑ Finally, thought you might like to read the following letter that was found by Mr. Dunn, a math teacher at CHS. Dated May 28, 1929, it was addressed to Mary Terry, a math teacher that many remember: My dear Miss Terry: Your letter about the Strayer-Upton Arithmetic pleases us. Evidently you have found Book Four satisfactory or you would not consider extending the use of the books to grades seven and eight. Copies of Books Five and Six will be mailed to you at once. You may be interested to know that other places using these arithmetics give us very satisfactory reports. We have just secured an exclusive adoption for this series in the City of Westfield, Mass., where the choice was made after a careful consideration of the leading textbooks on the market. Very truly yours, Madelene Clough, the American Book Company. You can see how much the teachers have always cared about their students, and the material from which they learn. That hasn't changed.

That's the news from here, call with yours!

Plaza may get to keep oversized sign

Cohasset Plaza II will be allowed to maintain an oversized directory sign if the sign on the property advertising Kimball's By The Sea goes.

The zoning board of appeals offered the compromise to plaza owner Donald Staszko.

Staszko ran afoul of the sign bylaw when he put up a 77-square-foot sign instead of the 40-square foot sign he received a permit for.

Under local bylaws, Staszko was entitled to two 40-square-foot signs. He argued the single, larger sign was visually more aesthetic and useful to the businesses.

The board told Staszko his sign could stay if he reduced the internal lighting to the same level as the Stop & Shop sign on the adjacent property. The lights must be turned off when the stores are closed.

Individual sign boards within the directory cannot exceed two feet in height.

The decision also prohibits any banners, boards, posters or other promotional material on the stores or premises. Accessory signs conforming to the zoning bylaws will be permitted.

The real heart of the decision is the provision concerning the Kimball's sign.

The original sign on the corner of Route 3A and Sohier street was a painted wooden sign with exterior lighting. Within the past year, the sign was replaced with an interior-lit sign. Residents and town officials continue to object strenuously to the brightness of the light and the color scheme of the new sign.

The zoning board ruled that the Kimball's sign and the oversized Cohasset Plaza II sign created a visual impact that "would cause substantial detriment to the public good and . . . impair the purpose and intent of the Bylaw." However, if the Kimball's sign is permanently removed, they agreed the larger directory sign would not cause substantial detriment.

Old Salt House may change to take-out

The Old Salt House and Bates Wharf on Border Street may enter the 21at century as a seafood take-out restaurant.

Owner Thomas Eisenstadt asked the zoning board of appeals for a special permit to run a seasonal business.

According to appeals board member Barbara Power, Eisenstadt needs a special permit because the building is located in the waterfront district.

"Parking is an issue, but it is a pre-existing, nonconforming business," Power said.

Eisenstadt said he planned on minor exterior changes on the replica of an 18th century building. He also said no tables would be installed inside or outside the building.

Traffic should not be a problem, Eisenstadt said. He expects most of his customers will come by boat, bicycle or foot. He said he would reserve four or five of his eight boat slips for customers who prefer "sail-thru" service.

The appeals board also warned Eisenstadt they were concerned about litter in the area.

We can afford to hold onto recreation

The recreation commission has developed a plan to make it's budget totally self-supporting.

Great idea.

It seems to us the town can say no to the proposal developed by the Cohasset Community Center — the plan that would have CCC takeover the recreation programs now operated by the town.

John Worley, recreation director, explained recently that new state legislation will allow the town to use revolving funds in a way not previously possible. With the change in state law, the town can insure all its recreation costs are covered by the fees collected — something that the old system did not allow.

Worley pointed out that he and others had tried in the past to win changes in the revolving fund law.

"I guess the thinking changed because of the economy," he said.

The CCC has been working openly for some time now to make its case to takeover recreation. And if the budget continued to be a deficit operation, we might have been convinced the town ought to try the plan.

There is no extra money in the budget for the coming year. Indeed, there may not be enough money to accomplish all the necessary tasks.

Times are tight.

It's certainly the right time to ask for a balanced recreation budget. We're pleased the recreation commission has the ability to deliver it.

Why not unload the old Bates Building?

There are several ideas for use of the old Bates Building. Most everyone remembers when the board of health office was located on the first floor. Now with the town hall annex in place, the town has decided it has no need for the building.

Four ideas have surfaced for use of the place:

- The VFW would like to lease the building at a $1 a year for the next 10 years.
- Barbara Power put together a proposal to give the building to South Shore Habitat for Humanity which would turn it into low income housing and at the same time get the property back on the tax rolls.
- The town's drug and alcohol committee thinks the place might make a nice drop-in center for teens.
- Some officials have suggested selling the property for cash.

We are ready to back the low-income housing plan. South Shore Habitat for Humanity is a project geared to creating housing by the use of volunteers for people who otherwise could never afford to own their own home.

The idea — made famous by former President Jimmy Carter — is a way of helping a family get a good start. The property would yield taxes to the town.

It's the sort of idea where no one loses.

This is not to say the VFW meeting hall or a teen drop-in center aren't fine ideas.

Hey, maybe the VFW can borrow some space from the American Legion. Maybe the kids can stop by the Cohasset Community Center.

The point is the VFW and the kids do have other options.

The need for housing for families is growing every month as our economy fails to recover.

We would like to see the town reach out and help someone needy.

It will make all of us feel better.

Low-income housing plan explained

Letters

To the Editor:

Our Board of Selectmen should set aside the temptation to sell the Bates Building as-is for short-term cash advantage, or to lease it for less than its maintenance cost. Instead, they should serve the Town's long term interest by accepting the Habitat for Humanity proposal to convert the building into two units of affordable housing. The Town would retain title to the land, with Habitat taking title to the building while refurbishing the building at no cost to the town. The two 900-square-foot units would then be sold as condominiums to qualified low-income people at Habitat's cost of renovation.

The condominiums then would generate tax revenue to the town, and land rent equivalent to the tax appropriate to the land. In addition, the units would reduce the town's current serious deficit in fulfilling its quota of low-income housing. Restrictions in the deeds would ensure that all future owners comply with criteria for low income housing as applicable to the Town's quota.

Failure to make such use of the property would result in the town having to contribute in some other and more costly way to working towards its quota for low-income housing. Other proposals for use of the Bates Building seem to have much less long-term advantage to the Town than the Habitat proposal, and may be less favored by neighbors to the building.

Habitat is experienced in executing such procedures, and has made a specific preliminary proposal to the Town. Those of us who have worked with Habitat have been impressed with the organization. (At least there is one thing I can agree with Jimmy Carter about!)

There would be no capital cost to the town, and the appearance of the building would be enhanced without altering the size or configuration.

Yours very truly
R. M. Campbell

In December, a bill was signed allowing Massachusetts residents to appoint a proxy to make their medical decisions if they become incompetent to do so. Under the new law, a person can designate someone as his "Health Care Agent," empowered to make a full range of decisions about medical treatment in the event that the attending physician declares the patient unable to make those decisions. To designate someone, a person must complete a form, signed by two witnesses, authorizing another person to make health care decisions for him. A suggested health care proxy form and information is available at the C.O.A. office. For more information, call Pat Ryan at 383-9112.

A special event is planned for Feb. 20, in honor of Black History Month. Maurice Nobles, manager of the Museum of Afro. American History Meeting House, will be guest speaker. His topic of discussion will be the history of the museum which is the oldest standing black church in the United States.

Menu for the luncheon served at noon will be: home made beef stew, corn bread, rolls and butter and orange sherbet for dessert. Donation is $2. Reservations can be called to the C.O.A. at 383-9112.

Tax assistance-federal and state income tax assistance will be offered in Feb., March and April in Cohasset by trained IRS volunteers by AARP. Call the C.O.A. office at 383-9112 for an appointment.

St. Patrick's Day party happens Thursday, March 14 with a full course Irish dinner at the Columbia Banquet Center and entertainment by Eamonn McGirr. Also visit a Fall River Museum. The price is $29 per person. Reservations at Senior Center—383-9112.

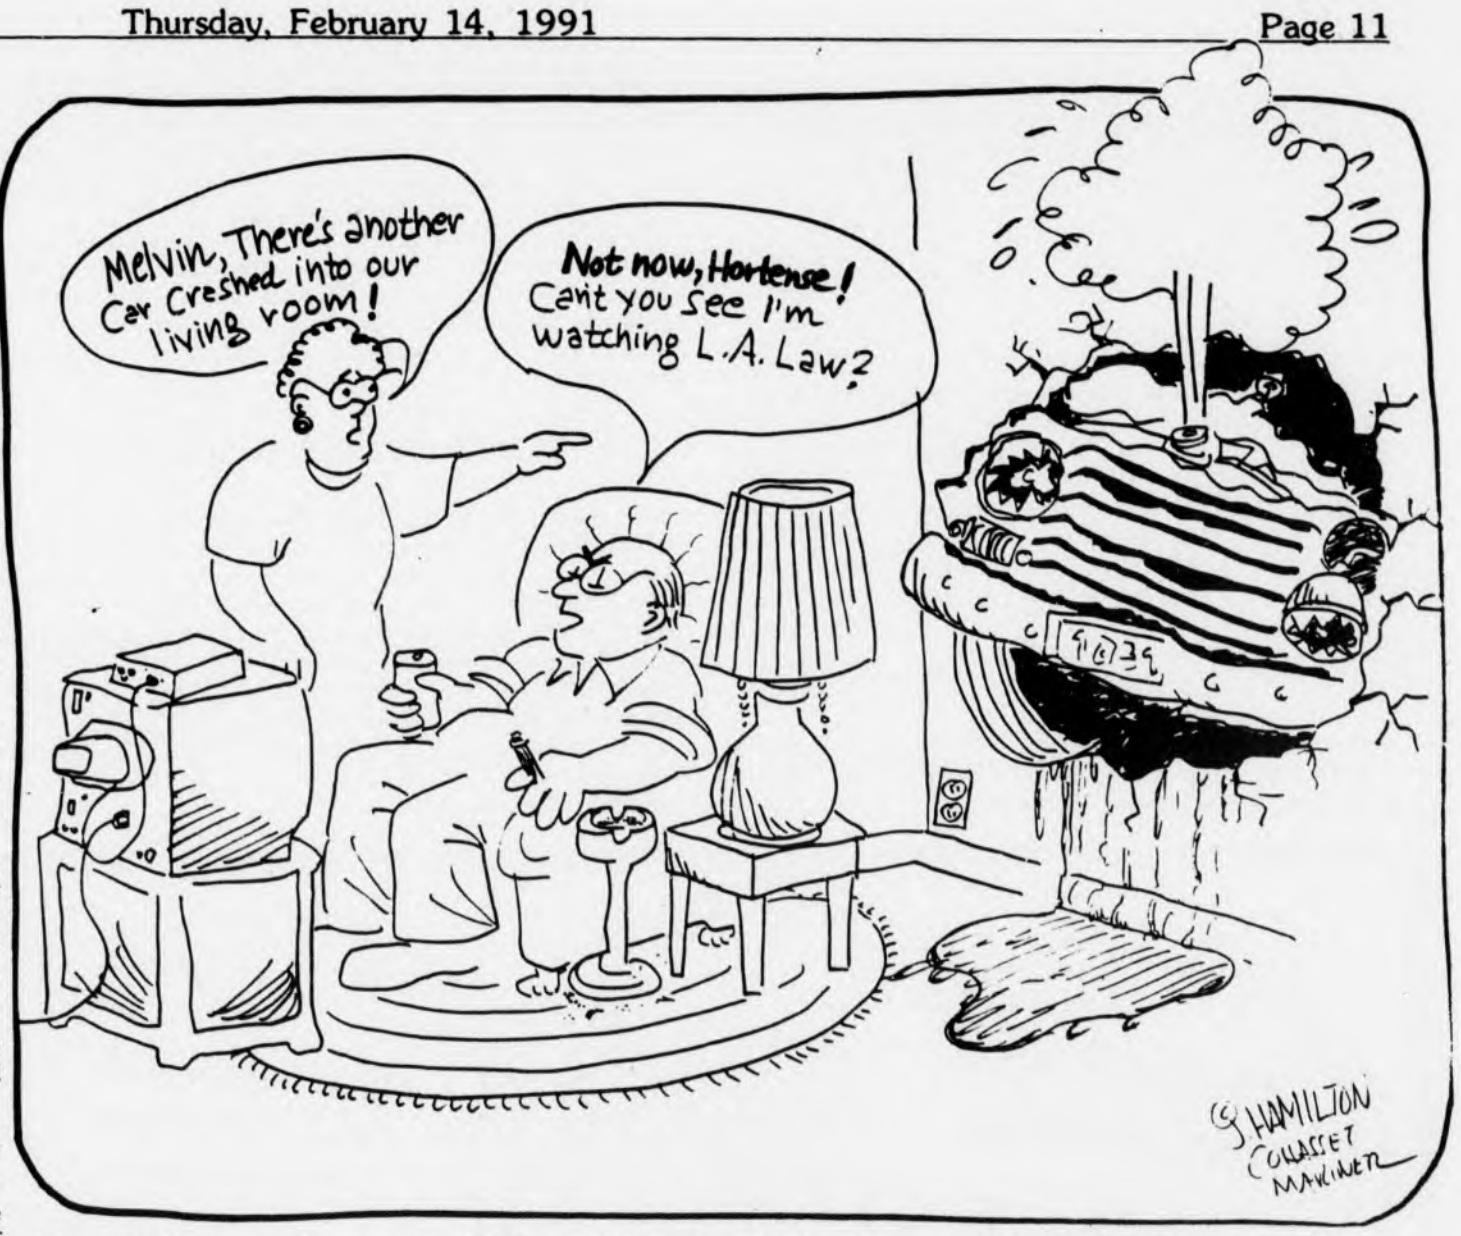
Thoughts on War in the Persian Gulf from local experts

Commentary

By M. L. Clark
Special to the Mariner

Since the war began people have been discussing the situation in the Persian Gulf. People talk at home, in their offices, at school, "in the lanes or at tea." I have been listening to so many different opinions that I have become even more confused.

To try to make some sense of it all I asked a sampling of people for their opinions. I have heard from a Naval Reservist on call that we had to go in there or the domino effect would have taken place. First Israel, then the World for Saddam.



I have listened to a young women who bases her ideas on the Bible, specifically the Book of Revelations: She believes we are entering "end times." She speaks in detail about the numbers of people who will be saved during this time, e.g., only 144,000 Jews will be saved. I found this to be pretty literal minded so I turned to an Episcopal clergyman for some clarification of Biblical meaning regarding the present crisis.

The Rev. E. Clifford Cutler rector of St. Stephen's Church, Cohasset, believes that the message of Revelations is not to be construed as applying directly to Iraq versus the US but rather to speak to the concept that God is in all things even in the midst of trouble to be with us and to protect us. In this view, God has something more in store for us so we must persevere in the midst of calamity and persecution. At the end of all the bad times we can expect the Heavenly Jerusalem. But who's to say when the end is coming...that is for God to decide. Rev. Cutler stresses the fact that God is with us and gives us strength to go through the trials. As to our being at war, it reinforces our reliance upon God. The experience of war is one of our not being in control. Because the world itself is a broken place that brings us to our need for God. As to whether or not we should be there is a moot point, according to Rev. Cutler, we are there now. Our troops need support now and when they return. Of course we hope to avoid a ground war and further loss of life. Any loss of life is too much. Rev. Cutler says this is a time when he prays very strongly for peace and for the safety of those in the war and for wisdom for world leaders. He says further we must remember that we are very small, but very small in the hands of God. We must let go and let God.

A different point of view is held by a fellow Anglican, Brigadier Gen. (Ret.) Raj Mangat-Rai, having served in the British and Indian Armies, after studying engineering at Cambridge in England. He served in the desert during the war and has had first hand experience of being dug-in in the desert with enemy planes firing overhead. He believes that the Allies should have tried to allow the sanctions to work before mounting the immense military offensive, the biggest bombing operation in history. Gen. Mangat-Rai says the pervasive feeling among Arabs is that America is more the ally of Israel than of Islam. For this reason he fears they could turn on us in the end. Also he says the Iraquis are tough and we could have a situation similar to the Russians in Afganistan where we have underestimated our foes. He feels the ground war could be bitter. Also, he thinks we should be at a higher stage by now and with our might should be able to work toward peace, which was the original motivation of setting up the United Nations.

Finally, I happened to talk with a psychic in Quincy who assured me that this whole thing would be over in March because Bush has a good horoscope. His chart shows that victory for us is a shoo-in because whatever he does will succeed. (Although he will win a second term, he will die in office and Dan Quayle will succeed him and be an able president because his chart is also in good position with the stars.) Saddam Hussein on the other hand has something wrong with his Jupiter and this makes him jump into things that are over his head and therefore he will fail. Frankly I like the thought that this will end soon and maybe the power of positive thinking can contribute to a speedy resolution of the war.

Let's pray for Peace.

The neighbors on the corner of King and Beechwood streets are satisfied with the proposed traffic design that will prevent further accidents at the dangerous intersection.

Valentine's means mush & that's OK

By Patricia Desmond
Mariner staff

I appreciate whatever I get on Valentine's Day.

There have been too many years when this day brought me only disappointment.

Give me a little peppermint heart that says "Hug me" and I'll smile. Give me a card that jokes about cupid and I'll laugh. Anything would be a bonus because I'm the type who pretends not to want frivolous presents. I don't express my feelings well, having buried them all years ago as my way of coping with old rejections and misplaced dreams.

For years I tried not to expect anything for Valentine's, realizing that the problem wasn't that I needed to gorge out on chocolates or fill my room with flowers - the problem was rooted deep in my expectations.

I've been caught up in feeling lonely and unloved over the past decade or so. It's because I'd built impenetrable barriers around me. The barriers have protected me from letting any man get too close.

I was so far into pretending I couldn't be hurt that I even tried to make my children feel I was made of steel. The idea was I wanted them to feel safe and protected. How could they feel safe if I was built around a core of mush.

Last year both my children gave me candy. My daughter gave me the kind of huge heart with ribbons and flowers much the same as the one I received at 16. I love chocolate. I have the waistline to prove it. The cards and candy from my children were enough to make me cry. It's not that I felt sadness - it's that I felt overwhelmed by their love.

The first time I received a big heart filled with chocolates I was 16. I ate every one of the candies myself, feeling greedy but appreciated. My boyfriend never realized how ambivalent that high calorie gift made me feel because I just said "thank you."

I didn't like to feel indebted.

I forget how long we dated after that occasion. I don't think it was very long. I became overly critical.

Years passed. I managed to continue to hide the fact that I'm a romantic from everyone - friends, lovers, acquaintances - everyone I knew would have told you I was not the type to gush over expressions of affection.

But the truth is I really wanted someone to give me another huge chocolate heart or piece of frivolity.

I can afford to buy my own chocolates. I used to be proud of that fact.

Today there's a red rose and baby's breath in a vase on my bedtable. I'm not well enough to let out the tears that are dammed up inside.

I'm working hard at changing. I'm delighted with my rose. Just as I'm delighted with the man who gave it to me.

My barriers are weaker these days.

I'm slow to change, but I'm trying.

It's all right for me to feel indebted today - and I do.

It's all right for me to accept my inner mushyness.

It's all right for me to tell my Valentine that I love him and appreciate him.

Adam Pistel eyes the chocolates at Puopolo's in Hingham.

medals went to students who found 10 sponsors and read 10 books.

Additionally, World Book matched the students' efforts by donating $1 for every $2 the children raised to purchase materials by World Book.

According to Principal Ken Ekberg, most of the 284 children in the school participated in the program. Of those, 26 earned certificates, 15 received silver medals and 41 were awarded gold medals. The certificates and medals were awarded at an assembly attended by the branch manager for World Book, Betty Moore.

As a result of the Deer Hill students' efforts, each class received a complete set of the 1991 edition of World Book Encyclopedia and the science encyclopedia. The transitional classroom at the school received a set of the Childcraft Encyclopedia. Additionally, the library now owns the 1991 World Book Encyclopedia, the science encyclopedia and the two volume World Book dictionary.

"The main point was getting kids to read," Ekberg said.

BULLETIN BOARD

Newcomers' fashion show

The Scituate-Cohasset Newcomers Club will hold its annual spring fashion show and luncheon at 12:30 p.m. March 9 at Kimball's by the Sea in Cohasset Harbor.

Proceeds go to their scholarship fund. Tickets will be available for sale March 2 and 3 at Angelo's in Scituate Harbor and Stop & Shop in Cohasset or by calling Karen Gibbons at 545-6521.

Boating course offered

The Old Colony Power Squadron will conduct a public boating course beginning at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 26, at Rockland High School.

this course will include such topics as seamanship, piloting, basic navigation and coastal charting.

A final exam will be administered and certificates issues.

These certificates will satisfy all future state licensing requirements and qualify boat owners for insurance premium discounts.

Students may register on the first evening.

The course is free. However, there is a nominal charge for the materials.

Call 545-2497 for further information.

Fax to Desert Storm

Communicate with the troops in the Gulf through "Desert Fax." AT&T will send, at no cost, a FAX message to the U.S. troops in the Gulf.

X-Press Printing and Copy, 818 Route 3A, in Cohasset has the necessary form to use the "Desert FAX" service. Once the form is filled out, it must be taken to the nearest AT&T phone store for transmission. The message should be delivered to the designated person within 48 hours.

To send a FAX to the Gulf, all one needs is the particular rank and name of the person in the Gulf, his/her social security number, the unit or ship and the Operation Desert Shield APO/AFO number.

For further information, contact X-Press Printing at 383-2679.

'Hansel & Gretel' plays

The Children's Repertory Ballet Company will be performing an original ballet, "Hansel and Gretel." There will be two performances at the Hingham High School auditorium, Saturday, March 9 at 7 p.m. and Sunday, March 10 at 2 p.m.

Under the direction of Nan Cogswell Keating, the artistic director, the Children's Ballet Workshop performed its first original ballet of "Hansel and Gretel" in 1983. The unusual idea for this production was conceived by Judy Hardy, who adapted and interpreted music from Humperdinck's well-loved opera for ballet. The characters in the cast include Hansel and Gretel, the Mother and Father, the Witch and her Witch Goblins, many animals from the forest, the Sleep Fairy and her assistant, fourteen angels sent from Heaven, the Dew Drop Fairy and her Dewdrops, several shadows of the night, and of course Gingerbread Children. Although the Ballet Company's home is in Hingham, the children performing are from 11 different South Shore communities, including Karla Kennedy, Courtney Schultz, Keeley Dwyer, Meredith Equi, Melissa Weier, Johanna Horn, Torrey Androski, and Cameron Hynes, all of Cohasset.

Tickets are $8 and are available at the Hingham Public Library, The Hingham Greenery, 222 North St., and Corson's Glass House, Rte. 53, or call 749-3737.

Valentine's cabaret benefit

If you are looking for a way to celebrate Valentine's day, check out the Valentine Cabaret.

The cabaret is the annual fund-raiser sponsored by the Cohasset Arts Boosters Club. This year it will be held on Feb. 26 at Kimball's Restaurant.

For $10, you get a light buffet supper, an opportunity to bid for art work created by Cohasset High School students, and a cabaret show put on by talented musicians at the high school.

The students have concocted an intimate evening filled with romantic atmosphere. There will be something to please everyone's musical taste.

The evening is less expensive than a box of Godiva chocolates, and all the money goes to support the talented artists and musicians at Cohasset High School.

So call 383-6929 or 383-6532 to reserve your tickets, and be sure to put a big red heart around Feb.26 on your calendar.

Divorce topic on cable

The financial aspects of divorce are not well known nor easily understood. This important topic will be the subject of discussion on the cable TV show "McNamara on Money" which will air on Channel 53 on Wednesday evening February 10 at 8 p.m. Host Michael J. McNamara will be interviewing Attorney Neal Brown on the subject. The first show in this series will be entitled "Problems of the Divorce Litigation Process." If divorce is a subject of interest to you, it will be very much worth your while to watch the show.

McNamara is also looking for people who would be interested in being in the audience for this series. There will be a question and answer period on several shows, and the audience will have an opportunity to ask questions of an attorney, an accountant, and a financial planner. Please watch the first show for more details or call McNamara Financial Services at 383-2927 for more information.

The need for quality and affordable child care is critical to many American workers...and therefore to American businesses. This will be the subject of the "Business Show," which will air on Channel 53 Wednesday evening, February 20 at 8:30 p.m. Guest host Paul McDonough will interview representatives from business and community on the subject. He will also visit with the model child care program at Wearguard in Norwell...which is reason enough to tune in the show.

Free bloodpressure tests

Throughout the month of February Dr. Jon Gillespie of Gillespie Chiropractic on Route 3A in Cohasset, will be offering free blood pressure checks. Call 383-2550 to set up an appointment.

Pie social for history

Pie eaters everywhere are invited to come to the Cohasset Historical Society's Old Fashioned Pie Sociable at the Caleb Lothrop House, Summer Street, Cohasset on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 24, to sample home-cooked pies from Cohasset kitchens. This just-for-the-fun-of-it event will include, in addition to pie sampling, continuous showing of photographic slides and videotapes of local historical interest. Films being readied for the event include a 1953 Planning Board study of Route 3A, 1970 Town Bicentennial events and footage made by school students.

The pie sociable will run from 2 to 5 p.m. Admission to members and non-members will be $3, payable at the door. The Society's telephone is 383-6930.

TNT auditions

Open auditions for That New Theatre's production of the Tony Award-winning musical "Nine" will be held Tuesday, Feb. 19 and Thursday, Feb. 21 at 7 p.m. at First Trinitarian Congregational Church, Country Way, Scituate. Based on the classic Fellini film "8-1/2," the story revolves around film director Guido Contini and the women in his life.

Director Donald Capen will be casting 21 women and one man for the show, which will be presented at Norwell High School April 11-13. Those auditioning should come prepared with a song of their choice (but not from the "Nine" score). Scripts will be provided. No dance experience is necessary.

Gardeners exchange

The Amateur Gardeners of Cohasset will meet on Tuesday, Feb. 19, at 12:30 p.m. for the Annual Recipe Exchange Luncheon at the home of Alicia Seavey.

Co-hostess will be Ginni Nast.

Juggler comes to town

Cohasset Community Center has a treat for youngsters scheduled for the February vacation. On Tuesday, Feb. 19 at 11 a.m., the Center will present the Light Magic Theatre. This is a play featuring a juggler. Tickets are available at the door at the price of $2. This promises to be a program full of surprises guaranteed to entertain children from ages 5-12.

RECREATION NOTES

The Cohasset Recreation Department will be hosting a February Vacation program at the Deer Hill School, Tuesday, Feb. 19 to Friday, Feb. 22, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The program will be open to children 3 to 12 years of age. The program includes game time, bowling, arts and crafts, and much more. Please call the Recreation Office at 383-6791 to register.

The Cohasset Recreation Department's annual Christmas vacation week program at the Deer Hill School turned out to be a hit with the 25 children who attended the program. The children spent the week playing games, hanging out with friends and showing off their Christmas gifts. Not to mention, they went bowling and spent an afternoon with Nancy Connolly from the Art Center, who taught them a few things about clay. Ted Carroll directed the program, he was assisted by Lyn Pompeo, George Umbrianna, Liz Muncey, Liz O'Leary, Jen Endris, and Jessica MacDonald.

COHASSET RECREATION DEPARTMENT SKI TRIP BLACK MOUNTAIN

The Cohasset Recreation Department will accept telephone registrations for a day ski trip, scheduled for Sunday, March 3, to Black Mountain, Jackson, N.H. The per person cost for this trip is $44 and checks should be made payable to: 'Town of Cohasset.' Payments must be made prior to Friday, Feb. 15.

Participants who wish to rent equipment at Black Mountain may do so by bringing $16 cash, the day of the trip. However, should you want to rent, please indicate so at the time you register. Lessons are available at Black Mountain and cost $14, which also should be brought in cash the day of the trip.

The motor coach will leave from Town Hall at 5:30 a.m., on Sunday, March 3, and return at about 7:15 p.m. to Town Hall. Participants may call for a ride from the recreation office, once the bus has returned that evening. All participants are asked to report to Town Hall no later than 5:15 a.m.

FURNITURE RESTORATION/REFINISHING

The Cohasset Recreation Department will accept telephone registrations for a furniture restoration-refinishing-revitalization class, to be taught by Kenneth Sargent of Cohasset Country Workshop, by calling the recreation office at 383-6791.

Sessions are five weeks in duration, meeting on Wednesday or Saturday mornings, 9 to 11 a.m., at Cohasset Town Hall. The fee for this ten-hour program is $53 per person, and classes are restricted in size to allow for individual attention.

Participants should select a piece of furniture that is relatively portable for class work. A chair or small table is ideal. Participants will not only learn the arts involved with restoration and refinishing, but will also have a completed piece of furniture by the end of the session.

Sargent has been a professional refinisher for a number of years in Cohasset, and has taught the art of restoration and refinishing to a number of classes over the years.

Participants will be required to bring some supplies with them to class; other supplies will be provided. When you call to register, please indicate what piece of furniture you will be bringing to class. Non-Cohasset residents will be accepted for enrollment upon a space available basis, and the next session is scheduled to begin on Feb. 20 and 23.

AEROBIC EXERCISE CLASSES

The Cohasset Recreation Department is offering winter sessions for Low-Impact, Aerobic Exercise classes, taught by Ms. Margaret Watson, on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6:15 to 7:15 p.m., Cohasset Town Hall Auditorium.

Sessions are conducted in eight-week cycles, costing $44 for two weekly classes, for an eight-week period, i.e.: 16 classes is $44. However, you may join at any time, at any class, and the fee will be prorated based upon the number of classes per week you would like to take, and the number of weeks left in the session. Checks should be made payable to: Town of Cohasset, and sessions continue on a year-round basis. Classes are structured in order that all levels of proficiency may participate comfortably.

Ms. Watson is a well-known and accomplished area exercise instructor, and has taught for the recreation department for the past decade. The program is open to both residents and non-residents of all ages, men and women. However, early registration is advised; due to the popularity of the program, classes tend to fill quickly.

ADULT — WINTER PROGRAMS

The Cohasset Recreation Department will continue new sessions for the following Winter — Adult programs, through March. Furniture Restoration-Repair-Refinishing, Aerobic Exercise classes, (low-impact), Mixed Adult Volleyball, (beginner and advanced groups), Bridge lessons, Ski Trips, (on Youth bus, when space allows), Indoor Golf Classes for beginners and Dog Obedience Training Classes (beginner through advanced levels).

Details will be announced during late Winter for Spring, Adult Programs, which will include: Scuba Diving Classes, Seaside Landscape Design classes, U.S.C.G.A. Safe Boating Course/Certification, (ages 12 and over), Tennis Lessons and expanded Outdoor Gold Lessons. Many adult programs are offered on a year-round basis and for further information, or registration, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department office at 383-6791. Special events and activities will be announced at least two weeks prior to date of the event.

Cohasset Knoll Skilled Nursing and Rehabilitation Facility, the Beverly facility in Cohasset is planning a fund-raising campaign to benefit the Arthritis Foundation.

The campaign is part of a larger program called "A Partnership for a Healthier Tomorrow" and will include: "Raffles for Funds" until Feb. 15; "Bake Sales for Funds", Feb. 19 to March 3; "Candy Guesses for Funds" and "Buy a Ribbon, Support the Troops for Funds", March 4 through 15; "Walk-A-Thon for Funds", March 16 through 28; A Sweepstakes sponsored by Cohasset Knoll Residents and Staff Members — Drawing announced April 12. A 1991 Cutlass or a trip to the 'destination of your dreams,' for the winner.

"We are excited about this opportunity to help the Arthritis Foundation raise funds in Cohasset for their research as well as various support programs and services," said Roberta Dufresne, facility Administrator. "The chronic pain of arthritis makes life even more difficult for many of our residents."

Baseball camp at CCC

The Cohasset Community Center is offering a Baseball Camp with instructor Steve Ferroli who has been a baseball instructor and coach for 10 years. There will be two sessions on each of the four Saturdays of the Camp. Players ages 7-12 will meet from 10 a.m. to noon. Players ages 13 and up will meet from noon to 2 p.m. Considered an expert on hitting by Red Sox Hall of Famer Ted Williams, Steve Ferroli will cover baseball techniques on batting, hitting, throwing, and fielding.

Don't miss out on this opportunity to achieve the skills needed to become a seasoned baseball player. The fee for this four week session is $40.

CCC has winter courses

The Cohasset Community Center still has registrations available for the winter session of courses which are starting the month of February. The following courses are open:

A course for computer novices starts on Feb. 14. This is a ten-week hands on, individualized course teaching the skills necessary to operate a computer. The student will learn how to use the computer in everyday life, learn to edit, write letters and use Lotus. This course meets at Cohasset High School.

Vacation Week, the Center will offer a fun-filled program for all youngsters. From Feb. 18-21, Monday to Thursday, a Gymnastics Camp for girls is planned and will be supervised by Ruthann Sargent. The camp cost is $48. On Thursday, Feb. 21, a sleepover, also supervised by Sargent will take place. The cost of this activity is $15. For those who participate in both activities, the charge will be $60.

Boys Night Out is a popular evening out for boys Ages 5-9 and will take place on Friday, Feb. 22, from 6 to 8 p.m. An enjoyable evening of activities consisting of Bowling, Gymnastic contests, an Obstacle Course, Videos complete with prizes and pizza treat at a cost of $12 is sure to please this age group. This program is also supervised by Sargent.

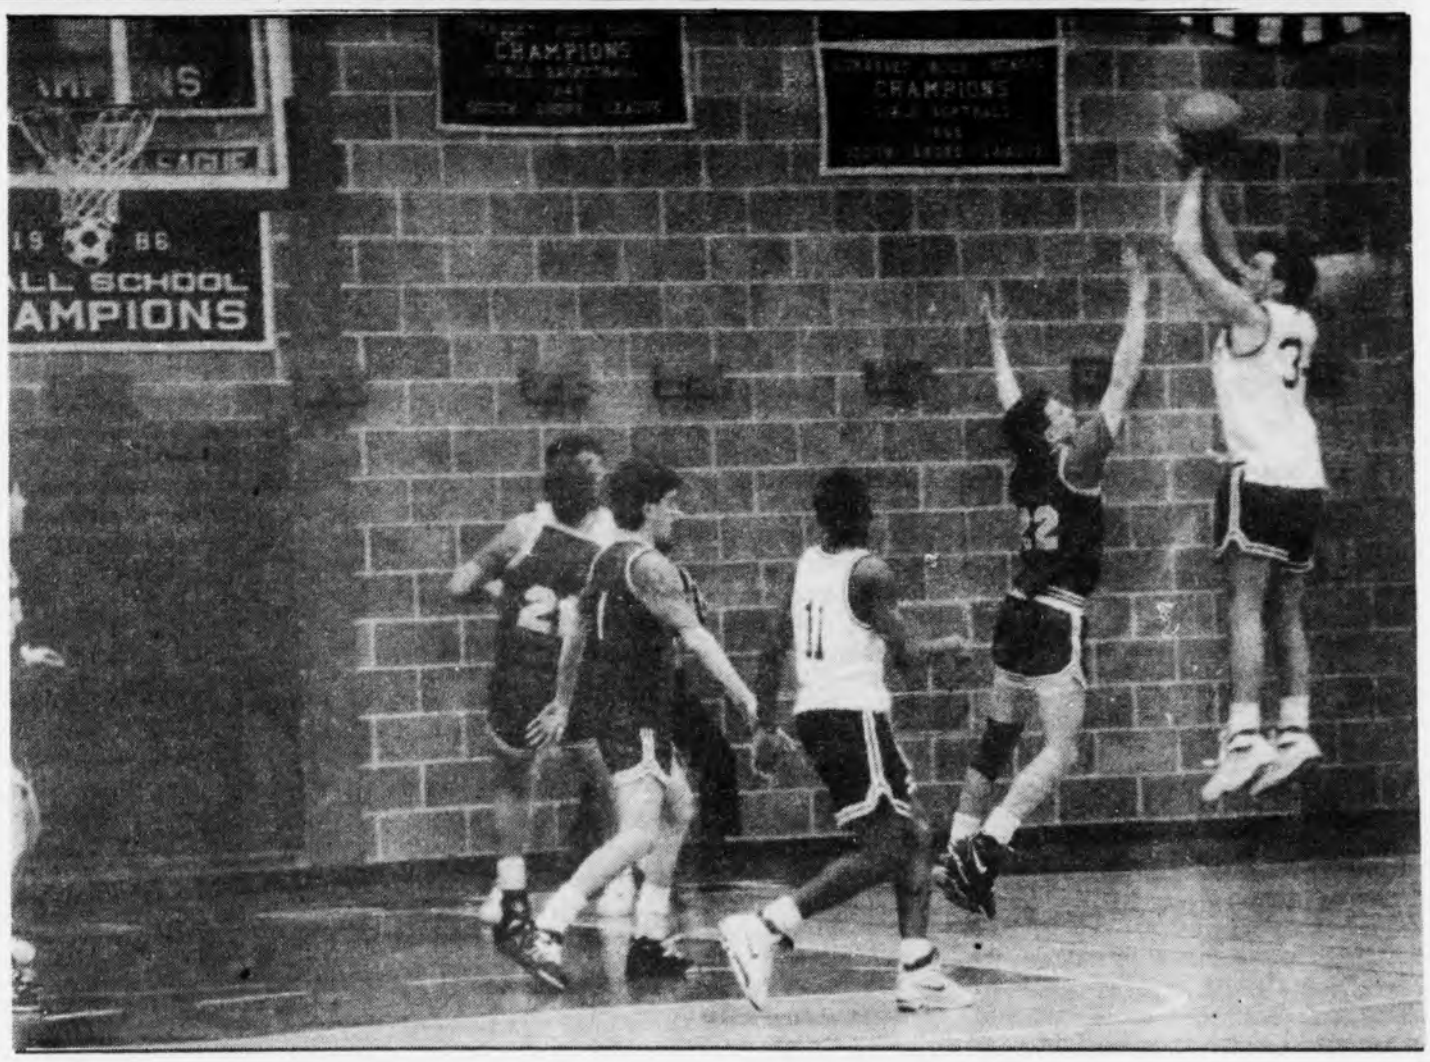
GIRLS BASKETBALL

The Cohasset girls' basketball team went 1-1 in games played last week, dropping a 59-49 decision to Norton on Feb. 5, then beating Hanover 49-45 on Feb. 8. The Hanover win was the second in the last four games for the Skippers, who now stand at 2-13 in the league and overall.



Norton got out to a 30-24 halftime lead on their way to the 10-point win, which marked the highest offensive output (49 points) on the season for Cohasset. Norton used a tough and aggressive game plan, powered by the 22 points of Racheal Sayer.

Senior quad-captain Kerry Murphy led the Cohasset attack with 14 points, including 2 3-pointers. Barbara Lagrotteria added 11 and quad-captain Maureen Long chipped in 10 points.

Things did not start out well for Cohasset against Hanover, falling behind 12-3 to start the game. The Skipper defense tightened though and the girls gained a 26-26 tie at the half. It remained tied 41-41 after a seesaw second half battle, and Hanover had to foul Cohasset at the end of the game, but the Skippers made the free throws to win the game.

Maureen Long led Cohasset with 12 points, while Allison Ludlow had 11, including a 3-pointer. Bostwick credits the defensive work of Heather Bass in this game, as well as the contributions of Maureen and Kay Long, and Alison Ludlow.

"Everyone chipped in, it was well played by all" stressed Bostwick, "We were at a deficit and came back by executing plays. The girls were psyched and everyone played well. We want to end on a happy note."

The skippers deliver one basket after another. As luck has it, so do their opponents.

SWIMMING

Cohasset finished third in the Pilgrim Conference Championship last week, trailing Duxbury and Middleboro, and beating Sandwich and North Quincy. "It was very exciting" said Cohasset coach Linda Henderson, "I'm so proud of the kids, they did a wonderful job."

The Cohasset finishers were as follows:

—100 yard breaststroke: Dave Leahy 1st, Tom Greco 12th

—100 yard backstroke: Chip Anderson 3rd, Simon Payne 4th

—100 yard butterfly: Chris Henderson 3rd, John Kisiel 7th

—100 yard freestyle: Leahy 4th, John Brister 10th

—50 yard freestyle: Anderson 5th, Brister 10th, Greco 12th

—200 yard freestyle: Nik Hawks 5th, Kisiel 7th

—200 yard Individual Medley: Payne 3rd, Henderson 6th

—200 yard medley relay: Won by Cohasset in record time for the year in Pilgrim Conference; 1:55.84. Anderson, Leahy, Henderson, and Payne.

—200 yard freestyle relay: 3rd place; Henderson, Anderson, Leahy, Brister.

—400 yard freestyle relay: 5th place; Brister, Hawks, Kisiel, Payne.

At the end of the meet, the respective coaches of the five Pilgrim Conference choose their 18 all-stars based on combined finishes in this meet. Cohasset had four swimmers chosen; team captain Chris Henderson, Simon Payne, Chip Anderson, and Dave Leahy. For a team of eight swimmers, this is quite a feat.

"This is a team without anyone who sees themselves as stars" coach Henderson said, "I think they've done a wonderful job and I'm proud of them. For our first year in the league to finish third of five is great."

Blood drive showed community effort

It was a true community effort that brought 152 donors to the Cohasset Red Cross Blood Drive on Jan. 29. It started with 47 local businesses and organizations that participated in the advanced publicity. They were followed by the 15 donor recruiters who made the important phone calls and contacts. Then came the 26 volunteers who worked the day of the drive. And finally we had the 152 donors who came to share the precious gift of life.

According to Shirley Cibelli, co-chair of the drive, the record-setting 152 donors was 45% over the goal of 105 pints of blood. She credits the patriotic spirit and support of our troops in the Gulf for contributing to the extremely successful blood drive.

Co-chair, Jack Cibelli, had praise for the patience and good spirit of the donors. The large turnout created long lines. However, Jack promises a smoother procedure for the next drive in June.

Our hats are off to the following organizations that made the drive a huge success:

First Parish Unitarian Church, Olympic Texaco, Dwyers Cleaners, Saint Anthony's Church, Pat's Barber Shop, the Rotary, the Post Office, Webb-Norfolk, the Community Center, Saint Stephen's Church, Dr. Bonetzky, Colonial Pharmacy, Second Congregational Church, Cohasset Hardware, Seavey Engineering, Cohasset Savings Bank, Dependable Cleaners, Cohasset Teachers, Tedeschi Food Shops, Cohasset News, Citgo, Town Hall, Cohasset Library, Fiori Exxon, Glastonbury Abbey, Sunoco, Stop & Shop, Dunkin Donuts, The Masons, Papa Gino's, Walgreen's, Sea 'n Cheese, Bergson's, American Legion, House of Pizza, Curtis Liquors, Good Sport, Hancock Paint, Woolworth's, Cohasset Plaza Liquors, Robbins Garage, Beechwood Congregational Church, 3A Food Mart, Cohasset Council on Aging, and The Social Services League.

A job well done!

Academic help offered

The Cohasset Community Center is now offering a group of academic reinforcement courses designed for children in Grades 4 - 12. We can help your children strengthen the learning skills needed to compete in this age of technology, increase their learning power and demonstrate academic growth more effectively. The courses are presented in an effort to help your child get the most out of his/her educational experience.

On Mondays, from 7 to 8 p.m., starting Feb. 25, for Grades 7 to 12, we are offering a Study Skills course taught by Karla Watts. This course is geared towards helping the student gather his materials and garner what is most important and relevant to the subject matter.

On Tuesdays, from 4 to 5 p.m., starting Feb. 26, Grades 4 to 6 will be able to strengthen their study skills by learning how to gauge their time and grasp the content of their homework more effectively.

For Grades 6 to 9 an Expository Writing I course will start on Monday, Feb. 27 from 4 to 5 p.m. The course is a 13 week ungraded program involving the careful step-by-step process related to developing sound, coherent paragraphs and ultimately the short (3-4 paragraph) essay. Various approaches and lively topics are implemented to reinforce the students' ability to write with greater effectiveness and confidence. (This course is not a prerequisite to Expository Writing II.)

For Grades 10 to 12 an Expository Writing II course is to be held on Mondays from 5 to 6 p.m. for 13 weeks starting Feb. 27. This course covers writing to explain and writing to convince as two essential skills requiring practice and reinforcement. This ungraded program emphasizes the student's development of effective thesis statements, coherent paragraphs, and more powerful sentence structure and vocabulary as ingredients for sound essay writing. Interesting and unique topics are implemented.

Creative writing course set

Writing Creatively I is a course offered for Grades 6 to 9 on Wednesdays, from 4 to 5 p.m. for 13 weeks starting Feb. 29. An ungraded program, Writing Creatively provides fun and challenging approaches to improving student's writing skills with poetry, plays, journals, and short stories. Individuals of both average and advanced developmental writing levels are welcome. (This course is not a prerequisite to Writing Creatively II).

Writing Creatively II is offered for Grades 10 to 12 on Wednesdays, from 5 to 6 p.m. for 13 weeks starting Feb. 29.

Please call the Center at 383-0088 for additional information or to register.

Singers offer an ENCORE

Five Cohasset residents will take part in a special pops-style concert being presented by the Unicorn singers and Broad Cove Chorale on Saturday March 2nd at Brandon Woods (110 Charles St. in south Hingham). The program is called ENCORE! and will reprise many of the two choral groups' best-loved selections from their Fall Gala (held each October at director Margo Euler's home in Hingham.) Members of the Broad Cove Chorale include Cohasset residents Sarah deLima, Susan Cameron, Lisa Koed, and Deedee Rousseau. Artist-musician-actor Scott Ketcham will be featured in several select groups in the show: the men's barbershop quartet, the mixed jazz octet, the Fifties pop number, a musical comedy trio, and as the bass soloist and penny-whistle player in PDQ Bach's amusing oratorio THE SEASONINGS. Rousseau and de Lima are members of the women's barbershop quartet, and de Lima will also perform in a music theatre medley with Norwell resident Lydia Madrick.

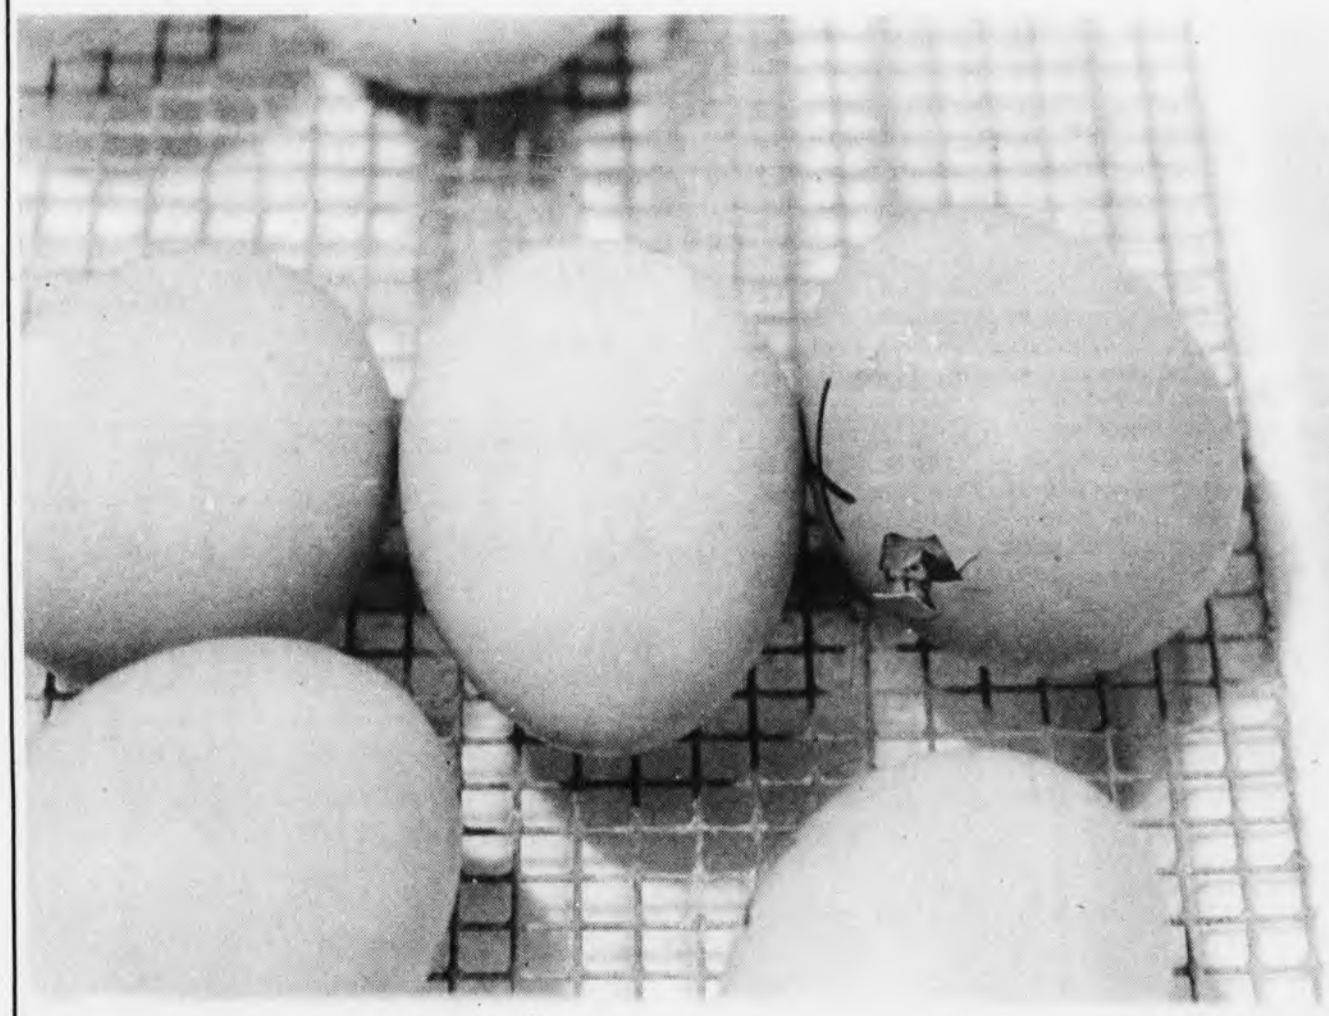
Which came first, the chicken or the egg?



Staff photos by John Stobierski

Mrs. Dorothy MacDonald's grade 4 class gathers around two of the chicks hatched in a lesson on embryology taught by Terese D'Urso, a parent and volunteer.

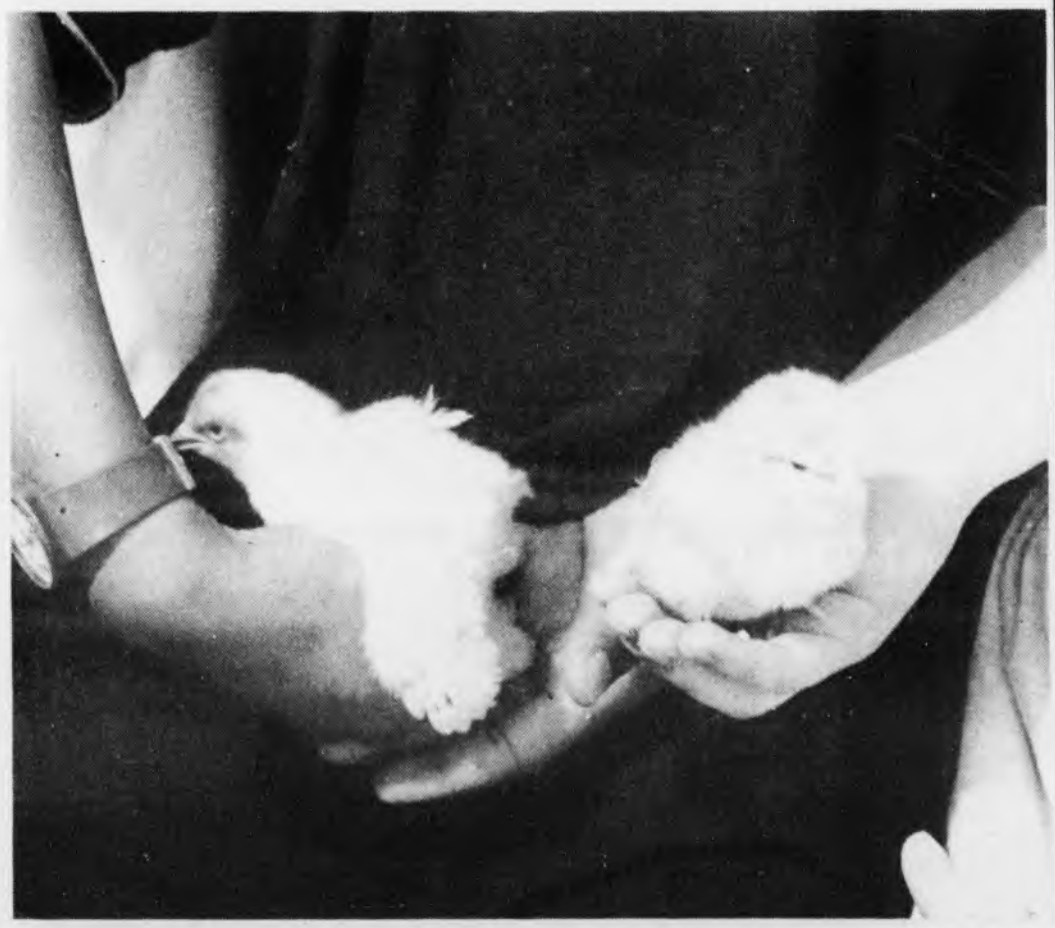
These grade 4 students gather around the incubator waiting for chickens to emerge from the 22 fertilized eggs. Only three hatched.

Day 21 shows a few signs of life.

The egg, Day 8
Drawing by Ben Smoot

Terese D'Urso taught a unit on embryology recently to Dorothy MacDonald's grade 4 class at Deer Hill School. All the students cared for the eggs, provided by 4-H, and wrote on what they'd learned about the project.

A sample embryology paper



By Alexandra D'Urso

I was very impressed about what my mother taught our class. I learned that the white curly things hanging from the sides of the yolk are called the chalazae. They hold the yolk in place. I also learned that the white spot on the yolk is the blastodisk. On a fertile egg, the white spot is the blastoderm.

When you crack open a regular egg or a fertile egg, at the tip of the pointed end of the shell, you will be able to see a bubble that is called the air cell. It is used for the baby chick's first breath of air. The most exciting things about incubating eggs is when they hatch.

Observation: Feb. 5 at 11:15 a.m. There is a small crack in one of the eggs. We can hear it chirp from inside the shell. I predict that 8 to 10 eggs will hatch out of 22.

(Editor's note: Only three chickens lived through the hatching process.)

At five days old, these chicks have grown some fluff.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue and in execution of the POWER OF SALE contained in a certain mortgage given by Mary C. Jope to Joseph A. Saponaro, Trustee of Saponaro Realty Trust dated January 20, 1967 and recorded with the Norfolk District Registry of Deeds, Book 4407, Page 70, and with Plymouth District Registry of Deeds in Book 3345, Page 286, of which mortgage the undersigned is the present holder, for breach of the conditions of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same will be sold at public auction on the premises on March 12, 1991, a portion of the premises described in said mortgage, to wit:

"The land together with the buildings thereon situated in Cohasset, County of Norfolk and Hingham, County of Plymouth, consisting of 6.66 acres, more or less, as shown on the plan of land entitled "Plan of Land in Hingham and Cohasset, Massachusetts," dated May 17, 1966, by Edwin A. Young, Registered Land Surveyor, and recorded with Norfolk District Registry of Deeds in Book 4407, Page 69."

Excluding therefrom that portion of the above premises as shown on said plan conveyed to Joseph A. Saponaro, Trustee of Saponaro Realty Trust by Mary C. Jope, Trustee of the M.C.J. Realty Trust by deed dated December 27, 1971 recorded with Norfolk District Registry of Deeds in Book 4798, Page 625, and with the Plymouth District Registry of Deeds in Book 3741, Page 417, being more particularly bounded and described as follows:

NORTHWESTERLY: by land of Joseph Saponaro as shown on said plan, 385.15 feet

NORTHEASTERLY: by land of Joseph Saponaro as shown on said plan, 203.30 feet to the Hingham and Cohasset boundary

SOUTHEASTERLY: to a point on the Southeasterly bound of the property as shown on said plan, being 245 feet Easterly of the Westerly most bound as shown on said plan

SOUTHWESTERLY: 245 feet along a fence as shown on said plan by a "permanent access easement" as shown on said plan.

The excluded portion of the mortgaged premises being a rectangular shaped parcel of land at the westerly side of the total area of 6.66 acres, more or less, as shown on said plan, including the area shown on said plan as 0.79 acres, more or less, in Hingham.

Terms of Sale: The above described portion of the real property covered by said mortgage will be sold at the premises on Turkey Hill Lane (located off Justice Cushing Highway, Route 3A) in said Cohasset, at 10:00 a.m. on March 12, 1991 subject to unpaid real estate taxes, tax titles, and municipal liens and assessments if any thereon. Payment of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000) in cash or certified or bank treasurer's check will be required from the purchaser at the time and place of the sale as a deposit, and the balance will be due in thirty days to be deposited in escrow with the firm of Posternak, Blankstein & Lund. Other terms, if any, will be announced at the sale.

Top town workers pay for last year

high school earned $51,283 for the year, while health coordinator Michael Gill earned $50,739.

David Cogill was the police department's third highest paid employee. He earned $48,592; $7,256 of which came from extra details.

Retired police sergeant Richard Barrow earned $48,536.

Kearin Dunn, the head of the math department earned of $48,603.

Paul Narkiewicz, the head of the foreign language department, and selectmen's executive secretary Gregory Doyon earned $48,598 and $48,519, respectively.

Off-duty and detail pay was partially responsible for keeping several members of the police department at the top of the pack.

Brian Cogill almost joined his brother, and fellow police officer, David at the top of the list. He earned $40,839 in regular pay and $7,334 in detail pay.

Other top paid police officers include: John Conte, $47,421; Clifton Jones, $47,789; Robert Jackson, $48,407; and Brian Noonan, $45,217.

Salaries for the school department's 367 employees total more than $4.2 million.

Other school workers who earned more than $45,000 in 1990 were: athletic director Clark Chatterton, $45,220; Ronald Emmons, $45539; and William Kite, $48,217.

Listen at SSAC

If you've ever closed your eyes while listening to music and tried to visualize what you were hearing, then the South Shore Art Center's musical interlude series will more than entertain you.

Through slides and recordings, Scituate resident Pam Blevins explores the interconnection of the arts. Scheduled at the Art Center, 119 Ripley Road, for Feb. 28, March 14 and March 28, the program will consider women composers and the music of the Great War. Each lecture will run from 10:30 a.m. until noon.

Blevins, a member of several music societies in the United States and Great Britain, has conducted her musical interlude lectures throughout Greater Boston.

Ambulance companies seek new bid

By Joseph Mont
Mariner staff

Private ambulance service in Cohasset would be an attractive prospect for local contractors if the town would ease its requirements.

According to a representative of a company that considered a bid but decided against it, the town was looking for too much for too little.

Daniel Morgan, the executive vice-president of the Norfolk-Bristol Ambulance Company said that Cohasset was a "very attractive and very feasible" prospect for a privatized ambulance service.

Morgan said he worked on a bid proposal right up until the deadline, but he did not submit a package because of the town's requirements.

Timothy Fallon, the treasurer for the Fallon Ambulance Company, said that his refusal to place a bid had less to do with the requirements than with his company's ability to make a competitive bid.

Fallon said that even though his company did not bid, Cohasset is an attractive client that could benefit by private service.

He said he would be willing to volunteer as a consultant to help the town acquire private service.

Morgan said that the town would have to lessen its requirements to attract private ambulance services.

He said the bid package contained requirements that were "almost impossible to provide."

"We chose not to bid, most importantly, because some of the bid specifications were very restrictive," he said. "It asked us to do some things we were not comfortable with."

Morgan cited two requirements that kept him out of the bidding.

One requirement specified the base rate to users the company could charge.

Morgan said that the rate specification was "very unusual."

"It was the only such request I have ever seen," he Assessors attack new abatements

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Property tax abatement requests returned to the normal level this year. Assessors received a total of 376 applications.

More than one-third of the applications cover statutory exemptions for homeowners who are elderly, handicapped, blind or veteran's status. The remaining 250 applications are based on a belief that the property is overvalued.

In 1990, assessors received abatement applications due to overvaluation on 524 properties.

Chairman James Lagrotteria said assessors have reviewed more than half the applications. Those with cases pending in the appellate tax board for last year had their new applications automatically dismissed.

Assessors took that action to avoid compromising the appeals process, according to Lagrotteria. The disposition of the cases will cover both years.

Lagrotteria estimates that three-quarters of the remaining applications have been denied.

Assessors plan to complete the process at their Feb. 21 meeting.

Some applicants have been asked to provide additional information to support their request. Approximately eight to 10 property owners chose to withdraw their applications rather than supply the requested documentation.

This year unsuccessful applicants will receive a letter outlining the criteria used by assessors in making decisions. In previous years, only a flat de-

Election draws few new faces

The list isn't official since someone might yet dash to town hall and pull nomination papers for the upcoming town election.

But with the deadline approaching at 5 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 21, only a a handful of candidates have begun the election process.

Selectman Chairman Rocco Laugelle will be running for re-election. Richard P. Barrow of 283 King St., a retired police sergeant, is challenging Laugelle. Barrow, a recreation commissioner, has sought the selectmen's post in the past.

There is one three-year term open.

Two incumbents will be running for re-election to school committee. Committee Chairman Barbara W. Bliss and J. Russell Reidy could go unopposed. No one had signed up for the challenged by Wednesday morning.

Planning board will be one of very few races as Jean Simonds of 107 Nichols Road and Terry J. Atherton of 34 Clay Spring Road have both tossed hats into the ring.

There is one five-year term open. Incumbent Daniel Cotton will not seek re-election, according to town clerk Frances Marks.

Despite all the controversy about the revaluation last year, no opposition candidate has emerged to face incumbent assessor Michael J. Patrolia of 15 Cushing Road.

Robert V. Davenport of 135 Sohier St. is challenging Michael M. Sullivan, board of health member, for the one three-year term on that board.

Thomas Wigmore of 32 Ash St has taken out nomination papers for the one five-year term on the recreation commission. Ely Kahn III of 498 North Main St. has also taken out papers for recreation. Incumbent Gerald A. Buckley has told the town clerk he will not be running.

The three incumbents on the Trustees of Paul Pratt Memorial Library have no visible opposition. The incumbents seeking re-election are: Katherine Sturtevant, Elizabeth F. Eaton and Agnes McCann.

Ben Curley will challenge James R. Sheerin, water commissioner, for the one three-year term on the board.

The only candidate for sewer commissioner seems to be the incumbent, R. Gary Vanderweil Jr.

Chamber votes on three for King

By Patricia Desmond
Mariner staff

What do Chris Ford, Don Harrold and the Cohasset Community Center all have in common?

They are the three candidates in the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce's annual competition for the Forrest E. King Memorial Award.

The winner will be announced Wednesday, Feb. 27, during a special Chamber diner at Kimball's by the Sea.

To win, a person or institution must be a Chamber member. While nominations come from the community at large. Selection from the list of nominees is handled through vote of the Chamber membership.

Criteria call for the winner to have demonstrated the highest business standards of ethics, management, civic responsibility and employee and public relations during the previous year. The criteria go on to state the goals should be in harmony with the Chamber.

The winner is also called upon to have reflected favorably upon the membership.

Chris Ford, school committee member and owner of the Hallmark 100 Properties real estate firm, was one of the original Peace Corps volunteers serving in North Borneo back in the 1960s.

He grew up in Cohasset, graduated from Cohasset High in 1959, and completed graduate school at Michigan State.

Corrections & Clarifications

■ Cohasset selectmen voted against raising beach sticker fees by a vote of 3-1.

Although the recreation department issues the beach stickers, all money goes into general revenues rather than becoming part of the revolving fund that supports recreation programs, according to recreation commission Chairman Richard Barrow.

■ Keith Knowles' actions to develop a teen drop-in center in the Bates Building is being handled as a private citizen, not in his capacity as chairman of the town drug and alcohol committee.

■ Deborah Richards recently learned her parents never approached the Cohasset school system about enrolling her in public school. Richards said her parents chose to enroll her in the Massachusetts Hospital School in the belief the public schools would not be able or willing to deal with her handicapping condition.

Harborfest plans parade, fleet blessing & more

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Harbor Fest organizers promise to make Cohasset the place to be June 22-23. Individuals and organizations have volunteered to plan a full slate of fun-filled activities.

According to James Lagrotteria, the festival gets underway Saturday with pancake breakfast sponsored by the Rotary Club. After that, the focus shifts to South Shore Art Center's annual art festival in the village center.

In the afternoon, hearty souls can try their luck and skill in harbor games. Choices include lobster trap hopping, dinghy races and logrolling. Less adventurous folks can tour the Minot's Light replica lighthouse on Government Island and follow the Captain's Walk around Cohasset.

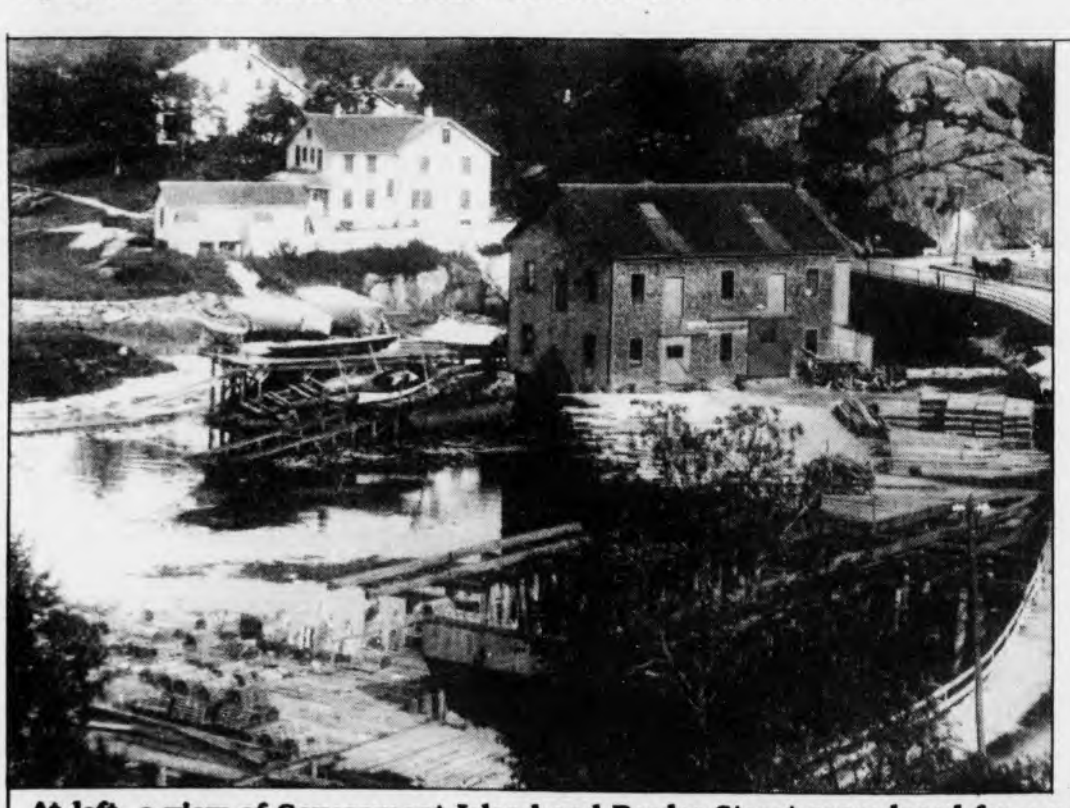
Organizers hope to offer a band concert in the evening. Carrillon concerts will be held throughout the day.

Sunday's activities begin at 1:30 p.m. with a parade of boats and Blessing of the Fleet. Organizers chose the hour based on church services and the tide chart.

Participants will include the Coast Guard and the environmental police.

Following the blessing, organizers want to hold a gala parade from the harbor to the village. The parade route could change for safety reasons.

Lagrotteria described the parade as a traditional affair with a mariner theme. Children will be encouraged to create masks reflecting Cohasset's maritime roots.



"There will be a band, but no politicians," Lagrotteria vowed. Keith Knowles is in charge of parade plans.

Once back in the village, local restaurants will vie for best chowder honors in a contest being organized by the Social Service League. Five restaurants have already promised to put their chowder to the taste test.

Lagrotteria said he also hopes to convince town officials, including the assessors, to volunteer to sit in a dunking booth.

Several other organizations and clubs have indicated a willingness to help with the festivities.

Organizers welcome additional help. Would-be volunteers can leave their name and number at the South Shore Art Center.

Deer Hill kids are TV stars

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Last year, Continental Cablevision offered to give Cohasset a peephole on the schools. Deer Hill School is making sure residents have lots to look at.

Teachers and students videotape regular school activities and special events throughout the month. Then they edit the tape into a half hour video newsletter.

Continental Cablevision broadcasts the tape on Channel 3 twice monthly. February's tape has been shown. The next tape will be shown March 13 at 6 p.m. It will be repeated March 18 at 7 p.m.

"It's a good program," sixth-grade teacher Betty Cisneros said. "The kids really enjoy seeing themselves on tape."

Cisneros, fellow sixth-grade teacher Larry Shultz and school librarian Marjorie Murphy volunteered to coordinate Deer Hill's productions. They learned the intricacies of production and editing by the seat of their pants.

"You learn quickly," Cisneros said. Students help them with every facet of production.

Behind the scenes at the set of the Deer Hill School television show, Brooke Miele and Michael Goodhue hold up cue cards for the hosts. (John Stobierski staff photos)

Deer Hill benefits from truly videogenic children. They all love to put their best face forward.

"They are very, very comfortable on camera," Shultz said.

Murphy credits that to the fact they've been videotaped from the time they were in pre-school if not sooner.

The only drawbacks to the video project, the coordinators say, results from not enough tape and having only one camera. They solved the problem created by gloomy interior halls and dark winter days by purchasing a special light.

There's always something to show the folks at home, the three coordinators agreed.

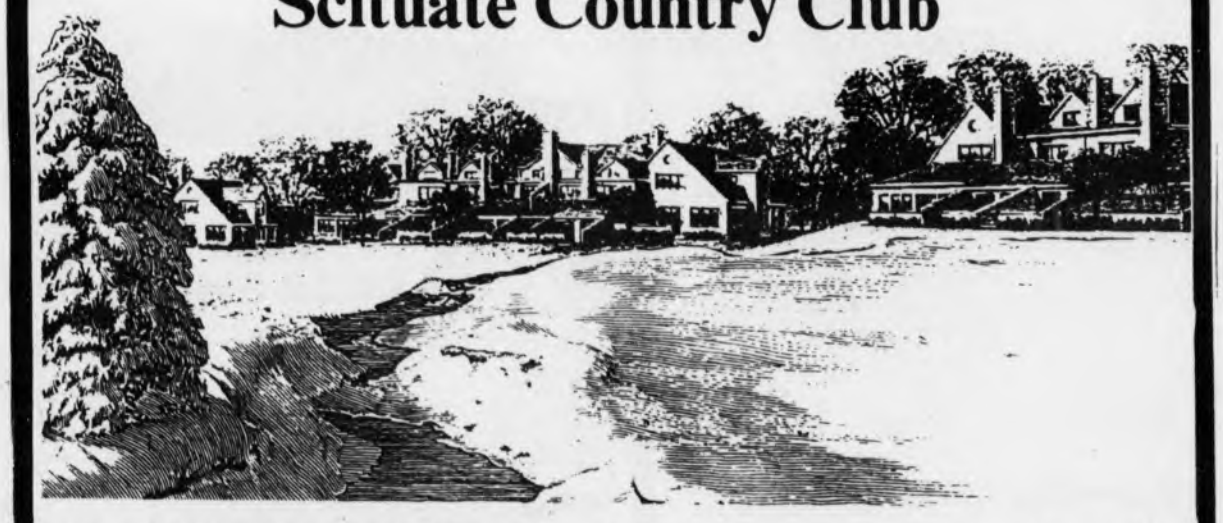
Trish Sullivan's fourth graders treated viewers to living biographies.

Her students chose a famous personate to impersonate. On video day they appeared on camera, in full costume, and related the life story of their alter-ego.

Murphy marvelled at the broad array of famous people who paraded in front of the camera.

Ben Franklin came, toting "Poor Richard's Almanac." George Washington Carver brought a sack of peanuts to illustrate how many things can come from the lowly nut besides peanut butter. Davy Crockett and Daniel Boone regaled viewers with their tales of derring-do in earlier times. Even Rachel Jackson put in an appearance.

Apparently the students really enjoy getting into someone else's life. Inspired by the artist of the month program, students pretended to be Michelangelo painting the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel. Because Deer Hill lacks a chapel, students had to improvise.



The video crew interviewed a series of students pretending to be the Renaissance artist as they worked, flat on their backs underneath tables. Mindful of parents who might not have appreciated

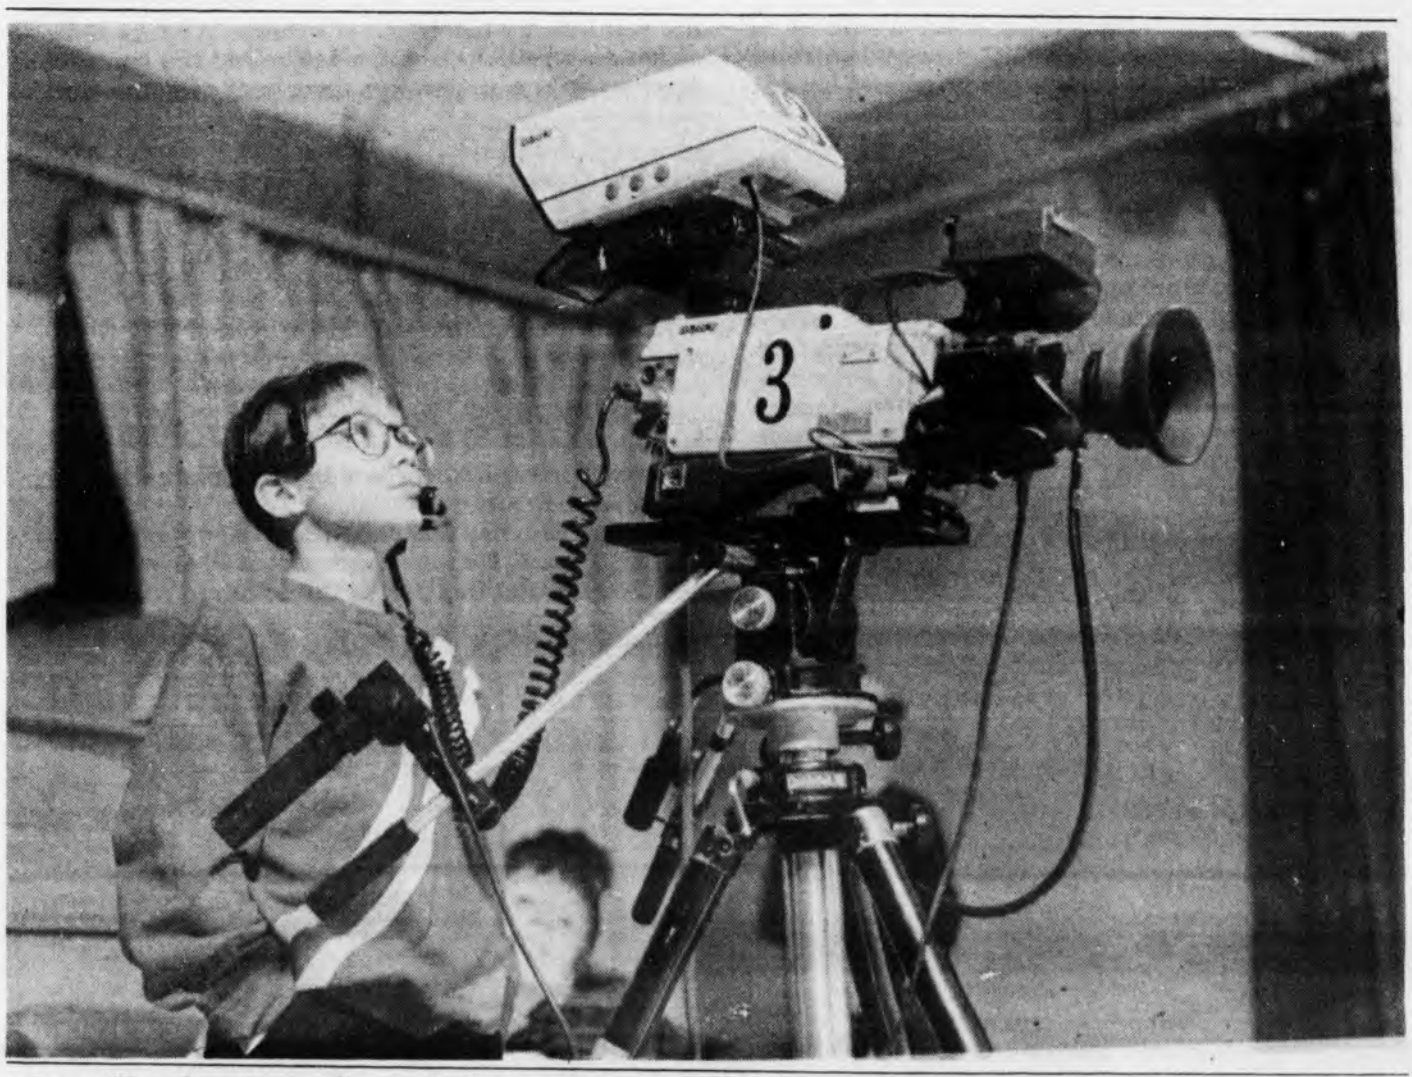
From time to time, the school tackles special programming. At Thanksgiving, Shultz' class put on a big Thanksgiving extravaganza.

Shultz was amazed at how much time and tape it took to put together the half-hour special. He estimates he and his students taped between eight and ten hours worth of film over the course of the month.

Students also created a special tape for the school open house and a video history of Cohasset.

This week the first installment of a sixth grade quiz show will hit the airwaves. Another edition is planned for March.



The live show will be produced, directed, filmed and hosted by students. Four students from each sixth grade classroom will compete.

Students will answer questions drawn from their curriculum. The format is similar to "College Bowl."

Two other special projects featuring the sixth grade are in the works. All four programs will be shown, via closed circuit television, at Deer Hill School.

Altogether, 40 students will trek down to the cable studio to produce each show. By the time the four projects are completed, every sixth grader will have taken part in a television production.

Deer Hill's video efforts earned them a nomination in the cable system's Golden Tape awards. They also submitted a tape in the Massachusetts Education and Technology contest.

Sponsored By Continental Cablevision

A SEASON OF GIVING

Toy Collection. . .Food Drive. . . Fundraiser for a local shelter. . . Continental Cablevision employees turned the end of 1990 into a "Season of Giving" to those less fortunate.

We kicked off with our "Season of Giving" Campaign. For each new customer installed during the month of December, we pledged $10 to the Mary-Martha Learning Center, a shelter for homeless mothers with children. The shelter, based in Hingham, serves women and their children from many South Shore towns. Customers and employees alike responded enthusiastically to the idea and raised $1,100 for the organization.

For the second year in a row, Continental employees held a Christmas Toy Drive. As a system, we filled five large trash bags with new toys, which were donated to the New England Home for Little Wanderers.

Finally, we held a system food drive. We collected canned and packaged goods, and took the food to Wellspring, an organization in Hull that serves the needy in our area. During the two-week collection period, we gathered over 100 pounds of food!

Everyone at the system deserves a huge thank you for their efforts this year. As we hear about more and more people struggling to get by, it was being able to make these small contributions that made us realize all the more how lucky we are to be on the giving side.

BROWNIES GET A BOOST FROM CONTINENTAL'S BUCKET TRUCK

Mike Cooney of Continental Cablevision helped this Scituate Brownie Troop decorate a big spruce tree with yellow ribbons in support of the troops of Desert Storm. "Our bucket truck is always available to help our local communities with their projects. " says Mike, Maintenance Technician for Continental.

The girls were videotaped putting bows on the tree, and their efforts were shown on the local channel that evening.

said. "I have never seen that spelled out before.

"The dollar amount we were allowed to bill was less money than we could collect from third party payers. The rates were a deal buster as far as we were concerned."

He said that if he agreed to the rate, it could affect some of the company's other comparable contracts "to the point where (the company) could take a big financial hit."

Morgan said he also had trouble with was a requirement that only larger "box type" ambulances be used.

He said these ambulances are only "slightly larger" than the "van style" ambulances, his company uses; the company would have to spend more money to supplement its fleet to meet the requirement.

He said both type ambulances have the same equipment and their only difference is structural.

Morgan said it would be unfortunate if the requirements were intended to exclude private carriers because a private service would offer many advantages to a town.

"There are obviously pros and cons to dealing with a private carrier," he said. "One of the great advantages we (Norfolk-Brewster) offer is that not only do we honor all mutual aid calls, we have a fleet of 50 ambulances to supplement back-up calls."

If the ambulance service is re-bid and the requirements are eased, Morgan said his company would "be bidding again and bidding hard."

Fallon said that his company chose not to submit a bid because he did not think there would be "a reasonable return."

He claimed that his company's wage and benefit package is better than the competition. He said he pays employees more than $4 an hour over what the other prospective bidders offer and that this difference kept his company from making a competitive bid.

Fallon also said that his Milton-based company had no desire to spread its resources too thin by "spreading out all over the state."

He said he decided early on that it "would be an exercise in futility" to try to compete with companies that could offer a lower price from the start.

Unlike Morgan, Fallon said he was not troubled by the town's extensive requirements. He said that any of the bidders could make adjustments to retain a profit margin.

Executive secretary Greg Doyon is now reviewing the two bids he received. He expects to make a decision on whether the town will re-bid the contract or enter into a request for proposal over the next two weeks.

Three Chamber contenders vie for King Award

Chris and his wife Karen taught at the University of Guam for seven years. Their three children were all born on Guam. Two of the three now attend Cohasset High, Jon is a freshman and Paul, a senior. Erica is a junior at UMass at Amherst.

Chris served four years as an aide in the US House of Representatives. In 1981, he returned to town. A year later he took over Hallmark 100, which was then a one-man operation. Today the firm has offices in Scituate and Hingham as well as the Cohasset office on Ripley Road.

The Cohasset Committee Center is 50 years old. In 1985 the center began a campaign to upgrade its facilities, making a $500,000 committment to the building. In the past five years, $350,000 of the debt has been paid off.

"Since 1986 the membership has doubled. The program offerings have nearly doubled, and revenue has increased threefold," according to the center's biographical information submitted with the ballots.

"Today the center operates with 17 employees and 63 program instructors.

"The center has formulated a strategic plan for the 1990s. This pal includes an addition and renovations to begin in the spring of 1991. These plans will provide the senior center with long-term space to meet their expanding needs.

"Another goal is to begin a daycare program. Presently the center is seeking a facility to house the program."

By now there are 722 members from Scituate in the organization.

Recently the center became the focus of controversy as the recreation commission and sports clubs groups balked at a planned takeover of the town's recreation program.

The third candidate is Don Harrold of 321 North Main St.

Don is a certified liability underwriter, affiliated with New York Life. He sells life and health insurance.

He said he was surprised by his nomination for the award and joked about it.

Harrold, who has two daughters, has lived in town about 20 years. He moved here from Ohio when his work took him to this part of the country.

He is a part president of Rotary and past grand master at the Cohasset Masonic Lodge.

nial was sent.

""We want to let the townspeople know we're not just flat denying them. We have a pretty good reason for our stand," Lagrotteria said. "I hope our letter makes some impact. If not, we're in for another hell of a year."

According to the letter, no changes in valuation of property are allowed in intervening years unless:

- The discrepancy in total town sales to assessment ratios is greater than 10 percent in a given year.
- Permit work resulted in additional valuation to the home.
- New construction.

Assessors records reflect total town average sales to the assessment ratio for 1988, the year upon which current assessments are based, falls well below the 10 percent restriction.

The board is gearing up for the appellate tax board hearings on last year's cases. Hearings are slated to begin in the spring.

Town meeting will vote on 65 articles on April 6

By Patricia Desmond
Mariner staff

Roughly 65 articles are scheduled for the Saturday, April 6, Town Meeting including an anti-railroad citizens petition article.

Voters will convene at 10 a.m. in the high school auditorium for the annual town meeting. A special town meeting within the annual will deal with eight more articles involving money that needs to be spent before the start of the new fiscal year in July.

The anti-railroad article would direct the selectmen to use all possible means to insure the Greenbush line of the Old Colony Railroad is not restored "Unless and until it has been unequivocally proven that there is no prudent and feasible transportation system alternative."

Should it be proven there is no method with few adverse impacts on the town, then mitigating measures should be developed in the areas of noise, vibration, effect of residential and commercial property values within a mile of the railbed, wetlands destruction, air pollution, destruction of the rural character of the community, safety dangers at grade crossings and local costs related to the T.

One of the 13 certified signatures on the petition article was that of former selectmen Burtram Pratt.

Two school committee articles ask for a total of $140,000. The biggest project calls for $100,000 for the first phase of a project to remove the glass block wall at the junior/senior high school and the installation of light control devices. Another $15,000 is to replace some flooring at the Osgood School. Then $25,000 more (in a separate article) is for computer equipment for a writing lab at the high school.

A petition article by Sumner Smith and others asks for money for the salary of the outreach worker for the council on aging. Money for that salary has been under debate since state funds backing the position were cut last year. The state had been picking up half the cost. Indeed, while there is only one article on the topic, there were four separate groups of residents who petitioned for the filing.

Another article submitted by the housing authority the authority to develop a new project for the elderly and handicapped. A state grant for planning has already been awarded.

Another article would authorize the town to enter into a regional agreement for an advanced life support system ambulance.

Police Chief Joseph Kealey submitted an article asking the town to accept the enhanced 911 telephone service. The service is available at no cost, however it would mean all emergency calls would go to one answering point.

A board of health article would prohibit smoking in restaurants, businesses employing two persons in an enclosed area, library or other public place. Smoking areas could be designated but no place would be allowed to be designated as a smoking area "in its entirety."

Three sewer commission articles would allow expansion plans of the sewer district on projects in the works over the past several years. There is some talk of connecting to Hull.

One article inserted by the assessors deals with appropriating $70,000 for the next town-wide revaluation. Another assessors' article asks authorization to grant partial exemptions to homeowners who provide housing to the elderly.

Six planning board articles deal with rezoning issues like: allowing the sale of Christmas trees in limited industrial and some other business zones, expand the regulation of banners, outlaw strings of lights in business and light industrial districts except at Christmastime, and otherwise tighten up sign bylaw.

Another article simply says that any non-criminal dispositions the proper enforcement officer should handle the matter — but if more than one official has jurisdiction any one with jurisdiction may act whether it's the animal control officer, building inspector, health agent, etc.

One article would require selectmen to give the bylaw committee a copy of any proposed bylaw article at least 10 days before the printing of the town meeting warrant. That article is at the request of the town's bylaw committee.

Another article from the bylaw committee would add to the zoning bylaw on parking requirements for the handicapped due to a typographical error. The new line refers to the number of spaces in a parking lot for more than 1,000 cars. In such a lot one percent of the parking would be reserved for the handicapped or 15 spaces.

The bylaw committee also suggested the definition of the Harbor should be corrected.

Among the other articles are the usual ones to allow borrowing, add to the stabilization fund, change the pay scale, etc.

There is an article for disposal of the Bates Building — it offers no clue as to what disposal might mean since it covers both sale and lease.

There is an article for repainting the old town hall.

There is one to buy Edison property on North Main Street.

Another article would create a specific bylaw to deal with an appointee who misses four consecutive board meetings. The selectmen or appointing authority would have the right to dismiss the member after being petitioned in writing by the board in question.

Highway surveyor Harold Litchfield is seeking $3,000 to reconstruct the intersection of King and Beechwood streets.

Other articles deal with sidewalks for King Street and Forest Avenue, renovate the property at Government Island, alter the makeup of the Cohasset Harbor Committee, change the health insurance program, give the Historical Society an easement to maintain a four-foot granite wall at 14 Summer Street.

Still other articles deal with a reclassification of the landfill supervisor and accompanying title change. He will become the recycling transfer facility manager.

Other articles involve money for major pieces of equipment sought by some departments, waterways expenditures, road resurfacing and a petition article to build a sidewalk on King Street.

The exact number of articles may change before the town meeting warrant is printed.

Local bank blames losses on bad loans

Cohasset Savings Bank recently reported a loss of $(980,000) or $(.98) per share, for the year ended December 31, 1990. This compares with net income of $184,000, or $.18 per share, for 1989. For the quarter ended December 31, 1991, the bank reported a net loss of $(564,000), or $(.56) per share, compared with a net loss of $(121,000), or $(.12) per share, for the same period in 1989.

As with virtually all New England banks, the decline from the 1989 periods was due largely to a substantial increase in the provision for loan losses. The Bank provided $680,000 in the fourth quarter, bringing the total provision for the year to $1,592,000, compared with $290,000 for 1989.

Donald E. Bates, President, indicated "as with other banks, we have experienced increases in the number of 91-day delinquent loans; fortunately, however, we have made adequate provision for losses without seriously affecting our strong capital position, which, at 17.4%, is among the very highest among Massachusetts banks. Net interest income, measuring the bank's current operations, remained strong, although down slightly from 1989."

Assets of the Bank at December 31, 1991 were $65,775,000 and stockholders' equity was $11,444,000 at that date. There are 1,002,978 shares of common stock outstanding.

Cohasset Savings is a 145-year-old community thrift institution serving a popular residential area of Massachusetts' South Shore.

Zobel helps trial judges chart the future

Twenty-five trial judges have been named to a Committee on the Future of the Courts by Judge Joseph T. Travaline, President of the Massachusetts Judges Conference, it was announced recently.

The committee is integrating the views of trial judges as to what lies ahead for the judicial system for submission to a broad body appointed by Chief Justice Liacos, known as the Chief Justice's Commission on the Future of the Courts.

The chair of the trial judges' committee is Judge Lawrence D. Shubow of Brookline.

Judge Hiller B. Zobel of Cohasset and the Superior Court is a member of the working group dealing with organization and administration.

Martha Blackmur

Martha Dickinson Snow Blackmur, who lived most of her life in Cohasset, died Feb. 13 at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Paula Blackmur Young and Stewart Young of Windy Wood Road in Barre Town, VT., with whom she had resided since July, 1988.

The daughter of Ephraim and Maude (Dickinson) Snow of Cohasset, she was born in the family home at 15 Beach Street on March 25, 1899. Mrs. Blackmur attended Cohasset schools and graduated from Wellesley College, Wellesley, MA. in 1921.

She was first married to the late Edward A. Clark. On Oct. 12, 1936, she married Paul Blackmur in Quincy, MA.

Mr. and Mrs. Blackmur were members of the First Parish Church (Unitarian) in Cohasset. Both had been very active in church, civic and community affairs. During World War II, she was an active member of the Red Cross Motor Corps.

Mr. Blackmur died Jan. 3, 1982.

Besides her daughter, Mrs. Blackmur leaves a son, Thomas French Clark of Amherst, N.H.; three grandsons, Thomas Clark Jr., Scott Clark and Peter Clark; and three great grandsons.

A graveside service will be held at noon, Saturday, Feb. 23 in Cohasset Central Cemetery. Her family will receive friends in the Parish House of the First Parish Church (Unitarian) immediately following the service.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Wellesley College's Office for Resources in her memory and credited to the Class of 1921, Wellesley College, Wellesley, MA. 02181 or to the Cohasset Historical Society, Summer Street, Cohasset, MA. 02025.

Funeral arrangements are under the direction of Hooker & Whitcomb Funeral Home, 7 Academy Street, Barre, VT.

Robert Pape

Memorial services for Robert S. Pape, 67, founder and owner of Oak Farm Inc and Oak Farm Contracting of Cohasset, were held last month at the Second Congregational Church.

Burial was private.

He died of cancer at his home Jan. 4.

Mr. Pape directed his attorney to establish a scholarship for Cohasset students who plan to continue their education after graduation from high school.

The scholarship will be available for those planning to attend a four-year college, two-year college or vocational-technical training.

Attorney James DeGiacomo promised to provide additional details about the scholarship after the will has been accepted by the court.

A lifelong resident of Cohasset, Mr. Pape was a graduate of Cohasset High School. He served as chairman of the board of registrars for 15 years and was director of both the Cohasset Savings Bank and the Hingham Mutual Fire Insurance Company.

He leaves a brother, Charles F. Pape of Cohasset; two sisters, Elizabeth Carpenter of California and Ruth S. Hussey of Abington, as well as two grandchildren, Candice and Robert Buckley of Cohasset. He also leaves a friend, Andrea Davis.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Gaffey Funeral Home of North Scituate.

Everett Wheelright

Funeral services were held on Feb. 16 at Second Congregational Church for Everett W. Wheelright, 93, who died Feb. 15 at his home following a brief illness.

Mr. Wheelright, a lifelong resident of Cohasset, was the former owner of Lincoln Brothers Coal and Oil Company.

He was a member of the Masons at the Konohassett Lodge for 5.

He leaves his wife, Madelaine (Lapham) Wheelright; two sons, John Wheelright of Georgia and Dustin Wheelright of Cohasset; a daughter, Virginia Bland of Texas; and several grandchildren. He was the brother of the late Walter Wheelright.

Burial was in the Beechwood Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were made by the McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home.

Donations may be made to the Standish Humane Society, c/o Sue Ellen Conlan, 98 Old Forge Road, Scituate, 02066.

Osgood celebrates China

During the entire month of January, PSO Curriculum Enrichment has made available to the teachers and students at Osgood, a kit from the Children's Museum, entitled "Chinese Celebrations," which is being circulated throughout the school. A cultural table was set up with resources borrowed from the Children's Museum, the Paul Pratt Library and the Hingham Library, which are on display at the front entrance to Osgood.

Also, to tie in with the China Unit, Nikki Hu presented two programs at Osgood. Teachers were given a copy of the Stonecutter, which was read to the children, since they would be involved in a dance workshop. All children created mylar streamers, and Linda Stevens, the art teacher, oversaw the creation of the props used for the workshop.

At the end of this unit, each child was provided with a set of chopsticks and a fortune cookie. Room mothers prepared a simple meal consisting of rice. This celebration has provided an opportunity for teachers to introduce the many aspects of cultural differences, including such topics as dance, music, costume, nutrition and folk tales.

Academic help offered

The Cohasset Community Center is offering a group of academic reinforcement courses designed for children in grades 4 to 12. The courses are presented in an effort to help a child get the most out of his/her educational experience.

On Mondays, from 7 to 8 p.m., starting Feb. 25, for grades 7 to 12, a Study Skills course will be taught by Karla Watts. This course is geared towards helping the student gather his materials and garner what is most important and relevant to the subject matter.

On Tuesdays, from 4 to 5 p.m., starting Feb. 26, grades 4 to 6 will be able to strengthen their study skills by learning how to gauge their time and grasp the content of their homework more effectively.

For grades 6 to 9 an Expository Writing I course will start on Monday, Feb. 27 from 4 to 5 p.m. The course is a 13 week ungraded program involving the careful step-by-step process related to developing sound, coherent paragraphs and ultimately the short (3-4 paragraph) essay. Various approaches and lively topics are implemented to reinforce the students' ability to write with greater effectiveness and confidence. (This course is not a prerequisite to Expository Writing II.)

For grades 10 to 12 an Expository Writing II course is to be held on Mondays from 5 to 6 p.m. for 13 weeks starting Feb. 27. This course covers writing to explain and writing to convince as two essential skills requiring practice and reinforcement. This ungraded program emphasizes the student's development of effective thesis statements, coherent paragraphs, and more powerful sentence structure and vocabulary as ingredients for sound essay writing. Interesting and unique topics are implemented.

Writing Creatively I is a course offered for Grades 6 to 9 on Wednesdays, from 4 to 5 p.m. for 13 weeks starting Feb. 29. An ungraded program, Writing Creatively provides fun and challenging approaches to improving student's writing skills with poetry, plays, journals, and short stories. Individuals of both average and advanced developmental writing levels are welcome. (This course is not a prerequisite to Writing Creatively II).

Writing Creatively II is offered for Grades 10 to 12 on Wednesdays, from 5 to 6 p.m. for 13 weeks starting Feb. 29. The course is an intensive, but ungraded program and offers an opportunity for both average and advanced writers to refine writing skills in poetry, drama and fiction. The development of sound creative writing skills is approached as an integrative process, leading to a polished final student project.

Please call the Center at 383-0088 for additional information or to register.

Furniture restoring offered

The Cohasset Recreation Department will accept telephone registrations for a furniture restoration-refinishing-revitalization class, to be taught by Kenneth Sargent of Cohasset Country Workshop, by calling the recreation office at 383-6791.

Sessions are five weeks in duration, meeting on Wednesday or Saturday mornings, 9 to 11 a.m. at the Cohasset Town Hall. The fee for this ten-hour program is $53 per person, and classes are restricted in size to allow for individual attention.

Participants should select a piece of furniture that is relatively portable for class work. A chair or small table is ideal. Participants will not only learn the arts involved with restoration and refinishing, but will also have a completed piece of furniture by the end of the session.

Sargent has been a professional refinisher for a number of years in Cohasset, and has taught the art of restoration and refinishing to a number of classes over the years.

AROUND TOWN

❑ The CHHS Swim Team, newly formed this year, is undertaking a challenge at the end of this season. It is called "Swim-For-Sight", and they will swim to raise money for the Eye Research Institute in Boston March 2 and 3. Dave Maynard of WBZ Radio is heading the event, and such celebrities as Dave Cowens (who will be enshrined at the Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield in May), Mary Wayte (Olympic double gold medalist) and dozens of others will be swimming. It will take place at the Boston Harbor Hotel, Rowes Wharf Health Club and Spa. The money raised will help fund research aimed at eliminating blindness and the diseases that threaten sight. Athletic Director Clark Chatterton has been in on the preliminary meetings, and will gladly fill you in on additional information, as well as provide you with a pledge form. The number you can reach him at is 383-6103. The event will be broadcast over WBZ, so you can hear just how well our swimmers do.

❑ Joe Laugelle called with horrifying news this weekend; someone stole the flag at the Transfer Station. It's so hard to believe that anyone could be that callous, please whoever took it, bring it back.

❑ Great news Around Town this week about Scott Molinari. Many remember Scott from his CHS days; well he is now a freshman majoring in accounting at Quincy College. Scott joined the Intercultural Club there, and also wanted to get involved in the student government. He made a poster, students got to know him, and he won the spot as freshman representative for the Student Government. Congratulations go to you Scott, keep up your good work.

John and Sean Anand of Easton help decorate the Town Common with new yellow ribbons on Presidents Day.

(PLD photo)

❑ Many of you will remember Jeff Giles, a 1983 graduate of CHS. Scott has continued with his writing career, and wound up this month with the lead story on the cover of Rolling Stone Magazine, with a good story on Robin Williams. We hear that it is a great article, congratulations go to you Jeff!

❑ The U.S. Figure Skating Championship was held in Minneapolis this week and Cohasset's own Bethany Guintin won the Novice Women's Figures. That's a U.S. Gold folks, and we should all be mighty proud of Bethany.

❑ Linc Marsac had a great game last Friday, as a member of the All-Star team. As most know, Linc celebrated his 1,000th point last week, certainly a milestone that is one to be proud of. Watch for Linc's name in the future, he's good.

❑ We're glad to report that Grace Silvia is home from the hospital. Grace is doing well, and we are sure that she will be reporting her bowling scores soon. Continue to recover quickly Grace, you are a special gal indeed.

❑ Congratulations go to Kevin Mulcahy, who was named to our league's All-Star Team for his hockey prowess.

❑ Please call with your news, it should be plentiful during vacation week.

EDITORIAL

Last chance to run

"Government (in a democracy) cannot be stronger or more tough-minded than its people. It cannot be more inflexibly committed to the task than they. It cannot be wiser than the people."

These words of former UN Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, from speeches he delivered when he was running for President, make a fitting theme for the 1991 town election.

Many residents are disillusioned with government. Their frustration and anger have filtered down to the local level. They see all town officials as incompetent and/or self-serving. They look on town employees as pulling the purse strings — taking and taking instead of serving the public needs.

But anger and frustration that strikes out indiscriminately — that simply paints everyone in public office and public service with the same dirty brush — does not serve the cause of good government.

What the town needs at this crucial juncture is people committed to good government.

That means citizens willing to step forward and play a part in running the town. It means substituting hard work for cocktail party conversation. It means going out into the streets of the town armed with a positive plan based on new ideas for coping with the town's dire financial problems. It means rousing enthusiasm and hope.

The task won't be easy. Incumbent town officials have had to stomach a lot of criticism in the past year. Some of it is unjust. They have had to deal with the town's problem on a day to day basis. They have tried to treat town employees justly. But they have received no thanks and precious little satisfaction.

There is little time to go before the filing deadline for the April 13 town election.

The deadline for pulling nomination papers from the town clerk's office is 5 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 21. The papers with signatures of 50 registered voters must be submitted to the registrars by 5 p.m. Monday, Feb. 25.

So far there are two candidates for selectmen — Richard Barrow of King Street and incumbent Selectman Chairman Rocco Laugelle.

That leaves only a few hours for citizens to get involved.

What the town needsis less hot air and more hard work.

There are a couple thousand of good citizens in Cohasset. It's time to hear from a lot more of them. It's time for the strong, the tough-minded, the wise to stand up for the long count.

Soccer Club attacks selectmen

Letters

(Editor's note: The following letter was sent to the Mariner for publication.)

To the Board of Selectmen:

The Cohasset Soccer Club was surprised, and dismayed, to learn of your vote on Feb. 11 to endorse a proposal by the privately funded and administrated Cohasset Community Center to assume operation and oversee programs currently run by the Town of Cohasset's Recreation Department.

For eleven years, the Cohasset Soccer Club has developed and administrated youth soccer programs in this town. Our spring program, involving nearly 500 children between the ages of five and 19, is considered a model for small towns throughout the state. For the past three years, we have been assisting the town in the running of its fall program. Indeed, in 1990, the Cohasset Soccer Club handled every aspect of fall recreation soccer, other than setting the high enrollment fee, which was dictated by the town itself.

Because of our past experience with this program, we would have expected the Selectmen, at the very least, to solicit our views before taking any action. With 600 voting parents active in our programs, we believe our membership represents a broad spectrum of opinion. For the Selectmen to dismiss that opinion without a hearing seems irresponsible.

Certainly, the Community Center has engaged us in discussion. From our meetings with their directors, we are of the opinion that, in the case of soccer, anyway, they bring neither expertise nor understanding to that particular program. As a consequence, our board has voted to oppose the Community Center proposal.

The Recreation Commission has already addressed the problem of inequitable fees by voting to have the town recreation department become self-supporting through a revised fee structure. For 1991 fall soccer, that will mean an estimated $15 per child fee, the amount the Cohasset Soccer Club had recommended this year. Fees from the soccer program and, we understand, the youth basketball program, currently run by the Basketball Boosters under a similar arrangement to ours, will no longer subsidize other Recreation Department programs.

Because of those reforms, we urge the town to continue to fund and support the Recreation Department. This is now a choice between a private agency (which will be more expensive) and one accountable to the public, with both offering the same programs. Why would we take the means to shape, to change, to develop and to oversee those programs away from the people who will pay for and use them?

Yours truly,

Jack Worley seeks supporters

(Editor's Note: The following letter was submitted for publication.)

To the Cohasset Basketball Boosters Club:

As many of you may be aware, there were approximately 355 children and youth who participated in the 1990-91, Recreation Booster's Basketball League and clinics. To fully appreciate this level of participation, it is necessary to know that there are 830 students in grades 1 through 9, who are eligible to participate. This means that about 43 percent of all eligible students participated in basketball this year. Truly a remarkable level of interest and participation for any one sport program.

There are numerous contributing factors that dictate the level of success of any recreation program, the prerequisite factor, of course, must always be the availability of opportunity. That is, insurance that the program can be conducted.

Because of the magnitude of the basketball program, operation is possible only because of the generous donations of time, effort, interest and expertise of numerous individuals working in common purpose and goal. The opportunity for our children/youth to play basketball is dependent upon individual efforts, that collectively, through the auspices of the Cohasset Basketball Booster's Club, have provided for a well-organized, highly structured and sophisticated program. Some of you may recall, that it was not much more than a decade ago, when Saturday, recreational basketball became available, but conducted on an "also offered" basis. That is, Basketball began on Saturday afternoons, only after the last floor hockey game had been played for the day. Your organization has supported and promoted the game at all levels of play from high school varsity through primary grade instructional basketball.

Through universal application of efforts, there has developed a new and highly acute level of interest in the sport, throughout an exceptionally wide spectrum of ages. From my perspective, there exists one factor that above all others, has contributed most towards success. This factor is incidental to basketball per se and in a sense, delegates basketball as a media, through which your most important and apparent concerns, interest, and dedication can be expressed; those for our children and youth.

The Recreation Commission join me in gratitude for your interest, time and efforts, making possible this opportunity for our youth.

Very truly yours,
John M. Worley, Director

Basketball Boosters

This will serve to communicate the position of the Cohasset Basketball Boosters Club (CBBC) with respect to the Community Center proposal to eliminate the Recreation Department.

By way of background, the CBBC functions exclusively in the interest of Cohasset youth, providing basketball programs and events for both boys and girls in grades one through 12, inclusive. The winter leagues on Saturdays and the annual varsity/J.V. Breakup Dinner are two noteworthy examples of our involvement.

We feel it is also important to note that much of the progress over the years has been accomplished in partnership with the Recreation Department, with whom we have enjoyed a viable working relationship.

(See page 11)

The advisory committee voted recommendations on about half the 60+ articles that will appear on the April 6 annual town meeting warrant. Among the money articles the committee voted to support was $2,500 for a restroom in the harbormaster's shack.

Recreation dept. can be self-supporting

For many years, recreation professionals statewide have been appealing to the state legislature and department of revenue, to modify the restrictions of use of the commonwealth provided Recreation Revolving Account Fund for 100 percent Self-Supporting Programs. The R.A.F. is the financial mechanism employed by the Cohasset Recreation Commission, through which most services are provided.

Because of financial constraints incumbent upon most municipalities, the department of revenue has revised the Revolving Account Fund and impact and effect of this means much to Cohasset residents. At this juncture it will now be possible to conduct most any type of recreation program, especially children's programs, via R.A.F. sponsorship. Prior constraints all but eliminated the operation of most children's sport/recreational programs from R.A.F. provisions. In fact, only a few, very specialized children's programs were capable of qualification through the R.A.F. Further, under all conditions, the R.A.F. would not allow for liability insurance coverage of the Town to protect those conducting R.A.F. programs. However, because of legislative changes and new interpretations of the state statues, this has all changed.

For the past number of years we have been able to conduct only four children's programs via our annual budget and all other programs via the restrictive, difficult to manage, time-consuming Revolving account fund for 100 percent Self-Supporting Programs. Not only did we perceive an inadequacy of service where service was needed most, it also became the burden of just four programs and sales of beach stickers, to generate all our General Fund revenue. That is, revenue that can be applied to offset our cost to taxpayers, by deposit in the General Fund of the Town of Cohasset. Under the new R.A.F. provisions we will be able to offer limitless types and numbers of children's services on a 100 percent financially self-supporting basis.

Further, all programs, including all current and future programs conducted via R.A.F. sponsorship will help contribute revenue towards offset of our costs, into the General Fund. On one hand, we now have no limitations providing service and, on the other hand, we will realize 100 percent Self-support in the very near future.

Perhaps of extreme importance will be the low fee charges that we will be able to offer residents. We are able to provide a service for the "at service cost" fee charge. That is, the fee can be established based upon fulfillment of two primary financial criteria. First, the collective fees must compensate the costs of operating the program. Second, a small amount of the fee charge will represent a "fair share" towards offset of indirect, administrative costs of providing that particular service. Through levels of participation, the collective receipts from a given program will account for those two factors, while at the same time, keep the per capita fee very low. As always the recreation commission will allow for fee waivers or reductions, upon request from any resident who finds the fee a burden.

Scheduled to become effective as of March 6, is a new law that establishes a five percent "recreation" tax on all private, even non-profit, recreation providers. Exempt from this tax, should it become law and exempt from all current taxes, will be the revolving account fund, as the R.A.F. is considered a municipal, governmental mechanism of finance; not private/non-profit.

Nevertheless, we are also citizens in a community subject to significant fiscal pressures. Therefore, we listened carefully to the proposal to determine if it would, in fact, relieve a measure of the tax burden without sacrificing the athletic interests of our youth or the integrity of existing basketball programs, now and in future years.

Using this criteria, the CBBC finds it is unable to support the community center proposal.

We hasten to add that we are not against the community center itself, nor any of its representatives. Their proposal contains many positive features and is generally a step in the right conceptual direction of better programs, lower fees and reduced tax implications.

However, we also see potential negatives inherent in their proposal which are typical of any private organization. For instance, there can be no guarantees that future community center boards will view fee levels, program formats, eligibility, etc. in quite the same way as the current board, which has been very forthright on all issues.

Of particular concern is the high membership participation in the community center by non-Cohasset residents. How could any board withstand pressure by paying members to allow their children access to any community center activity? Since our facilities are already fully utilized by 386 Cohasset children, the admission of any others would capsize our program. And because of the private structure of the community center there would be little if anything, that could be done to redress this or any other unpalatable situation that might arise.

Moving to the positive side of events, the community center proposal has certainly been a catalyst in stimulating the recreation department to attempt new structural and financial concepts. It is our understanding that recent regulatory changes conceded by the state may allow them to operate on a "breakeven" basis. As a public entity, their motives and methods would continue to reflect and be responsive to Cohasset interests in an open forum.

In the event that the Recreation Department is truly able to reorganize without effective burden on Cohasset taxpayers or compromise to existing youth programs, the CBBC is prepared to offer support accordingly.

Channel 53 schedule

CHANNEL 53

February 14, Thursday, 5:30 p.m. Children's Corner: Bob Detwiler reads another of English author/veterinarian James Herriot's books, Blossom Comes Home, The Purple Coat and Ibis, a True Whale Story.

February 19, Tuesday, 8:30 p.m. Bob Detwiler's Journal. Bob, in past programs has interviewed authors about their newly published books, but this week his program takes on a new twist as he talks to collaborating authors John Feloni and David McKee about their forthcoming book, The Custer Principle, the pursuit of the antithesis of excellence. Those of you who have read Tom Peter's books will find this discussion particularly interesting.

February 26, Tuesday, 6 p.m. Children's Corner: Bob Detwiler reads children's stories. In response to several requests Bob is repeating a past program, the very sensitively written Sierra Club Book dealing with human values, Peace Begins With You, the recently published and beautifully illustrated Henry Wadsworth Longfellow's poem, Paul Revere's Ride, Jan Brett's Annie and the Wild Animals and Tomorrow Up and Away. This is a varied program and should appeal to young and old alike.

8:30 p.m. Bob Detwiler's Journal. Norwell resident Ann Caldwell, Assoc. Director for Development and Public Affairs of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts provides some interesting historical and contemporary insights into the MFA.

Gulf special on Pierson

On Thursday, Feb. 21, Wigmore Pierson's guests on Pierson to Person will review the war in the Persian Gulf and current and future United States' foreign policy in the region.

Pierson's guests will be Professor Andrew Hess from The Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University; Professor Sherifa Zuhur from the history faculty at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; and William B. Ketter, Editor, The Patriot Ledger.

The Pierson to Person show is broadcast live each Thursday evening, 8-9 p.m. on Channels 3 and 53 in Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Norwell, Scituate and Hanover.

The general public is invited to be part of the studio audience and should be at the Continental Cablevision studio on Gannett Road, North Scituate by 7:30 p.m. on Thursday evening, Feb. 21.

For further information call Robert Belliveau, Executive Producer of "Pierson to Person" at 545-0643.

Daffodil sale aids victims

Volunteers in nine South Shore communities are working toward a March 6 deadline for taking advance orders for the colorful Cancer Society fundraiser, Daffodil Days, March 19-20, when over 100,000 of the bright yellow flowers will burst forth to announce Spring on the South Shore.

Pauline and Dennis Sweeney of Quincy, co-chairs of the annual effort, report that orders have been coming in from businesses, professional offices and individuals with every indication that 1991 Daffodil Days will be bigger and brighter than ever.

"This bright flower has come to be a symbol of hope to cancer patients and their families," Mrs. Sweeney says. "Your daffodil donation helps dedicated people everywhere win the fight against cancer."

Advance orders are taken for a minimum of three 10-bloom bouquets at $4 each, while $200 will buy 50 bundles totalling 500 blossoms. The daffodils are grown on the West Coast and flown here to arrive the day before Daffodil Days. They are then delivered to purchasers by volunteers and will open into bloom after an overnight in water.

Orders for the flowers may be placed with Mrs. Sweeney at 773-8226, at the Cancer Society Unit Office in Stoughton, 341-4210, or with representatives in the other communities covered by the South Shore Unit. These volunteers include: Cohasset, Al Odermatt; and Hingham, Norma Infusino, Helen Ireton and Pat Smith at the Hingham Town Hall.

Hungry "U" coffee house

A gala night of comedy and music will feature Norwell's own Bob Detwiler, Bernie Gardner and Bob Bartlett, as members of a barber shop quartet; the lovely folk music of Pam Neves, and the comedic talents of Scott Babcock as a member of the comedy team the Cha Cha Cha's.

In addition, the evening will feature folk musician Carol Karlson, dramatic/comedic readings by Ed Miller of Norwell and Mike DePaulo, and the inimitable charm of comedians Chris Kitchenham, Ray Fish, John Siemens, and Scott Kitchenham of Hanson.

This special evening of entertainment will be held Saturday, March 2, at 7:30 p.m. in the Parish Hall of First Parish Unitarian in Norwell Center, (River Street and Route 123). Refreshments will be served.

AARP plans line dancing

The next meeting of the South Shore Hingham Chapter #1139 of the American Association of Retired Persons will be on Thursday, Feb. 28 at 1:30 p.m. at the Sons of Italy Hall, Route 3A.

There will be a short regular meeting followed by a fun-filled afternoon of line dancing led by Helen Collameco. Refreshments will be served. Any member of the National AARP or NRTA may join a chapter and is welcome to this meeting.

Special on divorce law set

The financial aspects of divorce are not well known nor easily understood. This important topic will be the subject of discussion on the cable TV show "McNamara on Money" which will air on Channel 53 on Wednesday, Feb. 27, at 8 p.m. Host Michael J. McNamara will be interviewing Attorney Neal Brown on the subject. The first show in this series will be entitled "Principles of Divorce Law." If divorce is a subject of interest to you, it will be very much worth your while to watch the show.

McNamara is also looking for people who would be interested in being in the audience for this series. There will be a question and answer period on several shows, and the audience will have an opportunity to ask questions of an attorney, an accountant, and a financial planner. Please watch the first show for more details or call McNamara Financial Services at 383-2927 for more information.

The business of child care

The need for quality and affordable child care is critical to many American workers...and therefore to American businesses. This will be the subject of the "Business Show," which will air on Channel 53 Wednesday evening Feb. 27, at 8:30 p.m. This show is a continuation of the Feb. 20 telecast. Guest host Paul McDonough will interview representatives from business and community on the subject. If child care is a subject that is of interest to you, do not miss this show.

Art center seeks entries

A call for entries has been issued by the South Shore Art Center for the 1991 New England Juried Exhibition. The open exhibit will be on display March 7 through April 6 at the Art Center, 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset.

Original work in oil and acrylics, watercolor, drawing and pastels, graphics, three-dimensional, and mixed media will be accepted on Friday, March 1 from 12 to 4 p.m. and Saturday, March 2 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. An $8 non-refundable fee per entry must be paid upon delivery of art work. Ribbons and prizes will be awarded to the best in each of the categories.

Jurors for the show are Gerry Bergstein, an internationally recognized artist and art professor at the MFA School; Walter Crump, a printmaker whose work is in collections at the Library of Congress, Smithsonian Institution, and the New York Public Library; and Francine Koslow, an art historian, critic, and curator who contributes regularly to Art Forum.

For a brochure and entry form, call the Art Center at 383-9548.

Basketball team takes it to the hoop one last time

By Brian W. Saxton
Special to the Mariner

The Cohasset boys' basketball team ended its regular season on an up note, beating Abington 55-42 on Feb. 11. The Skippers finished the regular season with a 5-11 league record and are 6-12 overall going into the Medway Tournament on Wednesday.

"We had a team meeting before the Abington game, to have the kids focus on what it takes to win" explained Cohasset coach Arnold Repucci. "Our goal was to beat them."

They reached their goal by playing a solid game throughout, gaining a 28-21 halftime lead and played most of the second half without leading scorer Linc Marsac who was in foul trouble.

Leading Cohasset was Linc Marsac who scored 20 points despite limited playing time, Sheldon Morgan had 12 points and Kywon Edwards added 10 points to the Skipper cause.

SPORTS

Repucci also noted the play of Caleb Slotnik, who normally plays at the guard position, was asked to play forward against Abington and had a solid offensive and defensive game.

"I'm impressed with the team" Repucci said, "they played half the game without Linc and played well. We had to make adjustments at halftime, and they worked."

Repucci and his players want to express their sincere appreciation for the cheerleading squad who have helped rally them, keeping their spirit and enthusiasm up throughout the year.

Congratulations are in order for Linc Marsac who was named a South Shore League All-Star.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

The girls' basketball team finished up their season last week, losing to Abington 50-26 on Feb. 11, then beating Weymouth Catholic 45-25. The girls finished their season with a 3-14 record.

Against Abington, Cohasset was led by Allison Ludlow who had eight points including a three-pointer, Maureen Long six points and Kerry Murphy chipped in with four points.

"Abington was hot, and of our 47 shots, only nine went in" explained Skipper coach Debbie Bostwick. "We didn't play bad, but we just couldn't get anything going."

The Weymouth Catholic game marked some firsts for the girls, including the first game they shot 100 percent from the free throw line (7-7) and the first 20-point win of the year. Allison Ludlow led the charge with 13 points, Maureen Long added eight points and six defensive rebounds while Sarah Douglas and Barbara Lagrotteria both scored six points. In addition, Barbara Lagrotteria was named a South Shore League All-Star, and won the three-point shooting contest at the recent All-Star game.

"We played really well and it was a fun game" Bostwick said. "It's nice to end with a positive attitude."

SWIMMING

Cohasset swam in the South Sectionals last week and did well, finishing 22nd out of 29 teams. The 200 freestyle relay team of Chris Henderson, Chip Anderson, John Brister, and Dave Leahy finished eleventh. This meet included all teams from the section competing together despite their size.

This completes competition for the Cohasset team, wrapping up their first year of league competition. "I'm delighted that a team in its first year did so well" said coach Linda Henderson. "I'm really pleased for our team."

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue and in execution of the POWER OF SALE contained in a certain mortgage given by Mary C. Jope to Joseph A. Saponaro, Trustee of Saponaro Realty Trust dated January 20, 1967 and recorded with the Norfolk District Registry of Deeds, Book 4407, Page 70, and with Plymouth District Registry of Deeds in Book 3345, Page 286, of which mortgage the undersigned is the present holder, for breach of the conditions of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same will be sold at public auction on the premises on March 12, 1991, a portion of the premises described in said mortgage, to wit:

"The land together with the buildings thereon situated in Cohasset, County of Norfolk and Hingham, County of Plymouth, consisting of 6.66 acres, more or less, as shown on the plan of land entitled "Plan of Land in Hingham and Cohasset, Massachusetts," dated May 17, 1966, by Edwin A. Young, Registered Land Surveyor, and recorded with Norfolk District Registry of Deeds in Book 4407, Page 69."

Excluding therefrom that portion of the above premises as shown on said plan conveyed to Joseph A. Saponaro, Trustee of Saponaro Realty Trust by Mary C. Jope, Trustee of the M.C.J. Realty Trust by deed dated December 27, 1971 recorded with Norfolk District Registry of Deeds in Book 4798, Page 625, and with the Plymouth District Registry of Deeds in Book 3741, Page 417, being more particularly bounded and described as follows:

NORTHWESTERLY: by land of Joseph Saponaro as shown on said plan, 385.15 feet

NORTHEASTERLY: by land of Joseph Saponaro as shown on said plan, 203.30 feet to the Hingham and Cohasset boundary

SOUTHEASTERLY: to a point on the Southeasterly bound of the property as shown on said plan, being 245 feet Easterly of the Westerly most bound as shown on said plan

SOUTHWESTERLY: 245 feet along a fence as shown on said plan by a "permanent access easement" as shown on said plan.

The excluded portion of the mortgaged premises being a rectangular shaped parcel of land at the westerly side of the total area of 6.66 acres, more or less, as shown on said plan, including the area shown on said plan as 0.79 acres, more or less, in Hingham.

Terms of Sale: The above described portion of the real property covered by said mortgage will be sold at the premises on Turkey Hill Lane (located off Justice Cushing Highway, Route 3A) in said Cohasset, at 10:00 a.m. on March 12, 1991 subject to unpaid real estate taxes, tax titles, and municipal liens and assessments if any thereon. Payment of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000) in cash or certified or bank treasurer's check will be required from the purchaser at the time and place of the sale as a deposit, and the balance will be due in thirty days to be deposited in escrow with the firm of Posternak, Blankstein & Lund. TREAT THE PROBLEM NOT THE PAIN

Pain is only the tip of the iceberg. Chiropractic concerns itself with the body's nervous system. Regardless of a person's age it is the nervous system that helps maintain health and integrity of body organs, muscles, bone structure and related tissue. All too often pain, fatigue, or sickness in any area of the body can be traced to the impaired nervous system that governs that body area.

WEDDINGS

Miss Percy weds Mr. Valente

Sheryl Ann Percy became the bride of Mr. Ralph R. Valente on Saturday, Feb. 9 during a nuptial Mass at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross. The Mass was concelebrated by the Reverend G. Thomas Ryan and the Reverend Frank Griffin, S.J.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Percy of Cohasset, owners of Miller Studio and the granddaughter of Mrs. Ann Signorelli of Cohasset and the late Salvatore Signorelli and the late Mr. and Mrs. John S. Percy of Braintree.

A graduate of Archbishop Williams and Providence College, she is Chief Executive Officer of Miller Studio, and a wedding photographer. She was presented at the Dante Alighieri Society's Ballo Beatrice Ball.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Valente of Staten Island, New York. A graduate of Susan E. Wagner High School and State University of New York, College at Oneonta, Oneonta, New York, he is a financial writer.

The bride chose a wedding dress designed by Bob Mackie for the Diamond Collection. The neckline is jewel in design with a fitted lace sleeve. The bodice is alencon lace in a midriff cut. The waistline is sheered and dropped in a silk taffeta which is the start of a full a-line skirt with chapel length train also done in silk taffeta. The headpiece, also from the Diamond Collection, is in a bow shape done in alencon lace with pearl edge chapel length veil. She wore white kid gloves and carried white gardenias with French lilacs tied with satin ribbons. It was an excellent choice for a winter wedding.

The bride's sister Jeanne Percy Dongara, was the matron of honor. Bridesmaids included Mrs. Susan Melchiorri of Natick, Cathy Dailey of Boston, and Maria Wilcox of Pound Ridge, New York.

Serving as best man for his brother was Vincent Valente of Staten Island, NY. Groomsmen included Michael McDonnell, Brian McNulty and Rory DeLouise all of Staten Island.

The bride's godchildren, Nicole Marie and Gabrielle Jeanne Dongara were the flower girls.

A reception followed the Mass in the Grand Ballroom of the Copley Plaza Hotel.

After skiing in Vail and Aspen the couple will reside in Boston.

Sheryl Ann Percy Valente

James Bush gives his name for a dream

By Charles Mooney
Special to the Mariner

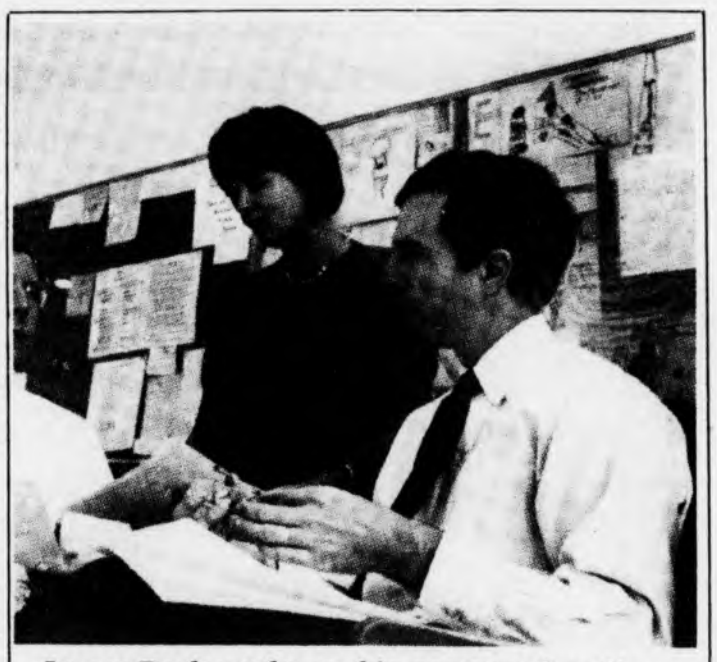
James L. Bush is doing his part to make his uncle's vision of a kinder, gentler nation a reality with his Hingham-based "I Have A Dream" foundation for disadvantaged Boston school children. Bush, inspired by the success of similar programs in other cities, "adopted" the entire fifth grade class of Dorchester's Mather School in 1989. Bush's program matches each child with a volunteer mentor, whose personal involvement and positive reinforcement will help that child succeed at school. Each child participating in the program who graduates from high school is assured that funds for college will be made available.

Bush, 35, who resides and runs an insurance business in Hingham, was searching for a way to serve the public two years ago. He was inspired by the story of Eugene Lang, a wealthy New York businessman who promised the 1981 sixth grade class at Harlem's PS 121 that he would pay full college tuition for each student who graduated from high school. Thanks to Lang's program, which provided personal attention to each child, 44 of the 52 students in that class got high school diplomas. Thirty-five of those students are currently enrolled in college. Today, there are more than 130 similar programs in 30 cities around the country.

Bush founded "I Have A Dream — Boston, Inc." after deciding against running for state senate two years ago. "I have this genetic defect every couple of years, I decide to run for office," he joked. "I thought, 'What legislation could I possibly create that would address the problems of a pregnant 14-year-old girl? The answer was 'None.' State and Federal governments are miles and miles above the problems of such kids. The solutions they have are largely irrelevant. But I could become some kind of a role model for that child, and help give that child a second chance," he said.

Bush values the stable, loving and achievement oriented home in which he grew up, and is doing his best to provide the same guidance to his own two children. "It's a huge advantage if you have parents who love you," said Bush. "If you've got a loving family and God in your life, you've got a shot," he said. Bush lived for a time in Dorchester, and has seen how disadvantaged many city children are. "I take it personally, and I want other people to take it personally as well," he said.

The "Dreamers", as the children are called, would seem to need all the help they could get. According to a fact sheet the foundation provides on the 111 Mather School students, over 80 percent are from single parent families. More than 90 percent come from families with no college graduates and a family income below the federal poverty line. Most of them live in Dorchester, Roxbury, and Mattapan, and all but 14 percent are Black, Hispanic, or Asian.



Two full-time staffers at the Hingham headquarters coordinate contact between each child and the program, as well as support the volunteers who participate as mentors and tutors. The program develops relationships between volunteers and children for "at least two years," and develops relationships with parents, teachers, and outside resources as well. The program provides tutoring, private school and college preparation counseling, and "regular experiences in and out of school to broaden the child's horizons on the outside world."

Finally, Bush's program will enable Dreamers who graduate from high school to get full funding for four years of college — funds that are already available through a corporate program called "ACCESS." "Out of 3,000 or so students graduating from Boston schools each year, only 150 to 200 take advantage of the ACCESS program. What does that say to you?" Bush said. "We're going beyond the sort of sexy promise of college tuition. We're providing long-term personal commitment to see that these kids are able to take advantage of the existing resources in and around their own communities."

The business community has made Boston an ideal place to start a program like "I Have A Dream," according to Bush. ACCESS guarantees "last dollar" college tuition assistance, making any college which accepts a Boston public school graduate affordable. ACCESS removes the burden of tuition for high school graduates. Bush's mission is to provide more graduates.

Bush has another mission: creating awareness and raising funds. He went to Washington to appear before the Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources on January 9. Bush testified that "I Have A Dream" is an "outstandingly effective model of public-private sector cooperation in dealing with a critical and seemingly intractable problem." Bush wished to impress upon Congress that he is seeking leadership and participation from Congress, and not funds. He urged Congress to study his program, "which takes advantage of existing resources," very carefully.

Funding will come from the private sector. Bush, who jokes that he is from the "all name, no money side of the family," has already raised $300,000 of the $1 million he estimates the program needs to assist his Dreamers to complete their educations. First Lady Barbara Bush was the featured speaker at a $400 per plate gala on January 28 at Boston's Park Plaza Hotel. The dinner is expected to raise over $350,000, and was attended by Governor William Weld and Barbara Walters. Bush hopes to raise more funds through corporate and foundation contributions.

James Bush works on his program for city youths.

How can people from towns like Hingham, whose lives seem so different from inner city kids, help make a difference? "We need self-appointed teachers," Bush said. "People who give of themselves by spending time with even one child on a regular basis, teaching them what they know about life. Volunteers will come from the suburbs if they are led, and if there is a supportive infrastructure. Leadership and structure are critical so that these people will not be overwhelmed by a false sense of danger in the inner city," he said.

Bush is confident that he will get his volunteers, with "over 300" inquiries to help already. "The problem with this problem is we're overwhelmed by the problem," Bush said. "But if you can help one person, you can change the world."

Spring Tree registration

Spring Tree Nursery School will hold its registration for the 1991-1992 school year on Monday, Feb. 25 and Tuesday, Feb. 26 from 1:30 to 2:30. Children must be 2 years 9 months by Sept., and diapers are fine. There is a $40 non-refundable registration fee.

The program is for children ages 2.9 through age 5. The hours are 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. which allows children to relax and explore all activities thoroughly. The school provides a morning snack, often prepared by the children and lunch is brought from home.

There is a lot of individual attention, a warm, loving atmosphere and the children learn a great deal from creative activities and play. The daily routine includes, circle activities, art, music and movement and outdoor activities. Jennifer Egan Piepenbrink is the lead teacher and she works with the aid of Julie Hassan, who is owner/director. Call for an appointment.

Belmont Hill headmaster appointed

A Cohasset resident was recently named by Headmaster Christopher Wadsworth to the honor roll for the first semester at Belmont Hill School. High honors is earned with an average of 9.5 or above on a 12 point scale. Honors is earned with an average between 8.0 and 9.4. Neither ranking permits D's or E's. Brian P. Pompeo, son of Arthur M. Jr. and Nancy L. Pompeo of Cohasset, received Honors.

Survey says: fire department is costly

By Joseph Mont
Mariner staff

The Cohasset Fire Department is spending more than 15 similar towns because of the department's minimum staffing requirement, according to the chairman of the advisory committee.

According to Arne Gjesteby, the high cost of fire protection has turned Cohasset into a "laughing stock" among other towns.

Capt. Robert Silvia, of the fire department, disputed this claim. He said that Cohasset's spending is in line with other communities and that "certain members of the advisory board do not have the safety of the town in mind" and are "only interested in saving money."

A Massachusetts Department of Revenue (DOR) report compared the 1989 expenditures of 16 towns similar to Cohasset in size and wealth. It includes the towns of Hamilton, Millis, Groton, Sterling, Lincoln, Boxford, Southborough, Georgetown, Norfolk, Topsfield, Stow, Norwell, Hopkinton, Manchester, and Groveland.

Cohasset topped the list with 1989 expenditures totaling more than $1 million. The second highest was Norwell with a total of $523,752. The average among the 16 towns was $216,470.

Cohasset spent $373,654 more on fire protection than on police protection that year.

Cohasset also came out as the highest on a per-capita breakdown; spending $144.26 per person on fire protection in 1989. The average among the 16 towns was $37.13.

Gjesteby, blamed the imbalance on a longstanding contractual agreement that staffing at the fire station can never go below five firefighters during any shift.

Simple rail question gains spot on April 13 ballot

By Patricia Desmond
Mariner staff

A petition filed this week by the pro-railroad people means a simple question on the Old Colony Rail restoration project will appear on the April 13 ballot.

There were more than 700 signatures compiled on the various petitions.

Selectmen have voted to place another, longer railroad question on the town ballot. Greg Doyon, selectmen's secretary, said a final decision on ballot questions will be made before March 11.

One source claims the town may actually end up voting on three rail questions if it follows the lead of neighboring Hingham. However Hingham selectmen have yet to decide the wording or the exact number of ballot questions.

Cohasset selectmen have only voted for one question with qualified wording. The board refused the request of the Back on Track group to use the simple wording of favored by the group pushing for rail restoration.

Doyon pointed out that the only deadline facing the selectmen involves the printing.

Without the selectmen's blessing, it takes the signatures of 10 percent of the registered voters in town to place a question on the ballot. That means more than 500 registered voters must be certified as having signed the rail referendum.

The petition question is: "Do you favor restoration of the Greenbush Branch of the Old Colony Railroad Line which would provide commuter rail service from the South Shore to Boston along the existing right of way in Braintree, Weymouth, Hingham, Cohasset and Scituate.

Dr. Edward Woods and William Parmenter led the petition drive in Cohasset. The final batch of signatures was delivered to the office of Town Clerk Frances Marks Monday, Feb. 25, the deadline for election papers.

William Grimes of Hingham, another leader in the Back on Track organization, was on hand at town hall as the final signatures were officially presented.

At that time, 397 of the 409 names on rail petitions had already been certified. The final count of names on the petitions was 742, according to

Drug committee targets elderly

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Things change.

For aging people, that includes their vulnerability to negative side-effects from alcohol and medications. It can be as simple as a change in metabolism or as complex as the interaction between alcohol and medications — or between two or medications.

For a generation raised when a cocktail before dinner was a normal part of genteel society, the crisis creeps up silently.

"It's not abuse per se," Keith Knowles, chairman of the Cohasset drug and alcohol committee, said. "But that one before-dinner drink has a greater impact than before. Or with more medications being prescribed, the risk of a negative interaction increases."

Loneliness, isolation, the loss of friends or pressures unique to the elderly community may result in increased drinking or reliance on tranquilizers or anti-depressants.

Frequently, changes happen slowly. Telltale signs may include confusion, loss of balance and depression.

By the time changes become obvious, family members and medical personnel may mistake the symptoms for the early stages of senility or Alzheimer's Disease.

Alerting caregivers to the problem is one of the

COHASSET'S WEEK

Town pump donation

The Cohasset Police Patrolmen's Association has made a very generous donation to the Town Pump Project being spearheaded by the Village Renaissance Association. The gift will enable the group to purchase a handsome, high-quality cast-stone planter for the re-creation of the historic town pump this spring at the intersection of Elm and Main Streets.

"The design calls for two of these planters, which are 3 feet in diameter, 17 inches high and reinforced with steel for durability, to be placed at the corner around the pump. We are very grateful that our police association members are so public-spirited as to contribute so significantly to the project," said Jacqueline Dormitzer, spokesperson for the Village Renaissance Association.

Each week, more and more individuals and groups are becoming involved in the project, either through monetary donations or in-kind donations of labor and goods, explained Ann Whelan, another member of the steering committee.

"It is very gratifying that the support for this project is coming from so many different directions and so many members of our community," Whelan said. For further information on the Town Pump Project or the Village Renaissance group, contact Jacqueline Dormitzer, Ann Whelan or Beth Christoffel.

Pushcart license granted

Local beachgoers will be able to purchase hand-painted, European children's cotton playwear from local designer Michelle Hartford along with their ice cream bars this summer.

Selectmen granted Hartford a transient vendor's license to operate a pushcart in the parking lot on a four-week trial basis beginning in June.

Hartford told the board she wanted to find a low overhead, but stylish way to get into business. She plans to rent a custom-designed wooden pushcart from the firm that builds them for Quincy Market in Boston.

She said she chose the beach because that's where she expects to find her clientele in the summertime.

"I've heard it's never been done before," Hartford added.

The novelty of it raised doubts for Selectman Jane Goedecke.

Goedecke worried about a proliferation of carts and the commercialization of a recreation area.

"One is nice," she said. "Fifteen might be tacky. I see this going in a direction that is not a beach-related product."

Goedecke suggested the village might be a more appropriate location.

Selectman Martha Gjesteby shared Goedecke's concerns.

Selectmen Chairman Rocco Laugelle suggested a compromise solution. He recommended granting a license on a four-week trial basis with the possibility of extension. Selectmen reserved the right to make Hartford move if the location created problems.

Victoria's II gets license

Selectmen granted a wine and malt beverages license to Victoria Forman for Victoria's II, a restaurant slated to open in Tedeschi's Plaza this weekend.

Forman appeared before selectmen two weeks ago, only to find her hearing was scheduled one day before the required waiting period elapsed.

According to Executive Secretary Greg Doyon, the ABCC cannot waive the waiting period requirements.

Forman said she wanted her license to reflect the maximum hours of 8 to 1 a.m. She plans to close earlier than 1 a.m. in the winter, but would like the flexibility to stay open later if business warrants it.

"It's easier to get the hours from the ABCC now rather than going back and changing it later," Forman said.

Hedlund cancels meeting

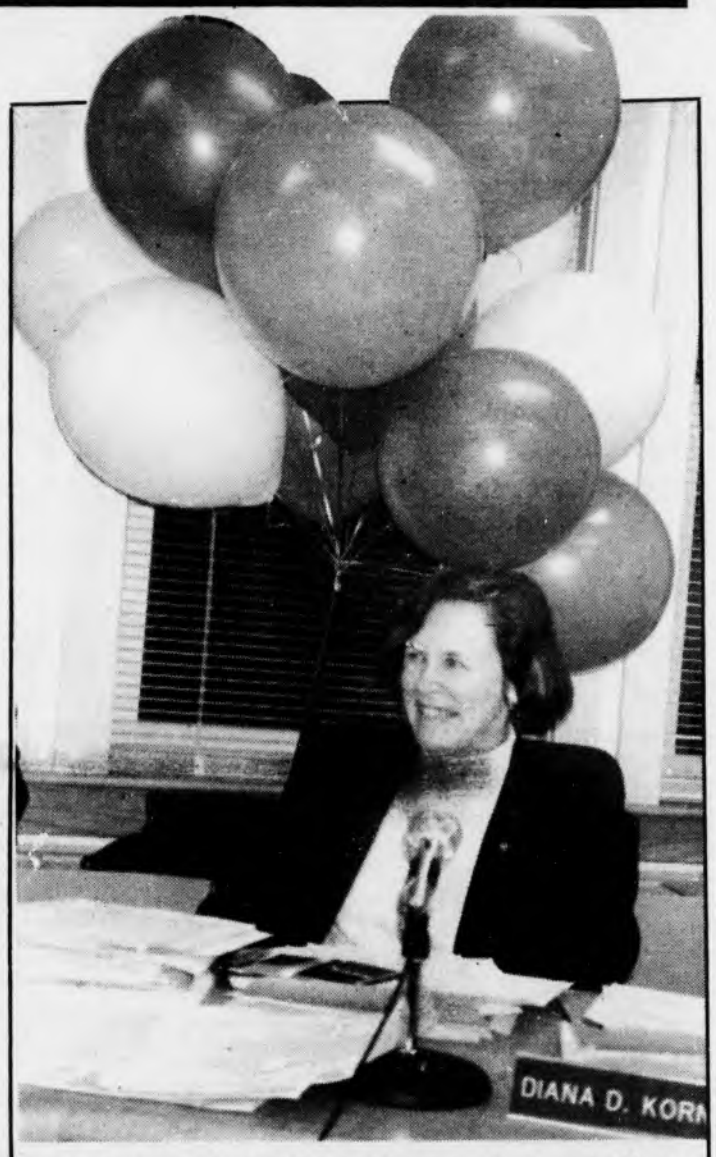
Newly-elected Senator Robert Hedlund may be the hardest man to find in the commonwealth.

Hedlund was scheduled to meet with the board of selectmen Monday night to discuss pending legislation. He sent his regrets instead.

This makes the second time the senator has been a no-show this month.

Hedlund had a date to discuss local aid with Scituate's board of selectmen earlier this month. He neither showed up nor telephoned the board. Later he told Scituate Selectmen Chairman Donald Brown that it was the result of a "miscommunication" although the engagement had been confirmed by his office.

ALS service supported



Cohasset residents came another step closer to getting advanced life support service this week. Selectmen voted to send a letter of support to be included in the determination of need for a hospital-based system.

South Shore Hospital is trying to establish a hospital-based service in the region. According to Selectman Diana Kornet, the hospital will dispatch a ALS personnel when a participating community cannot handle a call with their Basic Life Support ambulance service.

Kornet said the ALS team would meet the ambulance en route to save time in a crisis situation.

Acting Fire Chief Robert Silvia told selectmen the fire department and EMTs were very excited about the proposal.

"It's about time we had this kind of ground-based ALS service available to us," he said.

Selectman Diana Kornet accepted a balloon bouquet and birthday greetings from her husband, John, at the board's meeting Monday.

Fire spending hit by advisor

He said that because there are only 24 permanent firefighters, each with vacation time and sick days, it is impossible to meet this requirement without resorting to overtime.

According to Gjesteby, the average firefighter only works 135 days a year.

"I wouldn't say that they are abusing their sick time, but they are a pretty sick group if they are not," he said.

Gjesteby said that when he attended a recent meeting of the Massachusetts Municipal Association, and discussed the situation with representatives of other towns, they were "amazed."

"I told them we were spending over $1 million and they laughed," he said. "We were a laughing stock."

Gjesteby said that the minimum staffing requirement may have been appropriate in better days, but the town's current spate of financial problems make it obsolete.

He said the firefighter's union has "got their hands right on the jugular of the town," by forcing the issue into contract negotiations.

Silvia took issue with Gjesteby's claims.

He said the town comparisons used for the DOR report were "arbitrary" and not effective.

"It is definitely not comparing apples to apples," he said. "It makes no sense to make comparisons to Millus, Norfolk, and Hamilton."

He said that each of these towns have different philosophies, equipment, and personnel restrictions.

He said a more accurate comparison can be made by looking at surrounding towns that provide similar services.

He said that even though these towns are larger they can be scaled to a comparable level with Cohasset.

He said that the overtime budget is not out of line with other communities and that minimum staffing is not an issue.

"Minimum staffing is nothing more than keeping the equipment manned," he said. "Every year they try to make it an issue."

He said that last year's overtime budget, when taken as a percentage of the total department budget, is less than surrounding communities.

Silvia said that his calculations show that Cohasset's overtime was less than 7 percent of its budget. Hingham was 8 percent and Norwell, which Gjesteby cited as a well run department, was 10 percent.

Gjesteby also accused the fire department of using "blackmail tactics" to keep the ambulance within the town.

He said that if the ambulance were privatized, the department would find it difficult to justify the staffing requirement and it might lose leverage during contract negotiations.

He speculated that the minimum staffing requirement might be responsible for the apparent deadlock in current contract negotiations.

Gjesteby said that the fire department budget could be cut down to size if the ambulance was privatized and the department relied more on call firefighters.

Cohasset currently has 15 call firefighters.

Gjesteby said he doesn't buy Fire Chief Daniel Brock's claim that a call firefighter program would not work because Cohasset residents are mostly affluent citizens who work in the Boston area and could not meet the required response time.

He said that the chief has never put together an "aggressive campaign" to recruit call firefighters. He said that Brock's only effort has been placing a small item in the back of the town warrant among other volunteer groups.

Gjesteby pointed to Norwell and Hanson as towns with a greater population than Cohasset and yet spend less for fire protection. He credited the savings to their use of call firefighters.

Brock has maintained that a predominantly call firefighter force would not be as effective, and that any reduction in staffing would affect the town's insurance rating.

He accused proponents of privatized ambulance service of trying to take away firefighters' jobs and maintained that the ambulance was best run through the fire department.

Silvia said there is no denying that the town could use more call firefighters because the work is so "labor intensive," but he argued that replacing permanent fire fighters with call firefighters would not save any money.

"We could definitely use more firefighters," he said. "I do not think we could get along without them, but they are no replacement for professional full-time firefighters."

He said that the call firefighter pool dropped from a mid-seventies high of 40 men, to between 15 to 20 volunteers over the past few years.

He said there are many reasons why their ranks have dwindled.

"They (the old volunteers) were, for the most part, small businessmen who would drop everything to go to a fire," he said. "The majority of people that own small business today just cannot afford to drop everything and close up shop," he said.

He said that as the volunteers retired there were not many stepping in to replace them.

He said that today there are "about a dozen of the call firefighters who are very active."

Chief George Cavanaugh, of the Norwell Fire department, said that his experience with call firefighters has been good, but he agreed that they were no replacement for his permanent staff.

He said he currently has 35 call firefighters that are used primarily during the evening and on weekends. This schedule keeps their day job from affecting response times.

He said he takes out at least two newspaper ads every year to add new call firefighters and many come from word of mouth.

Silvia said that although the call fire fighter program in Norwell appears to be successful, it cannot take the credit for keeping the budget down as Gjesteby claims it does.

He said arguments that eliminating minimum staffing and increasing the number of call firefighters would reduce the overtime budget fall apart when it is understood that Norwell pays a higher percentage of overtime than Cohasset does.

Silvia said that "certain members of the advisory committee have been anti-fire department for years," and that this attitude was reflected recently during a vote on whether to support the department's request for a new ambulance.

He said the committee voted against the request without inviting giving the fire department a chance to defend it.

Without hearing the fire department's side, the committee made an "uninformed decision," he said.

Rail question

Parmenter, who was one of the original four members of Back on Track. Back on Track just celebrated the fourth anniversary of its existence the week before.

There were only a few surprises as the deadline for filing nomination papers for the town election passed.

Most of the surprises involved candidates pulling out of the process.

Selectman Chairman Rocco Laugelle is running for re-election. Richard P. Barrow of 283 King St., a retired police sergeant, is challenging Laugelle. Barrow, a recreation commissioner, has sought the selectmen's post in the past.

There is one three-year term open.

Two incumbents are running for re-election to school committee. Committee Chairman Barbara W. Bliss and J. Russell Reidy will go unopposed.

Planning board will be one of very few races as Jean Simonds of 107 Nichols Road and Terry J. Atherton of 34 Clay Spring Road have both entered the election ring.

There is one five-year term open. Incumbent Daniel Cotton is not seeking re-election.

Despite all the controversy about the revaluation last year, no opposition candidate has emerged to face incumbent assessor Michael J. Patrolia of 15 Cushing Road.

Robert V. Davenport of 135 Sohier St. withdrew his candidacy for board of health. Michael M. Sullivan, incumbent, is seeking re-election for the one three-year term on that board.

Thomas Wigmore of 32 Ash St has taken out nomination papers for the one five-year term on the recreation commission. Ely Kahn III of 498 North Main St. has also taken out papers for recreation.

William Parmenter and Dr. Edward Woods deliver the Back on Track petition to the town clerk's office at town hall Monday. There were 742 signatures on the petitions.

Elizabeth Cristoffel took out papers but withdrew before the deadline. Incumbent Gerald A. Buckley is not in the race.

The three incumbents on the Trustees of Paul Pratt Memorial Library will face a challenge from George E. Haley of 119 Pleasant St. The incumbents seeking re-election are: Katherine Sturtevant, Elizabeth F. Eaton and Agnes McCann.

Ben Curley will challenge James R. Sheerin, water commissioner, for the one three-year term on the board.

The only candidate for sewer commissioner is the incumbent, R. Gary Vanderweil Jr.

Procter & Gamble tries to deal with the VoTech school

Andrew MacLellan
Mariner correspondent

Procter & Gamble, in a meeting with the Shore Shore Vocational Technical High School (VoTech) school committee, proposed plans to introduce a fully funded industrial technology course which will mix students and adult employees of the company.

The new course will replace and revamp the discontinued packaging machine mechanics class, which was cut out of this year's budget.

Procter & Gamble will pay the salaries of three instructors who will teach both the mechanics of the course and any academics necessary to bring students up to par with modern machinery and industry technology. Additionally, they will pay for a full-time machine maintenance technician and a part-time project manager who will oversee day-to-day operations.

The company will also supply all of the machines and materials needed for the course.

In exchange, Procter & Gamble employees will be eligible for enrollment in the course and will work alongside VoTech students.

Jim Clifford, who sits on the VoTech advisory committee, and is an employee of Procter & Gamble, strongly advocated the program. "It's a multi-skilled work system in which we train students in all phases of production - not just assembly, but electronics, programming and engineering," he said.

Currently, 32 of Massachusetts' 54 vocational schools have adults either enrolled in classes or have expressed interest in such a program.

Superintendent Dr. Clifford W. Easton invited several teacher/coordinators from Minuteman Regional Vocational Technical High School in Lexington to field the committee's questions. The school has adults in 20 of it's 22 programs.

Easton' questioned the viability of having students working shoulder-to-shoulder with adults who are several years out of school and are earning a living in the "real" world.

Easton has requested that a concept paper on the program be available for review in March.

Drug & alcohol group hopes for good examples

new missions of the drug and alcohol committee.

"We've done a great deal with the younger population," Knowles said. "We should be concerned with other segments of the community."

Knowles said committee member Sandra Kent brought the concern to the forefront.

Kent, who works with the Hingham council on aging, told the committee they could provide a legitimate community service by giving elder caregivers information about the risks from drug and alcohol use among the elderly.

The committee responded by setting up a seminar for family caregivers, visiting nurses and other medical personnel, home care providers and council on aging members. Prevention Resources, a community education and information service, will present the seminar scheduled for March 6.

"We want to get as many people to attend as possible," Knowles said. "We think it is going to be very, very helpful."

The committee opted to provide the seminar free of charge to encourage greater attendance. Cost is being underwritten by a grant from Leo J. Fiori and sons of Cohasset.

The committee also continues to promote the Safe Home program for parents of junior and senior high school students.

Parents joining the Safe Home program pledge that they will neither provide nor condone the illegal use of drugs or alcohol in their homes or on their property. They also commit themselves to the principle that unsupervised teen parties are unacceptable.

When the program was first introduced, some parents worried that signing the pledge somehow implied a lack of trust in their children.

"This has nothing to do with trust," Knowles said. "I always assume my high school daughter will act in a responsible way. The issue is parents taking responsibility and establishing explicit limits."

Too often, Knowles said, parents assume their children know what constitutes acceptable behavior. The Safe Home parents lay the guidelines on the table to remove all doubt.

Parents don't have to guarantee that no infraction will ever occur in order to join.

"There are never any guarantees," Knowles said. The program offers parents the opportunity to make their values clear and get support from like-minded families.

Currently, 120 families belong to the Safe Home program. A new recruitment effort will begin in the spring when the party and prom season begins.

The drug and alcohol committee recently sent out a mailing to local organizations, particularly sports booster groups, asking them to consider making events that include both adults and youth alcohol-free.

Members were gratified when the group organizing the girls' soccer banquet agreed.

"They reacted as if it were matter of course, as if it were the most natural thing in the world," Knowles said.

The committee hopes other organizations will look at this as an opportunity to demonstrate that it is possible to have fun without alcohol, he said.

"We're not taking a fixed position, the key word is 'consider,' Knowles added. He also stressed that the committee took no position on adults-only functions.

"We're not a Women's Christian Temperance Union," Knowles said. "We're not out to stop people from drinking."

The seminar on alcohol, drugs and the elderly will be held from 9 a.m. to noon March 6 at the Community Center of Cohasset, 3 North Main St.

For more information or to register, call Sandra Kent at 749-0582.

Martha Blackmur eulogized by a friend

By Marianne White

My old friend died last week—She would have been 92 years old in March. The last two years were tough on her and on her daughter, Paula, who cared for her in her home in Vermont.

Martha was born in 1899 and, I believe, spent most of her life in Cohasset. She was a strong-willed woman, proud of her girlish figure, her Wellesley education, and of her husband "Blackie" and his Harvard degree.

I first met Martha when she was 74 years old—I thought of her as sixty. She was rarely seen without high heels, a hat and gloves. We spent many hours logging in the First Parish's antiques. She knew who had given what, and its probable value.

One day we were hanging curtains in the little room on the second floor of the Church, and we ran out of hooks. Since she lived across the common, she said she would dash over and get some. As Martha headed down the stairs I heard a noise and called out, "Martha are you OK?" "Yes, dear," came a rather weak reply, which prompted me to run over and look down the stairs. There she was, hanging upside down, one foot hooked in the banister. She looked up and said, "promise me you won't tell Blackie." As I helped her right herself I promised, but I knew that as soon as she saw Blackie she would tell him herself, and he would once again scold her for wearing those "blasted" high heels.

Through the years my husband and I enjoyed many hours of drinks and debates with Blackie and Martha. They were both very opinionated and steadfastly adhered to a point of view that was anchored in a sure knowledge of the "right way" to do things. Although, at times, frustrating, this confidence in tradition and the lessons of the past set Blackie and Martha apart as a "vanishing breed" that will sorely be missed in an age when little seems solid and certain.

Now both Martha and Blackie are gone, and we are left to gather whatever strength we can from memories of their steadfastness and resolve.

Goodbye Martha—wherever you are. I celebrate your rich and full life, and the small part I played in it.

Recreation takeover reconsidered by selectmen

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

After voting to support a proposal to turn town recreation programs over to the private, non-profit Community Center of Cohasset last week, selectmen invited the recreation commission in to hear their side of the matter. The recreation commission got some strong support from representatives of the Cohasset Soccer Club and Basketball Boosters.

Although no one moved to reconsider last week's 3-1 vote, selectmen agreed to give it additional consideration.

According to Cohasset Soccer Club member Terry Kahn, the transfer could become a dead issue very soon.

The soccer club and basketball boosters were not impressed with their meetings with the Community Center directors, he said. If the recreation department is taken over by the center, they have no intention of being part of the package.

"It is our intention to run as a private, independent organization along the lines of the Little League," he said. Kahn said the directors of the Community Center indicated the loss of the soccer club and basketball boosters would be "very damaging, dealing possibly a fatal blow" to the takeover proposal.

The soccer club, made up of 600 community volunteers, provides the fall soccer program with all its equipment, including uniforms, balls, nets, pylons and referee training.

"We will not go to work for the Community Center," club member Robert Beggan said. "We would rather go off and work on our own."

The basketball boosters agreed.

"Some things, in our minds, just don't lend themselves to going private," booster member George Ellinger said. "There is no way to resolve things if problems arise."

Ellinger raised the specter of a private organization deciding to raise fees and allow participation by out-of-town Community Center members. The town would have no leverage over those decisions.

"We might have jumped earlier," selectmen Chairman Rocco Laugelle conceded.

Laugelle wondered where the community center would hold recreation department programs considering how "jam-packed" the center's facilities already are.

"Facility use is a problem," Recreation Director Jack Worley said. "We rent the G.A.R. hall in Scituate for our dog obedience program.

Worley also said the department runs programs such as the indoor golf program in conjunction with Scituate's recreation department because of the lack of facilities in Cohasset.

Recreation committee member Donald Staszko said he worried that a private organization would not be sensitive to the lower income residents of town.

"Certain people can't afford the summer program, those children are subsidized," Staszko said.

Selectman Diana Kornet took issue with his concern.

She said the Community Center promised to waive fees in hardship cases and criticized what she said was a "knee-jerk reaction" to someone else trying to offer services.

"There are so many areas we have to cut services," she said. "They are offering the same services for less money or equal services.

"We wouldn't put the town hostage to a private, non-profit organization that didn't have the best interests of the community in mind."

Recreation Commission Chairman Richard Barrows suggested the Community Center's construction plans and overhead costs may force them to raise fees.

Although the center has stated it can provide programs at the same or less cost, Worley suggested selectmen compare fees charged by the two recreation providers in the past.

Worley pointed out that as a private corporation, the Community Center would be forced to serve its interests first, even if it meant raising fees and eliminating programs.

In contrast, the recreation commission tries to balance the need to raise fees to support programs and the risk that it may drive some children out of the program.

The commission hopes legislative changes and new interpretations of regulations governing revolving fund accounts will enable the department to become self-sustaining in the very near future.

Selectman Ned Tebbets told recreation department supporters he was sympathetic to what had been said, but wanted to give it some more consideration.

Robert Davenport of Sohier Street asked selectmen how they could guarantee a private entity would be accountable to the public.

"There are no guarantees in the public sector either," Selectman Jane Goedecke responded.

Cable co. wants increase

Representatives from Continental Cablevision will appear before selectmen March 11 to justify a rate increase.

Although they are asking for a nine percent increase overall, most consumers will see their monthly bill jump by more than 12 percent.

According to Executive Secretary Greg Doyon, the average subscriber will see his bill increase to $17.95 per month, up $2.

The company received an increase approximately 15 months ago. At that time the average consumer's bill rose from $11.95 to $15.95.

Meanwhile the cable company issued a release stating that rates for the service will go up $2 a month beginning May 1.

The Supercable rate will be $17.95, according to the cable company. Higher costs were blamed for the increase.

The price of pay channels such as HBO and Showtime will remain the same. The installation fee will increase from $5 to $10 for each service.

Senior citizens in public housing, however, will gain a 27 percent discount on Supercable plus installation costs will be waived.

The less expensive cable services known as Focus and Lifeline will increase by $2 a month to $14.95 and $6.95 respectively. The Broadcast service will increase from $3.95 to $8 a month.

Overall the rate increase will add 7.3 percent to a subscriber's annual bill. The cost of cable also increased a year ago.

In other action ...

In other business, selectmen:

- Agreed to purchase a single grave lot at Woodside Cemetery for $150.
- Appointed Robert Leahy to the Computer Study Committee.
- Appointed Joan Prescott Busk to the Mosquito Control Committee.

Ski team finishes strong season

Skiers from the Cohasset ski team wrapped up their league season on Monday, February 11 at Blue Hills. The Cohasset boys narrowly missed qualifying to send their whole team to the Massachusetts State High School Ski Championships to be held March 6 at Berkshire East ski area in Charlemont. Three individual skiers from the Cohasset team did qualify for the states. The Cohasset boys will be represented by junior Pat Suhrbier and senior Bart Weisenfluh with the lone representative from the girls' team being eighth grader Alissa Sexton. The state championships will be held in both the slalom and giant slalom formats.

Cohasset competes in the Massachusetts Bay Ski League East which is comprised of two 5 team divisions split by school size. Six slalom races were held at the Blue Hills Ski Area with 80 boys and 80 girls competing in each meet. The top two girls' teams and boys' teams in each division qualify for the state championships. Individual competitors in the top ten positions in each division also qualify for the states. Pat Suhrbier finished third in the small school division with 131.5 out of a possible 160 points. Bart Weisenfluh finished tied for tenth with 75 points. Other scorers for the Cohasset boys were Dan deMichele, Jon Mitchell, Eric Waal, and Paul Ford.

Going into the final qualifying race, the Cohasset boys were clinging to second place and a berth at the states with 240.5 points versus Oliver Ames of East at 231. Running out of the first seed, Captain Bart Weisenfluh crashed and with him Cohasset's chance to participate in the states as a team.

Boys' powerhouse Dover-Sherborn had six out of the top nine positions in the small schools division and moves onto the states with Oliver Ames.

In the girls' small school division, Alissa Sexton, an eighth grader, turned in consistent performances in every qualifying race scoring 95 out of a possible 160 points for eighth in her division. Karen Murray and Alison Doherty also scored points for the Cohasset girls. Karen and Alissa both turned in their best performances of the season in the fourth race when the Cohasset girls barely missed nipping Milton needing only two more points.

The Dover-Sherborn girls, as the boys, the powerhouse in their division, placed four in the top ten. Dover-Sherborn girls along with Westwood girls send their teams to Berkshire East for the states.

The Cohasset Ski Team is coached by Jack Dane and has as its parent coordinator Robin Suhrbier. They both will accompany the qualifiers to the meet at Charlemont.

Pat Suhrbier also skis USSA meets for the Loon Mountain Ski Team. His brother Mike Suhrbier, a former Cohasset Ski Team member, is currently competing in NCAA races for the St. Michaels College Ski Team. Alissa Sexton competes in USSA races for the Killington Ski Team.

AROUND TOWN

❑ We hear from Glastonbury Abbey that some outstanding items have been donated for their 8th Annual Auction, March 23, Hingham High School Gym. A full day of sailing on a 40 foot Concordia Yawl, from Scituate to Marblehead (depending on the wind!) in and out of Hingham Harbor. Gourmet lunch and light supper included, for four adults. Two mint condition 'American Flyer' train sets, one a 'Wild West' edition. A one week vacation on St. John's, U.S. Virgin Islands, overlooking Coral Bay. Many more goods and services.

❑ Three Cohasset boys had a fine vacation week, they took part in the fifth annual Yankee Conference Super "C" hockey jamboree! The boys are team members of the Sea Hawks Mites and they are: Matt Pilczak, age 8, son of Ken and Joann Pilczak; Greg Donovan, age 7, son of Mark and Donna Donovan, and Chris Caron, age 7, son of Jay and Jody Caron. They all had a great time, and their team did very well, as did they. One of the teams that they played in the jamboree was the Bay Harbor Red Devils, who came from California if you can believe it. Anyway, all the boys are sporting brand new trophies, and it sounds like they will have many more before they are done.

❑ Great news for all of you Allie Donovan fans, she is home after a lengthy stay in the hospital due to a broken leg. Allie is ever-so-much better, and we'll bet she'll soon be spotted walking around town like nothing happened! Weather provided of course...here's to an early spring, Allie.

❑ Received a nice note from Salem State College, where Margie Murphy (CHS grad, 1988) made the sports news for her basketball prowess. In 18 games she averaged .176 points, .327 rebounds, .9 steals F.G., .307 and F.T. .600. Salem State ranks #2 in New England by the NCAA and her coach commented "Margie is playing great, coming off our bench. She has become a tenacious defender and is shooting well too!" Margie's major is Sports Fitness and Leisure. As many will remember, Margie was a great star at CHS, glad to see that she is continuing. Congratulations, Marge.

❑ And, on the College soccer front, Bowdoin College sent word that David Shultz, son of Larry and Linda Shultz, was selected by his teammates as one of the tri-captains of the 1991 team. Not a surprise really, David possesses all of the necessary requirements...excellent player, personable and fine young man, and a good student too.

❑ Congratulations are in order for Michael and Ellen Savage, who are the proud parents of a bouncing baby boy, born in South Shore Hospital on Feb. 7.

❑ We hope that Aylsa Goodrich is making a rapid recovery from her recent surgery at South Shore Hospital, and that she will be home and feeling great real soon.

Al Odermatt and Sharon Becker get ready for the Cancer Society's benefit Daffodil Days on March 19 and 20. See page 12 for details.

❑ While you are cleaning out your attic, or if you have a service that you can donate, be sure to think of the Mary-Martha Learning Center, who will be holding an Auction For Hope on May 18. Any questions will be answered by Laura DeSisto at 383-9426.

❑ The Appalachia Service Project, under the direction of Gary Ritts, is now accepting applications. Twenty youth, grades nine through 12 and eight adult advisors will be going to McDowell Co., West Virginia in June, the 22nd through the 30th. March 1 is the registration deadline, call Rev. Ritts for more information.

❑ A salute to Cadet Matthew M. Leary who has been placed on the Dean's List for academic excellence at the U.S. Air Force Academy, Colorado Springs, Colorado. Matthew is the son of Kevin W. Leary and Marie G. Hartnett.

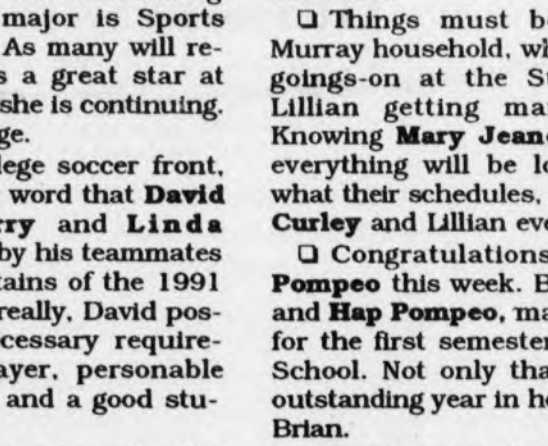
❑ Things must be hectic in the Murray household, what with all of the goings-on at the State House and Lillian getting married in June. Knowing Mary Jeanette and Lillian everything will be lovely, no matter what their schedules, and we wish Jim Curley and Lillian every happiness!

❑ Congratulations go to Brian Pompeo this week. Brian,son of Leah and Hap Pompeo, made the honor roll for the first semester at Belmont Hill School. Not only that, Brian had an outstanding year in hockey. Good work Brian.

❑ Good news from the Cohasset Recreation Department, Ken Sargent of Cohasset Country Workshop is going to teach the restoration of furniture in a five-week session, on either Wednesday or Saturday mornings from 9 to 11 a.m. at the Town Hall. The fee is $53 per person, and you will learn all about refinishing and restoration. Call the recreation office at 383-6791 to register and for more details.



❑ Finally, a standing ovation for the CHS boys basketball team, who ended their season on a wonderful note. During vacation week they played in a tournament and beat Mission in overtime. Their coach was quoted by the Globe as saying that was a "real slap in the face"...Mission finished number one in Division 3 North. That's the way to go boys, everyone is very proud of you.

❑ Linda and Larry Shultz held a very nice party to introduce the newest member of their family, Jennifer, to Bob's Cohasset friends. Everything was delightful, and Bob's new bride was just as a bride should be, radiant and wonderful, pretty and full of smiles. Bob and Jennifer are living in Boston and, after spending the last four winters in Maine at Bowdoin, they must truly enjoy this mild season. And Linda must be thrilled to finally have another female in the clan. Best wishes to you all, you surely deserve it.

Teens need space

We want to offer the Cohasset Community Center an idea to fill out its program card.

There's a real need in town for more programs geared to teenagers, especially the older teens.

There's been some talk about a drop-in center. There's been lots of discussion about recreation needs.

The Community Center does a fine job running the once-a-month teen dances. We'd like to see more of the same. Obviously, it's hard to find chaperones for the dances. The music of today isn't the same as music of the '60s.

Parent know and understand that teenagers don't want their own family involved in their social lives. Hey, most parents are happy to get a chance to give up worrying for a few hours — knowing their teenager will be safe and supervised.

So pulling a program for teens together would be no small feat. But we're sure it's possible with enough thought.

We're sure the Community Center can find ways to expand its offerings for this age group.

We happen to think it would be far better for all concerned if the Community Center worked to deliver new programs to a group whose recreational needs are largely unmet than for the Center to continue to try to takeover the recreation department's existing programs.

Obviously, there are plenty of programs for teens who enjoy participating in sports.

The teens who go unserved are those who prefer to just hang out.

The truth is the recreation department does a great job meeting the needs of the younger children in town — and the teens who gravitate toward organized athletics.

The Community Center runs its own programs very well. It has chosen, over the years, to provide special programs for just about every age group.

The recreation department isn't looking to expand right now. The department is just looking to continue doing what it's been doing.

The new and untapped market is in its teens. Maybe suggesting a drop-in center at 3 North Street might be going too far. But surely some new programs could be developed to fill the afternoons and evenings of these kids.

The Community Center has an opportunity for growth here.

Incidentally, there are four more teen dances scheduled at the Community Center this season.

The Center's brochure says they always need chaperones. In case anyone wants to volunteer, the number is 383-0088. The dances are restricted to those in grades 7 to 10. They are scheduled for Fridays from 7:30 to 10:30 on March 8, April 12, May 10 and June 14.

Letters

(Editor's note: The following letter was sent to the Mariner for publication.)

To the Selectmen:

I have recently learned of the possible abolishment of your Recreation Department. I am shocked! Later, I learned that the Community Center would be absorbing many of the responsibilities and programs of the recreation department. This is so sad!

I honestly believe that the taxpayers of Cohasset are being misled. I believe that the philosophies and intentions of the Recreation Committee differ greatly from those of the Community Center. I believe that the children of your town will suffer and that the parents will be spending more. One of the reasons that I feel this way is because of an experience I had last year with each of these groups. I will explain as follows:

Last spring, the South Shore Baseball Club was contacted by the Recreation Department about the possibility of holding a summer baseball camp in Cohasset. We were also contacted by Judy Volungas of the Community Center. I met with Judy and I liked her. She seemed like a hard working, dedicated person. Judy spoke of the competitive relationship which the Community Center had with the Recreation Department. She also told me that the revenues generated from our camp would have to be shared with the Community Center. I was surprised, but it made sense that this group had to be run like any other non-profit business. I met with the Recreation Department the following week and decided to run our camp through them. Why? Because the Recreation Department wanted the South Shore Baseball Club to bring the most professional staff possible to instruct the children of their town. They wanted us to share nothing with them. Their interests were focused only on the kids of Cohasset and their families. We understand that the Community Center has to charge more for any program they run because they are basically a small business. We understand that they had two objectives to accomplish by administering a summer baseball camp: (1) generate funds for the Community Center and (2) bring a decent camp to the children. Had we chosen to work with them we would have had two choices:

(1) Charge $50 more per camper;

(2) Lower the quality of our staff so that we did not lose money.

We chose the Recreation Department because we were able to offer the finest instruction for the least amount of money.

I strongly urge the town of Cohasset to value their Recreation Department. I urge you to cherish it! Jack Worley and Ted Carroll are hard working men, devoted to the families of Cohasset. Their interests are not political.

An Irish song titled "A Mother's love is a Blessing" has one line that says "love her as in childhood, when she's feeble, old and grey, because you'll never miss a mother's love till she's buried beneath the grave." Your Recreation Department is a selfless group. Their responsibilities are thankless. They do not ask for much attention, or accolades. This could be their demise. Just as a mother's love cannot be replaced within a home, your Recreation Department cannot be replaced within your town. I will recommend that you reward humility, not stamp on it.

My life is devoted to children. I am President of Hingham's Youth Basketball program, a Little League Baseball coach and spend countless hours helping kids. I admire your Recreation Department, and I urge the Community Center to use men such as Jack Worley and Ted Carroll as powers of example. It would benefit the children of Cohasset.

Sincerely,
Joseph J. Sullivan, III
President

Selectmen draw heat for OCRR question

To the Editor:

The Cohasset Board of Selectmen, as a body of elected officials, has once again failed a simple test of moral leadership. It has failed to vote to allow the Town to vote up or down on a simple non-binding public opinion advisory question on April 13. The issue is whether to bring the Old Colony Railroad back to Cohasset.

A petition circulating through the Town, which requires 500 signatures, would place a straight forward question on the ballot:

"Do you favor restoration of the Greenbush Branch of the Old Colony Railroad Line which would provide commuter rail service from the South Shore to Boston along the existing right of say in Braintree, Weymouth, Hingham, Cohasset and Scituate?"

The inability of Cohasset's Board of Selectmen to successfully appeal to "the better angels of our nature" — in the words of Lincoln — underscores the Board's failure to persuade the Town to vote for Prop 2 1/2 overrides and its incomprehension as to why this will likely happen again at the Town election in April.

They continually weaken the bonds that exist in a democratic society by claiming that major political decisions should be left to the experts and that if we only knew what they know we would agree with them.

Such self righteousness has been found wanting by the electorate and should be. We, the people, must be persuaded by the moral rightness of a proposed policy or expenditure of our money.

Failure to understand this simple maxim has led to failed American presidencies and failed leader-

Fit Tips with Normandie Nigh

A year ago, Maryann made a New Year's resolution to lose the extra body fat she had gained since getting married. She also wanted to improve her flexibility, tone her muscles, and fit into her bathing suit by the summer. She had determined her fitness goals, but she was confused on how to begin. If you've decided to start a fitness program, you may be facing the same situation.

How does someone who's never been active know what exercises to do in order to reach their goals? Although a common dilemma for people just starting out, it certainly isn't restricted to beginners. People who used to be very active but haven't worked out for awhile may also find it difficult to start over. Some I've talked to decided to take up their fitness program where they left off, perhaps years ago, and are annoyed to find that they can't do the same things they used to do easily before. (This holds especially true for ex-athletes.) Too often they get discouraged or hurt, and then give up. Very often they blame their difficulties on 'getting older' without stopping to realize that they tried to do too much, too soon. This 'overachiever' syndrome is one of the best reasons for people to carefully plan their formal fitness programs, start slowly and build up gradually.

So, what is the best way to start? Is there a good activity that is safe and effective for everyone, appropriate for ex-athletes as well as exercise newcomers? Here is a simple plan that I'm convinced will work for almost any inactive person who wants to get fit.

Start Up Plan

First thing in the morning, put on some comfortable clothing, good walking shoes, and a watch. Walk out the door and walk for exactly five minutes at a brisk, but comfortable pace. Turn around and walk back. You just completed ten minutes of exercise. (You also experienced additional benefits such as seeing the sights, filling your lungs with fresh air, and taking some valuable time for yourself.) Once you return, take a few more minutes to stretch your back and legs, then continue with your regular schedule. Next time, add 30 seconds to your walk and continue to add short amounts of time to each session.

This is a wonderful way to get started because it can be done almost anywhere and it will help you to condition your body for more strenuous exercise as you get stronger. When I suggested this start-up plan to Maryann, she questioned whether she could reach her goals by doing so little. The fact is that the added activity would help her to burn calories so that she would lose her extra body fat and the stretching would improve her flexibility. By starting slowly, Maryann would be gradually strengthening her muscles, bones, ligaments, and tendons so that she would be able to safely advance to a more challenging workout.

Maryann started with the ten minute program. She built up slowly over a two month period until she was walking four mornings a week for thirty minutes. She really enjoyed this morning routine and wanted to continue walking, but didn't want to get up any earlier in order to walk longer. My suggestion to Maryann was to try walking for the same amount of time, but to walk faster. Each time out, she would get a little further before she turned around and she could actually monitor her progress by the distance she could cover. Her fitness level improved as her pace increased and her workout became more challenging, which made it more interesting. She added toning exercises for her upper body and abdominals, and was delighted that she was able to reach her fitness goals by starting with a simple walking program.

So, if you're planning to start a new fitness program and you're ready and raring to go, take the first step (which is always the hardest) and hit the road, Jack! Walking is a tremendous activity for anyone who wants to get started on the right foot.

P.S. Don 't forget to check with your doctor before beginning any exercise program. Please send suggestions for topics, questions or comments to: Fit For Success, 115 Ripley Road, Cohasset, MA 02025 (617) 383-2515; FAX (617) 383-2732.

Hockey team defeats Scituate

By John Kichla
Special to the Mariner

Determined Skipper Hockey Co-Captains Kevin Mulcahy and Mike Reynolds each scored a goal in Cohasset's recent 2 to 1 victory over the Scituate High School Hockey team. Cohasset playing without talented Sophomore Wing Charlie Smith, squeaked out this win with a strong and total team effort.

'Scituate struck first with a goal within the first 90 seconds. The Skippers however refused to lose. Eight minutes later, Cohasset's Junior Defenseman and Co-Captain, Kevin Mulcahy drilled a 35-foot slapshot past an astounded Scituate netminder to notch the score at 1 goal apiece. Mulcahy then proceeded to wreak havoc on Scituate. Mulcahy's goal refueled the Skippers' comeback.

While Mulcahy and Senior Skipper Goalie Jim Rosano (27 saves) thwarted Scituate's ice attack in Cohasset's end, Sophomore Center and Co-Captain Mike Reynolds swarmed Scituate within their own zone. Reynolds forechecked. Reynolds backchecked. Reynolds was everywhere. His shots were high. His shots were wide. Finally his persistence paid off. Midway through the second period, Reynolds streaked into the Scituate end. Reynolds wrestled the puck from two Scituate defenders. Reynold's first shot rebounded to Cohasset's alert Freshman Winger Charlie Endris. Endris passed back to Reynolds who scored with a wrist shot over the sprawled Scituate netminder.

After Reynold's score, the Skippers stepped up the tempo again. Cohasset's veteran Senior Class icemen, Mike Noble, Scott Varisco, Brian Donovan and Goalie Jim Rosano kept the underclassmen skating hard as Cohasset sought to both increase and protect their lead.

Skipper Coach Dennis Walsh shuffled his players effectively. Tim Conroy remained on defense, while either Mulcahy or Mike Noble moved to wing. Winger Charley Shields played defense on penalty plays, while John Kinchla played as the second wing on the second line. Mid-season roster addition, Senior Travis Coley, played in place of the injured front line winger Charley Smith. Chuck Endris played his usual outstanding two way game. Cohasset's bench, Jeff Stone, Chris McKenna, Pat Reynolds, Matt Graves, Anthony Wigmore, Ryan Cibelli, Brian Buckley and student managers, Jay Nothnagle, Jeff Tosi, Jared Graves kept the morale high throughout the contest.

ship at the local and state level.

Read the words of Abraham Lincoln in 1842:

"When the conduct of men is designed to be influenced, persuasion, kind, unassuming persuasion, should ever be adopted. It is an old and true maxim that a drop of honey catches more flies than a gallon of gall. So with men. If you would win a man to your cause, first convince him that you are his sincere friend. Therein is a drop of honey that catches his heart, which, say what he will, is the great high road to his reason, and which, once gained, you will find but little trouble in convincing his judgment of the justice of your cause, if indeed that cause really be a just one. On the contrary, assume to dictate to his judgment, or to command his action, or to mark him as one to be shunned and despised, and he will retreat within himself, close all the avenues to his head and his heart. ... Such is man, and so must he be understood by those who would lead him, even to his own best interest."

My fellow townsmen; my friends on the Board of Selectmen — your failure to understand Lincoln's philosophy and principles of democratic leadership condemns you to continual frustration, failed overrides, and more government by petition by the people to overturn your injudicious decisions.

Sincerely,
Wigmore A. Pierson

Board clarifies proposed smoking ban

To the Editor:

An error in last week's Mariner needs correction regarding Town Meeting articles. The Board of Health's proposed By-law amending Article VII of the General By-Laws, Safety and Public Order, Section 31, on Smoking in Public Places does not prohibit smoking in restaurants, as stated in the Mariner. Section 31, (c)(i)(2) states that "Smoking areas shall comprise no more than twenty-five percent (25%) of the seating capacity of the restaurant." Smoking areas may now comprise 75% of the seating capacity.

The Massachusetts Department of Public Health Fact Sheet on Secondhand Smoke emphasizes that secondhand smoke is dangerous; because it is created at a lower temperature than the smoke inhaled by active smokers, secondhand smoke "actually contains more of some harmful chemicals, including cancer-causing agents called carcinogens."

Since approximately 27% of the population smokes, the Board of Health reasons that 75% nonsmoking areas promote public health at little or no expense to the public nor the restaurant owner. Dr. Kenneth Warner writes in the Journal of the American Medical Association that the "use of cigarettes causes more premature deaths than AIDS, use of heroin, cocaine and alcohol, fire, automobile accidents homicides and suicides combined." Smoking deaths now number over 400,000 a year.

The Board of Health notified all restaurant owners and businesses affected by the By-law that a public hearing on the matter would be held January 8, 1991. The only restaurant owner and/or businessman to appear at the hearing was Mr. Daniel Leahy of Kimball's By-the-Sea. Wisely, Mr. Leahy operates a restaurant which does in fact prohibit smoking.

Cable schedule for week

The financial aspects of divorce are not well known nor easily understood. This important topic will be the subject of discussion on the cable TV show "McNamara on Money" which will air on Channel 53 on Wednesday evening March 6, at 8 p.m. Host Michael J. McNamara will interview Attorney Neal Brown on the subject. The third show in this series will be entitled "The Chronology of a Divorce." If divorce is a subject of interest to you, it will be very much worth your while to watch the show.

McNamara is also looking for people who would be interested in being in the audience for this series. There will be a question and answer period on several shows, and the audience will have an opportunity to question an attorney, an accountant, and a financial planner. Please watch the first show for more details or call McNamara Financial Services at 383-2927 for more information.

BULLETIN BOARD

SSAC has winning photos

A pictorial display which ranges from an El Salvador street scene to a street shrine in Italy to Moscow's Red Square to the Big Apple and even Duxbury Beach is on exhibit through March 2 at the South Shore Art Center, 119 Ripley Road, Cohasset.

The 1991 New England Photography Exhibition awarded prizes and ribbons to the best in each of three categories, black and white, color, and special effects. J. Paul MacDonald of Plymouth won best of show with "Small Requiem," taken in El Salvador. MacDonald also captured second prize in black and white with his "Persian Gulf Goodbye."

Marshfield's Christopher Bernstein won first prize for special effects with "Wanton War." Nicolas Nobili of Eastham took color's first prize with "Street Shrine, Cefalu" while Rosemonde Reilly Spinelli of South Easton took similar honors for black and white with "Past and Future."

Tom Lucas of Cohasset won color's third prize while Thomas Boone of Hingham won third prize in black and white. Stephen Evans of Milton won an honorable mention for color photography.

The exhibit is open to the public Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. through March 2. For more information, call 383-9548.

Angi Walsh, Ed Varallo, Elizabeth Deveney, Elizabeth Myers, Ronnie Nicynski and David Ingber will perform in 'Cheaper by the Dozen' March 7, 8, 9 and 10 at Cohasset Town Hall. For tickets call 545-1549.

Art Center cancels series

The South Shore Art Center regrets it is forced to cancel the "Visualization of Music" lecture series planned for February and March since the series leader, Pam Blevins, has moved out of state suddenly. The Art Center regrets any inconvenience this has caused.

Daffodil Days help charity

Over 100,000 golden daffodils will burst into bloom in nine South Shore communities on March 19 and 20 as the South Shore Unit of the American Cancer Society stages its annual Daffodil Days to benefit the research, education and service programs to cancer patients throughout the area.

Advance orders are being taken up to March 6 for the bright yellow blooms, and volunteers will be delivering and selling them beginning March 19. Orders may be placed by calling Mrs. Sweeney at 773-8226 or the South Shore Unit office, 341-4210. A bouquet of 10 is $4, and a box of 500 is $200.

The South Shore Unit of the Society carries on a program of help for cancer patients in Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Quincy, Scituate and Weymouth. Some 1400 businesses and individuals have been contacted by volunteers for support.

Statewide it is expected that three million blooms will be sold with a goal of raising more than the $800,000 raised last year.

Seaside road race set

Plans are well underway for the fifteenth Annual Cohasset Roadrace by the Sea. The event will take place on Sunday, April 7, at 1 p.m. The race which has become an annual ritual of spring is sponsored by the Cohasset Rotary Club and the proceeds are used to fund the club's many in town charities. The race is under the direction of Roy Fitzsimmons and Peter Logan. The $8 registration fee includes a T shirt for every runner as well as refreshments. The deadline for registration is April 1. Applications are available at Curtis Liquors, Colonial Pharmacy and Good Sport as well as sending a SASE to PO Box 36, Cohasset, Ma. 02025.

The race attracts over 800 runners from throughout New England. Added to the festivities this year will be a bake sale by the friends of the Council of Aging. This truly has become a community event in which the entire town participates and shows the warmth and beauty of Cohasset.

Scout troop is reactivated

Girl Scout Junior Troop #4339 is getting reactivated for Deer Hill School grades 4 to 6.

If you are a registered Junior Girl Scout or would like to join us, come to our meeting on March 13 at 6 p.m. at the Second Congregational Church, 43 Highland Avenue (next to Town Hall).

We are planning events for the spring, summer, and next fall. For more information call Mrs. Butman at 383-2528, Mrs. Laugelle at 383-0670, or Mrs. Hill at 383-6708.

Last call to play baseball

Final registration for Cohasset Little League and Pony League will take place on Saturday, March 2, at Barnes Field on North Main Street, from 9 a.m. to noon. All 1991 participants must complete a registration form by this date.

Registration fee for the first child is $35, the second child is $25, and other siblings are free. No child shall be deprived the right to participate in the program because of an inability to pay. Please contact any member of the Little League Board or call 383-1592.

Hockey exhibition set

A charity exhibition hockey game between the Cohasset High School Hockey team and the "Old Boys" will be held at the Pilgrim Arena in Hingham on Monday, March 4 at 7:30 p.m.

The "Old Boys" are a team of Cohasset adults interested in the sport of hockey. The contest pits an improving varsity hockey team against some adult players with both professional and amateur experience.

Lottery councils set grants

The Massachusetts Arts Lottery Council and the Cohasset Arts Lottery Council announce Fall, 1990 Arts Lottery grants to the following organizations: South Shore Arts Center; Cohasset Dramatic Club; Folio Arts Magazine; Cohasset High School Library, Susan McFadd, Librarian, for a laser disc; Colleen Lucas for middle and high school students Art Forum at South Shore Art Center. The grants totaled $796.

Fall, 1990 PASS grants have been approved to the following: Cohasset PSO, Cohasset High School, Joseph Osgood Elementary School, Scituate High School Special Needs Class. The total was $294.

Applications for PASS and Arts Lottery Grants are being accepted at the Cohasset Selectmen's Office and by James C. Contis, 5 Windsor Rd., Cohasset, MA 02025, or any Arts Lottery Council member. There is a new form that must be used for the Spring, 1991 Funding Cycle. The new forms are available at the Selectmen's Office or by mail from J. Contis, 5 Windsor Rd., Cohasset, MA 02025. Deadline for the Spring distribution cycle is March 15.

Arts Lottery funds support individuals or organizations dedicated to the arts and humanities. Funds may also be awarded to non-profit, tax-exempt organizations or public agencies whose purpose does not include the arts if they embark on an arts activity. Applications from public agencies, such as a public school, library or municipality must demonstrate a new need, be a one-time expenditure, and be matched by other funds one to one. Projects must demonstrate benefit to the local community.

Funding is also distributed under the PASS (Performing Arts Student Series) program. The purpose of this program is to fund tickets to performing arts events for public school children at the regular ticket price, or $5, whichever is less. Schools may buy tickets from participating arts organizations and then apply to the Cohasset Arts Lottery Council for reimbursement. PASS rosters are available in each of the three schools or contact Council member Penny Redfield, 383-9286.

For further information or questions call Jim Contis at 383-1805; or Karin Bartow at 383-0572.

The Chinese New Year

YEAR OF THE RAM

Students from the Wah Lum Kung Fu Academy in Cohasset perform the Lion Dance Feb. 16 at the Royal Garden in Kingston. The annual celebration brought the students from one Chinese restaurant in Quincy to the Kingston establishment. The Lion Dance, a symbol of good luck, was performed at the various businesses to greet the Chinese New Year, the Year of the Ram.

The head of the Lion moves to bring good luck as the Year of the Ram begins on the Chinese calendar.

Other kung fu students play music as the Lion moves toward the money bag.

The Lion costume used by the school was first used at the Chinese pavilion in Epcot Center at Disneyworld, Fla.

Skippers taste victory with upset

SPORTS

By Brian W. Sarton
Special to the Mariner

Your record stands at 7-12; you miss making the tournament by four games, and look back on the year and see five losses by three or less points; you're a young team led by a senior All-Star, looking to end the season with dignity while building for the future. How do you do it? How about playing the top ranked team in Division 3 North? Cohasset did just that, taking on Mission in the championship game of the Medway tournament, and the result was quite possibly the biggest upset win in Skipper history.

Cohasset first faced Holliston in the first round of the Medway tournament on 2/20, and the result was a hard-fought 58-51 win. The Skippers got down early by 10, then clawed their way back to take a 30-29 lead at the half. Holliston was content to throw a box-and-one on Linc Marsac and challenge the rest of the Cohasset team to beat them. Holliston would pay dearly for this strategy as Cohasset got big games from freshman forward Paul Bilodeau (15 points), Marsac (12 points), freshman guard Kywon Edwards (11 points), and sophomore Sheldon Morgan (nine points).

Junior Mac Campbell staved off a late Holliston run by hitting a key jumper with three minutes to go to keep Cohasset in command of the game.

Then it was time for Mission (16-1) to knock off previously undefeated Medway (19-1) in the other first round game, setting up a Cohasset/Mission championship game on 2/21 that had the smell of a blowout to it.

"I told the kids that if we got into a running game with (Mission) or had a lot of turnovers, it could be a rout" said Skipper coach Arnold Repucci. "They're a real run-and-gun team."

Cohasset came out strong, stopping the Mission fast break by getting back on defense and built a two point lead with eight minutes to go in the first half. Then Marsac got whistled with his third foul and had to go out of the ballgame, taking his six points to the bench with him. The Skippers hung tough without him, and trailed by a score of 27-23 at the half.

"In the locker room at halftime, the kids were really into it, and they came right back at them in the second half" Repucci said. "That was the best half the kids have played this year."

The second half saw Cohasset maintain a 4-6 point lead, and led 58-55 with seven seconds left on two clutch Marsac free throws. But the Cohasset joy soon turned to stunned silence as Mission's Jahmahl Galloway threw in a game-tying three-pointer from half-court as the buzzer sounded. Overtime. Gut-check time.

"That was a test of the mettle of these kids" Repucci said. "There was a lot of emotion in that huddle."

Mission came out in the overtime and scored the first two points, then Cohasset slammed the door with seven unanswered points to lead 65-60 with one minute left. Senior co-captain Matt Marks, who had a great game controlling the boards, fouled out, followed by Marsac 30 seconds later. But Cohasset was able to control a couple of key rebounds and hang on to win.

Marsac led Cohasset with 29 points, 23 of them in the second half. He also collected 14 rebounds. "He played the game of his life" Repucci said. "We talked before the game about going out in style and playing under control. He was awesome."

Edwards was a key to the Cohasset win, as he continually broke the Mission press, then penetrated and dished off on the offensive end. "He played every minute of the game" Repucci said, "I just couldn't take him out. I can't say enough about his game."

Repucci also praised the games of Matt Marks for his rebounding, senior Caleb Slotnick who played a number of different positions, and Campbell for his contributions.

"We stressed teamwork, going to the last man, and working as hard as you can for as long as you can" Repucci said of the Mission win, "I'm pleased with the bench, and I can't say enough about the young kids and the senior leadership. What an unbelievable game and an unbelievable tournament!

To cap off the win, Marsac was named tournament MVP to go along with his selection as a South Shore League All Star.

"This was the greatest experience of my coaching career" Repucci reflected. "We went into the tournament as big underdogs — what a great example to keep our momentum going."

The Cohasset High School boy's basketball team won the first round of the Medway Tournament of Feb. 20 to move into a championship game against Mission. The Skippers kept the game close and pulled off an upset win in overtime with a score of 65-60.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue and in execution of the POWER OF SALE contained in a certain mortgage given by Mary C. Jope to Joseph A. Saponaro, Trustee of Saponaro Realty Trust dated January 20, 1967 and recorded with the Norfolk District Registry of Deeds, Book 4407, Page 70, and with Plymouth District Registry of Deeds in Book 3345, Page 286, of which mortgage the undersigned is the present holder, for breach of the conditions of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same will be sold at public auction on the premises on March 12, 1991, a portion of the premises described in said mortgage, to wit:

"The land together with the buildings thereon situated in Cohasset, County of Norfolk and Hingham, County of Plymouth, consisting of 6.66 acres, more or less, as shown on the plan of land entitled "Plan of Land in Hingham and Cohasset, Massachusetts," dated May 17, 1966, by Edwin A. Young, Registered Land Surveyor, and recorded with Norfolk District Registry of Deeds in Book 4407, Page 69."

Excluding therefrom that portion of the above premises as shown on said plan conveyed to Joseph A. Saponaro, Trustee of Saponaro Realty Trust by Mary C. Jope, Trustee of the M.C.J. Realty Trust by deed dated December 27, 1971 recorded with Norfolk District Registry of Deeds in Book 4798, Page 625, and with the Plymouth District Registry of Deeds in Book 3741, Page 417, being more particularly bounded and described as follows:

NORTHWESTERLY: by land of Joseph Saponaro as shown on said plan, 385.15 feet

NORTHEASTERLY: by land of Joseph Saponaro as shown on said plan, 203.30 feet to the Hingham and Cohasset boundary

SOUTHEASTERLY: to a point on the Southeasterly bound of the property as shown on said plan, being 245 feet Easterly of the Westerly most bound as shown on said plan

SOUTHWESTERLY: 245 feet along a fence as shown on said plan by a "permanent access easement" as shown on said plan.

The excluded portion of the mortgaged premises being a rectangular shaped parcel of land at the westerly side of the total area of 6.66 acres, more or less, as shown on said plan, including the area shown on said plan as 0.79 acres, more or less, in Hingham.

Terms of Sale: The above described portion of the real property covered by said mortgage will be sold at the premises on Turkey Hill Lane (located off Justice Cushing Highway, Route 3A) in said Cohasset, at 10:00 a.m. on March 12, 1991 subject to unpaid real estate taxes, tax titles, and municipal liens and assessments if any thereon. Payment of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000) in cash or certified or bank treasurer's check will be required from the purchaser at the time and place of the sale as a deposit, and the balance will be due in thirty days to be deposited in escrow with the firm of Posternak, Blankstein & Lund. Other terms, if any, will be announced at the sale.

Docket No. 91P0289E1

Estate of MARGUERITE E. RUSSELL late of COHASSET In the County of NORFOLK

NOTICE

A petition has been presented in the above-captioned matter praying that the last will of said decedent be proved and allowed and that HENRY J. DUGAN of RANDOLPH in the County of NORFOLK be appointed executor named in the will without surety on the bond.

If you desire to object to the allowance of said petition, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before 10:00 in the forenoon on March 20, 1991.

In addition you should file a written statement of objections to the petition, giving the specific grounds therefore, within thirty (30) days after the return day (or such other time as the Court, on motion with notice to the petitioner, may allow) in accordance with Probate Rule 16.

Witness, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court at Dedham, the fifteenth day of February, one thousand nine hundred and ninety-one.

Recreation openings

The Cohasset Recreation Department will begin registrations during March for a number of Spring Children's Programs scheduled to begin the week of April 22. These programs are available due to the expanded use of our Revolving Account Fund last month. Program schedule is as follows and details will be available during March:

Mondays—Grades k-3—Soccer clinic, after school, 5 p.m., Osgood School Field.

Tuesdays—Grades 4-6—Soccer clinic, after school, 5 p.m., Deer Hill School Field.

Wednesdays—Grades k-3—Sports and Games, after school, 5 p.m., Osgood School Field.

Thursdays—Grades 4-6—Sports and Games, after school, 5 p.m., Deer Hill School Field.

Saturdays—Grades k-3—Sports and Games, 9 to 11 a.m.

Grades 4-6, Sports and Games, 12 to 2 p.m., Osgood School Field.

Each program will be eight weeks in duration and the fee structure will be approximately $20-$25 for the eight weeks and discounts for second and subsequent children will be available as well as fee reductions/waivers upon request. The programs will be conducted by Cohasset Recreation Department Staff members. Registration details will be forthcoming soon. The concept of the above programs are to provide youngsters the opportunity and benefits incumbent upon structured activities, games and sports. While soccer clinics will consist of instruction, an emphasis will also be placed on play, affording children more "hands on" experience, exercise and fun. Low-organized games and sports will be provided for children simply for fun and exercise within a structured environment.

The Cohasset Recreation Department will conduct the 15th annual Easter Egg Hunt, for children 3 to 11 years, on Saturday, March 30, at noon at Deer Hill School.

This year there is again the distinct possibility that the Easter Bunny and helpers will be on hand. There also will be live animals at this year's hunt, as well as the other attractions.

Children will be divided into 3 separate chronological groups:

Group 1—Ages 3 and 4 (with parent). Younger than 3 may also attend, but with at least one parent at all times.

Group 2—Ages 5-7

Group 3—Ages 8-11

Please gather around your designated area sign before noon. Bring a small paper bag or container for your candy.

Individually wrapped chocolate eggs will be scattered about the designated areas. In each group some of the eggs will be wrapped with masking tape that will have a number on the tape. Should you find one of the numbered eggs, hold on to it as you will receive a prize from the Easter Bunny.

This year's program sponsors are: Cohasset Rotary Club, Veterans of Foreign Wars-Post 9146, American Legion Post #118, The Cohasset Police Association, and the Chamber of Commerce.

Rain date will be on Saturday, April 6, at noon, Deer Hill School Field.

During the past years, the Easter Bunny and helpers have visited Cohasset residents who are hospitalized or homebound, during the Easter season. Should you know of anyone that you feel could benefit from a visit by the Easter Bunny and helpers, you may call either the Recreation Department office at, 383-6791, or you may call Jean Salvador, and in either case, arrangements will be made.

VoTech budget cuts

South Shore VoTech, which has already proposed a 4 percent budget cut, may stand to lose another 31 percent in state aid, Supt. Clifford Easton said last week.

The school could lose an additional 10 percent ($64,000) in statewide cuts of regional school aid and another 21.76 percent ($160,000) in cuts to chapter 70 local aid, Easton said.

The FY '92 budget, before cutbacks and including total revenues and member assessments, was $4.49 million.

The percentage cuts, except for the initial 4 percent reduction, would not be absorbed by the individual student assessment fees for member towns, Easton said. The cuts represent a decrease in the school's revenue that is obtained through state and local aid and would have to be taken from money earmarked for programs and staff.

Easton said he is afraid that reductions could be so severe that they might force a complete restructuring of the school.

He was unwilling to speculate on exactly what cuts will have to be made .

Police statistics show decrease in crime

By Joseph Mont
Mariner staff

Cohasset was a much safer town in 1990, according to Police Chief Joseph Kealey.

He said that his year end report of police activities shows that the number of police assistance calls and arrests have dropped substantially.

He said these statistics should dispel fears that as the economy worsened there would be an increase in violent crimes and arrests.

Despite the drop in arrests, Kealey said that the department was still able to increase the amount of fees to the general fund, even though the increase was only $231.

The increase is due to marginal increases in parking violations, paid detail, restitution, and requests for police reports, he said.

The report, which will be placed in the town report, includes calls and arrests made from Jan. 1, 1990 through Dec. 31, 1990.

Sgt. Brian Noonan, the department's prosecutor, said there were 34 domestic calls in 1990.

He said that many of these calls were to the same home. He said that on some nights police have responded to as many as four calls from the same family.

Noonan said that last year's domestic statistics showed a slight decrease.

This differs from the neighboring town of Hingham where domestic calls have nearly doubled over the last year, according to that town's acting police chief.

Police Chief Edmond Burgess said that domestic calls, which are on the rise in Hingham, are the most dangerous for an officer to respond to. He said a Hingham officer's life was threatened at gun-point last March while responding to a domestic call.

According to Burgess, the increase is related to the failing economy. As families find it difficult to make ends meet, or a job is lost, tensions can easily erupt into violence, he said.

Noonan said there were slight increases in some categories of reports and arrests.

9 teachers get layoff notices in case the sky falls

By Patricia Desmond
Mariner staff

It's become an annual event — the vote to pink slip non-tenured teachers.

On March 5 school committee voted to send out the usual notification, which is required by state law.

It's not that the school committee is planning to layoff the nine teachers who will get the notification.

The $5.6 million school budget, as voted last month, contains enough money to keep all the present staff.

It may not be the actual budget by next school year, however, since it will require an override of Proposition 2 1/2. Then again there is talk from the governor's office of reducing the state's local aid contribution.

And besides all that, the budget has no money included for teachers' raises which are currently under negotiation.

"Under state law non-tenured teachers have to be let go before tenured teachers," explained School Supt. Stephen Hart. "We aren't planning to let the teachers go but there are circumstances that could force us to."

State law requires school systems to notify the non-tenured teachers whose contracts will not be renewed before April 15. Since the budget figures are not set at that time, it has become traditional to send notifications to the non-tenured teachers.

Without an override, the school committee would be forced to make additional cuts in the budget. An override attempt failed last year.

Even with an override, if new union contracts exceed the money available, there would be cuts.

The nine non-tenured teachers receiving the notices are:

- Linda Stevens, a second year teacher at the Joseph Osgood School.
- Linda Gill, a second year teacher at the Joseph Osgood School.
- Nancy Magussen, a second year teacher at Deer Hill School.
- Steven Biagini, a second year teacher at Deer Hill School.
- Cynthia Hurley, a first year teacher at Osgood School.
- Patrice Donnelly, a first year teacher at Osgood School.
- Barbara Wells, a first year teacher at Osgood School.
- Judith Ritts, a first year teacher at Deer Hill School.
- Patricia Keenan, a first year teacher at the junior/senior high.

Override election set for May 18

By Jane O'Brien
Special to the Mariner

Faced with the printing deadline for the annual town election, selectmen voted Monday to hold a special election later in the spring to deal with the issue of one or more budget override questions.

The special election is set for May 18.

The annual Town Meeting is Saturday, April 6. At that time the budget for the coming fiscal year will be established. The town election is April 13.

"I'm very upset with the advisory board's proposed budget figures of $141,872 for the Proposition 2 1/2 override issue. It was not at all what we had envisioned," said Selectman Jane Goedecke.

"I can not vote on this issue as it stands tonight, these figures do not even include the $22,000 increase we just voted on for the town employees' workmen's comp."

Goedecke said the voters need to know what the budget will look like without the $141,872.00 override.

"What will we lose if we don't pass this override? We've already made cuts in services and personnel. With this proposal we haven't been given the choice we would like to have. I do not feel the voters have been informed with enough information to make a more educated vote," Goedecke said.

Selectman Martha Gjesteby asked, "Is this just an operating budget? I can't see where they've discussed any of the articles. That would mean even more of a cut."

Goedecke also expressed concern about the timing of the override question.

(see page 22)

COHASSET'S WEEK

Special counsel appointment

Town Counsel Richard Henderson was on hand at the selectmen's meeting Monday (March 5) to explain the appointment of a Special Town Counsel. A vote was taken and James H. Green was appointed to assist in the tax appellate cases.

There are a number of taxpayers — including Selectmen Ned Tebbetts and Jane Goedecke — who are suing the town over the current assessments.

The week before (Feb. 25) Henderson discussed the matter with selectmen in executive session.

.Both Tebbetts and Goedecke were included in the closed session when the matter was discussed.

Last Thursday (Feb. 28) the advisory board voted to allow a $10,000 transfer for special counsel for the case.

Incidentally Henderson said he will disqualify himself from handling cases involving town officials or town employees. He will, however, act as chief counsel on about 40 of the cases. Green will handle the other half of the cases.

Bryanton approved for raise

Selectmen voted March 5 to give Kathleen Bryanton, Director of the Council on Aging, a Step Rate increase from $13.35 an hour to $13.98 an hour.

Sohier Street status quo

The issue of making Sohier Street a one-way from North Main Street to Ripley Road was voted down by selectmen on March 5.

Patrolman Clifton Jones, town safety officer, recommended that it stay as it is after checking the accident reports "I find no problem with this intersection," he said.

Race and walk are permitted

Normandie Nigh and Peter Logan were on hand at Monday's selectmen's meeting to ask that the Walk that precedes the Rotary Road Race on Sunday, April 7, be made official. Nigh said a walk would raise more money for the Rotary and give the the walking population an opportunity to participate.

The walk is planned for 10 a.m.

The entry fee will be $8. The walk will start and end at Sandy Beach to avoid parking problems. There was some concern about the walk interfering with the local church traffic because of the 10 a.m. starting time.

Rocco Laugelle said, "We could alter the route a bit to avoid any problems." The race will go up Ripley Road to solve the traffic dilemma around the Common. The Road Race will start at1 p.m.

State Representative Mary Jeanette Murray presented each of the three candidates with a special citation - Chris Ford, Hallmark 100 Properties; Don Harrold, New York Life Insurance; and Glenn Pratt, Cohasset Community Center. (Staff photo by Jodi L. Rome)

Hedlund comes to town

Tuesday, March 26, from 10 a.m. to noon, at the Cohasset Town Hall, Meeting Room, has been set aside by Sen. Robert Hedlund, R-Weymouth, to meet with constituents. For those unable to meet with the Senator, please call the State House at 722-1646.

Early release day

March 7 will be an early release day in the Cohasset Public Schools. There will be no afternoon kindergarten sessions and other students will be dismissed according to the following schedule:

SCHOOL	BUSES DEPART
Junior/Senior High School	noon
Deer Hill School.	12:40 p.m.
Joseph Osgood School	12:50 p.m.

Lunch will be served in the elementary schools and food service will be available at the Junior/Senior High School.

This early release day has been approved by the Cohasset School Committee to allow the staff to attend a tri-district inservice meeting with the Hull and Scituate schools.

Swimmers commended

Selectmen Rocco Laugelle this week commended five Cohasset swim team members who swam 800 laps at the "SWIM FOR SIGHT" meet to raise $1,000 for local radio and TV personality Dave Maynard.

The swimmers include Topher Henderson who swam 184 laps. The combined effort of Chip Anderson, David Leahy, Nick Hawkes and John Bristol brought the total to 800 laps.

If anyone wishes to contribute to the fund, call Linda Henderson at 383-0289.

State freezes public housing grant money

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

The new administration in Boston put hopes for a congregate living facility for Cohasset elders on ice.

The state Department of Economic Opportunity and Community Development had awarded Cohasset a grant to undertake a study to determine the need for such a facility. According to housing authority Director Barbara Clain, the Weld Administration froze the grant money pending a review.

"EOCD says the reason is the new administration is taking a look at the programs," she said.

The housing authority wanted to establish a program on the grounds of the former Trettis property to serve eight elderly residents. The parcel currently contains a two-story cape and is located to the right of the police/fire station.

Most congregate facilities serve elderly or handicapped residents who can no longer manage independent housing with its demands for cooking, cleaning and maintenance, but who do not require the supervision, nursing care and expense of a nursing home.

Residents generally have private bed/sitting rooms and share common areas like dining and living rooms. Supportive services are provided in order to keep residents as independent as possible as long as possible.

Kathy Bryanton, director of the council on aging, hopes EOCD experiences an early thaw. She sees a critical need for expanded housing options for Cohasset's aging population.

According to figures compiled by the council on aging, fully 20 percent of the town are over 60 and one-third of them are more than 75 years old.

Currently the Housing Authority maintains 64 units of elderly housing. There are no vacancies and Clain said the waiting list is "substantial."

Even so, she sees family affordable housing as the greatest need in Cohasset.

Several projects to develop affordable housing sank when ledge and high groundwater presented insurmountable construction problems. Now there is no money available to move forward.

The congregate housing project off Elm Street could be ready in the next month or so. The housing is earmarked for the mentally handicapped. (PLD photo)

"We're still actively looking, though," Clain said. "We have plenty of plans, but the problem is lack of money."

The housing authority plans to be prepared as soon as funds become available.

They had hoped to plug some of the gap with more Section 8 subsidies. Section 8 is a federal program that subsidizes tenants in existing housing. Unfortunately, Housing and Urban Development denied Cohasset's request for addition slots.

With a long waiting list and no relief in sight, the Housing Authority opted to close applications for the subsidy program.

The one bright light on the housing authority's horizon is the group home project for developmentally disabled people. The Elm Street project resembles two joined ranch-style homes, each containing four bedrooms.

The housing authority broke ground on the project in September. It represented the culmination of four years of planning.

EOCD funded the construction, and the state Department of Mental Retardation will select the clients and provide operating costs. Actual day-to-day operations will be contracted out to a private vendor.

Clain said the project is moving ahead rapidly. She anticipates a gala ribbon cutting in late-April.

Two week winter school vacation considered

Cohasset schools may close for two weeks next Christmas.

But before school committee makes a final decision on the calendar for the coming school year, officials are seeking some advice from staff and parents.

Next year Christmas falls on a Wednesday.

School Supt. Stephen Hart told school committee Monday that if there are no snow days next year and if the teachers agree to skip the conference day in October, then the two week vacation might be accomplished with June 20, 1992, as the last day of school for students.

Teachers are required to go one more day, placing the last day for staff at June 21 on a calendar without snow days.

There are five snow days scheduled in a regular school calendar in this state. If the days are not taken, then school is released early.

Hart said if a more tradtional Christmas break is scheduled and the teachers conference in October is a "no school" day, then the last day of school for students would be June 19.

Under his second approach, school vacation at Christmas would run from the Friday before the holiday until Jan. 2, a Thursday.

A decision on the calendar will be made either at the next school committee meeting on March 18 or sometime in April.

Our CommunityCenter honored by Chamber

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Cohasset's Community Center climbed out of controversy and into the limelight last week. The venerable organization received the Forrest E. King Memorial Award given annually by the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce.

The award singles out the person or entity who, in the opinion of the members of the Chamber of Commerce, best demonstrates the highest standard of business ethics, management, employee and public relations and civic responsibility during the preceding year.

The award memorializes Forrest King, a founding member of the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce.

"He was a very vivacious, outgoing person," Chamber member Dan Leahy said. "We wanted to make a statement of the high regard we held him in after his unfortunate death at a fairly young age."

While the community center was the sixth recipient of the coveted award, it represented the first time an institution had been honored. The other nominees for the 1990 award were Realtor Christopher Ford and insurance man Don Harrold.

Past honorees include Leahy, Andy Merrill, Ozzie Ingram and Richard Straley (who tied for the honor in 1987), Joanne Winters and Jim Kearney.

Glenn Pratt, president of the center's board of directors said the board was just delighted with the award.

"We've tried to be the kind of organization doing things around the town," he said. "We're always asking ourselves if we are doing the right things, if we could be doing something differently."

Pratt said the center started in 1943 when a group of people felt Cohasset needed a meeting place. The organizers included a lot of returning soldiers.

With a core group of 40 members, the center found a place of its own at the corner of Sohier and North Main Streets the following year. Pratt said the first center is now a condominium.

"There was more and more interest in the center," Pratt said. By 1949, the membership had outgrown the first center and bought the present building.

"We added a hall and bowling alleys first. In 1953, we started the nursery school," Pratt continued.

In 1987, the center took a leap of faith and decided to expand the center with a $550,000 addition.

"That move really set us off," he said. "Since then our membership has more than doubled. It's growing every year."

The new addition allowed the center to serve more people with more services and programs. The nursery boasts a brand new area that can handle 100 children. Before the addition, the program was limited to 35 children because of space problems.

Pratt said the center serves 1,600 members. While most of the members hail from Cohasset, 700 of them call Scituate home. There also are a sprinkling of members from Hingham, Hull, Norwell and other communities.

Mrs. King (center) and her daughter Victoria presented the award to this year's winner of the King Award, The Cohasset Community Center. The Center's president Glenn Pratt accepted the award. (Staff photo by Jodi L. Rome)

Part of the center's five year plan includes offering more programs and services in Scituate to meet those members needs. The board is looking for space there.

Those aren't the only plans being hatched in the big white building on the common.

The biggest undertaking will be another addition, adding more function and meeting rooms and office space. The proposed addition will yield another 4,000 square feet to the center.

"We want to give the senior center more space. It ties in well with what we are doing," Pratt said. "We might possibly add a dining room for senior luncheons We're always searching for ways to help the senior center.

"We're considering adding a daycare component in addition to the nursery school, too."

The board hopes to find the key to serving teens with the new addition. It's a puzzle the board would love to solve.

"We've tried to attract junior high and senior high school students," Pratt said. "We even got a license for video machines, but there was no real interest."

Pratt said the center hopes to break ground in the late spring. The one hurdle in front of them is green — money. He wasn't sure how much money the center will need for the addition because they're still waiting for the final numbers.

"We still have some debt, about $160,000, left from the last addition," Pratt said. He remains optimistic that members and the general public will support the center's plans as it moves into the second half of it's first 100 years.

"We hope to be around for 50 more years," Pratt said.

Coalition fights planned cut in local aid

By Judy Enright
Mariner staff

Local officials huddled with lawmakers last Friday in an attempt to get a handle on Gov. William Weld's threatened state aid cuts.

The meeting was called by the South Shore Coalition and drew officials from most area towns. Coalition Chairman Robert Ferguson said, "We want to reassure officials that we're here to give as much support as we can."

IMPACT

Town officials detailed the impact of the threatened local aid cuts on their communities, and asked legislators for their help. But Sen. Michael Creedon, D-Brockton, was blunt. "The state is broke," he said. "I do not believe you'll see the kinds of increases you're looking for."

David Soule, executive director of the Metropolitan Area Planning Council (MAPC) complimented the Coalition saying, "We feel the work being done on the South Shore is some of the most innovative and creative thinking in the whole metropolitan area.

He said that dwindling resources have created the need for local officials to set priorities. "I think the only way the state can set priorities is if local officials are involved."

Norwell Selectman Chairman Rebecca Freed said her town depends on state aid for 14 percent of its budget. "We're looking at a major cut in aid forcing us into tremendous cuts and an override." Selectmen have said Norwell will definitely have an override and only the amount is an issue now. They feel the override will probably be from $500,000 to $750,000.

She asked that lawmakers in attendance pledge not to cut local aid. Massachusetts is now 49th in the country in aid to education, she said, "and is moving to the bottom of the list. The instability caused by closing fire stations, schools and libraries is causing disruption at the town level." That kind of climate, she said, will not attract business and industry to the area. "We're hamstrung if we can't have at least level funding of local aid. We're hampered by no growth and cuts in local aid."

TRANSPORTATION

Weymouth selectman Brian McDonald cited the importance of transportation to the South Shore which he said "has the worst access to Boston of any metropolitan area." He said that he was "heartened to see the Route 3 widening put back on the agenda. That's a good sign for the South Shore." He also cited the importance of the Old Colony Railroad project. "I know it will cause some disruption in some communities, but I'm in favor of it. I feel it's very important. I don't believe it will solve all the problems ... but it can have a significant impact in improving the quality of life for most people on the South Shore."

He said he hoped the question, on upcoming ballots, will "tell the Governor how the people feel.

"I appreciate how difficult the financial times are," he said. "In Weymouth, there were 200 layoffs last year. With the aid cuts, we're looking at laying off more this year."

Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, R-Cohasset, said that she opposes the railroad because "of what it will cost my towns and the taxpayers," many of whom have lost their jobs.

She added that she has always voted for increases in local aid and would continue to do so.

Norwell resident Charles Morgan suggested that legislators work on repealing mandates "that are so far-fetched." Murray replied, "That's why Proposition 2 1/2 went through so strongly - so there would be no more mandates."

Sen. Michael Creedon, D-Brockton, said he had looked forward "for about three years to finding out what the South Shore Coalition was. I had heard about this organization, but I heard that Bill Golden owned it," he said to appreciative chuckles from the audience.

WEIGHTED AID

"Problems in Norwell and Brockton are the same involving local aid," Creedon said. "I've always voted for local aid, but I have always voted for weighted local aid which favors poorer places like Brockton as opposed to wealthier places like Norwell, and I'll never change."

He cited the successful law suit waged against Gov. Michael Dukakis by Norwell selectman and Brookline Town Counsel David Turner. "The problem now is that the Governor (Weld) has said he will cut $275 million in local aid and we need a two-thirds vote in the House and Senate on any local aid issue. I think it will be difficult because the $275-million has to come from something else.

"In other words," Creedon said, "The state is broke. The state is in no different position than the cities and towns."

In Brockton, Creedon said, officials are looking at a $15-million deficit.

"It's just incredible," Creedon said. "We're talking 40 police officers and 300 teachers at the very least."

He added that "everyone in the legislature should be honest with you officials. A shift of $275-million would have to be taken from "some other good program," he said. "It could be Chapter 766, or early intervention or we could close the Massachusetts Maritime Academy."

Legislators understand the problems at local levels, he said, "but we have to balance the budget."

Ned Tebbetts, Cohasset selectman, told Creedon that Cohasset selectmen are united in their support for maintaining local aid. He suggested that perhaps there might be a combination of program cuts and increased taxes.

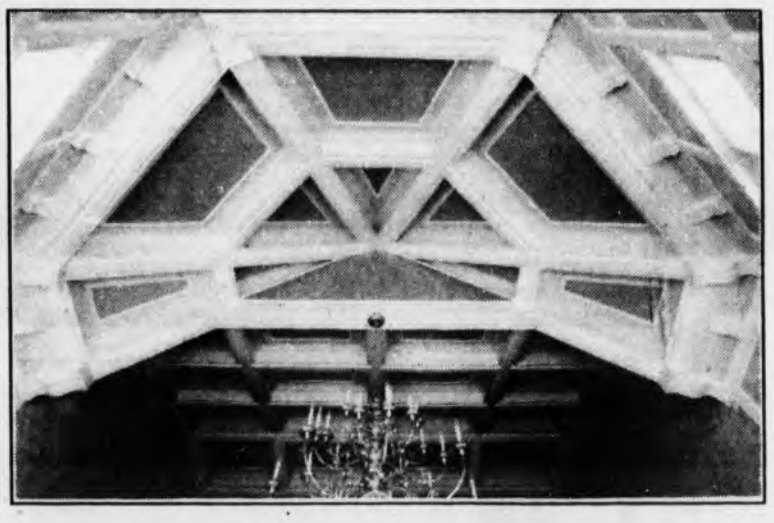
Creedon replied that if he had to cut, he would cut "a lot of the Medicaid program and the so-called optional things we have. I would cut the Office for Children because it duplicates a lot of the services of DSS. I would merge the colleges. They have a complete administration at Massasoit and at Bridgewater and they're only five miles apart. The students are essentially from the same pool of applicants with about the same academic skills and financial capabilities. I would start doing that kind of restructuring and I'd raise taxes."

TAXES

He said he thought Weld was missing the boat in not instituting new taxes. But, he said he would not tax services because it would discourage businesses.

"I would also, and this won't get me re-elected, completely restructure collective bargaining."

Morgan asked why legislators, once they're elected, forget their party affiliation for the good of the Commonwealth. Creedon replied, "because the public is not unanimous. They're not together on these things. Everybody wants to go to heaven but no one wants to die." Voters, he said, favored Question 5 but voted against 3. "In Brockton, Question 5 is a mistake. In Brockton, they voted for 5 because they didn't understand it. I've been dealing with the public for 17 years. Referenda government is very difficult."



Rep. Janet O'Brien, D-Hanover, complimented Creedon for his honesty. "He's probably the most honest and pragmatic person I know in terms of laying

COA runs program on women's finances

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

When her refrigerator stopped running, Mary Smith went out to replace it. To her surprise, the store refused to grant her credit despite the fact that she owned her own home and had paid her bills on time longer than the appliance salesman had been alive.

Later that day the store called back. The manager offered to extend credit if she applied under her husband's name. Yes, he told her, they knew he died eight years ago, but he had an excellent credit history.

Mary Smith had none.

Her name is fictitious, but Mary Smith's story is all too common.

Many women assume they have a credit history because carry a mortgage, credit cards, bank accounts and loan payments under both names. In most instances the account is carried under the husband's name and social security number. When death or divorce takes the husband away, the credit history vanishes, too.

"We've been running into more and more women who are finding they have no credit," Cohasset council on aging Director Kathy Bryanton said. "They own their own homes. They thought they had credit. But when their husband dies, they find they have to begin all over again.

"Maybe the best thing a husband could have done to provide for his wife is make sure she had her own credit."

The counselors from the SHINE program have been finding the same situation when they counsel widowed, divorced and single women about health insurance.

SHINE stands for Serving the Health Information Needs of Elders. The program serves 11 communities on the South Shore through a network of volunteer counselors.

"They take it for granted that they have credit," SHINE coordinator Pat Ryan said. "They are filled with humiliation and anger when they are denied."

Bryanton and Ryan decided to do something about the problem. They decided to celebrate Women's Awareness Month, more commonly known as March, by sponsoring a seminar on what every woman should know about credit and finance.

The March 20 seminar will feature a panel of three speakers. Pam Lawlor of Credit Data of New England will address credit issues, Carol Ryan of the Norfolk County Extension Service will focus on finances and Atty. Deirdre Keefe will cover wills, trusts and estate planning.

"Women of all ages need this information," Bryanton said. "If they know about credit and financial planning when they are young, they won't have problems later. The seminar is open to men as well.

Lawlor will explain how women can get and keep a good credit record — and how to deal with credit problems if they occur.

"Many people don't know they can look at their credit history," Pat Ryan said. Credit reporting companies are not infallible, though. Many times people find companies have included misleading information or have confused two people with similar names.

Other people wonder whether they should respond to letters and phone calls telling them they have been pre-approved for a credit card.

For women with limited incomes, maintaining credit often hinges on keeping their financial house in order.

Carol Ryan will address using bank services for financial planning, creating a spending plan, options and resources for maximizing financial worth and organizing and storing important financial documents.

Keefe's piece of the puzzle covers what women need to know about planning for the future. Her presentation covers such topics as the Homestead Protection Act, the new Health Proxy Law and powers of attorney.

All three presenters will answer questions from the audience. Bryanton and Pat Ryan promise participants will go home with material to help them put what they've learned into process.

"I met a woman in her '70s working for a big department store," Bryanton said. "She told me she had to take a job because she lost all her credit rating when her husband died. She was forced to begin all over again during what she thought would be her golden retirement years."

The seminar will be held March 20 from 1-3 p.m. in the Community Center, 3 North Main Street, Cohasset. There is no charge, but pre-registration is strongly recommended.

For more information or to register, call 383-9112.

Two rail questions face the voters on April 13

By Jane O'Brien
Special to the Mariner

Two simple questions on the restoration of the Greenbush railroad line will appear on the April 13 town election ballot.

One of the two questions is the result of a petition of registered voters led by Back on Track, a group that wants to see the rail line restored.

The second question asks whether the voters favor the restoration even if there is a financial impact on the town.

Selectmen Ned Tebbetts proposed three questions on the possible restoration of the Greenbush rail service.

"My calculations indicate that the restoration of the Greenbush Line would probably cost the town budget at least $300,00 a year. This would amount to more than an average of $100 yearly for each Cohasset household," Tebbetts said Monday as the selectmen discussed the issue.

The third question on the table involved environmental considerations involved along the line.

Both Selectmen Jane Goedecke and Diana Kornet were opposed to question three.

"I feel the third question is asking the voter to make a value judgement." said Goedecke.

Tebbetts was more than willing to make some amendments to the third question. Goedecke said the ballot had to be printed this week, and the vote had to be taken at that meeting.

The third question was voted down by a two to three vote of the board.

The voters petition question asks:

"Do you favor restoration of the Greenbush branch of the Old Colony Railroad line which would provide commuter rail service from the South Shore to Boston along the existing right-of-way in Braintree, Weymouth, Hingham, Cohasset and Scituate?"

The selectmen's question asks:

"Should commuter rail service on the Greenbush Line be restored if such restoration required that a significant portion of total costs be paid by local taxpayers?"

Jim Sandell helps the Village Renaissance grow

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of stories about the people making Village Renaissance happen).

By Allison Cohen
Mariner staff

When the town pump replica takes its place at the intersection of Elm and South Main, it will be more than just another link with the past. The project represents a shared hope to revive the village as the heart of Cohasset. The collaboration of old-timers and newcomers is turning that hope into reality.

Jim Sandell is one of the many volunteers toiling on the project. Sandell works in Cambridge as an architect and urban design specialist. His firm works on projects in Boston, New York and points west. He gave that expertise to tiny Cohasset by creating detailed architectural drawings and layouts.

Although Cohasset's pump seems dwarfish in contrast to monumental projects such as redesigning the Prudential Center or Manhattan's Westway, Sandell sees little difference.

"They share all the same problems," he says. "You deal with the needs of the user and the general public...It's just a matter of scale."

Sandell's contribution didn't amount to making one quick drawing, either.

"It's kind of an ongoing process," he explains. Because the project relies on donated materials and supplies, his drawings and plans must reflect what is available. The plans have also changed because of concerns expressed by fire department, police department and the highway department.

Sandell understands those concerns. If it's three in the morning with a raging blizzard outside, he knows the snowplows can't finesse their way around the pump area. And if someone's house is on fire, the fire truck had better be able to negotiate that turn without getting hung up on pump.

The town pump project isn't the first time Sandell volunteered his skill to Cohasset. Shortly after moving to town, Sandell became part of the historic district commission.

"Anyone who comes to Cohasset falls in love with the common and the church," he says. For seven years he's been helping maintain the beauty and integrity of the common and the buildings that surround it.

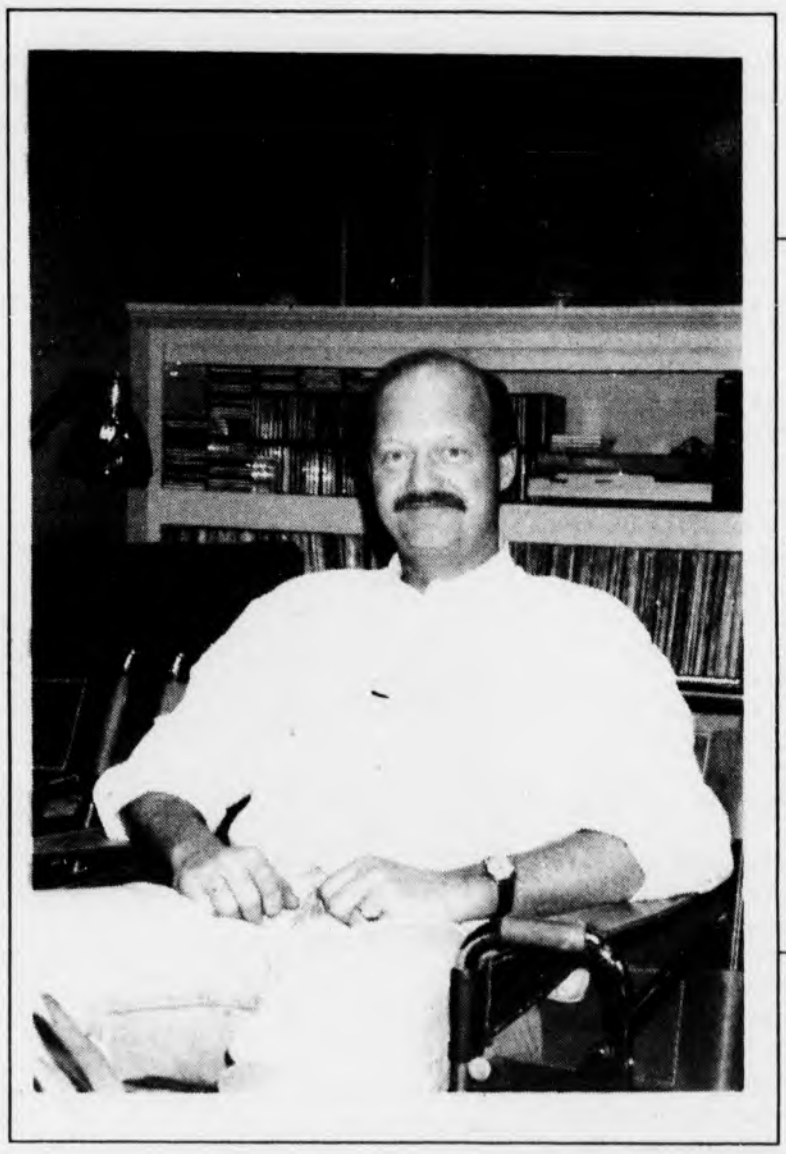
The work of the historic district commission ranges from reviewing designs for building renovations and additions down to people who just want to change the windows in their house.

Although Sandell creates new buildings and urban centers for a living, he learned early to cherish the old. Minnesotan born and bred, Sandell experienced first hand what happens when a city destroys its past to make way for the future.

"Minneapolis demolished wonderful old Romanesque buildings in the name of urban renewal," he said. Six years living in the center of Rome convinced him that cities should be keeping the things from the past and knitting the new buildings in.

That is the vision he has for Cohasset, as well. Although it would be easy to fall into the cobblestone and gaslight antiquarianism of Disney World's Main Street, Sandell wants the town to maintain both its sense of the past and a vision for the future.

Protecting the historic district commission and installing a working replica of the old town pump won't cause a village renaissance. Unlike the baseball diamond in "field of Dreams," you can build the pump, but the shoppers and strollers may not come.



"The pump is like lipstick," Sandell said. "The key is the Chamber of Commerce and the retailers generating a plan to make the village work. They need to find a way to compete with the malls and shopping centers."

Convenience is one element, he said. The malls and shopping centers attract shoppers because they provide diversity in a concentrated area. The mix of businesses and restaurants resembles and enclosed village. Malls even try to replicate the sidewalks, plantings and fountains of a village setting.

The village could bill itself as an open air mall, but creating more diverse shopping and dining choices hinges on solving the sewer plant and parking inadequacies. The sewer problem led to a restriction on the kinds of development possible. And Sandell said prospective shoppers will walk from a cavernous lot to the mall, but have different expectations for local shopping trips.

While working on a project to revive Jackson, Tenn.'s downtown area, the marketing experts in Sandell's firm discovered people will not walk more than two blocks from their parking place. Solving the lack of parking spaces in the village is clearly necessary. With limited land available, a return of the Greenbush line of the Old Colony railroad could be the best thing that could happen for the village merchants, Sandell said.

The final element is convenience. With more and more residents working full-time jobs outside the town, they need to do their shopping on weekends or in the evening—or head to the mall for dinner and shopping.

Jim Sandell
(Alison Cohen photo)

Shoppers trade off personalized service for convenience, Sandell said. And they may be so satisfied with the status quo that nothing will lure them back to the shops in the village.

However, Sandell isn't giving up. In addition to the pump, he has a vision for Depot Street. Sandell thinks he can marry traffic safety and beauty at the spot where Depot, Ripley and the town parking lot come together.

"The right of way there belongs to the least timid," Sandell jokes. He thinks a landscaped median strip is just the ticket. It would create beauty and channel traffic. All it will take is some concrete, loam, plants and water.

And a few more volunteers who love Cohasset to pull it all together.

AROUND TOWN

❑ Congratulations to Steve Myers. Steve qualified for the New England Diving Competitions held at the University of Rhode Island February 14 to 16. Sixteen colleges from all over New England participated. Steve was one of 29 divers. Each diver had to perform 11 dives on the one meter board. Steve took a seventh on the one meter and an eighth on the three meter board. Not a bad showing for someone who never dove until he went to college. Steve attends U. Mass Amherst, which again took the number one spot in New England for swimming/diving for the last five years.

❑ Mr. and Mrs. William Mack (Karen McSweeney) of Roslindale announce the birth of their daughter, Lauren Elizabeth, born on February 8 at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Brighton. The new arrival weighed 7 pounds, 3 ounces and measured 21 inches. Proud grandparents include Mr. and Mrs. Kevin McSweeney of Norwood and Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Mack of San Diego, CA, and Cohasset.

❑ Renee Prisble should be very pleased with herself, everyone who knows her is proud of her. Renee won a Gold Key for her art entry in The Boston Globe Awards, a prestigious young person's art exhibit. A reception was held last Sunday at the Transportation Building in Boston, and the exhibit will run through the month of March. Renee's entry is a mixed media portrait of her Grandmother. That makes the whole thing doubly exciting.

❑ We should all extend our thanks to Ralph Harrison this week. Ralph donated his window so that Jean Higgins and Jane Higgins could do a tribute to our boys in Saudi Arabia! Jean did the ribbons and decorations, and Jane did all of the wonderful printing. The next time you are downtown, be sure to look at the window of the Colonial Pharmacy. And, we thank you all.

❑ We applaud Abigail J. Adams this week, she made the Dean's List at Babson College. Abigail is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold W. Adams III. Jonathan P. MacDonald also gets to take a bow, he made the Dean's List at Babson too! Jonathan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert P. MacDonald.

❑ Mary Ellen Smith took part in a collaboration between Aquinas and Flately Mayo Health Care Centers recently. The academic portion of the course was taught at Aquinas, and the hands-on clinical portion was conducted at the Milton Health Care Facility. It was a six-week course on "Wholistic Care for the Elderly." Another refresher course will be offered starting April 15, for more information, contact Dr. Eleanor Murphy at 696-3100.

❑ Congratulations to Mike Reynolds, Mike Noble, Kevin Mulcahy and all hockey team members who made the South Shore League Ice Hockey All Star Team.

Slow Drains?

You'll never have a slow running, or clogged drain again!

The secret? Clean drains don't run slow. Slow drains, or periodic clogs, are signals that a thick layer of "gook" is choking your pipes. This gook coats the entire length of your pipe- from sink to sewer, or septic.

Conventional drain openers cannot remove this build up. Even a small tunnel through the waste lets them flow through the pipe, leaving the gook behind!

Now, with just a few minutes each month, you can easily clean out your pipes like new... and KEEP them clean with Plumb Clean. Its totally unique formula clings, and penetrates deep into the gook. That allows it to liquefy even years of build up. Plumb Clean will clean the entire length of your pipes. It will make your drains run like new, when used as directed. This penetrating action is so revolutionary, Plumb Clean is money-back guaranteed!

Save Money. A 1 lb. container of Plumb Clean holds up to 41 drain treatments. Even if drain openers could fix slow drains, you would have to buy over 10 quart bottles to get the same number of treatments. Plumb Clean costs about 35¢ per treatment. We don't know of anything that cleans drains for less.

Safety. Conventional drain openers are dangerous chemicals. They can injure eyes on contact. They can release deadly vapors, in some situations. Some, may damage your fixtures. Plumb Clean will not burn skin, or eyes. It will not release harmful fumes. When used as directed, it is 100% safe for people, and of course for all plumbing.

So, if your drains are signalling you, get safe, guaranteed Plumb Clean today! Available at:

We honor our peace-keepers

Peace spread over the Middle East last week and we all rejoice in that word.

But the men and women of our armed forces remain at risk in that turbulent region.

We will all breathe more easily when the troops come home.

Using the only technique available — the word of relatives and friends left behind — a list of those serving in Operation Desert Storm from Cohasset has been compiled.

We salute each and every one of the service people who have been part of the war effort.

We think the local service organizations, the Sons of the American Legion, the Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars have a fine window of opportunity here to come forward and plan a celebration for the returning troops.

We have found about 20 people serving in the combat area. Others have been called up for back up support. Many Cohasset residents have relatives and friends who are also involved.

These brave people have interrupted their lives. They deserve an expression of our thanks. They deserve far more ink the local service organizations, the Sons of the American Legion, the Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars have a fine window of opportunity here to come forward and plan a celebration for the returning troops.

LETTERS

Hamilton criticized

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter in response to a cartoon printed in the Feb. 28 issue of the Cohasset Mariner. In this cartoon, the artist? used no discretion on a very delicate subject, the subject being a newly proposed bylaw, in the town of Hull, to restrict waterfowl hunting in the Wier River basin, due to the formation of the Wier River Estuary Park. This proposal is trying to be worked out by sportsmen and other concerned parties in a diplomatic manner. Cartoons such as this only serve to put fuel on the fire. It is obvious by the caption written underneath the cartoon that the artist knows little or nothing about the situation here in Hull, because Mr. Hamilton, the artist, referred to the marsh as being frequently used by school children on field trips. Quite to the contrary, the marsh has not yet been used by any school children on field trips. Thus, cooperation amongst sportsman and concerned parties is essential.

In the future I wish to see Mr. Hamilton and the Mariner staff use more tact and discretion in regards to such a sensitive issue as this, and leave such biased cartoons and captions on the drawing board instead of in the public's eyes.

Arts Boosters thank all their supporters

To the Editor:

Wonderful things happen when people offer their individual talents to support the arts. Dan Leahy, General Manager of Kimball's By -the-Sea, is a most valued Arts Booster. For Cohasset High School's annual Valentine Cabaret, Dan not only feeds us a delicious meal, he takes photographs, lends us easles, and arranges for professional sound systems. Thanks to Dan for being such a gracious host, to John Capullapo of horizon Video for the mixer board , and to the Chamber of Commerce for the microphone and speakers . Joe and Anthony of Hair Imports donated the most prized raffle item- a NuSkin facial - and MC Bryan Marks protested loudly when he didn't win it!

Every year Cohasset High School music teachers Bryan Marks and Colleen Foley and art teacher Colleen Lucas present new talent to a full house. The Senior Chorus sang "Kiss the Girl" from "The Little Mermaid," while solos featured Maggie Moore, "Copacabana,"Barbara Migliaccio, "From a Distance," Ali Welz, "I Dreamed a Dream" from "Les Miserables," Meredith Hansen,, (whose mother won a facial!) "That's All I Ask of You" from "Phantom of the Opera," Carrie Cosme, "Pour On the Power," Alyson James, accompanied by Bryan Marks, "Put a Little Love in Your Heart," and show - stopping newcomer Christine Vaughn, "Always and Forever." In a surprise number, Boston Ballet Company dancers Karla Kennedy and Joanna Horn performed a dramatic duet to "Jellicle Cats" From "Cats." Flutist Catherine Andrews, Trombonist Julie Guemere, and Saxophonist Ryan Sawchuck played delightful classical solo pieces. The silent art auction included stunning silkscreens, cray-pas, pastels, ink paintings, tissue collages and jewelry from 22 student artists.

The Cohasset Boosters Club, which sponsored the Valentine Cabaret and supports all the arts events at the high school, would like to thank all the teachers, students, and local patrons of the arts for a wonderful evening. Cabaret Co-Chairmen Beth Christoffel and Anne Moore deserve special thanks for a job well done. Proceeds will benefit the high school arts programs.

Saddam Hu???

By Ken Blumberg

Who is this guy, Saddam Hussein?
Is he for real or is he insane?
On the one hand he offers peace a la carte,
With the other he's ready to tear out your heart.

Time after time he's used all his toys,
Gassing his people, the girls and the boys.
Just like Ali Baba and his forty thieves,
Watch what this man's got there up his sleeves.

Who is this guy and why should we care?
As a Kuwaiti they'll willingly share,
A tale made of terror and barbarous attack,
A peaceful people want their country back.

He never owned a weapon that he didn't use,
We couldn't let this man ever near the fuse.
In went our jets on their very first mission,
To clear out forever his deathwish of fission.

Now he's goading Israel with bomb laden scuds,
Only to lose them in firework thuds.
High over people, a flash point display,
When the wreckage comes down they just clear it away.

Our Patriot missiles are a pain in his side,
He rarely gets through though he's repeatedly tried.
How long will they take it is anyone's guess,
When they get in the fray will that be a mess.
Cause all of their pilots want to even the score,
They'll take out their missiles so they won't fly anymore.

Who is this Saddam and why are we there?
The man is a snake and we'd better beware.
He'll sit there just coiled looking real calm.
Next thing you know he'll have hold of your arm,
Passing his poison off into your veins,
Answer your own question, it doesn't take brains.

We don't want our country to become the world's cop,
But someday the world's got to say where to stop.
This man had his vision and he took what he's got,
There are things he can do and things he cannot.

By taking Kuwait a gauntlet he hurled,
His challenge was answered by the rest of the world.
Now the allies face him with planes and with tanks,
Our soldiers are ready, poised in their ranks.
We'll take back by conquest what they're saying is theirs,
Their night will be day lit by artillery flares.
They know we are coming, we've said so before,
Remember it was he who started this war.

He'll hide what remains until it's too late,
His own actions and words have just sealed his fate.
This war will continue until he steps down,
He'll settle for prison instead of a crown.

Like many a ruler he just went too far.
Leaving his people a permanent scar.
Kuwait is a nation and so is Iraq,
One has to go and the other come back.

Why should we trouble ourselves with this man?
His nature has told us he'll do what he can,
To upset the cart each new chance he gets,
To deal with a gun until his sun sets.

You've tortured our innocents with sticks and with bats,
In the friendliest of nations you've attacked diplomats.
Over time all you've done is make us all sore,
Now it's decided, we must go to war.

We asked you first nicely, then talked to the last.
Go hide in your bunkers, the time to talk's past.
Here we come shortly, get yourselves set,
You'll remember this lesson, on that you can bet.

(See page 24)

A Massachusetts survey comparing expenditures for fire departments in sixteen towns similar to Cohasset reports that Cohasset tops the list, not only with expenditures over $1,000,000, but almost $500,000 higher than the second most expensive town, Norwell.

Fit Tips

with Normandie Nigh

Dear Normandie,

I have a bad back but want to start an exercise program. What are the benefits of aerobics, if any, for lower back pain?

Gary, Cohasset.

Dear Gary,

The answer to your question depends on at least two things. First of all, the type of back problem you are experiencing. Researchers tell us that 80 percent of the American population suffer from a bad back at some time in their lives, but that only about two to four percent of those people suffer from actual disc injuries. The majority of bad backs are due to muscular problems and many physicians are now prescribing moderate exercise for a bad back rather than bed rest, which has been shown to actually worsen the condition in some cases. Your doctor should be the one to determine the reason for your problem and help you decide if exercise is the way to go.

A second consideration is the type of aerobics which you are contemplating. There are many aerobic activities which can improve your cardiovascular system, and some of these are probably very beneficial for someone experiencing back pain. Brisk walking, swimming, biking, step training, and low-impact aerobic dance seem to work for many people. I do not recommend high impact activities, such as jogging, high-impact aerobic dance, or twisting sports such as squash or racquetball. These activities place a tremendous amount of stress on the lower back and can actually aggravate the condition.

I suffered from a bad back for almost two years and the activity that helped me most was gentle stretching, with extra concentration on the hamstrings (back of the thighs), hip flexors (front of the thighs) and the lower back. Walking sometimes bothers my back, so I stop whenever necessary and stretch before I continue. Occasionally, I still have lower back pain, but it's usually when I'm dealing with a great deal of stress and don't take the time to stretch.

I strongly believe that a great number of people could improve their back conditions if they would stretch daily and strengthen their stomach and lower back muscles. If you choose to walk aerobically, bike, or swim, be sure to include stretching before and after you work out. If you decide to do aerobic dance or step training, a good class or video tape will include stretching and toning exercises. These activities are often quite helpful for people who previously thought they couldn't exercise because of their back problems. You may also benefit from aerobics, but be sure to check with your doctor before beginning.

Selectmen and town counsel owe an explanation

LETTERS

To the Editor:

On Monday (February 25) Town Counsel Richard Henderson said the Board of Selectmen would meet in executive session regarding a citizens' lawsuit against the Board of Assessors. Unless they have dropped their suits, it is my knowledge that Selectmen Jane Goedecke and Ned Tebbetts are suing the Town over what they feel are excessive property assessments. So why were Jane and Ned part of the 2/25/91 executive session during which they got to choose special counsel to represent the town in a case which they inaugurated?

What an opportunity...imagine suing someone and getting to choose their attorney.

When did Town Counsel Richard Henderson determine he would be in conflict of interest in representing the Town, and why did it take so long for him to recognize that conflict? Alternatively, while he recognized his own conflict, why did he fail to recognize that two selectmen named in the suit against the town might be in conflict in sitting in on any executive session regarding that suit?

For what reasons did the Selectmen's Executive Secretary Gregory Doyan determine that Selectmen Jane Goedecke and Ned Tebbetts would not be in conflict in sitting in on an executive session regarding a suit they had against the town, while the ears of the Cohasset Public (you and me, babe) were considered too dangerous to hear?

I feel Selectmen Jane Goedecke and Ned Tebbetts and Town Counsel owe us all an explanation. Possibly they can explain away all my fears, which are certainly well-founded. Of the six people (five selectmen and counsel) who guide our Town, half are in conflict of interest with regard to the taxpayers' case against the assessors. I'm getting a little panicky about who's representing me up there.

SENIOR CENTER NEWS

By Kathy Bryanton
Special to the Mariner

TAX TIME: Retirees can avoid quarterly tax payments

Many Retirees are eligible to have Federal Income Tax withheld from their pensions and annuities to avoid making estimated tax payments. A Retiree who chooses not to have tax withheld may have to make estimated tax payments during the tax year if not withheld from other subject to withholding. Normally, tax withheld from periodic pensions or annuity payments is based on marital status and the number of withholding allowances claimed on the withholding certificate, Form W-4P, or similar form from the payer. However, if a retiree does not give the payer a withholding certificate, the tax will be withheld as if the retiree is married, thus claiming three (3) withholding allowances.

Retirees should keep in mind that they may be subject to a penalty for underpayment of estimated taxes if an insufficient amount of withholding is taken from pensions and annuities or if estimated tax payments are not made in sufficient amounts.

More detailed information on Pension and Annuity Income, including withholding for pensions and annuities, may be found in Publications 575, Pension and Annuity Income, and 505, Tax Withholding and Estimated Tax. To obtain these publications, call the IRS Office at 1-800-TAX-FORM.

IT'S A FACT
Chiropractic Can Help
Chiropractors have a very special education and training in treating nerve-related health problems caused by spinal misalignment. Chiropractors find the areas along the spinal column where nerves may be "pinched" by a spinal vertebra. After finding the problem, the chiropractor manipulates the misaligned vertebra back toward normal. This restores normal nerve supply and function. The result is that the body heals itself with no drugs, surgery or continued discomfort.

Skippers hockey team ices a fine season's finish

Cohasset High School Hockey players Mike Noble, Kevin Mulcahy and Mike Reynolds were selected to the South Shore League Hockey All Star Team.

Mike Noble is a senior, while Kevin Mulcahy and Mike Reynolds are both underclassmen. Mulcahy is a Junior and Reynolds is a Sophomore.

At the team's breakup dinner, Noble was selected as the winner of the Barney Robinson Award. This award is given to a player that gives a continued excellent effort on the ice during the season.

James Rosano received the Norman Delaney Award for the senior that attains excellence on the ice and in the classroom.

Varsity letter winners were: Brian Donovan, Scott Varisco, Mike Noble, James Rosano, Kevin Mulcahy, Charles Shields, Mike Reynolds, Charles Smith, John Kinchla, Charles Endris and Patrick Reynolds.

Other players receiving recognition were Jeff Stone, Jeff Tosi, Matt Graves, Brian Buckley, Anthony Wigmore, Chris McKenna and Team Managers Jared Graves, Jay Nothnagel and Chris Walsh.

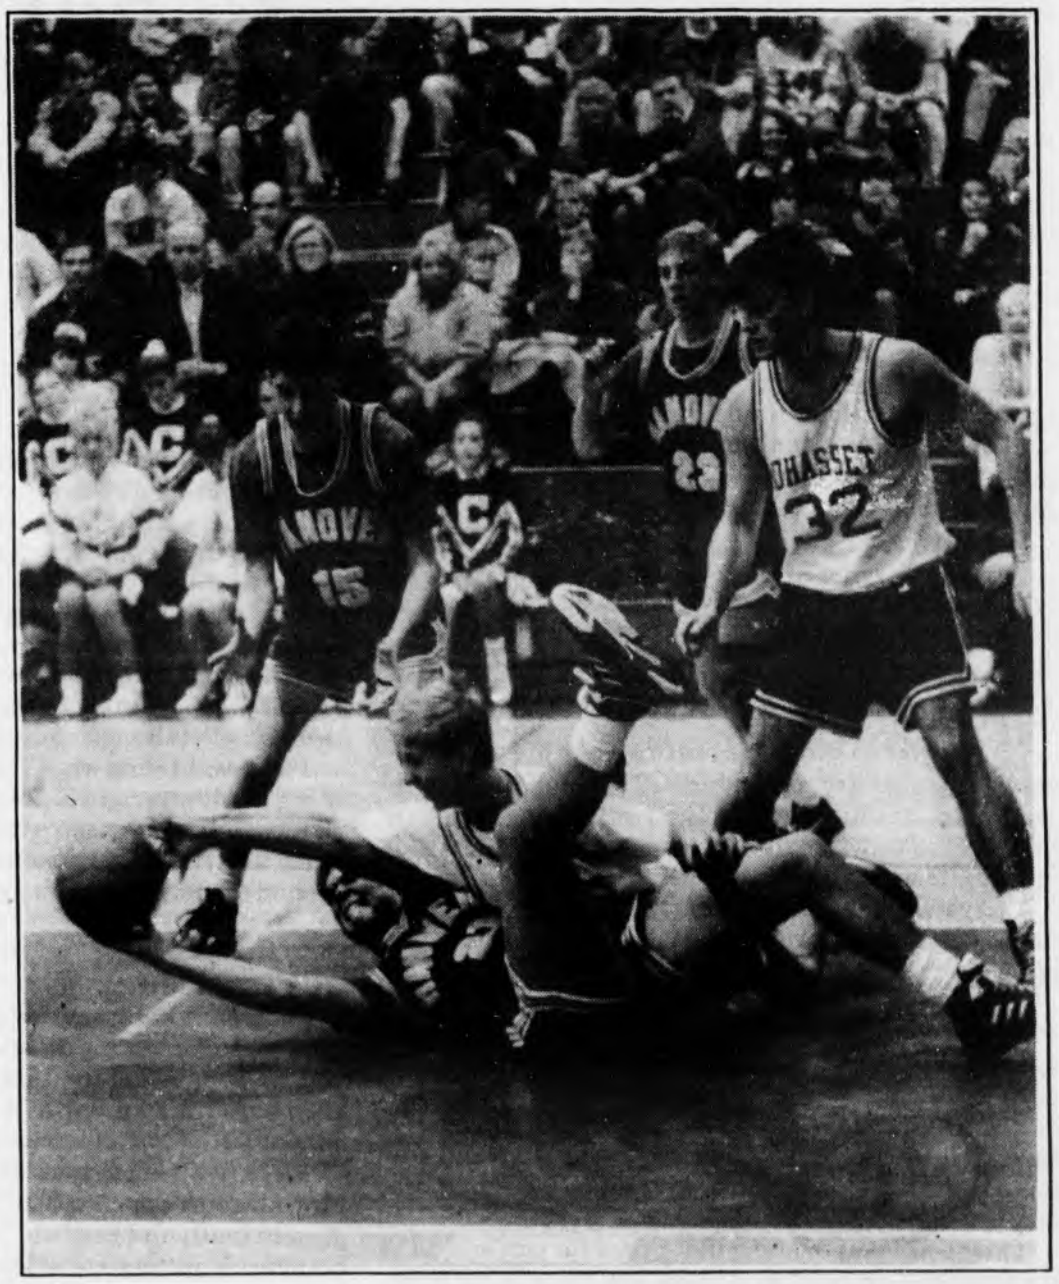
UPCOMING

All Cohasset High School students (seniors exempt) interested in playing for the Cohasset High School 1991 Spring and Summer Ice Hockey team should contact John Kinchla at 383-6851. The Cohasset team will play 20 games in the Pilgrim Arena's Spring and Summer Ice Hockey Developmental Program.

Seniors, Alumni and adult teams interested in scrimmaging the developmental team should also contact Kinchla.

FAMILY HOCKEY FUN WAS A SUCCESS

A charity exhibition hockey game between the 1990-91 Cohasset High School Hockey Team and the "Old Boys" was held at the Pilgrim Arena in Hingham on Monday, March 4, at 7:30 p.m.



The "Olds Boys" are Cohasset adults aged 35+ with a determination to support youth hockey. Donations to support the youth hockey team were accepted. The contest pitted an improving varsity hockey team against some adult players with both professional and amateur experience.

Players among the "Old Boys" included CHS Varsity Coach Dennis Walsh and Cohasset parents Kevin Lewis, Jeff Tosi, Chuck Peterson, Jay Caron, Charlie Dean, Charlie Flint, Jack Dean, Bob Morgan, Dick Bunstien, Roger Crafts, Ed Curran, Jack Noble, Ed Straughn, Bill Ketchum, Jay Monaco, Phil Smith, and Kevin O'Connor.

Fiori's Exxon on Route 3A is the sponsor of the "Tigers," the Cohasset High School team in the Pilgrim Arena's Spring/Summer Developmental Hockey program.

For more information about the team, please call John Kinchla at 383-6851. The Cohasset team will play 20 games in the Pilgrim Arena's Spring and Summer Ice Hockey Developmental program

Seniors, Alumni and adult teams interested in scrimmaging the developmental team should also contact Kinchla.

Gymnasts remain on the beam

By Donna Cogliano
Mariner Correspondent

A youthful Cohasset girls' gymnastics squad completed the winter season recently clinching two victories during a rebuilding year.

In her fifth season with the Skippers, Ruthann Sargent coached Cohasset to wins over Thayer Academy and Hanover.

It appears that the Cohasset girls combined courage and determination in the wake of injuries and roster changes. Having finished second in the South Shore League last year, Coahsset was nearly crippled by the loss of 7 gymnasts, mostly to graduation.

With four seventh graders competing on the varsity squad, Cohasset was scoring between 111 and 112 points a meet by the season's end.

Courage and dedication was ever present during the season as the Cohasset girls worked through their injuries and filled in for each other during times of illness.

One shining example of courage was Linda Hague, who made her comeback from a serious ankle injury which took place three years ago. The junior gymnast had broken her ankle in three places during a fall off the balance beam as she dismounted it during the first meet of the season.

"It was the worst break, I've seen in my life," Sargent added. The meet was delayed while Hague was transported by ambulance to a local hospital where she was admitted and treated for a few days.

After three years of healing combined with some physical therapy, Hague brought her wrapped up ankle back to the balance beam where she was a steady performer for the Skippers this season.

Another of those dedicated athletes on the gymnastics squad was junior Rebecca Hackenburg who made remarkable contributions despite being bothered by a back injury. "You could put her on any event and she could compete on that event," Sargent remarked.

"Rebecca would tell you she was fine. And after practice she couldn't walk. She'd work as hard as she could until she couldn't stand up." Sargent said.

Another gymnast who deserves some special credit and notice was all-arounder Tafana Fiore, a seventh grader who competed in four events with a broken toe. Fiore was the Most Improved in floor exercise with scores of 4.4 at the beginning of the season and a 6.35 at the end.

"She's going to be a real good gymnast," said Sargent. Fiore competes year round and in the Level 5 Compulsories along with her teammate Caroline DeLima, another seventh grader. DeLima was a strong participant in vaulting and consistently competed in two to three events for each meet.

This year's team was provided with leadership from tri-captains Erin Southerland, Noel Roma and Tara Gallagher. Roma, the sole senior on the team and Southerland, a junior were named the "Beam Queens" at the season's end. This prestigious trophy award went to the gymnasts who had the least amount of fall of the balance beam.

The award served as an incentive during each meet as the falls were counted during this difficult event. "You would not believe how much harder they tried," said Sargent.

The "Bar Queen" award went to sophomore Nicole Haefner who was the most consistent performer on the uneven parallel bars.

Voted by her teammates, Southerland, a tri-captain, received the Most Spirited and Enthusiastic trophy.

In competition at the South Shore League Gymnastics Meet at Carver, last month, Tara Gallagher brought home the third place all-around trophy for her

A GREAT BIG THANK-YOU to our HEROS

from grade 5 students at Deer Hill School

Students in the grade 5 open space taught by Lawrence Shultz and Joan Magoun at Deer Hill School recently sent letters to local military personnel serving in the Persian Gulf.

Dear Jimmy,

I don't know what you like to be called and I know you as Jimmy Smith, so I wrote that.

When I heard that the fighting was over I was so happy. I hope all the troops come home soon.

Doane Street is basically the same. Nothing has really changed since you left. But, there are yellow ribbons on just about every tree on the common.

I am 11 years old, 12 on April fourth. I am writing this for my sixth grade teacher, Mr. Shultz. Speaking of school, in almost every subject the word Middle East pops up, even in English, sometimes.

Do you still have your gray truck? I don't know why I asked that question, but I guess I'm just curious.

Well, I have to go now to do more homework. I hope you and all the other men and women come back to America soon.

Thanks,
Kathleen Fitzsimmons

P.S. Everyone here misses everyone there.
P.S.S. I hope they catch and arrest Saddam Hussein, soon.

Dear Capt.,

Thank you so much for putting your life on hold to serve your country. My name is Cara McKenney and I am in Mr. Shultz's sixth grade homeroom. Our class has been studying the Mideast crisis and I really appreciate what you guys are doing.

Did you have Mr. Shultz in sixth grade? I think that he is a good teacher with corny jokes. My favorite sports are soccer, skiing, and basketball.

There are yellow ribbons all over Cohasset and all over the country. When I went to the Celtics game against the Minnesota Timberwolves there was a flag right in the middle of all the championship banners. It said we support our troops come home soon. The Star Spangled Banner was dedicated to you guys and gals too. By the way, the Celtics won. All of the Pro Sports teams wear American flag patches.

I just want you to know that I pray for you and all of the troops every night, and I hope you come home soon.

Sincerely,
Cara McKenney

Dear Brian Curran,

My name is Natalie Cheel and I'm in sixth grade.

I'm writing this letter to thank you for fighting for our country.

I'm sure your family and loved ones are happy you are coming home.

I'm very happy the war is over, and I bet you are too.

I want to thank you a million times, but that would take up too much paper.

So thank you for putting your life on the line for our country.

Sincerely,
Natalie Cheel

Dear Stephen Winn,

How are you? I am fine. I am writing this letter to you, to thank you for all you have done. Also to tell you what's going one back here in Cohasset.

Everyone in town it seems has been watching C.N.N. for 24 hours every day (at least in my house) trying to keep up with what's going on in the Gulf. We also have been talking a lot about it in Mr. Shultz's class. I find it confusing, but now that it's mostly over I am starting to understand it a little bit more.

Do you have any idea when you will be able to come back home? I hope it's soon.

Nothing very important is going on here; well, that's what I think. It seems to be the same every day.

I think you will be receiving two other letters from two girls in my class Emily Collins, and Cara McKenney. That's if you haven't gotten them already.

Well, that is all I can think of to write about.

Sincerely,
Emily Henderson

Dear Stephen Winn,

My name is Frank Abadie. I appreciate all you people did for Kuwait. I'm sorry that some of your men got killed.

When do you think you will be back home? Do you have any children? I think Saddam Hussein is a bad guy.

I don't think he should have invaded Kuwait. But you guys showed him.

How many prisoners did you get? What did you eat and drink? Did you sleep?

Sincerely your pal,
Frank Abadie

Dear Mr. Prescott Hobson,

It's over! I can't believe it! I bet you can't either.

Hello, my name is Jessica (read up the top). Ever since August 2, 1990, I've envied everyone over there. I think what you guys are doing, oohps, I mean did, was really wonderful. I think you should be proud of yourself. As a matter-of-fact, just tonight, while we were watching the NBC Nightly News, with Tom Brokaw, my mom said that this was practically the opposite of Vietnam. In the ways that: we won!, and you gained our pride and nationalism back. You, meaning the allied forces.

My dad was in Vietnam. He's told me stories about it. Also how one of his friends died.

Right now in school (I'm in sixth grade with Mr. Shultz, he said he lives right near you), we've been watching the news, sometimes, but mostly just talking about all this.

Like when we're talking about nuclear energy and fuel, and oil in science, we'll kind of branch off of oil, into the crisis. He'll (Mr. Shultz) start talking about that oil was the beginning to this. Then we spend the next two periods talking about it.

I was wondering what you think about this? Do you think Bush was right to start a war, or wrong? So I was wondering if you would write to me, so I could read my letter to my class. I know they'd love it! Maybe, I could even meet you when you get back.

Jessica Eaton-Bruce

Dear Brian Curran,

A few months ago my C.C.D. class and I wrote to you. Thank you for writing us in return. I also want to thank you for supporting the United States. The people over here have heard a few funny stories about the Iraqi's surrendering to camera men and so forth.

Right now I am in the sixth grade in Mr. Shultz's and Mrs. Magoun's open space. I don't think I am doing too good in math and English. I understand math, but the homework quizzes are what's bringing my grade down, and in English my problem is parts of speech, but since I've asked for help I understand it much better. If you have any suggestions, please write back to me with them.

At the present moment the United States citizens love you guys. They are so proud and thankful of you troops.

I hope and pray that Suddam Hussien dies a long and painful death (which most of us do!) What he did to this world is unforgettable, so is what you wonderful soldiers did.

Even thanking you a thousand times could not reward you on the excellence you and the other guys did over there.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
Kelley O'Donnell

Dear Stephen Winn,

How are you doing? I'm fine. I heard that the war has almost ended. That's great!! You and everyone else are so brave to have fought in the war.

Sorry this letter is so late, but I've been so busy with homework. We get loaded with it. It's not too bad if you do it ahead of time.

Are you excited to come home? I bet you are.

Did you live on 404 South Main Street? Mrs. Magoun said that you lived somewhere around there. My dad said that he thought you lived there too. Well, anyway my cousin lives there now.

In Concert Choir I'm singing in a concert called, Oxfam America. We are going to sing on March 10.

Everyone I know is so proud of each and everyone for fighting in the war.

I liked the letter you sent me. I thought the paper you wrote on was very neat. That was really kind of you to send a letter back to me.

Oh, by the way the concert in Boston was a great success. Not to brag or anything, but we were the best group.

Hope you come home soon.

Sincerely,
Emily Collins

P.S. Do you have a brother named Paul? If you do my parents met him in Jamaica!

Dear Captain Stephen Winn,

I am writing this letter to you because I want to thank you for fighting in that terrible crisis.

There were so many different names for this war, such as: Crisis In The Middle East, War In The Gulf, Operation Desert Storm, Crisis In The Gulf, and some others I can't think of right now.

I'm sure you know Emily Collins, she writes to you all the time.

I would like to be in the army someday, although I have Asthma, so I doubt I could. On the commercials about the Army they show that it is hard, but it also looks fun. If I could go to the Army I would love it because then I would be doing many things for my country and that is mostly what I want to achieve in life. If you every have a chance please write to me and tell me what it is like to be in the Army, or the Air Force, and also tell me what it is or was like to win a war and be considered a hero to most people. I have to say that by the results of the war it seems that the United States has a very powerful, strong and most of all brave force, and I want to thank you very much for your braveness.

Sincerely,
Courtney Goff

P.S. And remember be, all that you can be!

Dear Sgt. Lawrence Hoogeveen,

My name is Ely Kahn and I'm twelve years old. I'm in Mr. Shultz's sixth grade homeroom.

I wanted to say to you congratulations for defeating the Iraqi army and liberating Kuwait. You are very brave to be defending Kuwait and putting your life in danger to make sure justice prevails.

I am proud to know that ruthless leaders will think twice before invading a country because of you and the other men and women of 28 nations.

Come home safe and sound!

Best Wishes,
Ely Kahn

Dear Sgt. Hoogeveen,

My name is Bobby Meehan. I am 11 years old.

I live in Cohasset, MA on Jerusalem Road. I am in sixth grade. I am in Mr. Shultz's and Mrs. Magoun's class. Thank you for liberating Kuwait. Hope you did not get hurt. I am glad this conflict is over.

It has snowed a lot. I have heard it could get really hot in Saudi Arabia. When you get home I bet you'll want to take a swim at Sandy Beach. Also go to the pool.

Did you hear about the Iraqi-born American who went to visit his grandmother in Iraq? When he was there they drafted him. An American tank was driving along when this guy in a tee-shirt and jams pops out of a fox hole. It turns out he was from Chicago. He said to the soldier who was there "what took you so long."

Did you have to go out in the battle field? Do you drive a tank or something?

I go to Deer Hill School. The sixth graders do a Science Fair. I am doing Hovercrafts and Hydrofoils. Also in English we have a writing contest. I won second place.

I like to play soccer, but I like to play goalie. I think I am pretty good.

In school my favorite subject is math. Hope to see you home soon.

Your friend,
Bobby Meehan

'Summer Arts at Derby' set

Twenty professional artist/teachers are making plans for an exciting five-week session at "Summer Arts at Derby" in Hingham. Student registration is well underway, and staff members are planning a variety of courses.

"Summer Arts at Derby" is a five-week comprehensive arts program for ages eight to fifteen, that allows students to explore a myriad of performing and visual arts. The staff includes professional musicians, actors, photographers, painters, sculptors, filmmakers, dancers, and writers. The program also includes gymnastics, sports, cooking, woodworking, and computers. Students have the unique opportunity of choosing their own schedules from fifty offerings. Guest artists will visit for special workshops. Each day a noontime performance period allows students and staff to share their talents. A newspaper is printed daily, and a full-scale musical production is mounted.

Some of the artists are from the South Shore area. Ruthann Sargent will be teaching gymnastics courses. Ruthann teaches in Scituate, and coaches the girls' gymnastics team at Cohasset High School. Tina Simonetta of Plymouth will be teaching dance. Her credits include work with the Berkshire Opera Company, the Berkshire Ballet, Seventeen Magazine, and a commercial for MacDonald's. Robert Allwarden, an acoustic guitarist, will head the Music Department. At Derby Academy during the year, Robert also teaches at the South Shore Conservatory and performs at area clubs. Visual artist Nancie Beasley will head the Visual Arts Department. Nancie is a painter, sculptor, and mask and puppet-maker.

Other artists come from the Boston area and from as far away as New York City, Virginia, and California. Lisa Troy of Boston is an actress and director, currently appearing in Grease at the Nickerson Theatre. Jim Quinn is an actor and director, versed in Shakespeare, Improvisation, and Musical Comedy. Animation teacher Anne Hayes comes to the program from New York City. Anne has worked for ABC's 20/20 and as a documentary filmmaker. Susan Weinberg, head of the Writing Department, is a Stegnar Fellow at Stanford University in California. A playwright, novelist, and poet, Susan recently completed a novel. Virginia painter Bill Sullivan has exhibited in over thirty galleries nationally and internationally.

Other artists include California printmaker Kate Sheehan, musician Helen Mannix from Boston, and many guest artists. Several assistant teachers will also be on hand.

The program culminates in an Arts Festival on July 26, at which students demonstrate their talents through theatre, music, and dance performances, art exhibitors, a gymnastics show, and showings of original films.

The dates of "Summer Arts at Derby" are June 24 to July 26. Hours are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.; enrollment is limited. Students from at least fifteen different communities attend the program. For brochures and applications, or information about financial aid, call Thalia McMillion at 740-4766.

Slide lecture at SSAC

The South Shore Art Center, in collaboration with Massachusetts College of Art, will present a slide lecture on Seeing Through 'Paradise': Artists and the Terezin Concentration Camp, on Thursday, March 21 at 10:30 a.m., 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset.

Seeing Through 'Paradise' is a collection of over 200 paintings and drawings by various artists who were imprisoned at the Terezin Concentration Camp in Czechoslovakia from 1941 to 1945. The exhibit, never before seen in the United States, will be on display at the Mass. College of Art's gallery, located at 625 Huntington Avenue, from March 6 through May 4.

The college's art curator will deliver a lecture on the exhibit, complemented by slides, at the Art Center on March 21. Lecture tickets are $8 and will benefit both SSAC and Mass. College of Art. To reserve tickets, call the Art Center at 383-9548.

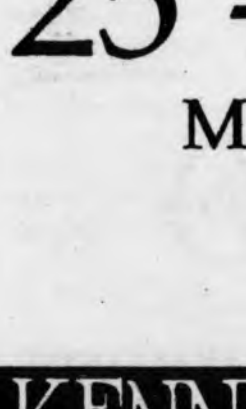
The Art Center will also sponsor a guided tour of the exhibit at the College on April 4, for which a box lunch and bus transportation will be provided. The box lunch will begin at 11:30 a.m. at the Art Center with the bus leaving at 12:30 p.m. and returning from Boston by 4 p.m. Total cost for the lunch, bus and tour is $20.

Terezin, a fortress town located 40 kilometers north of Praque, was taken over by the Nazis in 1941 to be used as a transit camp for Jews. While tens of thousands died there, the camp did give its famous musicians, poets, composers, and painters limited creative freedom.

Helga Weissova Hoskova was imprisoned at Terezin at the age of 12. Artistically inclined, her father told her to draw what she saw. Her drawings offer one of the most accurate records of camp activities.

Also in the exhibit are Bedrich Fritta, well known for his caricatures; Karel Fleischmann, a doctor who also painted and founded an avant-garde artists group in South Bohemia before he died in the gas chambers of Auschwitz; and Kurt Gerron, a prominent actor known to American audiences for his role in The Blue Angel, also starring Marlene Deitrich.

For more information on the slide lecture and/or the guided tour, call the Art Center at 383-9548.



Flag cleaning at Dependable

C. Fredrick Fawcett, president of Dependable Cleaners, reminded customers of the company's policy of cleaning American flags free of charge.

According to Fawcett the offer is not new to the company. "My father, (the late Donald C. Fawcett, Sr., founder of the company), never charged anyone for cleaning their flag and we've never changed that policy," Fawcett said, adding the company has cleaned several thousand flags over the years.

Dependable Cleaners has been listing the policy in their latest newspaper ads under the theme Project Welcome Home.

Dependable Cleaners will accept American flags for free cleaning in any of its thirteen locations.

An American Heart Association Certificate is awarded upon completion. The cost of this course is $20.

The Center also offers a course in Pediatric CPR given by Dr. Equi and Ms. Farrag on Wednesday and Thursday, April 3 and 4, from 7 to 11 p.m. at a cost of $35. This course covers the hazards to which children may be exposed, how to make the environment safe, and basic rescue techniques such as CPR and alleviating airway obstructions for infants and children. This course teaches procedures for both infants and children. For further information or to register, please call Judy Volungis at 383-0088.

'Listening To God' film series

The Second Congregational Church is presenting a film series, "Listening To God" this Sunday, March 10, and continuing March 17 and 24. The series will be shown at 7:30 p.m. in Bates Hall. After each showing, the Reverend Gary Ritts will lead a discussion.

The film series, "Listening To God," is based on the assumption that most of us, whether we belong to a church or not, listen for God, especially in times of crisis.

Sunday's film will be "Rachel and Her Children," which deals with homelessness. "The Rich Brother" will be shown March 17. This film examines the meaning of success and casts new light on the old question: "Am I my brother's keeper?" The power of faith will be the topic March 24 with "A Visit to Morin."

For further information, please contact the Second Congregational Church at 383-0345.

This film series is free and open to the public.

Divorce and money

The financial aspects of divorce are not well known nor easily understood. This important topic will be the subject of discussion on the cable TV show "McNamara on Money", which will air on Channel 53 on Wednesday, March 13, at 8 p.m. Michael J. McNamara will interview Attorney Neal Brown on the subject. The fourth show in this series will be entitled "The Final Agreement".

McNamara is also looking for people who would be interested in being in the audience for this series. There will be a question and answer period on several shows, and the audience will have an opportunity to question an attorney, an accountant, and a financial planner. Watch the first show for more details or call McNamara Financial Services at 383-2927 for more information.

'Beyond Hope' on cable

On four successive Sunday evenings, March 17, 24, 31 and April 7, from 8:30 to 9 p.m. viewers may see and hear a talk by Mario Tosto of St. Paul, Minnesota, on Continental Cable stations, Channel 53. He will speak on the subject "Beyond Hope," telling his own and other experiences of finding practical solutions through prayer to human problems that seemed to be "beyond hope." The broadcasts may be seen in Norwell, Hanover, Scituate, Cohasset, Hingham and Hull.

Tosto was a writer/producer in the advertising industry for 19 years before becoming a practitioner and teacher of Christian Science.

Cable schedule

CHANNEL 53
TUESDAY, MARCH 12

6 p.m. Children's Corner: Bob Detwiler reads the newly illustrated classic Tom Thumb, Daniel San Souci's North Country Night and the very humorous Thomas Snowsuit.

8 p.m. Bob Detwiler's Journal: "South Shore Natural Science Center." Its Executive Director since last summer, Barbara Easterday talks about how the Science Center serves the community and her vision of its future. Although the mission of this well-known Norwell-based institution remains unchanged since its founding in 1962, how it will serve the community is in the process of being revised.

CHANNEL 53
TUESDAY, MARCH 19

6 p.m. Children's Corner: Bob Detwiler reads Gone Lobstering by Scituate summer resident Jerry Pollotta. Seldom have illustrations in a children's book been more vividly presented. Also featured are My Father Always Embarrasses Me and The Very Best of Friends.

8:30 p.m. Bob Detwiler's Journal: "Importance of the Arts Based Curriculum" will be the first of two programs dedicated to a discussion of this vital topic. Hingham's Eric Oddleifson, president of "The Center For Arts in the Basic Curriculum," joined by Miriam Kronisch, principal, and Annette Dersarkesian, music teacher and curriculum facilitator of the Eliot Elementary School in Needham, talk about the significant educational advantages of this curriculum orientation. There is little doubt that our educational system, nationally and locally, is under seige, threatened with being disassembled in the face of budgetary pressures and public indifference. The "arts" are often the first to feel budget cuts, but it may be the "arts" are the most essential component of the curriculum, providing students with a unique opportunity for self expression, high self-esteem, sense of discipline, creativity, etc. Tune into hear why our guests think the "arts" are key to a meaningful curriculum.

Recreation registrations set

The Cohasset Recreation Department will begin registrations during March for a number of Spring Children's Programs scheduled to begin the week of April 22. These programs are available due to the expanded use of our Revolving Account Fund last month. Program schedule is as follows and details will be available during March:

Mondays—Grades k-3—Soccer clinic, after school, 5 p.m., Osgood School Field.

Tuesdays—Grades 4-6—Soccer clinic, after school, 5 p.m., Deer Hill School Field.

Wednesdays—Grades k-3—Sports and Games, after school, 5 p.m., Osgood School Field.

Thursdays—Grades 4-6—Sports and Games, after school, 5 p.m., Deer Hill School Field.

Saturdays—Grades k-3—Sports and Games, 9 to 11 a.m.

Grades 4-6, Sports and Games, 12 to 2 p.m., Osgood School Field.

Each program will be eight weeks in duration and the fee structure will be approximately $20-$25 for the eight weeks and discounts for second and subsequent children will be available as well as fee reductions/waivers upon request. The programs will be conducted by Cohasset Recreation Department Staff members. Registration details will be forthcoming soon. The concept of the above programs are to provide youngsters the opportunity and benefits incumbent upon structured activities, games and sports. While soccer clinics will consist of instruction, an emphasis will also be placed on play, affording children more "hands on" experience, exercise and fun. Low-organized games and sports will be provided for children simply for fun and exercise within a structured environment.

efforts. According to coach Sargent, Gallagher coming off a heel injury had also been sick near the end of the season. According to Sargent, Tara got her strength back at the end of the season. It was her all-around personal best with a score of 31.55. "She looked her best all season," said Sargent.

Other spectacular places for Cohasset at the South Shore League Meet were a fifth place finish by Noel Roma on the uneven parallel bars and and seventh place performance by freshman Marnie DeMichelle on balance beam.

Other members of the team who earned varsity letters this year were seventh graders Megan McNamara and Megan Fahey along with freshman Amy Mitchell. McNamara showed considerable improvement on the uneven parallel bars increasing her scores from 4.0 to 5.0.

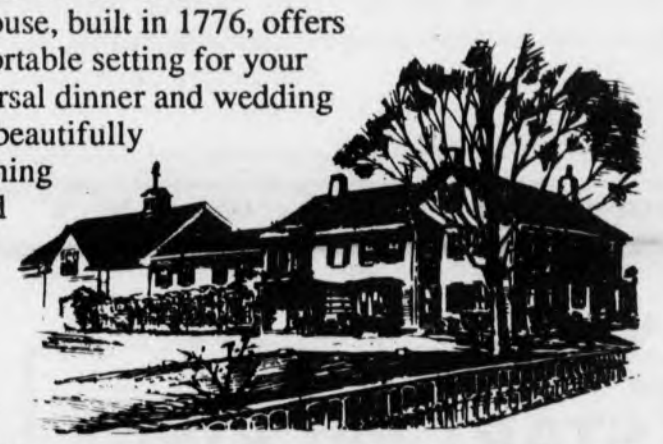
Fahey, a very likeable personality on the team, was a steady performer in vaulting and on the balance beam. "You love having her around," said Sargent. Mitchell competed mostly on bars and beam with some routines in floor exercise.

"She made some real good progress on floor exercise going from 4.3 to 5.75," said Sargent.

This was a season plagued with hardship, accorinding to Sargent and as a result the seventh graders were able to fill in and get a lot of experience. Sargents only wish was that she could have had a meet and have had the entire roster available for action. If so, the team surely would have scored up around 116 by the end of the season, Sargent suggested.

"I think in a couple of years, we're going to spring back again," said Sargent.

Katie McNamara, a senior, was the team's manager this year and participated in all the meets with scoring and announcing. She also earned a varsity letter for her valuable contributions.



Tara Gallagher balances with precision.

Coalition fights planned cut in local aid

out what the situation really is."

O'Brien said she has always supported local aid but is not hopeful that the Governor can be convinced to change his mind about the cuts.

Robert George, Rockland School Committeeman, said, "I'd like my town to survive not just succeed." He said Rockland would be devastated by aid cuts in part because of a large number of foster children in the schools. He said the state is talking about cutting off the reimbursement to the town.

Rockland, he said later, depends on state aid for 36 percent of its budget. "These cuts will hurt Norwell, but they'll devastate Rockland.

O'Brien agreed and said there are many problems like that with the proposed cuts. She added that there is also talk of transferring 10 percent of the teachers' pension costs to the towns.

SHUT DOWN

Creedon said "Weld promises he'll shut down state government unless we deal with the issues. I'm sure Weld would like to do the right thing. The problem is we don't agree on what the right thing is."

O'Brien said "there are no simplistic answers to complex problems."

Rep. Paul Haley from Weymouth talked about the South Weymouth Naval Air Station, which is off the closing list for now. He said that was a problem his town deals with among others. He added that the town is also considering a Boston Edison proposal to pit an energy plant at the old Edgar site, which could create jobs and add revenue. "We're also very concerned about the health and environmental risks," he said, adding that Edison was talking about a long term contract with natural gas. "That's probably the cleanest burning fuel there is."

There is another meeting of local officials on the subject of local aid March 7 in Rockland at Days Inn at 7:30 p.m.

Norwell Selectman David Turner urged the town to join the law suit he is now formulating for Brookline. He said that public education, public safety and emergency medical services will be impaired if state aid is cut.

He said towns have been making hard choices for years. "We're limited. We have to balance our budgets. The state budget hasn't balanced in the past seven years."

Override election set for May 18

"If the people vote for this override at the town election, that would make the Town meeting totally irrelevant," she said.

Selectman Diana Kornet agreed, "If this override figure is set at the town election, it would negate the town meeting as an appropriating body."

"The voters need to be informed as to what we will lose if we don't pass this override. I don't see any level services in this budget. There is an issue here of level services versus level funding. There is no way we can vote on this tonight." Goedecke said.

"I am upset with the bottom line, there are contracts that have not been settled, we do not have the whole picture, and we can not decide without more information."

"The town meeting is where appropriation of this sort are to be voted upon, the ballot is taking away that process," said Susan McNamara of the League of Woman Voters.

"We have met with Jeanette Murray on this very issue. The town meeting is the legal governing body. If the override budget is voted on before the town meeting it would totally undermine the authority of the legal governing body," McNamara said.

It was Goedecke who proposed the selectmen change the date for the override ballot questions.

Police show decrease in crime

Male assault and battery calls increased, as did the resulting arrests.

He noted that the increase was marginal; only three arrests were made in 1990.

Reports of assault and battery went up from from one call last year to three calls this year.

Only one arrest was made for disturbing the peace.

Disorderly conduct calls netted three arrests in 1990.

Protective custody arrests showed the most significant increase, rising more than 21 percent.

The number of motor vehicle calls also increased this year.

The report said that 177 motor vehicle accidents were reported in 1990, an increase of nearly 28 percent. Eighty-four additional traffic citations were issued during the year.

While the number of special details increased 22 percent last year; the number of official complaints to the station dropped 5 percent.

The decrease in calls did not effect mileage for department vehicles. Official vehicles logged more than 8,000 miles over last year.

Norfolk county government shaped by gerrymander

By Robert D. Hall, Jr.
Norfolk County Treasurer

Last year, in talking to the voters while on the campaign trail for the office of County Treasurer, I was surprised at how little people knew about the County. And, until I decided to be a candidate, I must confess that I had sketchy knowledge about county government. Now that I'm in office on a full-time basis, I'm still learning. Some good things...some not so good things!

I hope to share with you some of the details I am discovering and, I hope, give you more insight into this old-fashioned...but still active...form of government that has some effect on every person who lives here.

What cities and towns make up Norfolk County...and why?...Back in 1812, Massachusetts' Governor Gerry, decided to carve the cities and towns in the Commonwealth into solid voting blocks for the Democratic-Republican Party. This he did by moving them into 14 reshaped electoral districts. Essex County was so oddly profiled by Gerry's manipulation that the famous painter Gilbert Stuart happened upon a sketch of the new configuration and, to his artist's eye, it looked like a salamander. So, he sketched in a head, wings, and claws and created a "gerrymander."

Norfolk County was even stranger in shape and it appears Stuart could make nothing interesting out of it because Gerry had disconnected two towns from the main body. Cohasset on the Atlantic shore and Brookline between Boston and Newton became part of Norfolk County so their Democratic-Republican voting block could be used to offset any dissenting votes from the other towns in the county. In recent years, the Democrat party holds sway in Quincy, Braintree, Brookline, Randolph, Milton, and Weymouth and they had the strength to overwhelm the Republican votes cast in their communities and in the other twenty-three towns. Then, in 1990, the two incumbent county Democrats (commissioner and treasurer) were defeated by the overwhelming majority of votes cast for the Republican contenders in the twenty-two other towns.

Today, in total, there are 28 communities in Norfolk County. The one city is Quincy and the 27 towns (in alphabetical order) are: Avon, Bellingham, Braintree, Brookline, Canton, Cohasset, Dedham, Dover, Foxborough, Franklin, Holbrook, Medfield, Medway, Millis, Milton, Needham, Norfolk, Norwood, Plainville, Randolph, Sharon, Stoughton, Walpole, Wellesley, Westwood, Weymouth, and Wrentham.

And, before they were incorporated into Boston during the last half of the 19th century, Hyde Park, Roxbury, and West Roxbury also were part of Norfolk County.

I'll bet there isn't one reader in 1,000 who could have named the city and towns that make up Norfolk County today.

Did you know...that Norfolk County has a dog catcher? There are good reasons that the county has one...but there are lots of questions as to whether the county should continue to have one.

The county dog catcher dates back to the 1700s when few if any towns had their own dog catchers. In those days rabid dogs were common and there were packs running free over the highways and byways of the county and attacking livestock and biting people. So, the county paid fees to dog catchers to travel throughout the county ridding it of the pesky varmints. And, in those days, they also had shrieves to round up stray pigs and cattle.

Today, most towns in Norfolk County have their own dog catchers (animal officers) but any community can call upon the county dog officer whenever his services might be needed...whether it is to help round up a pack of stray dogs, or to inspect a kennel for cleanliness and humane treatment of the animals, or to fill in for a week or two while a town dog catcher is away on vacation. But, in 1991, with the ever-tightening financial noose around the county, and since most towns have leash laws, the county dog officer may become a thing of the past...as have the county shrieves of colonial times whose duty was to catch runaway pigs.

Saddam Hu??

Your lives will be filled with storms and with calms,
We're coming at you with big, nasty bombs.
And when Iraq's flattened and all you know's gone,
You'll know that this country wasn't spinning a yarn.

We'll deal you destruction, until Kuwait you release.
Until you do this you'll never know peace.
Your boasting has rubbed all our nerves raw,
On this we won't settle, won't wait for a draw.

We'll finish the job we started, on that you can depend,
We'll fight your form of tyranny until the bitter end.
There won't be a place you can hide on the land,
You'll die there for nothing, alone in the sand.

What is hidden from sight will someday be found,
Cause some day you gotta show your face above ground.
You're up against our navy, army and marines,
Working like clockwork behind hidden screens.

You'll never know what hits you from land, sea or air,
We won't stop the fighting till you get outta there.
Our soldiers are fearless, made from red, white and blue,
Hunker down you Iraqis, we're coming in for you.

And when we're in motion will that be a sight,
You'll be looking at doomsday in the day and at night.
Your skies will be filled with lights and with jets,
If you think you are winning, hold on to your bets.
Whatever your losses, they won't really matter,
As long as Saddam's head winds up on a platter.

Ambulance bids still on hold

Selectmen took a second look at the bids for a private ambulance service. The picture remained dismal.

Only two companies submitted bids in response to Cohasset's bid specifications. Neither bid met the specifications.

According to Executive Secretary Greg Doyon, Town Counsel Richard Henderson has been asked whether the town can award the bid under the circumstances.

Chaulk Ambulance submitted a bid ranging from $177,908 to $277,608, depending on the options. Brewster Ambulance said they would charge $339,375 to $396,576.

The specifications were carefully drawn to replicate the existing town ambulance service, according to Doyon.

He said both vendors took exception to several items in the specifications. They also insisted on basing their bids on their "usual and customary rate" for transport rather than the town ambulance rates.

Neither included a breakdown of those rates with the bid package. When Doyon requested the information, Brewster Ambulance faxed a reply stating they charged a basic fee of $190 plus $9.50 per loaded mile. Chaulk refused to supply the information, claiming it would put them at a competitive disadvantage.

Selectmen were not impressed by Chaulk's position.

"That is appalling to me," Selectman Diana Kornet said. "We're discussing committing the town to a private service."

Correction

It was incorrectly reported in the Cohasset Mariner last week that State Sen. Robert Hedlund, R-Weymouth, is a hard man to find.

While it is true that he cancelled his appointment with Cohasset selectmen on Feb. 25, he was in neighboring Hull that very evening.

He said he met with the Hull Selectmen to discuss the transfer of the MDC beaches to the town "because it was a timely matter."

That same day Sen. Hedlund spent time meeting with residents and officials in Duxbury, Marshfield and Scituate.

A meeting with Scituate Selectmen mentioned in the Mariner as being cancelled was never actually on his schedule, the senator said.

"Their (the Scituate Selectmen's) office was supposed to get back to me. It was never confirmed. At that exact time I was speaking to the South Shore Labor Council."

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Malone promoted to assistant treasurer

M. Patricia Malone of Scituate has been promoted to Assistant Treasurer of Cohasset Savings Bank, a community thrift institution with offices in Cohasset and North Scituate.

Malone has been associated with Cohasset Savings since 1981, and for the past two years has been the Bank's Compliance Officer, overseeing compliance with 12 aspects of banking rules and regulations. In 1987, she was involved in the documentary procedures of the Bank's conversion from a mutual to a stock form of organization.

Malone earned a bachelor's degree in accounting from Regis College and a master's degree in education from Boston College. Prior to her marriage to Edward G. Malone, now a retired social studies teacher, she was an accounting professor at Cardinal Cushing College in Brockton. She has completed courses at the American Institute of Banking and the Harvard University Graduate School of Design.

The Malones are parents of eight children and have lived for 30 years in Scituate, where Mrs. Malone's community service activities have included membership on the Scituate Fair Housing Committee, participation in Girl Scouts, Little League and Pop Warner League.

M. Patricia Malone

6 cent dividend declared

The board of directors of Cohasset Savings Bank recently declared a quarterly dividend of $.06 per share, payable April 1 to stockholders of record March 15.

This continues the dividend rate that has prevailed since 1989 and is the 13th cash dividend paid since the bank converted to stock form in 1987. The bank has 1,002,978 shares outstanding.

Cohasset Savings Bank is a 145-year-old community thrift institution serving a popular residential area of Massachusetts' South Shore.

Total assets at December 31, 1990 were $65,775,000 and stockholders' equity was $11,444,000 at that date.

Pratt Library enters the computer age

By Joseph Mont
Mariner staff

Librarians at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library can boost their inventory from 50,000 books to more than 2 million by simply turning on a computer.

The library is now part of a computerized cooperative that pools the resources of 21 Massachusetts libraries.

According to Richard Hayes, the library's director, each member of the coalition is part of a computer link-up that gives librarians and patrons access to card catalogs throughout the entire system at the touch of a button.

The network connects public libraries from the towns all over Massachusetts, including Quincy, Milton, most of the South Shore coast up to Plymouth, and as far inland as Walpole.

Hayes said that the library is currently in the process of data entry, a labor intensive phase where all of its card catalog information is transferred into the computer network. He said that nearly half of the task is complete; he expects the library's full inventory to be processed by the fall.

Hayes said that the cost of the data entry, which uses library staff and no outside help, could be estimated at nearly $20,000. Annual membership in the cooperative is $9,000.

He admits that some might find such costs unreasonable in a time of tightening municipal belts.

"It looks expensive, but to get a real perspective on the cost you have to figure out the old cost of service," he said, explaining that with the new system sorting and shelving books will be easier and take less time.

Hayes said that the system is "easy enough so that any student can catch on to it" and that it "greatly increases service to the public."

He said that patrons can search the network for whatever books they need. A request is then placed with the librarian

Private ambulance dumped, firefighters remain

By Donna Cogliano
Mariner correspondent

Cohasset selectmen voted Monday to reject two bids from private ambulance services being considered to replace the service supplied by the town's fire department.

At the same meeting a bid to allow the fire chief's contract to expire failed by a 2-3 vote.

The motion made by Selectman Martha Gjesteby failed. Fire Chief Daniel Brock has a contract that expires Dec. 31. It requires selectmen notify him by July 1 if it will not berenewed.

Eliminating the fire ambulance is one of the few ways selectmen have of reducing the fire budget. The firefighters contract requires minimum manning levels for equipment operation.

There are five firefighters — including a dispatcher — on a shift.

Selectman Jane Goedecke said she favors raising the ambulance fees and increasing the fire department's use of call firefighters rather than switching to private service.

In a letter to the board, Roy Fitzsimmons, chairman of the Committee to Survey the Structure and Function of Town Government, wrote that a private ambulance service or regionalization may lead to a savings to the taxpayers of Cohasset while maintaining or improving the level of service.

Gjesteby said, "I personally have not heard any complaints on the quality of the ambulance. I don't think anybody should construe that there is any problem."

Only two private ambulance companies submitted bids on the service and neither bid meets the bid specifications.

Chaulk Ambulance submitted a bid that ranged from $177,908 to $227,608 depending on the options. Brewster Ambulance said they would charge $339,375 to $396575.

Selectman Diana Kornet said an ambulance change

Sen. Hedlund pokes at Democratic system

By Patricia Desmond
Mariner staff

Sen. Robert Hedlund doesn't have much to complain about these days.

"The inmates are running the asylum up there," he told the Cohasset Rotary Monday night as he described his first few months in the State House.

He can eat at taxpayers expense in palatial style on the nights the Legislature meets in the evening. (Sen. William Bulger ordered the catered food for the senators, Hedlund explained.)

Besides the food, he has a heating parking space in downtown Boston.

He has a staff of three workers.

There are days when his legislative work doesn't begin until 3 or 4 in the afternoon.

He has a Senate ID card that one of his colleagues says will keep him from being ticketted

But those percs of the job just aren't what Hedlund is looking for.

Maybe he doesn't have a lot to complain about, but Hedlund is a man upset with the way the system is operating.

He did a standup comedy routine on the state of our government at Rotary Hall. In fact if he hadn't been dealing with real stories of the state legislature, his speech would have won wild applause.

Sen. Hedlund, the Republican from Weymouth, earned his laughs at the expense of the Democrats in power.

He talked about the fact that the new governor's people can't find out how many state employees in the human services field earn more than $45,000 a year.

(Incidentally, the state senate pays $30,000 a year. Some senate staffers earn more than the senators.)

The Rotarians enjoyed the humor but more than one of those in the hall wanted to see some action taken to change the existing system.

Workmen's Compensation insurance with its skyrockeying premiums was one item the group asked about.

Hedlund pointed out that he serves on the joint Committee on Commerce and Labor. However, he said

Polly Logan looks at a good & busy life

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

With a Republican in the White House, her candidate ruling the roost from the governor's office on Beacon Hill and the Celtics and Bruins on top of their game, life is copacetic for the woman generally tagged "Mrs. Republican" in these parts. Things are going so well Polly Logan almost dares hope the Red Sox will not break her heart in the fall.

Logan's phone rings constantly. Everybody wants a piece of her time and talents to get their candidate elected or their issue promoted. And Logan exemplifies the adage that all politics is local - although she has hobnobbed with presidents, she will work just as hard on the Cohasset planning board race.

If you wondered how Polly Logan got from Iowa to Cohasset to national prominence, you need only go as far as the public library. Logan was featured in a 1988 issue of Yankee magazine. Even Cabot, her lumbering hunk of Newfoundland, got prominent coverage in the article that traces Logan's ascendancy from her Iowa childhood through her assessment of the Reagan presidency and the Bush campaign.

Logan's most recent venture into the political arena occurred at Cohasset High School where she encouraged seniors to register to vote as soon as they are old enough. It troubles her that Americans, particularly young women, take the right to vote so cavalierly.

She speculates that many young women do not know how far they have come and how hard the road was for those who led the way. She told the students about the Montana woman who ran for Congress in 1916 - then added that it was before women even had the right to vote.

"I told them forget about New Hampshire, it should be 'As Montana goes, so goes the nation,' Logan said.

And she wonders if they understand how seriously local politics can affect their entire life. Logan tries to make the connections real. She told the students how a school override vote could have cost a Hingham

COHASSET'S WEEK

McNamara represents town

The League of Women Voters of Hingham was among 80 local Leagues that attended an annual gathering of state League members known as "Day on the Hill."

Representing Cohasset was Sue McNamara, a Cohasset member of the Hingham League.

She met with Senator Robert Hedlund and Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray to determine realistic goals for the newly elected legislature.

The League supports the loosening of Proposition 2 1/2, the removal of fixed costs such as pensions and debt service from the levy limit, raising MBTA fares, and extending the sales tax to services. The League also supports the Governor's use of his authority to reorganize the executive branch to achieve greater efficiencies in government.

The League of Women Voters recognizes the necessity for the state to reduce expenditures but it urged its elected officials to do so in ways which will minimize the impact on critical services to the truly needy. The League, as a political multi-issue organization, advocates for programs in social policy, the environment and government.

Gjesteby seeks housing $

The National Association of Regional Councils (NARC) recently endorsed a resolution urging Congress to appropriate full funding for the implementation of the Cranston-Gonzales National Affordable Housing Act. MAPC Treasurer Martha Gjesteby proposed the motion, which was also endorsed by the Metropolitan Area Planning Council Executive Committee on Feb. 20.

The new law includes both rental and ownership housing, emphasizing rehabilitation over new construction and targeting funds toward those with the greatest need. It establishes a system to allocate funds to states and "participating jurisdictions," including multi-community consortia, and it sets out provisions to preserve older subsidized rental housing facing the end of its affordability restrictions.

Gjesteby is a member of NARC's human services subcommittee. She traveled to Washington with the MAPC officers and MAPC Executive Director David C. Soule to attend NARC's annual Washington Policy Conference. Gjesteby represents Cohasset on the MAPC.

Sohier Street speed limit

Motorists beware as you travel Sohier Street. Plans are in motion to establish a new speed limit of 30 miles per hour as voted 4-1 by Cohasset selectmen on Monday.

Following the board's vote, the state will be petitioned to finalize the speed change for the road which houses two schools.

Selectman Diana Kornet clearly stated her opposition to the proposal of 30 MPH saying that the average range of speeds were between 44 and 47 MPH on that road.

Jackie Gardner, Red Cross official, left, gives a flag to the town in honor of Red Cross month. Accepting her gift are from left: Noel Ripley, veterans' agent, Rocco Laugelle, chairman of the selectmen, Greg Doyon, selectmen's secretary, and Shirley Cibelli, co-chairman of the local blood drive effort.

"I'm not saying that's right. I'd be much more in favor of 35," she said.

"We're all aware of the hills. We want to slow down. I think 30 miles per hour is really very slow for that street. I would feel much more comfortable with 35 which is way below the average of what people travel."

Selectman Rocco Laugelle mentioned the two schools on that road and his approval of the new speed. "I have no problem with 30 miles per hour," he said.

Selectman Martha Gjesteby, a frequent walker on that street, said that 30 MPH was appropriate for the Sohier St. road.

Selectman Jane Goedecke's major concern was publisizing the speed change when it goes into effect. "I don't want to sneak up on people," she said.

Transfer for tree & park

Selectmen approved a $4,500 transfer to the Tree and Park Department on Monday. Cohasset's Peter Laugelle told the board the money would be used to maintain equipment such as lawn mowers, motor vehicles and to pay for the cost of gasoline.

Van DerLught resigns

The resignation of Hubert van DerLught from the Cohasset Common Historic District Commission was accepted by Cohasset selectmen on Monday. The resignation takes effect immediately.

Harbor use fee approved

Boat owners docked at floats and wharves around Cohasset Harbor this summer will have to pay a new $5-per-foot user fee.

Selectmen voted 5-0 to approve Harbormaster Irving Gadow's proposed user fee which will be implemented for the upcoming boating season. The user fee is expected to bring in an estimated $6,000 to $7,000.

In a another matter, selectmen want to remind pet owners that dog license fees of $25 are due April 1 for the 1991 calendar year.

Officials gain 3 % raise Elected town officials and non-union employees of the town were voted a 3 percent raise by selectmen as recommended by the Personnel By-Law committee. The 5-0 vote took place at Monday's meeting.

Lumber storage at park

Tom George asked selectmen Monday night for permission on behalf of his Boy Scouts to store lumber in the pit across from Wheelright Park. The board approved the storage site so long as the conservation commission agrees.

The boy scouts are planning to rebuild a cabin at Wheelright Park. Rough lumber has been donated to the group and they need a place to cut it and let it dry until next September.

Sale of Bates Building looms

By Donna Cogliano
Mariner correspondent

The fate of the Bates building on Elm Street will soon become known to townspeople.

Cohasset selectmen who have been split on issues concerning the Bates building have reached a consensus. Though no official vote was taken the board has decided to offer the building to public auction for six months.

Selectmen agreed that such an article would be amended to the Town Warrant.

The Bates building currently houses the town's Rotary Club. The building's restrooms and basement are also used by the sewer department.

Three separate groups have expressed an interest in acquiring the building. Keith Knowles recently withdrew his request to use the Bates building as local teen center. He notified selectman in writing of his pulling out because he was not able to raise necessary funds for the proposed teen center.

Burt Pratt, a former Cohasset selectman, was on hand Monday night asking selectman to allow the VFW to move into the Bates building. The VFW, currently housed with the American Legion, needs more room to store rifles, helmets and flags, which are now in private homes.

"We have a tremendous amount of work to do. We need a place to do it in," said Pratt. The VFW will be working on a veteran's memorial for all wars.

Selectmen chairman Rocco Laugelle suggested that the West Corner fire station might be offered to the VFW.

Michael Keneally, of South Shore Habitat for Humanity, submitted his proposal to create affordable housing of the Bates Building which would get the property back on the tax roll.

Habitat, a non-profit organization, does most of its work through volunteers and raises donations for the cost of materials only. "We are able to construct homes at a minimal cost," said Keneally.

Habitat's proposal was for selectmen to transfer the building over to their group for the cost of $1. In return, Habitat would renovate the building into two units of affordable housing. It was estimated that materials would cost $100,000.

The two units would generate taxes for the town, while the three bedroom homes would cost the homeowners only a $208 mortgage payment over 20 years. "This particular property is certainly a challenge. We have a lot of back up and experience," he said.

The family selection criteria would be based on need, ability to make the payments and willingness to work on the project. There is a requirement of 250 hours of minimum work toward the project.

Selectman Ned Tebbetts said that in light of the budget process that he would not favor selling the building for one dollar. Instead he offered that Habitat could raise 80 percent of the market value of the building which was about $175,000 and then proceed with its plans. However, Keneally said that Habitat would not be able to assume that financial responsibility.

Selectman Jane Goedecke suggested that the property go out on the market for six months and if it doesn't sell then turn it over to Habitat for one dollar. "My desire has always been to make this affordable housing," she said.

Goedecke urge the board to take a vote but Laugelle opted to talk with town counsel first.

Candidates forum draws mild interest

By Andrew MacLellan
Mariner correspondent

Cohasset's candidates were off and running Tuesday, as they gathered in open forum at the fifth annual Chamber of Commerce candidates' night at Kimball's by the Sea.

Bob Martin, president of the chamber, moderated events during the evening. Each candidate was invited to share personal information and credentials.

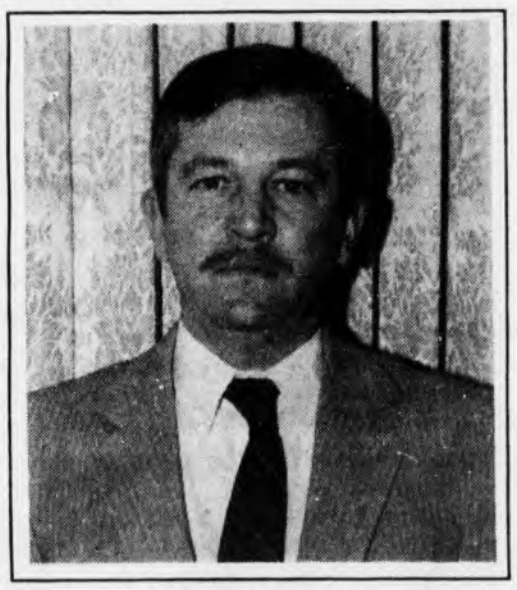
The floor was then opened up to the audience for questions.

Incumbent selectman chairman Rocco Laugelle was not in attendance, so candidate Richard P. Barrow of 283 King St. was left to field all questions in that race.

Barrow is a Cohasset native and a retired police sergeant with over 40 years on the force. He has also served on the recreation commission for 17 years, 16 of them as chairman.

He said that he feels he has served the apprenticeship necessary to enter local government and offered ideas on what he would change if elected.

In an attempt to save the town money, Barrow suggested combining police and fire departments. He cited the success of Lincoln which is approximately the same size as Cohasset and has made this move. The merger would entail a reduction of staff and equipment, additional training for police and firefighters, and would require only one chief for the two departments.



Ely Kahn

Barrow also suggested the combining of the parks and recreation departments and urged the town to apply for more grants.

When asked where he would come up with the $200,000 needed if a general operating expenditure override does not pass, he replied, "Well it will have to come from somewhere. I would say that 50 percent would come from the schools and the other 50 percent would come from the police and fire departments. They are the biggest budgets in town."

In the race for water commissioner, Ben Curley and James R. Sheerin met in debate for the one open three-year term.

Curley, who was water commissioner for 10 years and has worked for the water department for 23 years, reminded the room of his acquisition of a $1 million matching state grant to improve the town's water distribution system.

James Sheerin

He had also obtained a grant to implement a leak detection program which resulted in the relining or replacement of 16,200 feet of pipe.

Sheerin has been commissioner for three years and helped push through the Lily Pond purchase in a water protection effort.

He began the issuance of I.D. cards to all meter readers as a public safety measure, and brought in an outside laboratory to test the levels of lead in the town's schools.

Sheerin is also actively opposed to the indiscriminate spraying of malathion for mosquito control.

Ben Curley

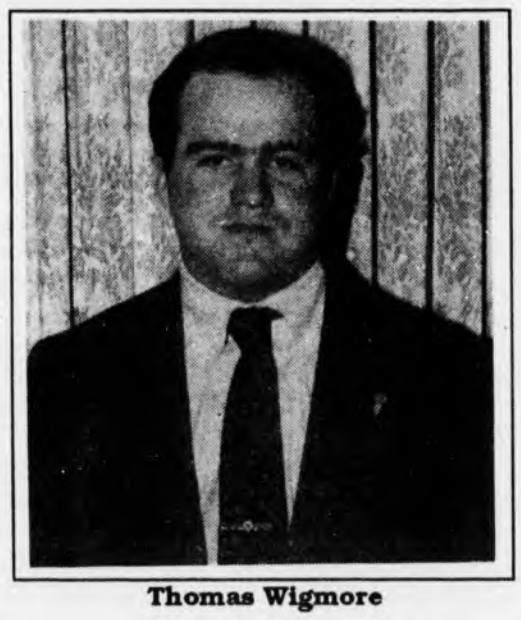
Tom Wigmore of 32 Ash St. and Ely Kahn III of 498 North Main St. squared off in a battle for the five-year term on the recreation commission.

Wigmore is a life-long resident and a graduate of Cohasset High School. He currently works for the DPW.

He has been an assistant harbormaster for eight years and a shellfish officer for three. He also holds a seat on the Drug and Alcohol Commission.

A freelance writer and author of two books concerning children, their parents and sports, Ely Kahn has lived in Cohasset for the last eight years. He has three children, two of whom attend Cohasset schools.

Kahn is the director of the Cohasset soccer club, has coached youth basketball and is the co-founder of lacrosse at the high school.



Richard Barrow

The two were asked their opinions about a possible take over of the recreation department by the Cohasset community center.

Wigmore believed that the town should maintain control, while Kahn was of the opinion that the recreation commission should be given another year to try to straighten itself out.

In the last race, Jean Simonds of 107 Nichols Road opposed Terry J. Atherton of 34 Clay Springs Road for the planning board seat.

Simonds is a Cohasset native and her 101-year-old mother still lives in the family home. She noted that there were no women homeowners presently serving on the board and thought that her "time, interest and availability" would be a benefit. She also said that she was concerned with preserving the character of Cohasset.

Thomas Wigmore

Atherton is a 15 year resident of Cohasset and has a masters degree in transportation planning from MIT. He works in Boston for a transportation consulting firm.

Atherton feels he can strengthen the business community and will enforce zoning bylaw provisions. He also hopes to provide input into the traffic impact of the Railway proposal.

When asked about their feelings on the reinstatement of the Old Colony Railway Line, Atherton replied that he thought it is a positive thing which will improve air quality and provide energy benefits.

Simonds said she was a little ambivalent about the railway but had lived with it in her back yard for 16 years and never been bothered.

Private ambulance dumped, firefighters remain

would have to be cost-efficient. "The one thing we have to remind ourselves is that we are a small town... manned by our firefighters in our station. It makes sense four us to use our firefighters to be our basic life support deliverers," she said.

Jim Whelan, a member of the study committee,pointed out the total cost of the fire department to the citizens of Cohasset. He said that some other towns spend $26 per citizen for fire protection while Cohasset pays $130 per person.

"This suggests to us that something is systemically wrong. Something seems to be wrong somewhere. Even Boston pays only $7 more than us," said Whelan.

"We found this when we investigated the ambulance situation and we were shocked. Does anybody know how it got so high?" he added.

Selectmen chairman Rocco Laugelle commended on the town government structure committee's thorough research. "I just hope in every other phase... you will go in as deep as you have to this ambulance and fire department service."

Kornet said, "We don't have a lot of fires in this town. I would like to see a stronger call force."

Fire Captain Robert Silva said that Cohasset's fire department expenses were less on the tax rate than that of neighboring Hull, Hingham and Scituate.

"Those are the towns never chosen by the government structure committee. I think we're beating a dead horse," said Silva.

School articles supported

Selectmen went on record Monday as supporting two Town Warrant articles submitted by the schools. The articles ask that $140,000 be used to make special repairs and to pay for computers in a proposed wiritng lab at the high school.

There is a large glass wall in need of repair at the high school while the Osgood School carpeting needs replacing. However, School Supt. Stephen Hart is not sure if the carpeting will be replaced or if a new floor would be put in because students do eat lunch in those particular classrooms.

The addition of 12 new computers at the high school would complete a fully functioning writing lab there for a cost of $25,000. Students, in their scheduled English classes, would become familiar with word processing, key boarding, software and hardware.

Hart is confident the room would be used round the clock since there is currently one teacher who arrives at 5 a.m. to greet students in that computer room these days. "I have no doubt this investment would be wisely used," said Hart.

Logan enjoys liberal politics at all levels

student a career in art.

One of her friends had a child who always thought she would become a veterinarian. Then she discovered she had a terrific talent for art and at the eleventh hour decided she wanted to go to art school. A Hingham High School art teacher worked with her on developing her portfolio and preparing her college admissions. Today, the student is preparing for a career in art.

"Just think," Logan said. "If that override had failed, her art teacher would have been laid off. She might never had the opportunity to go to art school."

If Logan had her 'druthers, more women would go into politics. It constantly amazes her that a country as progressive as the United States should lag so far behind in the number of women in the legislature.

"The Scandinavian women have 30 to 40 percent of the seats, and Belgium is high, too," she said. "England and France are less than 10 percent and we are the lowest."

Logan takes a feminist perspective on the reasons so few women find their way into politics. She agrees with the book "Games My Mother Never Taught Me" that women's unfamiliarity with team sports leaves them at a disadvantage in both the political and corporate spheres.

"Women never played sports much, although that is changing," Logan said. "Men play politics like they played sports. They understand that losing doesn't mean much. If you lose today, you may win tomorrow. Women feel the loss more.

"And they can't raise the money."

Logan hopes the old boy network will disappear like the dinosaurs. She found the recent Texas gubernatorial campaign particularly unsettling when the Republican candidate, Clayton Williams, felt completely at ease making jokes about rape. Williams got his comeuppance when rival Ann Richards won the race. Then someone suggested that if Williams and John Silber had swapped states, both might be in office today.

"That really worried me," Logan said. She would hope Massachusetts voters would have sent Williams the same message the Texans did.

Logan also worries about the kind of money it takes to win an office today. She thinks setting limits on the amount of money that can be spent on campaigns and the number of terms a person can serve makes sense, although losing statesmen like the late Silvio Conte would be an unfortunate by-product.

Staggering the terms of office might be one way to avoid losing the expertise representatives and senators build up over time, she suggested. And eliminating contributions from political action committees is another way to return control of the political process to the individual voter.

The more the media controls campaigns, the more the connection between voter and candidate suffers, Logan said. Campaign by sound bite and carefully staged media events allows the image makers to control the process, she added.

"Someone once told a candidate who hated going door-to-door to imagine they were an actor delivering a script," she recalls. It gets her going about Ronald Reagan and his index card grasp of issues. She prefers the give and take of John Kennedy's exchanges with the press.

"He could think fast on his feet," Logan said approvingly. "I think he enjoyed those exchanges. Hubert Humphrey was like that, too."

"I really wonder if the American people would have the patience to sit through the Lincoln-Douglas debates?" she wondered. She didn't relish giving it much thought.

Logan thinks the citizens lose when open debate on difficult issues is avoided. It bothers her that so few voters take the time to come out to hear both sides of an issue.

"We try so hard to have forums," she said. "People just won't come out. They only turn out to vote against something."

"People do not like change," Logan sighed. "They resent it."

Although too many people might disagree, Logan thinks the debate in Congress over the decision to go to war in the Persian Gulf was an example of democracy at its best. She contends it is essential to explore all the ramifications of an issue before making a decision. Once the decision is reached, then it's time to close ranks, she says.

Logan said George Bush wants everyone to like him so much that it gets in the way of his ability to make difficult decisions, although she thinks pulling together the international coalition against Iraq was a master stroke.

"Sometimes it pays to go to a lot of funerals," she says irreverently.

Logan definitely seems to prefer candidates as strong-minded, independent and confident as she is. In the last presidential primary she backed Bob Dole who has never backed off from a tough issue. But Logan also admired and supported Silvio Conte who had a very different style.

The bottom line seems to be a strong sense of values, intelligence and the courage of one's convictions. And a sense of humor helps. She thinks Norman Schwarzkopf and Colin Powell would make wonderful candidates.

If Logan had her way, she would make radical changes in the way political campaigns are funded.

"It would be best for politics if we did away with political action committees," she said. According to Logan, nearly 60 percent of the money in a campaign comes from PACs. The irony is, she said, many of those PACs are making contributions to both sides. She suggests their only interest is having a friend in high places.

Logan suggests it is too easy for representatives to feel beholden to powerful political action committees and thus too easily tempted into corruption a la the Keating Five.

She also thinks the amount of money spent to get into state or national office is downright obscene. She believes there are much better uses for that kind of money.

"You could help the homeless or other good causes," she suggests.

Many people have made much of the seeming contradictions in Polly Logan's personal and political philosophy: this died-in-the-wool Republican married into wholeheartedly Democratic family, joined of NOW and supported the Equal Rights Amendment, takes a pro-choice position on abortion although she is a practicing Catholic and considers herself a stalwart environmentalist.

"And I'm far more liberal than my party," she says proudly.

Actually, there is no contradiction. Logan simply considered and weighed all the facts. Then she made up her own mind.

"I'm no ideologue," she says.

And you can take that to the bank.

Pratt library enters the computer age

who notifies the participating branch via electronic mail. A courier, who makes a daily trip to each library, then drops off the requested book within a day or two.

Hayes said that by having an integrated system, librarians can order new materials more sensibly.

He said that certain high priced reference materials or costly and specialized books can be split between libraries. He said the computer also tells each member what the other libraries are buying.

Knowing what each other are buying allows libraries to coordinate purchasing to avoid duplication.

Hayes said membership in the cooperative also gives individual libraries a buying power they did not have on their own, which can also save money.

Hayes said the new system has created the "interesting challenge" of increasing library usage. He said the increase in use has created more work for staff employees, who are already busy serving the needs of more than 300 people who use the library on a daily basis.

He said he hoped that the labor savings through automation would even out the increase.

"We do have to change our work arrangements, but is better to have the public using our resources," he said.

Hayes said that even though the library is loaning its books all over the state, there is almost no problem getting the books back.

"We have better control," he said. "The computer generates a list of delinquents for us."

"The librarians make a point of explaining to the borrowers that the books come from another library and they ask them to respect that."

He said that the delinquency rate of 3 percent is "99 percent lower than other business."

Hayes said another problem that will have to be addressed is whether to allow libraries that lose certification, such as Hanson and Norwood, use of libraries in the cooperative.

He said that it poses a dilemma to librarians who have to reconcile their calling with the realities of funding and controlling expenses.

"All of us are in this business because we believe in (making materials available to whoever needs them)," he said. "It is an educational and cultural function. It really goes against our grain to deny library service to anyone."

Hayes said that while there are no easy solutions to the dilemma, the problem underscores the problems for public libraries as budgets are slashed.

Hayes said that Norwood had a respectable library that was dealt a 50 percent budget cut. Similar cuts lost Hanson's certification. He said that no library, no matter how strong, could endure such cuts.

"We are all on the verge," he said, explaining that a 5 percent cut to his budget would translate into as much as a 30 percent cut in personnel and services.

"It is a shame that we are reducing library budgets at a time when this technology has come into its own," he said.

Hayes said that the cost of running the library "is about 2 cents on the tax rate, and roughly $30 per capita."

He said that it is a small expense, he believes people are willing to pay for, that gets lost in the massive override every year. He suggested that in the future the trustees should seek either a capital exclusion or a "menu approach" to the override that would allow voters to choose what the would fund.

He urged concerned patrons to make their feelings known to selectmen and the advisory committee.

"People do have a lot of control over the local government. I do believe that if 100 people had called local officials in Norwood the library would not have been cut. It does not take a lot of people to convince a local official."

AROUND TOWN

❑ We give a round of applause to Chip Anderson, Topher Henderson, Dave Leahy, Nick Hawks, and John Brister! These CHS students swam in the Swim for Sight Eye Research Institutes fund-raiser, held last weekend at the Boston Harbor Hotel. Between them they raised more than $1,000 by getting pledges for laps that they swam. If you wish to make a pledge you may, you can call coach Linda Henderson at 383-0289.

❑ Birthday greetings go to Mike Ward this week, he turned the BIG 40. Mike's friends and neighbors welcome him to the club.

❑ Lots of news from the Pozatek house this week, and its all great. Stephen, a senior at Milton Academy, has been accepted for early admittance at Middlebury College. He'll be out of Milton in the fall, but his brother, Andrew, will be there to carry on the Pozatek traditions he was just accepted. Andrew has a few more feathers for his cap, he qualified for the 1991 Eastern U.S. Jr. III Alpine Olympics, held at Sugarloaf in Maine.

Matt Gromada of Cohasset, right, acts out in 'Into the Woods' at Browne & Nichols School last week.

Annie would like to wish a very special someone, Jane, a happy birthday!

Skiing and studying aren't Andrew's only interests, he recently placed number sixteen in New England Tennis, by N.E.L.T.A. Wow! Watch for both of the boys' names in the future, they are guaranteed to go far.

❑ Kristen Watts has a birthday this month, and we sure hope that its a happy one.

❑ Brian Pompeo made the sports page of the Globe last week. He goes to school at Belmont Hill, and they were in a weekend hockey tournament...they lost the game in overtime, but it was Brian's pass in the final seconds that enabled them to get into the overtime situation. Good work Brian.

❑ Birthday greetings to Susan Dane.

❑ On March 1, 2 and 3, Heather Littlehale, Lauren DeVito and Derek Bugley, representing the Bernal Gator Swim Team, participated in the New England Age Group Championships held at Harvard University's Blodgett Pool. This meet was made available only to those swimmers who qualified by times, so represented were the best swimmers from Massachusetts, Vermont, Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Maine. Heather (11 and 12 age group) received a first in the relays of 200 and 400 yards. The 400 relay qualified for the national cut-off times. Heather also ran off with many awards by placing first in the 200 free, second in 50 back, fourth in 100 back, eighth in 50 free, 10th in 100 free, eighth in 100 yards, 12th in 100 fly, 10th in 50 fly and 17th in the breaststroke. Lauren (11 and 12 age group) swam in B&C 200 and 400 free relays and finished first in both. Derek, in the 10 and under age group, swam in the 50 breast stroke, and placed 18th in the 100 breast. He also received first in the 400 free relay A Team and swam in the 200 yard Medley relay and 400 free relay. These three swimmers have a short break now from their three to five workouts a week in Duxbury, but will soon begin long course swimming which has their championships in July. Its certain that we will be hearing from them.

❑ We sure hope that Aylsa Goodrich is feeling better as she read this.

❑ Congratulations to Stephen Izzo (high honors) and Robin DeVito (honors), both sophomores at Thayer Academy.

❑ Michael and Ellen Savage are the proud parents of a little boy, born February 7 at South Shore Hospital.

❑ That's the news for this week, call with your latest piece of news!

❑ A very happy birthday to dear Jane White, Love, Annie.

Barrow to run for selectman

Richard P. Barrow of 283 Ring Street is a candidate for selectman in the April 13 Annual Town Election.

Robert V. Davenport of 135 Sohier Street is treasurer of the committee to elect Barrow. Other members of the committee are: Christopher S. Barrett, Flossie M. Cogill, Amy L. Davis, Leo J. Happenny, Herbert L. Jason, Tad Kasperowicz, Laurie A. Livingstone, Amy C. Mitman and Joshua Stevenson.

Barrow has a long history of involvement in town affairs through both elected and appointed town positions. He has actively pursued good government through bylaw changes. In 1981 Barrow was instrumental in expanding the Cohasset Board of Selectmen from three to five members. Also, he wrote the town towing and public drinking bylaws; and the Sandy Beach bylaws.

Elected town memberships include town constable, 2 years; Additionally, Barrow has served as an appointed member of the Harbor Study Committee for 6 years, a member of the Government Island Study Committee for 10 years; member of the board of the Cohasset Swim Center, 6 years; and a member of the Boy Scouts of America Council.

A veteran of World War II, Barrow served as a Seaman in the U.S. Navy for three years. He is a member of the American Legion and a life member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

A Cohasset native, Barrow was a member of the Cohasset Police Department for 40 years, retiring in fall of 1990. He was promoted to sergeant in 1967. He is a graduate of the Massachusetts State Police Academy, and has taken courses at Northeastern University pertaining to his police duties. In 1967 he passed the Civil Service examination for police chief.

Barrow has served as president of the Cohasset Police Association numerous times over his career, and has also acted as negotiator for contracts and as a lobbyist at the state level.

Barrow is the father of Joseph, Richard, David and Amy.

Interior LifeStyles. DECORATING

A Gold Mine in Your Home

You could be living in a gold mine for decorating ideas without realizing it.

Recycled collections and treasured heirlooms can be a charming addition to any style. The key is recognizing their decorating potential.

A collection of board games became decorating tools for one family. They framed the boards and fanned them across one wall. Adding accents in complementary colors completed the playful yet cosmopolitan design.

Countless jars of shells collected on summer holidays were transformed into another triumph. The owner of the collection lived in a suburban high-rise but the shells looked right at home on a raised platform. When bleached floors, rattan furniture, four-foot palms were added, a dark sitting room became a year round "Florida room."

Singular treasures, too, add originality, whether it's one of Aunt Maude's paintings proudly displayed on an easel or an antique quilt at the foot of your bed.

Your home has a wealth of treasures, "discovered" and "undiscovered," that can provide the nucleus for an entire design approach or a perfect accent to a room you'll enjoy.

Local aid cuts can't be tolerated!

It's time to let the governor and legislature know that we do not want to see local government robbed to pay for state problems.

Gov. William Weld ran for office on a platform that promised reasonable local aid.

Voters went the the polls last fall and backed the local aid question. Question 5 was supposed to guarantee that 40 percent of state revenue increases be distributed to the cities and towns. It also stated that local aid would be at least as much as the prior year.

As voters we bought the promise.

Now it's time to see the politicians live up to that promise.

Our town government faces enough difficulty controlling costs. The advisory committee and town officials do the best they can in an economy that's shaking to its roots.

Perhaps the 40 percent figure is high. It certainly is a worthwhile goal to shoot for.

But to talk about a decrease in local aid is unacceptable.

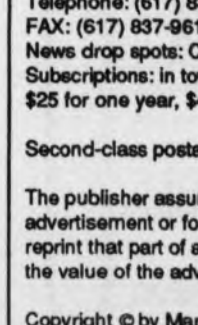
It's time for all of us to write, call, protest — it's time to do whatever we can to let Weld and the legislature know we will not accept any decrease in local aid.

The local property tax bears a high enough burden.

Last week in the Cohasset Mariner we reported the latest effort of local officials to keep local aid at the level of the past year. A coalition of South Shore officials has been meeting to lobby the local legislators on this topic.

David Turner, a Norwell selectmen, who happens to be town counsel in Brookline, is planning a suit on the local aid issue. It was Brookline that spearheaded (and won) the local aid suit against Gov. Michael Dukakis last year.

We think the coalition is on the right track. But the state politicians should be brought to task now, rather than sued to comply with state law.



Selectmen Ned Tebbetts represented our community at the coalition meeting on March 1. We are delighted to see his interest in the issue. During the meeting he pointed out that Cohasset Selectmen are united in their support for maintaining the present level of local aid.

Sen. Michael Creedon, D-Brockton, was quoted as saying tha state is broke. We don't think that's a surprise. It isn't a flush economy.

Creedon said there may be a combination of program cuts and increased taxes to balance the budget. We believe the state needs to get the message that crying poor won't do.

If necessary we should join in the legal battle. We would hope the message could be relayed so that a legal battle would not be needed.

If Weld and the legislature can't come up with a state budget that works, they don't deserve to remain in office.

Tebbetts gives railroad restoration facts

COMMENTARY

(The following is a statement by Selectman Edwin Tebbetts delivered March 4 concerning possible resumption of Greenbush Rail Service.)

1. For our April 13 town elections, I suggest three secret ballot questions on the rail issue.

2. My calculations indicate that restoration of the Greenbush Line would probably cost the Town budget at least $300,000 a year in costs we do not now have. This cost would amount to more than an average of $100 yearly for each Cohasset household. This cost would be in addition to T charges for fares.

This extra cost of at least $300,000 a year was arrived at as follows:

a. Mary Jeanette Murray tells me that for many years in the Cherry Sheet calculations, Cohasset has been assessed about $140,000 a year for its share of the T operating deficit. Because we receive no direct T service in Cohasset, this $140,000 a year has been abated to us. With T rail service here, we would lose this abatement.

b. In the years from 1984 to 1990, our state government's share of the T operating deficit has increased from less than $180 million a year to more than $400 million a year. This has been called a "budget buster." We all pay for these T deficits as part of our state taxes.

c. In his recent budget message, Governor Weld has suggested significant increases in T fares and a new ceiling on the state's share of the T deficit. The federal government pays only a token portion of the T operating deficit.

d. Ann Larner, Executive Director of the T Advisory Board, informed me that for 1989 total T fares were only 23 percent of T operating costs. The remaining 77 percent was a subsidy financed by government taxation. None of the T Capital costs was financed from fare revenue.

e. If the state has a ceiling on its share of T costs and the federal government continues to pay only a token portion of the T operating deficit, then it must follow that the Greater Boston cities and towns will have to pick up a larger share of the deficit.

f. If the state froze its dollar contribution for the T deficit for just one year, then the greater Boston cities and towns in the T district would need to pick up extra costs of nearly $60 million a year. Based on our population and per capita income, Cohasset's share would be over $160,000 a year.

3. This calculation leaves out Capital costs estimated by the T at $562 million for restoration of the three Old Colony lines. Numerous South Shore people have carefully identified many areas where these Capital costs are significantly understated.

At best, the federal government through UMTA would pay for half of these Capital costs. All the rest of the Capital costs would probably be financed by new debt backed by the state government. The quality of state government debt is already low and would be lower with increased debt.

Some of our Beacon Hill politicians have said that the Old Colony reconstruction would be a "jump-start" for local construction business. In reality such rebuilding would not improve the overall economy because all of the costs of construction would have to be paid by taxpayers, either by increases in taxes to cover current operating expenses or increases in costs for servicing debt.

Any intended real stimulation of the national economy would have to come from federal government policies aimed at fiscal policy stimulation, such as a tax cut, or from monetary stimulation by our Federal Reserve Board.

Town counsel explains in great detail

(The following letter was offered for publication.)

Mr. Gregory J. Doyon
Executive Secretary
Board of Selectmen

Dear Greg:

When I met with the Board on the evening of March 4, 1991, I thought I had adequately explained any misunderstanding I may have caused on February 25, 1991, when I had requested the appointment of special counsel with regard to the several cases pending before the Appellate Tax Board and relating to 1990 fiscal assessments. To the extent that there is any concern that I have not adequately explained the circumstances, let me try in more detail. I will address four issues: the Executive Session of February 25, 1991; the distinction between appointing counsel to avoid a conflict of interest as opposed to appointing counsel for specialized causes; the limited role, if any, which the Board of Selectmen plays in the planning, strategy, or settlement of litigation pending before the Appellate Tax Board; and my thoughts and comments on the minutes of the Executive Session held on February 25, 1991.

I. Executive Session of February 25, 1991

As I explained to the Board on Monday evening, March 4, 1991, after considerable thought, I finally reached the conclusion that the Board of Assessors, their outside appraiser and the Advisory Board were correct in thinking that the workload relating to the 1990 fiscal tax cases was such that it would warrant the appointment of special or assistant counsel to represent the Town's interest before the Appellate Tax Board. While I reached that decision sometime in January, 1991, there was considerable work to be done before the appointment could be made. This work included obtaining the names of potential candidates for appointment, reviewing their credentials, obtaining references, allowing candidates to review the material relating to the cases in order to estimate fees that would be incurred, and related matters. Consequently, I did not reach my final conclusion with respect to recommending appointment until sometime late in February. Once I made that decision, I was anxious to get the appointment made so that counsel could begin working on the cases, many of which were scheduled for March of 1991. I was not originally scheduled to appear before the Board on February 25, 1991, as the Board was having an executive session to discuss labor negotiations, for which I am not responsible. I had called you earlier that day requesting that I be put on the agenda, not giving thought at the time to the two members of the Board who had cases pending before the Appellate Tax Board.

While I am normally extremely sensitive to the Open Meeting Law, to the point of being overly cautious, my natural inclination with respect to litigation is to try not to discuss it in public. In the instant case, my caution was extreme because there was nothing terribly sensitive about the appointment of special counsel with respect to the fiscal 1990 tax cases and it did not warrant executive session. For that error in judgment, I am

COMMENTARY

Town counsel explains in great detail

solely responsible.

The important thing, however, is to point out that neither member of the Board of Selectmen, who had a case pending before the Board, participated in the discussion nor voted and, in fact, each asked to be excused and remained only because I said it was not necessary for them to leave; again, an error in judgment solely on my part and not on theirs. Since I initially spoke with you earlier in the day about an executive session, I intended to deal with other litigation matters involving special counsel, but once in the meeting, I decided to be very brief, explaining my reasons for the appointment of special counsel and making a recommendation with respect to the person. As you know, only the three members of the Board not involved with the Appellate Tax Board cases voted on the appointment.

Moreover, the discussion was abstract in nature, did not focus on the defense strategy of the Town and did not relate in any way to the specific merits of any case, including the merits of the cases of the two Selectmen. While the pleadings of all eighty-two cases are in my possession, I am not familiar with the specific pleadings in the cases involving the two Selectmen or cases involving other officials or employees of the Town. There was never any question that a special counsel would be appointed with respect to the defense of those cases.

The real issue to be examined was whether or not there was a necessity for special counsel in those cases in which I did not have a conflict of interest. I did not initially feel it was necessary, as indicated above. I subsequently agreed that it was appropriate with respect to the 1990 cases in light of the inordinate number that were filed before the Appellate Tax Board.

II. Distinction Between Assistant Town Counsel Appointed to Avoid a Conflict of Interest and Assistant Town Counsel to Deal with Specialized Matters

Our Town By-Laws are very explicit, only Town Counsel may represent the Town's interest in legal matters with the exception of matters pertaining to the School Department. The School Committee retains the power to hire its own counsel. There are, however, two sets of circumstances in which outside counsel has been retained in the past, one mandatory and the other discretionary. Those circumstances are:

A. Where a conflict of interest exists under Massachusetts General Laws Chapter 268A. Under these circumstances, Town counsel must excuse himself from acting and the Board of Selectmen must appoint a special town counsel to handle the matter in which the conflict arises. Under these circumstances, the special town counsel reports directly to the Board of Selectmen or to the officer or board for whom he has been appointed to represent and not to Town Counsel.

With respect to the 1990 fiscal tax abatement cases, special counsel would have been mandatory for at least four cases, involving elected officials or Town employees, including the two members of the Board of Selectmen. This appointment would have been made at an appropriate time when it was clear that any or all of those cases would actually go to trial.

Appellate Tax Board litigation in Cohasset is not handled like other litigation. Normally when a case is filed in court or before an administrative tribunal, I assume jurisdiction immediately, direct the preparation for the trial or hearing, supervise settlement negotiations and make recommendations to the appropriate board or officer with regard to settlement. This is not so in Appellate Tax Board cases. When an Appellate Tax Board case is filed, the Board of Assessors retains jurisdiction, conducts settlement negotiations, and enters into settlements without the advice or consent of counsel. Only when it is clear and unequivocal that the case will go to trial do I normally play an active role. This has been the traditional way of handling these cases in the years that I have participated in legal matters on behalf of the Town. Accordingly, with respect to those four cases involving Town officials or employees and other cases in which I feel there is a conflict, special counsel would be appointed at such time as it is clear that any or all of those cases would have to be tried. To make an earlier appointment of outside counsel would just be a waste of Town funds.

B. The need for highly specialized skill. In these circumstances, Town Counsel must participate in the selection and approved special counsel.

With regard to matters involving specialized counsel, it is normally my decision as to whether or not specialized counsel is necessary, and I make a recommendation to the Board of Selectmen who in turn makes the appointment. In these circumstances, special counsel reports to me and bills directly the Board or officer who it represents. The bill is then forwarded to the Board of Selectmen for payment; however, the bill must be approved by me before being paid.

With respect to the 1990 fiscal tax cases in which I had no conflict, I was initially reluctant to see public funds used for outside counsel, as normally Appellate Tax Board cases are not so complex as to warrant special appointment. When I retain jurisdiction, there is no extra cost to the Town, as the work must be done within the confines of the legal budget. Unfortunately, because of the large number of cases it now appears will go to trial, I have reluctantly changed my decision.

III. The Limited Role of the Board of Selectmen Relating to Planning, Strategy, or Settlement of Litigation Before the Appellate Tax Board

With respect to cases pending before the Appellate Tax Board, the Selectmen have no other role except the appointment of counsel and the approval of the payment of bills. They have no legal authority to participate in settlement negotiations, to participate in litigation strategy, or to approve or confirm settlements. It is only because State Statutes and Town By-laws require Selectmen to approve counsel that they have any role at all. Accordingly, the two Selectmen whose cases are pending before the Appellate Tax Board could not participate in the litigation process, the settlement discussions, or litigation strategy, even if they had not filed for abatements.

Accordingly, it is almost impossible for a member of the Board of Selectmen to have a conflict of interest in connection with an Appellate Tax Board case. The Board simply has no jurisdiction over the substance of the case.

IV. Comments on the Executive Session Minutes from the February 25, 1991, Meeting of the Board of Selectmen

Normally, minutes of an executive session remain private only so long as publication would defeat the lawful purpose of an executive session. Under normal circumstances, the consideration of special counsel would be a permissible basis for an executive session if it involved (a) the preliminary screening of candidates or (b) have a bearing on the Town's litigation strategy. My error in judgment was not in initially bringing the topic up in executive session, but rather in failing to heed the request of the two Selectmen who had cases pending before the Appellate Tax Board and who asked to be excused . In any event, there is nothing of such a sensitive nature in the minutes that would preclude them from being released immediately subject to the following corrections which I wish to point out:

In the first paragraph thereof, the minutes referred to my statement that the Assessors hired an assistant who in turn hired an assistant. That may cause some confusion. To clarify the situation, the Board of Assessors has a consulting firm on retainer that assists them in the tri-annual revaluations of Town property and thereafter participates in settlement negotiations and hearings involving abatement of taxes. These consultants are not hired particularly with respect to the eighty-two cases pending before the Appellate Tax Board, but are full-time consultants. This consulting firm, however, has hired an assistant to help them in connection with the eighty-two cases pending before the appellate Tax Board and relating to the 1990 fiscal year.

In the second paragraph, there is a statement attributed to me which states that Mr. Lagrotteria pointed out to me that I had a conflict of interest. In the text of the same paragraph, there is a statement attributed to me that I felt very strongly against hiring special counsel. This also could lead to a misunderstanding. My objection to the hiring of special counsel did not relate to those matters in which I had a conflict of interest; there was never any question that I would not be appearing in those cases. My strong feeling was against those cases in which no conflict existed because of the financial impact another special counsel might have on Town resources. As I have indicated to you in the past, I am very concerned with the Town's use of special counsel under certain circumstances. In my opinion, there have been too many requests for special counsel by department heads when it simply was not necessary.. I only wished to convey the other night that I initially had the same concern when it was recommended that special counsel be appointed in those cases in which I did not have a conflict arising out of the 1990 fiscal assessment.

Subject to the foregoing corrections, I have no problem with the minutes from the February 25, 1991, meeting being released as part of the public record. Obviously, such release does not pertain to those matters discussed that night dealing with labor negotiations which obviously must remain in executive session minutes until those labor negotiations are concluded.

Hopefully, the foregoing clarifies any concerns that I may have created with respect to the appointment of special counsel, but please do not hesitate to ask should you need any further information.

Very truly yours,
Richard A. Henderson

The Cohasset and Hull conservation commissions have agreed to work on a joint solution to the midge problem at Straits Pond — the border between the two towns.

BULLETIN BOARD

Church series continues

The Second Congregational Church is presenting a film series, "Listening To God" continuing March 17 and 24. The series will be shown at 7:30 p.m. in Bates Hall. After each showing, the Reverend Gary Ritts will lead a discussion.

The film series, "Listening To God," is based on the assumption that most of us, whether we belong to a church or not, listen for God, especially in times of crisis.

"The Rich Brother" will be shown March 17. This film examines the meaning of success and casts new light on the old question: "Am I my brother's keeper?" The power of faith will be the topic March 24 with "A Visit to Morin."

For further information, please contact the Second Congregational Church at 383-0345.

This film series is free and open to the public.

Sixty-Plus Club meets

March 21 is the regular monthly meeting of the 60 Plus Club, featuring a Penny Sale. Friends are invited. Lunch is at noon.

A St. Patrick's Day Dinner will be held at the Unitarian Parish House on Wednesday, March 13, and senior citizens are welcome. Price is $8. The Opals will be on hand to lead good Irish music.

Call 383-9112 for reservations.

Summer arts programs

Twenty professional artist/teachers are making plans for an exciting five-week session at "Summer Arts at Derby" in Hingham. Student registration is well underway, and staff members are planning a variety of courses.

"Summer Arts at Derby" is a five-week comprehensive arts program for ages eight to fifteen, that allows students to explore a myriad of performing and visual arts. The staff includes professional musicians, actors, photographers, painters, sculptors, filmmakers, dancers, and writers. The program also includes gymnastics, sports, cooking, woodworking, and computers. Students have the unique opportunity of choosing their own schedules from fifty offerings. Guest artists will visit for special workshops. Each day a noontime performance period allows students and staff to share their talents. A newspaper is printed daily, and a full-scale musical production is mounted.

Some of the artists are from the South Shore area. Ruthann Sargent will be teaching gymnastics courses. Ruthann teaches in Scituate, and coaches the girls' gymnastics team at Cohasset High School. Tina Simonetta of Plymouth will be teaching dance. Her credits include work with the Berkshire Opera Company, the Berkshire Ballet, Seventeen Magazine, and a commercial for MacDonald's. Robert Allwarden, an acoustic guitarist, will head the Music Department. At Derby Academy during the year, Robert also teaches at the South Shore Conservatory and performs at area clubs. Visual artist Nancie Beasley will head the Visual Arts Department. Nancie is a painter, sculptor, and mask and puppet-maker.

Other artists come from the Boston area and from as far away as New York City, Virginia, and California. Lisa Troy of Boston is an actress and director, currently appearing in Grease at the Nickerson Theatre. Jim Quinn is an actor and director, versed in Shakespeare, Improvisation, and Musical Comedy. Animation teacher Anne Hayes comes to the program from New York City. Anne has worked for ABC's 20/20 and as a documentary filmmaker. Susan Weinberg, head of the Writing Department, is a Stegnar Fellow at Stanford University in California. A playwright, novelist, and poet, Susan recently completed a novel. Virginia painter Bill Sullivan has exhibited in over thirty galleries nationally and internationally.

Other artists include California printmaker Kate Sheehan, musician Helen Mannix from Boston, and many guest artists. Several assistant teachers will also be on hand.

The program culminates in an Arts Festival on July 26, at which students demonstrate their talents through theatre, music, and dance performances, art exhibitors, a gymnastics show, and showings of original films.

The dates of "Summer Arts at Derby" are June 24 to July 26. Hours are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.; enrollment is limited. Students from at least fifteen different communities attend the program. For brochures and applications, or information about financial aid, call Thalia McMillion at 740-4766.

Concentration camp art

The South Shore Art Center, in collaboration with Massachusetts College of Art, will present a slide lecture on Seeing Through 'Paradise': Artists and the Terezin Concentration Camp, on Thursday, March 21 at 10:30 a.m., 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset.

Seeing Through 'Paradise' is a collection of over 200 paintings and drawings by various artists who were imprisoned at the Terezin Concentration Camp in Czechoslovakia from 1941 to 1945. The exhibit, never before seen in the United States, will be on display at the Mass. College of Art's gallery, located at 625 Huntington Avenue, from March 6 through May 4.

The college's art curator will deliver a lecture on the exhibit, complemented by slides, at the Art Center on March 21. Lecture tickets are $8 and will benefit both SSAC and Mass. College of Art. To reserve tickets, call the Art Center at 383-9548.

The Art Center will also sponsor a guided tour of the exhibit at the College on April 4, for which a box lunch and bus transportation will be provided. The box lunch will begin at 11:30 a.m. at the Art Center with the bus leaving at 12:30 p.m. and returning from Boston by 4 p.m. Total cost for the lunch, bus and tour is $20.

Terezin, a fortress town located 40 kilometers north of Praque, was taken over by the Nazis in 1941 to be used as a transit camp for Jews. While tens of thousands died there, the camp did give its famous musicians, poets, composers, and painters limited creative freedom.

Helga Weissova Hoskova was imprisoned at Terezin at the age of 12. Artistically inclined, her father told her to draw what she saw. Her drawings offer one of the most accurate records of camp activities.

Also in the exhibit are Bedrich Fritta, well known for his caricatures; Karel Fleischmann, a doctor who also painted and founded an avant-garde artists group in South Bohemia before he died in the gas chambers of Auschwitz; and Kurt Gerron, a prominent actor known to American audiences for his role in The Blue Angel, also starring Marlene Deitrich.

For more information on the slide lecture and/or the guided tour, call the Art Center at 383-9548.

Course openings at CCC

Spring has sprung at the Cohasset Community Center, where we are presently conducting registration for several new courses which will be starting in March. The courses are designed to entertain, to master some of the learning skills you will need to have to fully enjoy summer fun, some geared for young children to teens, and some to reinforce adults' and retiree's self-knowledge and skillful use of funds.

March 23 — Cut and Pierced Lampshades with Sue Leahy. This course is held on Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. at a cost of $30. Patience, not talent, is the most important ingredient in making a cut-and-pierced lampshade. At the end of one Saturday's labor, you will have a 5x8x6 inch lampshade ready to use. Learn how to design and color and cut and pierce a flat, arc, assemble the shade and add a rim. Printed directions and individual attention will boost your confidence. Bring a hand towel, wax paper, a pencil, scissors, two small cans and your lunch.

March 25 — SAT Preparation in English with Ron Emmons. Classes are held at Cohasset High School on Wednesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. for a five-week period at a cost of $65. The course is a review of basic skills in English in preparation for College Boards. In order to tailor to students' needs, class size is limited.

Spanish for kids

Spanish for Kids is a Spanish course taught at the Community Center for children ages six to 10. The popularity and interest in this class has prompted the offering of a new class to begin in March. This class will meet on Monday afternoon from 5 to 6 p.m. for eight weeks, and the cost is $35. Children will learn the rudiments of conversation and will build their Spanish vocabulary. Please call 383-0088 to register.

Rotary Road Race April 7

Plans are underway for the Fifteenth Annual Cohasset Roadrace by the Sea. The race, which has become an annual ritual of Spring, will begin at the Common on Sunday, April 7 at 1 p.m. The event again this year is under the direction of Peter Logan and Roy Fitzsimmons. It is a major fundraiser for the Cohasset Rotary Club and helps benefit the Club's many in-town charities.

The deadline for registration is March 31. There is an $8 fee and the number of runners is limited to 800. Each entrant receives a T-shirt with the race logo and free refreshments. The shirts and prizes are donated by many local merchants. Applications are available at Curtis Liquors, Cohasset Pharmacy, and Good Sport, as well as writing P.O. Box 36, Cohasset, MA 02025.

The race attracts runners throughout New England and has been recognized by the New England Runner magazine as the most scenic.

Glastonbury auction

A gigantic auction for the benefit of Glastonbury Abbey will be held at the Hingham High School gym, Union Street entrance, Hingham on Saturday, March 23.

Preview and afternoon auction begin at 1 p.m. Auctioneer David Glynn begins the evening auction at 7 p.m. The Monks of Glastonbury and dedicated volunteers have collected many fine antiques, furnishing of all kinds, sports tickets, original art work by several or our local artists and gift certificates donated by local merchants.

Goods and services such as gourmet dinners to be prepared in your home, day of sailing on a 40' Concordia Yawl, two mint condition American Flyer train sets, a one week vacation on St. John's, Virgin Islands, overlooking Coral Bay, and much, much more will be offered to bid on. Admission and catalogs are free and refreshments will be available.

Sen. Hedlund pokes at Democratic system

he doubted there would be reform of the Workman's Comp system since most of the other members happen to be lawyers or career politicians.

"I'm sure I will find it frustrating," he said.

He described the votes on the service tax as a charade, pointing out that it was known the tax would be repealed before the two day discussion began.

Last week Sen. Hedlund gave his maiden speech on an issue he feels strongly about — health care contributions.

Another freshman senator, a Democrat, had just spoken against raising the contribution required from state workers. Hedlund said he had to rise to point out that the contribution was still far below the cost paid by a worker in industry.

He talked about the problem that Gov. William Weld is going through in dealing with the system

"I see Weld wanting to make changes," Sen. Hedlund said. "But he is somewhat

Austin Lyne, Rotary president

a captive of the bureaucracy."

He talked about a woman brought in to head an office where all the workers were under civil service protection. She wanted to enforce a dress code on a worker who wore T-shirts and jeans every day and wore one side of her head in a crew cut and half in a pony tail. The union wouldn't let the new appointee enforce a dress code, Hedlund said.

He said there are more instances where programs have been cut but not an of the workers administering the program.

He pointed out other layers of administration added to state government since 1986.

"It's frustrating," he said.

As he was leaving the hall, Hedlund said he thought his limit in office would be four terms before he was elected.

"I'm revising that downward," he said. He came up with the original estimate as a way to avoid becoming part of the system.

Incidentally, Sen. Hedlund does have a one small complaint about the percs of office. The State House heating system just isn't up to handling the job. Hedlund's office was about 40 degrees on Monday, according to his estimation.

Sen. Robert Hedlund, R-Weymouth

The Friday before it was about 120 degrees.

"There is no rhyme or reason to it," he said.

A Valentine Cabaret

The student art auction brought out much interest. From left are: Erin Sutherland, Meredith Hansen and Jill DeMoulin.

Christine DeVaughn sings 'Always and Forever' for the Valentine Cabaret at Kimball's by the Sea last month.

Katherine Andrews plays her flute. Her solo was well received.

Fun-filled fund-raiser

The CHS Arts Boosters enjoyed an evening filled with the fruits of local talent last month at the annual Valentine Cabaret at Kimball's by the Sea.

The event is a fund-raiser for the parents' group. This year it was once again a rousing success.

The evening began with an auction of work done under the direction of CHS art teacher Colleen Lucas.

From there the night progress to serious entertainment.

Joanna Horn and Karla Kennedy dance to their own choreography of 'Jellicle Ball' from 'Cats.'

Alyson James sings 'Put a Little Love in Your Heart' to the accompaniement of Bryan Marks, the evening's master of ceremonies.

SCHOOL NOTEBOOK

CHS Democracy in action

By Sue McNamara
Special to the Mariner

On March 4 seniors registered to vote for the first time in town, state, and national elections during the annual voter registration assembly at Cohasset High School sponsored by the Social Studies Department and the PSO. League of Women Voters member and PSO Representative Sue McNamara reflected on the Kuwaitis' return to their newly liberated country and their struggle for democratic rights. CHS students not only enjoy the democratic right to vote, they receive an education that enables them to debate openly both sides of an issue and to vote wisely.

Social Studies Department Chairwoman Patricia Keenan encouraged the students to participate in our democratic process, saying that 18-25 year olds have the lowest voting record in the nation. Students should question what their goals are for their community and country and vote for the candidates who best represent them. Voters have the unique opportunity to shape issues that directly affect them, like health care, child care, and the American role in the world.

Polly Logan, many times Republican National Committeewoman and currently State Committeewoman, urged the young women and men to become involved in our American democracy at all levels, to consider working on a campaign or as an intern in state government, exciting ways to meet people and to network. She advised the seniors to register as Republicans, the "winning team," which emphasizes private enterprise over government control.

Ron Goodwin, Democratic Town Committeeman and Town Registrar, said he demonstrated the spirit of "entrepreneurialship," one of Republican Governor Weld's buzzwords, almost 20 years ago, when he graduated from Cohasset High School and, a few years later, started his own tee shirt business at his kitchen table. He cautioned that private enterprise does not always protect the common good, the environment, or public education, so the role of government espoused by the Democrats is crucial.

Town Counsel Rich Henderson outlined the legal rights and responsibilities of 18 year olds, including the right to own property, to enter into legal contracts, to practice medicine, and to be tried as an adult. Some responsibilities concurrent with these rights are the obligation of males to register with the selective service and the responsibility of all citizens to vote. The April 6 Town Meeting represents Cohasset's legal governing body and, as registered voters, students can participate in town decisions, like appropriations for town and school facilities.

Cohasset High School secretary and town registrar Linda Shultz encourages all 18 year old students to register with her in the main office or in the Town Clerk's office at Town Hall. The deadline to register to vote in the April 13 Town Election is March 15 and, for the May 18 Town Override Election, April 12. Residents who will be out of town on any election day can vote absentee through the Town Clerk's office.

PSO candidates sought

The PSO Nominating Committee has convened to prepare a slate of nominees for the 1991-1992 Executive Board. A list of candidates will be mailed to the general membership in April and voted into office at the Annual Meeting on May 2.

If you would be interested in serving on the Executive Board, would like to make a recommendation, or would like more information, please contact any nominating committee member: Joan Pyfrom, Chairman, 383-1428, Judy Simmons, 383-6220, Joan Kovach, 383-6358, Barbara Meehan, 383-6785, Linda Gaston, 383-6627, Ruth Wilcox, 383-1827, and Elaine Smoot, 383-1195.

Policy vote on school age

The new rule on kindergarten age will come up for another school committee vote, in accordance with school policy.

The new rule is being posted throughout town to allow for any questions. Meanwhile prospective kindergartem parents will be invited to an orientation session on March 20.

The new rule calls for all children starting kindergarten to be five before school starts. That rule will not affect the children beginning kindergarten next September.

Vocational collaberation talks

There is some talk of asking South Shore Vocational Technical School to send a teacher to Cohasset.

The idea popped up at school committee Monday as the group talked about the high cost of vocational education.

School Committee Member Ralph Kidder pointed out that it costs $6,985 per pupil at South Shore VoTech. He said he would like to know more about the parts of that school budget where costs have drastically increased. Fuel is one of those items.

He did add that the overall increase for the VoTech is about 5 percent.

There are three students from Cohasset attending South Shore VoTech.

The committee plans to tour the vocational school after the town meeting and election.

CHS boys tennis coach Edward Amaral dies

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

Edward M. Amaral will be missed.

In addition to his friends and family, he'll be missed by the hundreds of students he came in contact with during his 20-year teaching career; by the dozens of kids he coached; and by his fellow teachers and coaches.

Those who knew, Amaral, 46, who succumbed to cancer March 6, say teaching and coaching for 'Eddie' were more than a job. His profession was a way of life.

'I TEACH KIDS'

When asked what do you teach? Amaral, a Hingham resident, would reply —'I teach kids' — recalled Hanover Supt. Dr. Robert P. Fox.

Edward Amaral

"He was teaching math but he was really teaching people," said Fox. "The values of life and what's important; that's what came through his classes as well as through his coaching.

"Ed was always in the hall between classes talking to a youngster or two. When he was sick, he would still call to see how a kid was doing.

"Because he was so people oriented, it was easy to forget how good he was at what he did," Fox recalled.

"He was an athlete himself. He strove to the be best and he mastered his art."

Amaral, who leaves his wife, Martha, and two sons, Justin, 15, and Michael, 12, began teaching math at Hanover High School in 1979. He started coaching boys' basketball in 1980.

He also coached the boys' tennis team at Cohasset High School for three years.

A member of the class of 1962 at Cardinal Spellman High School in Brockton, the Bridgewater native graduated from St. Francis Xavier College in Antigonish, Nova Scotia, and then returned to Cardinal Spellman to teach and coach.

Cardinal Spellman athletic director, Peter Ambrose, says there was no one quite like Amaral.

"I came to Cardinal Spellman in 1959 when Eddie was a sophomore here," recalled Ambrose, who encouraged Amaral to attend his alma mater, St. Francis Xavier College.

"Eddie was an outstanding athlete; he was captain of three sports and was the first one inducted into the Cardinal Spellman Hall of Fame," he said.

ALL-CANADIAN HONORS

In college, Amaral played four years of varsity football and set a record by scoring more than 100 points in a single season — a feat that garnered him All-Canadian honors. After graduation, Amaral passed up an offer to play professional football in the Canadian Football League to pursue a career in teaching and coaching.

"When he graduated from St. Francis Xavier, he went right on to the faculty here at Cardinal Spellman," recalled Ambrose.

In 1970, Amaral received a Masters Degree of Education in Administration from Bridgewater State College.

Ambrose said that Amaral left Cardinal Spellman in 1979 to teach in the Hanover public schools where the pay scale for teachers is higher than in parochial schools. Ambrose recalled that the decision to leave Cardinal Spellman, a parochial school , was a difficult one for Amaral.

"But Eddie had a financial commitment to his family," he said.

"Eddie was a very, very outstanding person. He had a great rapport with the kids. He had great insight into things that bother kids. He was a teacher of kids more than a teacher of math," said Ambrose.

"I know rationally that Eddie is at peace now. But it's a tremendous loss — someone that young with so much more to give.

'THAT EXTRA MILE'

"It is rare today to find in education someone who will go that extra mile — Eddie would go an extra five miles

Coach Eddie Amaral: An appreciation

By Mike Hardman
Mariner staff

His team had just lost a big tournament game.

Most coaches would have been sulking, but Eddie Amaral was doing what he did best.

He was teaching. In his classroom was a group of sportswriters.

The team the Indians had just lost to was Dorchester, who had this big center Eugene Miles. At 6'11", he presented a problem for the much smaller Hanover team.

"There was only one way to prepare for Eugene," said Amaral. "I got up on a chair with a tennis racquet and swatted the ball away. I kept saying, "I'm Eugene, I'm Eugene." We had to get used to shooting over him."

When the session with the sportswriters was over, Amaral went off to find someone else to teach.

"During the day, I teach math," said Amaral. "In the afternoon I teach basketball. This is my classroom in the afternoon. I teach kids."

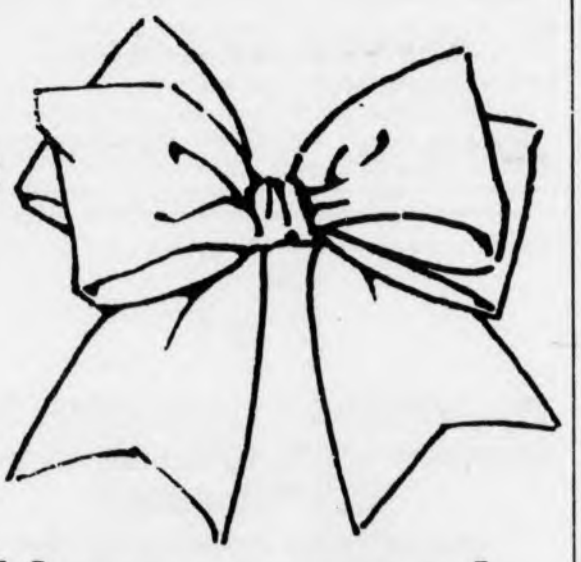
Amaral, 46, died March 6 at South Shore Hospital after battling prostate cancer for a year and a half. Even in the final days of his life, he taught his team from his bed. Not able to get out of it for more than a few minutes at a time, he still found the strength to keep involved with the Indians.

Instead of a whistle and a chalkboard, Amaral used another teaching device, his telephone. He kept in contact with assistant coach Fran Coyle, his long-time right hand man, and his team.

Hanover finished in second place in the South Shore League with a 15-5 record, defeating Randolph in overtime in the tournament before losing to Sharon in the second tourney game.

In Eddie Amaral's obituary, it said he was a basketball coach, but he was more than that. In an era where role models and heroes are hard to find, Amaral was clearly the exception.

He was a hero first. The 1962 Cardinal Spellman graduate was a standout in all sports. The kind of guy everyone dreams of being.



Wearing number 19, he was a football flash. The running back was one of the top five scorers in the state in 1961 as the Cardinals won the state Class C title.

"We were a running club," said Amaral. "We were not a throwing club. Peter Ambrose's club never changed a

BULLETIN BOARD

Annual Easter egg hunt

The Cohasset Recreation Department will conduct the 15th annual Easter Egg Hunt, for children 3 to 11 years, on Saturday, March 30, at noon at Deer Hill School.

This year there is again the distinct possibility that the Easter Bunny and helpers will be on hand. There also will be live animals at this year's hunt, as well as the other attractions.

Children will be divided into 3 separate chronological groups:

Group 1—Ages 3 and 4 (with parent). Younger than 3 may also attend, but with at least one parent at all times.

Group 2—Ages 5-7

Group 3—Ages 8-11

Please gather around your designated area sign before noon. Bring a small paper bag or container for your candy.

Individually wrapped chocolate eggs will be scattered about the designated areas. In each group some of the eggs will be wrapped with masking tape that will have a number on the tape. Should you find one of the numbered eggs, hold on to it as you will receive a prize from the Easter Bunny.

This year's program sponsors are: Cohasset Rotary Club, Veterans of Foreign Wars-Post 9146, American Legion Post #118, The Cohasset Police Association, and the Chamber of Commerce.

Rain date will be on Saturday, April 6, at noon, Deer Hill School Field.

During the past years, the Easter Bunny and helpers have visited Cohasset residents who are hospitalized or homebound, during the Easter season. Should you know of anyone that you feel could benefit from a visit by the Easter Bunny and helpers, you may call either the Recreation Department office at, 383-6791, or you may call Jean Salvador, and in either case, arrangements will be made.

Register for recreation

The Cohasset Recreation Department will begin registrations during March for a number of Spring Children's Programs scheduled to begin the week of April 22. These programs are available due to the expanded use of our Revolving Account Fund last month. Program schedule is as follows and details will be available during March:

Mondays—Grades k-3—Soccer clinic, after school, 5 p.m., Osgood School Field.

Tuesdays—Grades 4-6—Soccer clinic, after school, 5 p.m., Deer Hill School Field.

Wednesdays—Grades k-3—Sports and Games, after school, 5 p.m., Osgood School Field.

Thursdays—Grades 4-6—Sports and Games, after school, 5 p.m., Deer Hill School Field.

Saturdays—Grades k-3—Sports and Games, 9 to 11 a.m.

Grades 4-6, Sports and Games, 12 to 2 p.m., Osgood School Field.

Each program will be eight weeks in duration and the fee structure will be approximately $20-$25 for the eight weeks and discounts for second and subsequent children will be available as well as fee reductions/ waivers upon request. The programs will be conducted by Cohasset Recreation Department Staff members. Registration details will be forthcoming soon. The concept of the above programs are to provide youngsters the opportunity and benefits incumbent upon structured activities, games and sports. While soccer clinics will consist of instruction, an emphasis will also be placed on play, affording children more "hands on" experience, exercise and fun. Low-organized games and sports will be provided for children simply for fun and exercise within a structured environment.

Computers offer benefits

Accountants have taken to computers like ducks to water, and for many good reasons. A couple of the most obvious are time savings and organization. However, there are many other important benefits that accountants have derived from the use of this technology. Tune in to "THE BUSINESS SHOW" on Wednesday, March 20, at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 53 and see what some of these other benefits are. Host Steve Toner will interview Joseph Priscella, CPA, about some of the more creative things that accountants are doing with computers these days.

for a kid."

Amaral not only left his mark in the classroom but on the basketball court.

Amaral was selected as Coach of the Year in 1980 by the Massachusetts Basketball Coaches Association and was inducted in the MBCA Hall of Fame on Nov. 9, 1990.

The winning trophy for the annual 'Viking Winter Classic', a high school basketball tournament sponsored by East Bridgewater High School, has been named the Edward Amaral Championship Trophy in Amaral's memory.

The Hanover High Indians won the event this year.

"Ed's team won and the captains took the trophy and walked into the bleachers and presented it to Ed's father," recalled Al Smith, who is athletic director at East Bridgewater High School. Amaral's parents Manuel and Eleanor Amaral still reside in Bridgewater where Amaral grew up.

Due to his illness, Amaral was unable to attend the tournament.

"That (players' actions) says a lot about him," said Smith, who speaks of Amaral as a colleague and a friend.

"He was a truly dedicated man — not just for the athletes but for the students as well," he said.

B.J. Flynn, who is in his final year at Suffolk University Law School, reflects on his senior year at Hanover High in 1983 when the Indians boys' basketball squad went 20-0.

'INFLUENCED MY LIFE'

"I can't say enough about him (Amaral) personally," said Flynn, who graduated from Holy Cross. "Besides my parents, he was the greatest influence in my life by steering me in the right direction."

And Flynn noted that Amaral was much more than a coach.

"What I'll remember most about those years (high school) was the style of the whole basketball program.

"Mr. Amaral made you look forward to the next season. He cared about you outside of sports."

Hanover High School principal, Tom Nee, said that Amaral set a fine example for students and faculty.

"He'll really be missed here at the high school," said Nee. "Ed had a reputation for bringing the best out of his basketball players. The same was true in the classroom; he got the best out of the modest student.

"His students learned math, and his philosophy of life — about honesty, hard work, and perseverance.

"And in the end, Ed was an example in courage for all of us."

An appreciation for Ed Amaral

helluva lot over the years. His clubs have never thrown the ball very much and we just ran the ball. I liked carrying the ball."

When he walked down the hallways at Spellman, all eyes turned to him.

"I had the biggest crush on him," said former Rockland High girls basketball coach Mary Lee Watson, a classmate of Amaral at Spellman. She also was inducted into the Massachusetts Basketball Hall of Fame with him this winter. "He was something. He was handsome and everybody loved him. All the girls would crash into the lockers when he walked by."

After graduating in 1962, Amaral followed in Ambrose's footsteps by attending St. Francis Xavier in Nova Scotia. He was a star there, too. His college team finished with a 41-3 record and was called the "Notre Dame of Canada" in a Time Magazine story.

When his college days were finished, Amaral came back to Spellman in 1966 to teach match and coach football, basketball and baseball. He stayed for 13 years before moving over to Hanover in 1978 to replace the legendary Harry Gerrish as the boys basketball coach.

At various times, he coached freshmen football and boys tennis.

"I like to go in the gym at 2:30 in the afternoon and teach," said Amaral. "By the end of the season, I like to see my teams get better. We try to improve every day."

The Indians did just that every year. Some years, Amaral's clubs were loaded with talent. Other years, the Indians used their knowledge and the coach's talents to squeak into the tourney. He ended up with a 254-144 record and more friends than most.

When he learned he had cancer in the winter of 1989, Amaral tried to keep things quiet. He was worried about how it would look for him to being talking about dealing with cancer. Heroes don't want sympathy.

Through the athletic grapevine, people learned about his battle with the dreaded disease. He started to show the effects of battling cancer. Some days were harder than others, but Amaral refused to quit.

"I'm going to fight it," said Amaral last winter. "I'm going to take it one day at a time. Pray for me, Michael."

We all prayed for Eddie Amaral, the teacher. He will be missed, but not forgotten.

SPORTS

Brennock is most spirited

After cheering for the home basketball games at Cohasset High School this season, the Cohasset cheerleaders closed out the season with an impressive showing of hard work and talent on Feb. 9 at the South Shore League Competition at Abington High School.

"They did a great job," said coach Ruthann Sargent.

Members of the Cohasset Cheerleading squad included: senior co-captain Tracey Stohl, junior co-captain Lisa Kondrat, senior Allyson James, junior Heather Brennock, sophomore Crystal Plummer, freshman Karen Kristianson, Dawn Meehan, Julie Cox, Jennifer Cox, Alison DeLorenzo and Laura Slotnick.

Junior Heather Brennock was voted by her teammates to receive the Most Spirited and Enthusiastic Award at the season's end.

Men's soccer league set

A soccer league for adult men over 21 is being formed.

Informal pick-up scrimmages will be scheduled Wednesdays from 5:30 to dark beginning April 1 at Norwell Junior High field.

Over 30's and over 40's are encouraged to participate. Call Steve Chase at 659-1385.

Amateur gardeners

Members of the Amateur Gardeners of Cohasset will meet on Tuesday, March 19, at 1 p.m. at the home of Mary Edmonds with Sue Fone assisting as Co-hostess.

The program "Easter Decorations" will be presented by Jean Syrnopoulis.

Cohasset Tigers ice out Norwood by 4 to 2

By John Kinchla
Special to the Mariner

On Saturday, March 9, Cohasset jumped to an early 1 to 0 lead on the first of Tim Conroy's two slapshot blasts and Cohasset Goalie, Jeff Stone was never severely tested as he was protected by a strong defense as the Cohasset Tigers defeated Norwood 4 to 2.

Cohasset was successful in clearing the puck from their own end and in keeping it in the Norwood end. Defenseman, Conroy's two goals were both low rockets from the point. Defensemen, Conroy, Kevin Mulcahy and Charlie Shields (1 goal) impacted on the Cohasset win by slowing the Norwood attack at the Red Line. They played an important part in Cohasset's win.

Also playing an important part in Cohasset's win was Sophomore Co-Captain Mike Reynolds. Reynolds scored the winning goal on a rebound of his own breakaway. Charlie Shields also scored with an assist from Brendan Kinchla and Kevin Mulcahy.

Fiori's Exxon on Route 3A is the sponsor of the "Tigers" the Cohasset High School team in the Pilgrim Arena's Spring/Summer Developmental Hockey program.

The Tiger's roster has grown from twelve players last Spring to twenty four players this Spring. Some new players that deserve mention for their play against Norwood are Dan DeMichele, Mike Shields, Matt Kramers and John Murphy. Veteran players John Kinchla, Pat Reynolds, Matt Graves, Anthony Wigmore and Brian Buckley also played a good game. Winger Chris McKenna was injured but is expected to return to the lineup. The teams next game is against Quincy at 3:50 p.m. March 17 at the Pilgrim Arena in Hingham. All games are free to the public. Spectators are welcome.

The following are the players on the Tigers roster.

Kevin Mulcahy, 11th Grade, Co-Captain; Mike Reynolds, 10th Grade, Co-Captain; John Murphy, 11th Grade; Matt Kramers, 10th Grade; Charles Shields, 11th Grade; Tim Conroy, 9th Grade; John Kinchla, 10th Grade; Jeff Stone, 11th Grade; Matt Graves, 9th Grade; Brian Buckley, 10th Grade; Chris McKenna, 7th Grade; Patrick Reynolds, 7th Grade; Anthony Wigmore, 8th Grade; Brendan Kinchla, 8th Grade; Mike Shields, 8th Grade; Dan DeMichele, 11th Grade; Jeff Tosi, 7th Grade; Charles Smith, 10th Grade, Injured; Charles Endris, 9th Grade Summer Program; Ryan Cibelli, 11th Grade, Summer Program; Jared Graves, 8th Grade; Mike Riley, 9th Grade; Jay Nothnagle, Manager, 9th Grade; Daniel Kinchla, Waterboy, 1st Grade.

John Kinchla - Coach
John Murphy, John Conroy, Asst. Coaches.

Members of the Lady Skippers basketball team move fast during recent action. The winter season just ended.

Junior to People's Savings Bank of Brockton dated November 10, 1986 and recorded with Norfolk County Registry of Deeds book 7316 page 718 has filed with said court a bill in equity for authority to foreclose said mortgage in the manner following: by entry to foreclose and by exercise of power of sale set forth in said mortgage.

If you are entitled to the benefits of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940 as amended, and you object to such foreclosure, you or your attorney should file a written appearance and answer in said court at Dedham on or before April 11, 1991 or you may be forever barred from claiming that such foreclosure in invalid under said act.

Witness, Robert L. Steadman, Esquire, Chief Justice of our Superior Court, the 28th day of February in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ninety one.

Nicholas Barbados,
Clerk

PUBLIC NOTICE

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
THE TRIAL COURT
THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT DEPARTMENT
NORFOLK DIVISION
DOCKET NO. 90P1661C1
NOTICE OF FIDUCIARY'S ACCOUNT

To John F. Sturman and to the Mass. Department of Mental Health and to all persons interested in the estate of John F. Sturman, III late of Cohasset, in said County, deceased, a person under conservatorship.

You are hereby notified pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 72 that the first account(s) of Ellen A. Shapiro, Conservator (the fiduciary) of the property of said John F. Sturman, III has been presented to said Court for allowance.

If you desire to preserve your right to file an objection to said account(s), you or your attorney must file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before the 10th day of April, 1991, the return day of this citation. You may upon written request by registered or certified mail to the fiduciary, or to the attorney for the fiduciary, obtain without cost a copy of said account(s). If you desire to object to any item of said account(s), you must, in addition to filing a written appearance as aforesaid, file within thirty days after said return day or within such other time as the Court upon motion may order a written statement of each such item together with the grounds for each objection thereto, a copy to be served upon the fiduciary pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 5.

WITNESS, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court, this twentieth day of February, 1991.

SENIOR CENTER NEWS

By Kathy Bryanton
Special to the Mariner

Almost anyone can develop a drinking or medication misuse problem, even people who have never had a drink or taken more than an aspirin before becoming a misuser.

Both over-the-counter and prescription drugs can be trouble, especially sleeping pills, tranquilizers and pain pills. Later life can be a time of great losses as the people we love die, we retire, we have new money worries and some of us face bad health. Also, as we age, our bodies change so that drinking or misusing drugs can seem to help at first, but in the end just makes new problems. One man who had never gotten drunk when he was younger says, "One day I returned early and discovered my friends having drinks in the recreation room (of a retirement center). Late that afternoon I found myself accepting my first relaxing drink... Later I was to reason that the afternoon drink was made to order to perk me up, to combat nerves, to whet a fragile appetite, to aid digestion... I spent my 67th birthday in the drunk tank, arrested for drunken driving."

COA ALCOHOL AND DRUG ABUSE EVENT

We live in a time when medical advances are happening faster than at any time in the past. Only ten years ago, less than half the medicines now in use were on the market. Partly because of the new drugs, more people live longer, they are healthier, and they are far more independent than in past generations. Today's older people in particular benefit from new medicines. But with these benefits come risks. Drugs are powerful substances — and if they're not used carefully, the consequences can be serious. Drugs can affect different people in different ways. People can sometimes forget whether or not they took a medicine. They might have trouble keeping track of what to take and when. Because elderly people generally take more medicines than anyone else, they naturally run a greater risk of having problems with drugs. But these risks can be avoided. If you know how to prepare for a visit to your doctor, what questions to ask, how to take medicines, and what side effects to watch out for, you can cut down the risk of having bad reactions.

TAKING RESPONSIBILITY

Medicines now control many diseases that were crippling or fatal in the past — diseases such as arthritis, diabetes, high blood pressure, and some heart ailments. But the more new medicines there are, the most important it is for the patient to take responsibility for using them properly. In this world of medical specialist, advanced technology, and new medicines that act in ways you don't understand, you — the patient — still must make the major decisions about your own health. You are not alone, of course, for your doctors, pharmacists, and other health professionals are there to help you. But how you use their advice is up to you. For information, call 383-9112.

SHINE UP-DATE

The Cohasset Council on Aging will host a panel discussion March 20 to mark National Women's Awareness Month. The program entitled Today's Decisions, Tomorrow's Choices will examine the many credit and banking issues facing women today. Our speakers will include Carol Ryan, a home economist with the Norfolk County Extension Program; Deidre Keefe, an attorney who specializes in wills and trusts; and Pam Lawlor from the Credit Data Bureau of New England. The program will be held at the Cohasset Council on Aging, 3 North Main St., Cohasset, on March 20 from 1 to 3 p.m. Pre registration is recommended. Call Council on Aging at 383-9112.

THE HEALTH CARE PROXY LAW

This law was signed into effect by Governor Dukakis in December. This important piece of legislation allows an individual to appoint a friend or relative as a health care agent. The agent can make medical decisions for you if you become sick or injured and are unable to speak for yourself. Health Proxy forms are available free of charge from the Executive Office of Elder Affairs. To receive one, send a stamped self-addressed envelope to the Office of Elder Affairs, 38 Chauncy St., Boston, Ma. 02111. This form can also be obtained at the Cohasset Council on Aging Office. You do not need a lawyer in order to fill out the form but the agent you appoint should be well informed about your health care wishes. For more information call 383-9112.

SHINE NEWS:

On Tuesday, March 19, Bob O'Byck is the Blue Cross/Blue Shield representative. He will speak on Medex changes for 1991. He will focus on the new rates, the new mail order prescription drug benefits and how the 1991 changes in Medicare will affect the Medex supplements. Please plan to come and bring your questions to this most informative session.

SS VoTech builds niche

By Donna Cogliano
Mariner correspondent

The South Shore Regional Vocational Technical High School is embarking on a new shared course of study with Proctor & Gamble of Quincy. Dr. Clifford Easton, Supt. of South Shore Vocational Technical High School in Hanover, spoke to the Cohasset school committee members at their Monday meeting.

During his 45-minute presentation, Easton outlined the new partnership with Proctor & Gamble along with other budget concerns.

Cohasset school officials are interested in using the help the VoTech could offer. The town is a member of the regional district. Three students currently attend the VoTech.

School comittee member Chris Ford spoke about the senior class members with spring fever who could benefit possibly from a culinary arts course.

School committee member Russ Reidy also mentioned that course offerings at South Shore VoTech could be very valuable to a student and used later in life.

Ford said, "Some of them might decided not to go on to college. They could get so immersed in this."

School committee chairman Barbara Bliss spoke of exposing students and parents early on to the program offerings at the South Shore VoTech High School. "Maybe even sixth grade isn't too soon. There are students that will benefit so much more from your program than ours," she said. Bliss would like to see the guidance department try and sell the VoTech program better.

School committee member Nancy Sandell also favored sixth graders visiting the school. "There's nothing like seeing a facility. You have to see it to believe it," said Sandell.

Easton expressed his enthusiasm about Proctor &

Varsity lacrosse counts on using volunteer staff

By Donna Cogliano
Mariner correspondent

Lacrosse lovers have taken to the fields of Cohasset High School. More than 50 boys are expected to take part in tryouts for the school's first varsity lacrosse season ever.

Varsity status has added prestige and commitment to a new sport at CHS.

Led by a volunteer coaching staff, the Skippers will open their rookie season on April 2 at Xaverian. In addition to the volunteer coaches, the lacrosse boys are paying for their own equipment which accounts for about $200 each.

Lacrosse athletes are outfitting themselves with sticks, helmets, gloves, pads and cleats this season. Shirts are being supplied to team members through funding of the user fee. The team's user fee is $75 per student if you play one sport or $50 of $25 if you participate in two or three sports respectively.

Cohasset head coach Ken Ekberg is donating his expertise along with assistant coach Terry Kahn. Ekberg brings a wealth of lacrosse experience having played three years at the University of Massachusetts in

Unemployment hits 6.2 %

By Joseph Mont
Mariner staff

Although Cohasset's unemployment rate is on the rise, it still falls far short of the state average.

Cohasset's unemployment rate in 1990 was 6.2 percent, more than three points lower than the most recent state average.

The figures, supplied by the labor commission, show that Cohasset, while not immune to the economic downswing, it is holding up well in the face of a recession.

The most recent statistic available, only covers through the end of last year, so it is likely that the current rate is at least slightly higher.

The state average rose to from 8.6 percent in January to its current level of 9.3 percent.

The U.S. average is 6.5 percent.

Despite holding its own against the state rate, Cohasset has still seen its unemployment rate nearly double from the salad days of the "Massachusetts Miracle".

In 1987, when bumper stickers were proclaiming "Make it in Massachusetts," Cohasset's unemployment rate was a mere 3.5 percent.

The rate rose slightly over the next two years; the 1989 average was 3.9 percent.

In 1990 the rate dramatically increased up to 6.2 percent.

Over the past few months the effects of the recession have started to show.

Mary Hartwell of the Cohasset Social Service League said that her organization has seen an increased need for its services over the past few months.

She said the league's Meals on Wheels program, which provides meals five days a week to the town's elderly and infirm, has jumped from 11 customers at the end of last year to 23 over the past three months. She said that the number is still rising.

Although the program is not entirely determined by economics, shut-ins and injured residents also qualify, she suspects that the dramatic increase is partly due to the economic climate as some families find they can no longer afford to support their elderly relatives.

Hartwell said that the league also has a social worker who can help any resident with a need get in touch with financial assistance and counseling, regardless of age.

She said the league is set to start a new social worker next month to fill the recently vacated spot.

She said that over the past few months the caseload has increased and that work for the new social worker is already piling up.

Hartwell said that the increased need for assistance in these tough times will probably get worse over the next few years.

"The trend is not going to see a decrease, it will probably just keep going up," she said.

She said that the economic downturn persuaded her organization to increase the hours of operation at the Cohasset Consignment Shop. The shop accounts for one third of the league's operating expenses.

"We saw the trend coming and decided that with the poor economy we would extend the shop," she said.

So far, the move has been profitable and the shop has shown increased business, she reported.

Local aid cuts deeply opposed

By Andrew MacLellan
Mariner correspondent

Selectmen met this week with state representative Mary Jeannette Murray to discuss legislative reaction to local aid cuts to cities and towns.

Murray, who opposes cuts to local aid, admitted that there was a feeling in the legislature that towns will have to make more cuts, even if it means reducing employee wages.

Selectman Ned Tebbetts called Gov. William Weld's attitude towards the towns' sharing of the state's financial burden a "flagrant and unequivocal violation of his campaign commitment."

Selectman Diana D. Kornet chimed in, addressing Murray, "I'd like to hear some noise about why we need proposition 2 1/2. When the state was flush it bailed out local towns but it can't be said that there is any more fat left.

"2 1/2 percent was pulled out of the air and it doesn't make sense to load state burdens onto towns after 10 years of cutting. In a small town like Cohasset there is no question of cutting back it's a question of cutting out."

COHASSET'S WEEK

CCC backs off

The Community Center this week withdrew its proposal to take over and operate the recreation department although no reason was given to selectmen.

More traffic lights on 3A

A request to selectmen by planning board member Daniel Cotton to consider placing a traffic light at the junction of King Street and Route 3A was approved unanimously.

Citing an increase in the volume of traffic on route 3A due to the popularity of Cohasset Plaza, Cotton reminded the board of the initial commitment of plaza developer, Donald Staszko, to provide traffic hardware at the north end of King Street within a five year time frame, following completion of the project.

Selectmen acknowledged the safety hazard, especially in entering or exiting the Jonathan Livingston Mall, and Selectman Martha K. Gjesteby called for a petition because "even one accident is too many."

According to Cotton, an additional offer to place lights at the corner of Sohier Street and Route 3A would be obviated by the King Street lights.

A request to the DPW will be filed in order to instigate state action on the matter.

Election supper

The Beechwood Congregational Church will be holding its election supper Thursday March 21 at 6:30 p.m.

Holiday trees win backing

Selectmen also finished reviewing warrant articles for approval before town meeting.

The retail sale of "holiday trees" in Cohasset's business district was approved between the dates of November 26 and December 31.

Also approved was an amendment to the zoning by law which determines maximum coverage as set forth by the Table of Area Regulations. The amendment states that not more than 50 percent of wetlands and slopes greater than 45 degrees may be may be used in determining maximum coverage.

An article was approved to see if the town will vote to accept provision 494 of the Acts of 1989 which grant partial tax exemptions to homeowners who provide housing to the elderly. This provision would include only those homeowners who make improvements upon their property and would apply only for the duration of elderly residence.

Following a board of health recommendation, selectmen approved a ban on vending machines in Cohasset. Businesses could apply for a variance and permits would be awarded on a case by case basis.

Selectmen voted down a proposal to buy a new, $90,000 ambulance for the town, although Kornet determined that this item would be needed at some point in the future.

Articles concerning the expansion of the town's waste water disposal system were deferred until May so that selectmen could get a better idea as to the availability of funds following a budget override vote.

Basic skills displayed

Cohasset students have mastered the basic skills courses of reading, writing and arithmetic. Jack Leary, Director of Student Services, submitted a report to the school committe Monday which focused on the results for third graders, sixth graders and ninth graders.

The following percentages of third graders passed the basic skills tests in: reading 99%, math 97%, writing 96%.

Results for the sixth graders passing were: reading 95%, math 100%, writing 98%.

Ninth graders passed the tests with: reading 96%, math 99%, writing 98%.

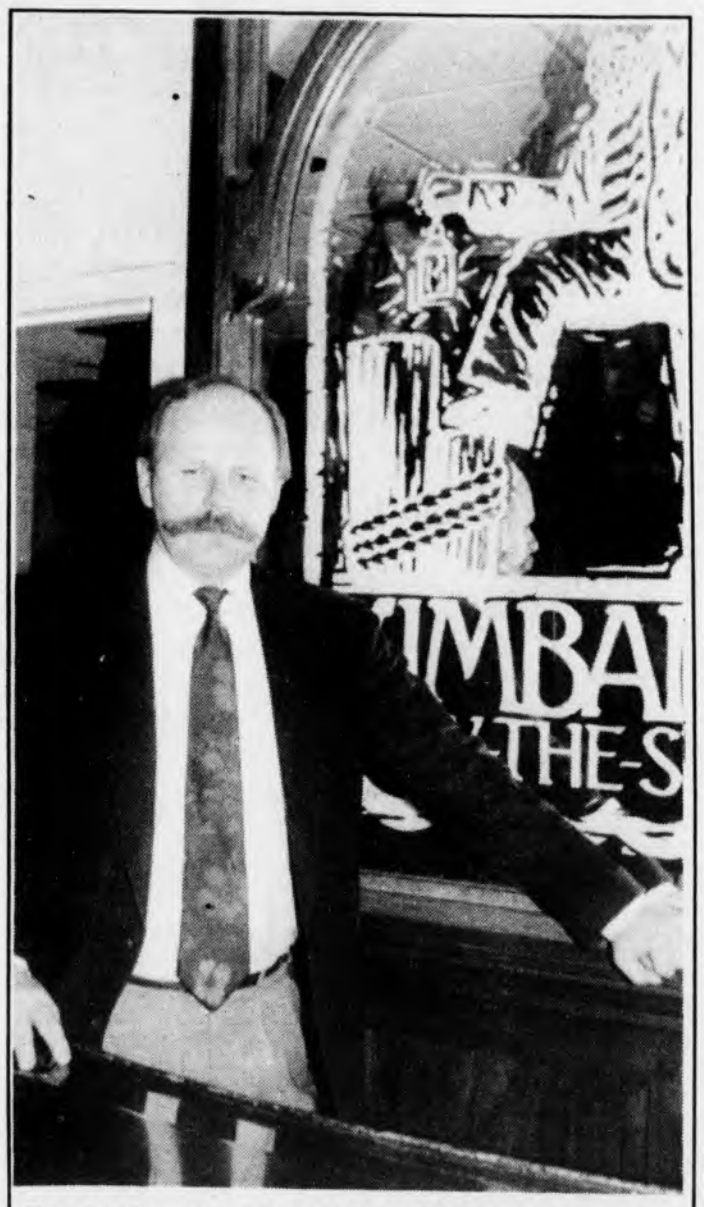
"In essence our kids have mastered the basic skills," said Leary.

Graduation requirements

Graduation requirements were updated Monday night by Cohasset High School principal Meg Gallagher.

Students graduating this year need to earn 90 points. Gallagher told the committee that students graduating in 1992 need 95 credits while those graduating in 1993 require 100 credits to graduate. She said the increase in required credits was to insure that students were taking a full load of five classes.

In other news, Gallagher told the school committe that the attendance policy would be added to the student handbook this summer.



The attendance policy means that 20 absences in a year would result in failure of that class. Ten absences in a semester would result in a failure and five misses in a quarter would result in a failed class.

Gallagher reported that seniors are aware of the attendance policy. She said that English teachers will notify students three days after the close of the third quarter regarding any attendance problems.

New York trip approved

A group of some 30 Cohasset High School students will be singing at the Big Apple Festival on May 3-5. The school committee approved the trip to New York City by a vote of 5-0 on Monday.

School Supt. Stephen Hart said, "It sounds like it will be a good opportunity for them."

Dan Leahy, manager of Kimball's By the Sea, was one of the dozen of so interested residents at the planning board hearing last Thursday. After listening to the arguments against the bylaw to limit window advertising, the planning board decided to drop its proposed town meeting article. Another article to restrict warehousing was also withdrawn by the planning board. Five others — including one to allow the sale of 'holiday' trees will be brought to the April 6 Town Meeting.

South Shore Hospital offers a regional ambulance

By Joseph Mont
Mariner staff

South Shore Hospital has a plan to develop a regional advanced life support (ALS) mabulance service.

An ALS equipped van staffed with paramedics would be based at the Weymouth hospital under the proposal which so far has only Hingham officials commenting publicaly.

The ALS service would be a supplement to a regular ambulance, not a replacement, according to officials involved in the project.

In order for the hospital to receive a determination of need for the service, the hospital would have to serve a population base of 100,000.

To achieve this base the five participating towns of Hingham, Hull, Cohasset, Norwell, and Scituate, would have to invite at least one other town into the program.

Hingham Selectman Chairman Edna English said recently that Dr. Leonard Winer, the town/hospital liaison has proposed three scenarios to meet the population requirement.

The first plan would add Weymouth, which already uses a private service, to boost the base up to 116,622.

The second proposal would pair the five towns with Abington, Hanover, Holbrook, Rockland and Whitman.

A third scenario would combine both plans, with the hope that if the population base went over 200,000 another vehicle could be added.

Hingham Fire Chief Richard Wehter, who attended the meetings at South Shore Hospital with English, said that he supported the proposal.

He said the ALS ambulance would be dispatched along with regular ambulance service according to an established protocol for need.

All costs and billing would be handled by the hospital and the service. It would cost nothing to the towns.

Winer's timetable has the hospital applying for a state Determination of Need by May 1.

Community Garden Club & Cohasset Garden Club

By Andrew MacLellan
Mariner correspondent

Cohasset Community Garden Club Chairperson Phyllis Peck's north bay window exhibit wins a blue ribbon in the amateur horticulture exhibit. Congratulations also to Mrs. Frederick Good Jr. on her award of the Thompson Bowl for her individual entry in the horticulture division.
(Andrew MacLellan photo)

For just more than one week the Bayside Expo Center was in full bloom, as towns from all over the northeast brought their flora and fauna to display at the 120th New England Flower Show.

Cohasset's garden clubs fared especially well in the competition, winning several trophies and ribbons in doing their part to bring spring to Boston a few weeks early.

The New England Flower Show is one of the oldest and largest of its kind in the world. It attracts throngs of visitors and exhibitors from as far away as Nova Scotia.

There probably isn't a nicer way to spend a day at the end of a dull and dreary winter than to enter this warehouse, transformed into a veritable Garden of Eden, and enjoy the melange of sights and smells.

However, this metamorphosis does not take place without without a good deal of sweat and labor.

Margaret Cotter, co-chairperson of the Cohasset Garden Club's "old field garden" exhibit, sighed, "It was a lot of work. We had to prepare our garden for nine or ten months. Betsy Hoopes (the exhibits other co-chair) designed the entire exhibit and then it took a long time to decide on which plants to use.

"The theme for this year's show was New England heritage and so all of the plants were expected to be local. We were only allowed a six week period of bloom, so we had to look into which plants could be easily forced to flower.

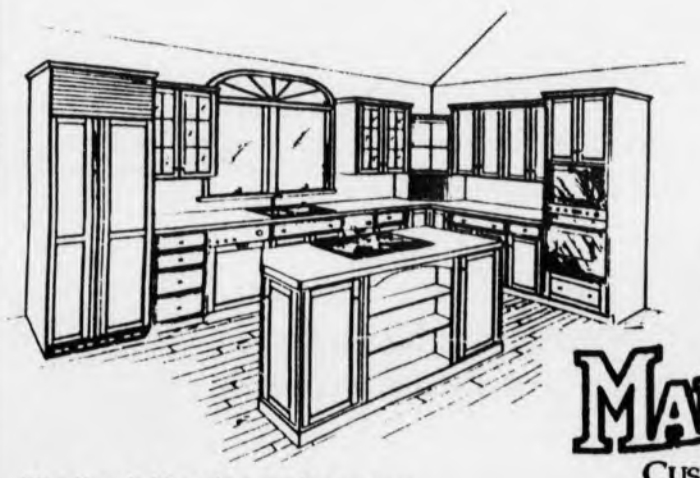
"After we picked our plants out, we had to send them up to a green house in New Hampshire where they were tended by Frank Wolfe. But we still had to drive up to check on them quite often."

Cohasset's garden was modeled after an area of farmland that has been allowed to revert to woodlands. According to Cotter, almost 70 percent of Massachusetts was at one time farmland, but much of it has since been abandoned and reclaimed by the forest.

"Almost everyone in the Garden Club worked on the exhibit," continued Cotter, "A group of four husbands rented a truck to transport the mulch and it took rather along time to get the topography just right."

Some of the plants represented in the garden were the crabapple and cedar tree, the foxglove, viburnum, verbascum and campanulas.

Thankfully, all of this hard work did not go unrewarded, as the Garden Club won a red ribbon and the Beacon Hill Garden Club Cup for the most charming garden in the exhibit. The club also won a cup for the most involved group in the show.



Cotter is currently studying landscape design at Radcliffe College and Hoopes is a graduate of the program.

Barbara M. Powers, a Cohasset resident and another graduate of the Radcliffe program, is the chairperson of the Amateur Horticulture Competition exhibit for the show.

Within this section, judges awarded the Cohasset Community Garden Club and chairperson Phyllis Peck a blue ribbon for their exhibit in the north bay window division.

In other competition, Mrs. Frederick Good Jr. won the William J. Thompson Flower Show Design Award for designing a garden exhibit, which educates the public by displaying plants in an original or creative manner.

Congratulations to all those who put so much time and effort into making the flower show a lasting part of New England tradition and see you next year.

The price of authenticity is surprisingly affordable...
When you purchase a piece of Eldred Wheeler furniture.

In this economy it pays to purchase furniture that has authentic construction and finish. Why? Because handcrafted furniture will endure like an antique while increasing in value over time.

So the choice is yours: buy a commercially produced bed that comes off a North Carolina assembly line and costs $1,300, or... buy our handmade bed for less.

It's time to visit us and take advantage of a special value being offered for a limited time

Cub Scout activities

By Linda Farrag

The Pack 38 Cub Scouts have been active these past months. The scouts participated in the Hanover Mall Scout Show. The Cohasset Scouts made a display of tools and showed some of the things they made with them. Linda Farrag's and Bob Dennis's Den 3 displayed their wooden puzzles and wooden hockey set they made. A photo display showed them working with a band-saw cutting the wood. Velm and Kevin Begley's Den 5 made a tool case. They showed the dimensions and the "before" and "after" of building. Den II made receipt holders for their parents. Den 4 showed their pinewood derby cars. The model was made by Mario Bruzzone. They also made a huge ice cream maker cylinder, which the group had used to help make their delicious ice cream. The Webelos had a variety of wooden items ranging from "Garfield" made by Greg Boyne, a Scout symbol key holder by John Paul Langelle and a tool kit by Kevin Devito. The boys explained the tools and their uses and were demonstrating the coping saws and other tools. It was a fun day. The other district Boy Scout Troops and races and the sailing races. Tents and camping scenes were clearly visible by the Scouts.

The Cubs now are preparing for their pinewood race at 6:30 p.m. The other Pack 38 Scouts will begin at 7 to 8 p.m. The Scouts must make their cars from a single block of wood. They carve, sand and paint their masterpieces in preparation for the miniature "Indy 500." Pinewood Derby Race.

Homemaking praised

"If ye are prepared, ye shall not fear." With this scripture in mind, the Homemaking leaders of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Hingham, have prepared a program on "Home Emergencies and How to Deal With Them" for the March homemaking meeting.

The Hingham Fire Department will instruct the women on fire prevention and the handling of hazardous waste. Mary Ann Zeller of Duxbury, a mother and nurse, will deal with emergencies that can occur with small children.

The meeting will start at 7 p.m. and is free.

SS VoTech builds niche

Gamble merging in the classrooms with South Shore VoTech. "I'm terribly excited," said Easton. "It begins to put training dollars in the schools. They're sharing as much interest as we are in them."

Ultimately, Easton sees that the partnership will benefit both groups involved.

Proctor & Gamble has proposed introducing a fully funded industrial technology course at South Shore VoTech which will mix students and adult employees of the company. Proctor & Gamble would pay the salaries of three instructors plus the costs for a full-time machine maintenance technician and a part-time project manager to oversee day-to-day operations.

In recent months, Proctor & Gamble and the VoTech have engaged in discussions to explore a mutual and supportive relationship. Initial talks indicated that Proctor & Gamble needed a well trained and updated workforce in the skills associated with basic to advanced and machine technology. But Proctor & Gamble did not have the means to deliver the required skills in a cost effective way, according to Easton.

The VoTech had the staff and space to actively respond to the training requirements of this industry but lacked the high tech equipment needed for training. In addition, the VoTech wanted to provide a broad based industrial technology program for high school students planning to pursue engineering careers or to enter technical careers directly after graduation.

Hartwell said that the league will soon begin distributing government surplus food again.

She said the league stopped participating in the program when the government stopped supplying free cheese, and the demand for the service dropped.

Now the demand is back, and government officials have announced that the cheese will soon be on its way.

Hartwell said that the government program, in response to the demand, will expand to include other food items, such as dried fruit.

Rep. Murray's brunch set

The Annual Fund-raiser Brunch for State Representative Mary Jeanette Murray (R) Third Plymouth District is set for April 7.

Lillian M. Murray, campaign chairman for the legislator, is also chairman of the Brunch which will be held at the South Shore Country Club.

This annual event is not only to raise funds but is also a social event.

Rep. Murray serves the people of Cohasset, Hingham and Hull. She is serving the first year of the eighth term.

Now you can afford to dream in color.

If you've been dreaming of affordable color, meet the new Macintosh® LC computer.

It's a new level of performance and responsiveness in the Macintosh family and, just as importantly, it's a complete Macintosh.

Whether you're in a business where color presentations would pique interest, or in a classroom where color would pique attention, the LC is the most affordable entry into color Macintosh computing.

Its sleek, new, modular design lets you add one of three Apple® monitors, without having to add a video card. And built-in sound capabilities let electronic mail and presentations be heard as well as seen.

Like other modular Macintosh computers, the LC is easy to expand. When equipped with the Apple IIe card, it can run software written for Apple IIe systems. With a communications card—such as the Apple Ethernet card—the LC can network with other computers.

So stop in and let us show you how easily color can take on a whole new value.

Then, go ahead and dream.

CANDIDATES CORNER

Terry Atherton

At the home of Steve and Amy Golden, planning board candidate Terry J. Atherton was asked about his qualification for the planning board and the reason why he was running for the position.

"Basically, I'm a planner by training and profession. I received a Master's degree in Transportation Planning from MIT in 1975 and for the past 16 years I've been a transportation planning consultant with Cambridge Systematics, a firm that is recognized internationally in the areas of transportation and economic development."

Atherton went on to explain that his experience has involved the analysis of a broad range of highway, mass transit and transportation policy alternatives for local, state and federal agencies throughout the United States and abroad.

"My training and experience in transportation planning has provided me with a firm understanding of the relationships between transportation and land use, the technical skills needed to evaluate the impacts of development proposals, and an understanding of and appreciation for the role of planning."

Atherton indicated that for several years now he has felt that his professional experience and training could be of use to the town, and that the open position on the planning board presented him with an opportunity to make a contribution.

"My family has benefited considerably from the time and efforts volunteered by others in Cohasset and I feel that serving as a member of the planning board would be a way for me to do my part in return."

Jean Simonds

Jean Simonds of 107 Nichols Road announced that as a native, born at 66 Margin Street, where here 101 year old mother still lives, she welcomes the opportunity to serve on the Planning Board. Simonds said that she wants to work for the preservation of Cohasset's natural beauty and charm as well as future planned growth that will enable the town and benefit the residents.

Simonds said she especially wants to cooperate with business leaders as well as homeowners to insure compliance with the zoning bylaw, amendments should be introduced from time to time.

Simonds believes that residents should be able to communicate readily with their elected officials and she is willing to talk to any citizens about her or his concerns. Simonds stressed that the great asset of her candidacy is that she has the time, interest and availability to listen and act on the concerns of the townspeople. Simonds concluded that presently there is no woman on the planning board and that Cohasset would benefit from the presence on the planning board of a woman homeowner who has thorough knowledge of and dedication to Cohasset's rich history.

Simonds will be speaking at several events, but anyone interested in attending a coffee or function should contact Chairman, Polly Logan, 383-0031; Treasurer, Richard Grinnell, 383-0614; Ed and Kay Lincoln, 383-0301, Richard Silvia, 383-0500; Edythe Ford, 383-1648; Margaret Charles, 383-0916; Barbara Dillon, 383-0025; Marge Dougherty, 383-9702; Locke Tousley, 383-0988; Arlene Ferreira, 383-9341; and Jane Tilden, 383-0307.

Curley announces candidacy

Benjamin F. Curley, retired water superintendent for the Town of Cohasset has announced his candidacy for Water Commissioner.

A life long resident of Cohasset, Curley was employed by the town's water department for 23 years; 10 as superintendent.

"The town of Cohasset has been good to me through the years. I was born and raised here." Curley explained. "Now that I am retired and have the time, I would like the opportunity to give something back."

Curley continued, "in light of the economic times, I will do my best to keep costs down and still maintain an efficient operation."

Curley's qualifications and accomplishments speak for themselves. As superintendent, he obtained approximately $1,000,000 in state matching grants to improve the town's water distribution system. Through his efforts, a leak detection program was completed within the town. The replacement and/or re-lining of 16,200 feet of water line was completed, as well as, the installation and/or replacement of twenty-three fire hydrants.

In the late eighties, Curley also reorganized the water meter rate structure so that everyone would pay a fair share.

Curley lives in Cohasset with his wife, Anne. They have two children, James Curley and Linda Litchfield. Two grandchildren, Brian and Kacy Litchfield.

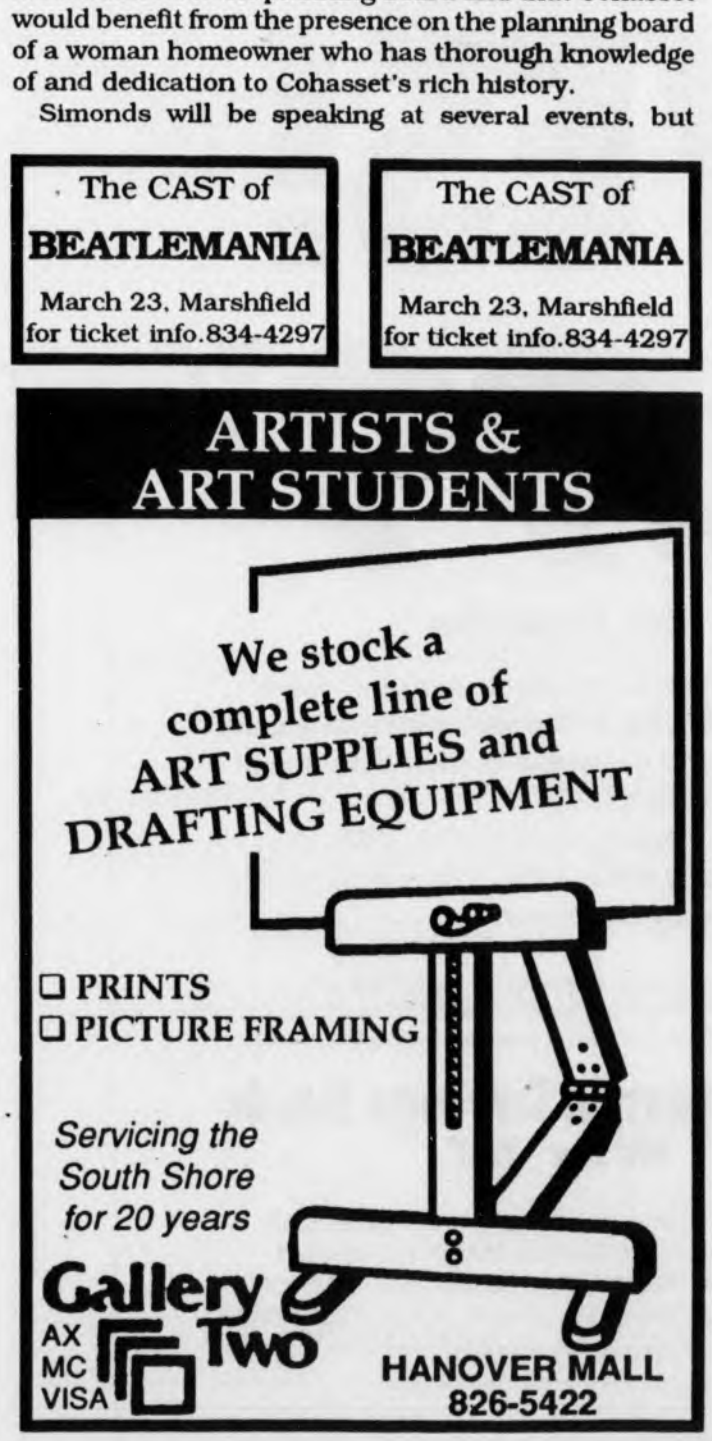
BULLETIN BOARD

AARP talks wills

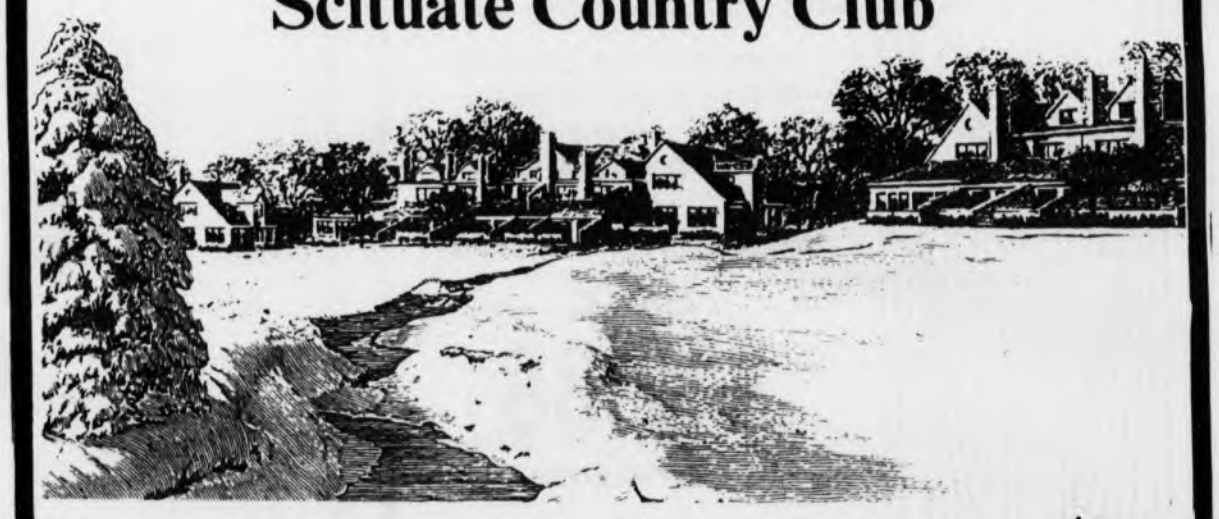
The next meeting of the South Shore Hingham Chapter #1139 of The American Association of Retired Persons will be on Thursday, March 28, at 1:30 p.m. at the Sons of Italy Hall, Route 3A, Hingham. The speaker will be Virginia Tierney who will speak about Durable Power of Attorney and Living Wills.

Refreshments will be served. Any member of the National AARP or NETA may join a chapter and is welcome at this meeting.

Red Cross dinner



Plans are well under way for the Red Cross 13th Annual Dinner Dance. This annual event will be held on Thursday, April 4, at the Lantana in Randolph. Social hour will be from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. with dinner to follow and dancing until midnight to the sounds of Soft Touch.



The American Red Cross is a non-profit organization whose funds have gone to such causes as aiding those affected by fire and natural disasters and providing emergency communication services to military families. This year the agency is hoping to raise much needed funds to support these and other services.

AROUND TOWN

❑ March 11 was a big night for Brian Sasso and Nate Caldwell. Both boys are in seventh grade and both earned Varsity Letters in Wrestling! That was the first time that Coach Torrence Sweeney had ever awarded a varsity letter to a seventh grade student, so you had better believe that all three were very proud of the boys' accomplishments!

❑ Another sporting news flash...Paul Bilodeau made the South Shore Junior Olympic Basketball Team (AAUAT). He and other South Shore 16-year olds and up will be traveling around the state. Paul is the son of Paul Bilodeau and Julie Thompson.

❑ Although the War is over in the Gulf, our boys aren't home yet. The American Legion Auxiliary Group wants to be sure that our boys know they aren't forgotten, so they are looking for cassettes that you can donate. At least our guys can listen to some tunes while they are waiting, and the ladies involved say that a package from home means as much now as ever. The thing is, they are being discouraged from sending bulky packages, so they came up with the idea of the audio cassettes. If you have any cassettes that you can donate, or wish more information, call Brenda Litchfield (545-2354), Brenda Innis (925-1267) or Jane Hamilton (383-6271). They will be happy to pick them up from you!

❑ Okay folks, please pay attention. If any of you have children of Little League age, now is the time for you to get your registration forms in. They are supposed to be in already, but you have been granted an extension. Pick up the forms from Jack Worley at the recreation office or at the library and mail them ASAP. The people in charge are rushing madly to fill teams, buy needed supplies, etc. Don't let your child be left "out in left field" because you forgot.

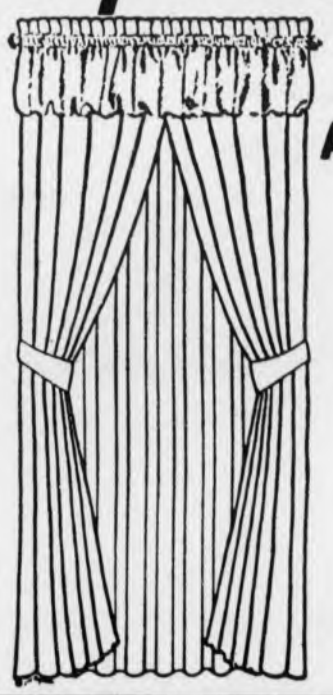
❑ Patty and Brian Connors, along with their eight-month-old twins, Ryan and Justin, have certainly put Cohasset on the map. Ryan and Justin were recently chosen out of 3000 entrants as the Grand Prize winners of the Baby Beautiful Contest sponsored by Parenting Magazine and Nikon. Aren't these boys just the cutest yet?

❑ The Cohasset High School Community Volunteer Service is holding a fund raiser at Papa Gino's on Monday, March 25, from 5 p.m. until closing. Please help them by eating there or taking out after 5. Any order, large or small, will help them to fund future projects!

❑ Good publicity can make all the difference, so kudos to Sally Wright who single-handedly did all of it for the recent Cohasset Dramatic Club's "Cheaper By The Dozen." Also, the "backstage backbone" of any production Yvonne Julian (producer) Gayle Varallo (director), Peggy Corrigan and Leslie McGee (stage managers), Angie Walsh (sets) Sally Rossie (costumes), Tom Finegan, Clark Young, Scott Isbrandt, Bobby Meehan, Bonnie Haley (lighting, sound, props). They made it all look so easy! And, thanks to all the parents who supported the cast through rehearsals, meals, etc....All combine to make good "Community Theatre" and we look forward to the next production!

❑ Marshfield...Road to Responsibility Inc., a Marshfield-based nonprofit organization providing work, residential and recreation services to developmentally disabled adults throughout the South Shore, recently elected its Board of Directors.

The Board of Directors includes Randall E. Nash of Cohasset, an attorney at Grady and Dwyer in Boston. Also, Katherine Detwiler of Scituate, Co-Proprietor of Buttonwood Books and Toys in Cohasset and former director of vocational programs at SSI, whose clients are now served by RTR.



❑ News from Trinity College in Hartford Connecticut. Matthew Drinkwater, son of Marifrances McIntosh of 96 Doane St. and Gary Drinkwater of Weymouth, was named to the faculty honors list for the fall semester. Matthew is a sophomore at Trinity.

❑ Received a note from the Glastonbury Abbey regarding their eighth annual auction to benefit them. It will be held at Hingham High School on March 23 with the preview to start at 1 p.m. The highlights listed are: One week on the island of St. John in the Virgin Islands; two-week period at Tower day camp in Hingham; Nantucket Basket; handmade Maine apple basket; two American Flyer S-gauge trains circa 1960 with track, locomotives, transformers, in mint condition; cannister set of Bacarian Lusterware; gift certificates; art; tickets to sporting playoffs, furniture, antiques, and much more! Be sure to check it all out, then go make your bid.

That's the news from here, please be sure to let us know what is new with you!

RECREATION REPORT

Register for recreation

The Cohasset Recreation Department will begin registrations during March for a number of Spring Children's Programs scheduled to begin the week of April 22. These programs are available due to the expanded use of our Revolving Account Fund last month. Program schedule is as follows and details will be available during March:

Mondays—Grades k-3—Soccer clinic, after school, 5 p.m., Osgood School Field.

Tuesdays—Grades 4-6—Soccer clinic, after school, 5 p.m., Deer Hill School Field.

Wednesdays—Grades k-3—Sports and Games, after school, 5 p.m., Osgood School Field.

Thursdays—Grades 4-6—Sports and Games, after school, 5 p.m., Deer Hill School Field.

Saturdays—Grades k-3—Sports and Games, 9 to 11 a.m.

Grades 4-6, Sports and Games, 12 to 2 p.m., Osgood School Field.

Each program will be eight weeks in duration and the fee structure will be approximately $20-$25 for the eight weeks and discounts for second and subsequent children will be available as well as fee reductions/ waivers upon request. The programs will be conducted by Cohasset Recreation Department Staff members. Registration details will be forthcoming soon. The concept of the above programs are to provide youngsters the opportunity and benefits incumbent upon structured activities, games and sports. While soccer clinics will consist of instruction, an emphasis will also be placed on play, affording children more "hands on" experience, exercise and fun. Low-organized games and sports will be provided for children simply for fun and exercise within a structured environment.

Annual Easter egg hunt

The Cohasset Recreation Department will conduct the 15th annual Easter Egg Hunt, for children 3 to 11 years, on Saturday, March 30, at noon at Deer Hill School.

This year there is again the distinct possibility that the Easter Bunny and helpers will be on hand. There also will be live animals at this year's hunt, as well as the other attractions.

Children will be divided into 3 separate chronological groups:

Group 1—Ages 3 and 4 (with parent). Younger than 3 may also attend, but with at least one parent at all times.

Group 2—Ages 5-7

Group 3—Ages 8-11

Please gather around your designated area sign before noon. Bring a small paper bag or container for your candy.

Individually wrapped chocolate eggs will be scattered about the designated areas. In each group some of the eggs will be wrapped with masking tape that will have a number on the tape. Should you find one of the numbered eggs, hold on to it as you will receive a prize from the Easter Bunny.

This year's program sponsors are: Cohasset Rotary Club, Veterans of Foreign Wars-Post 9146, American Legion Post #118, The Cohasset Police Association, and the Chamber of Commerce.

Rain date will be on Saturday, April 6, at noon, Deer Hill School Field.

During the past years, the Easter Bunny and helpers have visited Cohasset residents who are hospitalized or homebound, during the Easter season. Should you know of anyone that you feel could benefit from a visit by the Easter Bunny and helpers, you may call either the Recreation Department office at, 383-6791, or you may call Jean Salvador.

Kites will fly April 14

What better way to enjoy a beautiful spring day than by flying a kite? Youngsters in grades 4-6 can create and decorate their own in "Kites and More Kites," an April vacation workshop at the South Shore Art Center in Cohasset.

First through third graders can travel back in time to the days of the Round Table in "Medieval Journey" where they'll create castles, gargoyles, coats of arms and more. Preschoolers can discover the joy of painting and design in "Painting and Color."

Other workshops include "Craft Keepsake" for grades 4-6; "Drawing and Painting" and "Ornamental Jewelry" for grades 1-3. For more information about April vacation workshops or our spring term courses beginning April 23, please call 383-9548.

Flexibility is a virtue

Last Thursday, March 14, the planning board held a public hearing on the seven zoning bylaw articles proposed for town meeting action on April 6.

All seven articles were inserted in the town meeting warrant at the request of the planning board.

But in view of the comments from local merchants, the planners decided to junk two of the seven articles.

We want to commend the board for having the good sense to be flexible. Our town is a beautiful bedroom community. We need to nurture the local businesses that exist — just as much as we need to keep the commercial operations separate from our residential neighborhoods.

One of the two articles to be withdrawn would have limited the amount of writing on the window of a business. If the article had passed, business windows would have been 70 percent clear.

The other article that no longer has a sponsor would have limited a business's ability to act as a warehouse.

The intent was clearly to prohibit warehousing and distribution businesses. Under the proposed bylaw, warehousing could have only been accomplished in a limited industrial zone with a special permit from the zoning board of appeals.

We are amazed that the planning board wanted to eliminate such a simple business use of property. We are pleased that the board changed its collective mind.

There is one zoning article we have some concern about. It sounds like a simple housekeeping matter — it's an article to "adopt a corrected and amended version of the zoning bylaws of the town of Cohasset which have been corrected to eliminate grammatical, punctuation, and spelling mistakes."

As Alfred Moore, planning board chairman, pointed out the town lost a case over construction of a tennis court because a comma was a semi-colon or the other way around.

Three hundred mistakes were caught and "corrected" Moore said.

We happen to think such a massive change deserves public notice in detail. We happen to think the town should notify its residents when so many mistakes are corrected.

Public notices are required for the public good.

We wish the planning board were inclined to have its public notices printed in The Cohasset Mariner since we do reach more households in town. But even if the Ledger will get this notice as they get the rest of the planners business, we believe people have the right to know when changes in the zoning bylaw are in the works.

We have no problem with spelling corrections being made without notice. But in the area of punctuation and grammar, a change does alter the meaning.

By the way, both candidates for planning board attended the meeting. Terry Atherton and Jean Simonds took the time out of their lives to sit through the public hearing on what was a dismal and chilly evening. Their attitude is commendable.

Correction

Benjamin Curley, candidate for water commission, was incorrectly listed as a past water commissioner. He is running against incumbent commissioner James Sheerin for the post.

Curley worked for the water department in the past. He served as superintendent.

Kasperowicz takes on town officials

COMMENTARY

(Editor's note: Last week the Mariner published a letter by Town Counsel Richard Henderson to Greg Doyon, selectmen's secretary.)

SHADOW BOXING

By Tanna Kasperowicz

Dear Greg:

I really appreciated your allowing me to look over your shoulder and read Richie's letter last week. But, I do have some comments, and I'd like to both comment and quote, quite extensively, from "A Practical Guide to the Conflict of Interest Law for Municipal Employees,"a little publication put out by the State Ethics Commission of Massachusetts.

Comments

While Richie thought he adequately explained everything on the eve of March 4, I was at the Basketball Booster's dinner at Kimball's and didn't hear a word; sorry, missed the Tues. tape, too. Let's get something straight, here. While the Selectmen's Show is certainly interesting, it's not the only show in Town. If I had caught the Selectmen's Show and Rich's apologies on the eve of March 4, would I have withdrawn my letter to the Mariner? Definitely not. Here's why.

February 25, 1991 isn't the only executive or public session regarding the suit against the assessors in which Selectmen Jane Goedecke and Ned Tebbetts (who are suing the assessors) have participated.

It's not "almost impossible," as Rich suggests, for Selectmen Jane Goedecke and Ned Tebbetts to have a conflict of interest in connection with the Appellate Tax Board Case. Pretend, for a moment, Greg, that you're on the outside.

Selectmen go into closed session Feb. 25, to discuss many things including the Appellate Tax Board Case. Two selectmen suing the Town are a part of that session. None of us out here have any idea why they're there, or what's being discussed. On Friday, March 1 we read in the Patriot Ledger that special counsel was chosen for the Appellate Tax Board case; we put two and two together and pretty much determine that Jane and Ned were in on the selection. We haven't seen the minutes, we've heard no discussion, we've still heard no discussion. How do we know special counsel isn't Ned's cousin?

Briefly, if it's a subject involving them, they shouldn't be there.

Hardly a week goes by that some selectman isn't in conflict of interest. Witness Selectman Conflict Chairman Rocco Laugelle who voted (March 11, 1991) in favor of 3% raises for non-union town employees, two of whom are his sister and brother.

Ouotes from Conflict of Interest Law Pub.

Page 7: Restrictions on Official Actions: "Public employees must not act in their official capacities in matters in which they have a personal financial stake...or on matters affecting the financial interests of people or businesses with whom they are closely related. This includes..."determining a family member's salary (including approving "automatic" increases such as annual step increases...the prohibition applies even in cases where a number of other employees are given similar increases).

Numerous examples given throughout this excellently-written publication suggest that municipal officials with conflicts of interest leave the room during the public deliberation, never enter into executive session deliberation of the board.

On Page 13: "Appearances" of conflict: "Public employees must avoid conduct which creates a reasonable impression that they will act with bias."

I'm equally flabbergasted at spectators Martha and Pokey...particularly with all of their 25 plus combined years of public, elected experience during which time they dealt with creative negotiations, communications, and multi-level million dollar budgets. Too experienced to allow their fellow selectmen and counsel to get caught in conflicts of interest.

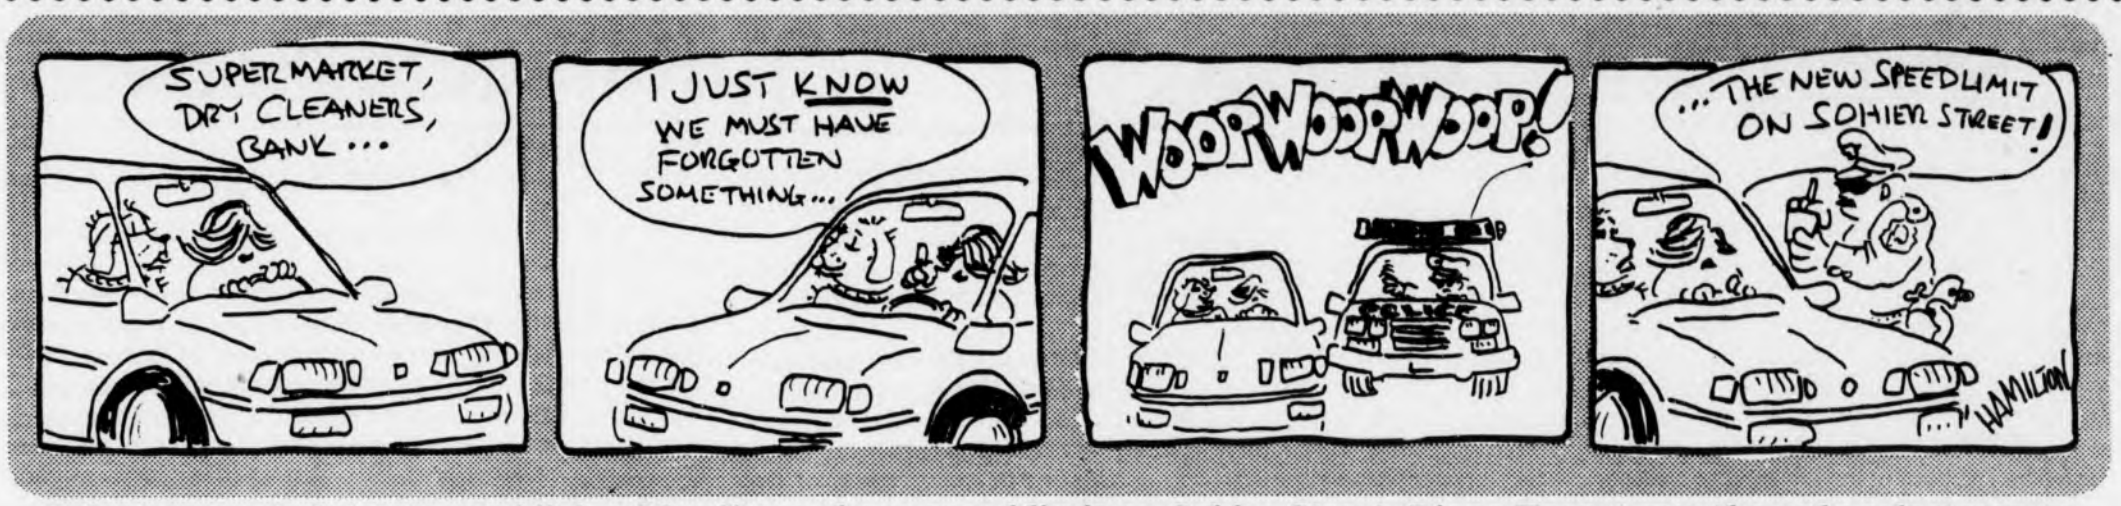
Gjesteby replies to Tebbett's RR comments

LETTERS

(Editor's note: The following statement by Selectman Martha Gjesteby in reply to Ned Tebbett's comments on Old Colony Train Restoration.)

Mr. Tebbetts' proposed and projected increased costs from Old Colony commuter rail is overstated. I think they are proposed in order to create fear and apprehension in the community, with the result that citizens are not enlightened, but perhaps made confused. I would like to discuss the issue of costs in an atmosphere of calm and reason.

There will be no significant change in MBTA assessment to the Town of Cohasset due to Old Colony commuter rail service under current state law and regulation. Making a change in the current laws would require major legislative action. Any change in the laws, formulas and policies for allocating costs of MBTA service lie in fact with our legislators, not the MBTA. Cohasset is not alone in its interest to avoid increases in local assessments. There are more than 78 cities and towns in the MBTA District, a formidable alliance for protecting communities from increases in local costs for commuter rail or any MBTA service. Local aid distribution is beyond the control of the MBTA and changes are subject to legislative action, about which there has been lots of speculation. To date, it is just that....speculation.



What's more, calculations and suppositions discussed by Selectman Tebbetts on March 4, 1991 are faulty and often incorrect. Here is why.

1. MBTA cost increases have actually been consistent with inflation considering that the amount of MBTA service and ridership has been increasing steadily.

2. Any proposals by the Weld administration or by the state legislature that would affect local aid would impact all communities in the commonwealth very seriously in many local budget and service areas, not just transit. Proposals to pass on more of the costs of the MBTA to local communities would violate current state law, including Proposition 2 1/2, or would require major legislative action.

3. MBTA fares actually cover approximately 30% of operating costs, and the Old Colony lines would be so cost effective that their fares would cover about 35% of operating costs. This is a result of a deliberate State

Straits Pond bugs conservationists

COMMENTARY

By Jo-An Levine, Commissioner
Hull Conservation Commission

Bug off! That's what most of us would like to say when confronted by someone trying to tell us what we can and cannot do on our own land.

I'm sure that was the sentiment of a fellow I recently spoke with about a wetlands issue on his property. Conservation is a dirty word around here, it seems. Sadly, it's going to get dirtier and messier in the months to come.

If the property owners in the areas surrounding Straits Pond (including properties in the towns of Hull, Hingham and Cohasset) do not begin to work together, quickly, the state will act for us. And then we'll all be saying, Bug off! The midges, pesky, gnatlike black flies, and, probably, the smell will be back; the state will allow no more chemical spraying of this wetland that has been designated an "Area of Critical Evironmental Concern".

Opinions abound about how to solve the midge problem, but this year the Town of Hull will commission a study/management program that will, we hope, give concrete answers and procedures that will eliminate midges without the use of toxic chemical applications such as Abate.

We know, from previous studies such as the 1980 Coastal Zone Management IEP study and Jason Cupp's 1989 "The Straits Pond Toxicity Problem" paper, that all the various problems over the years such as weeds, algae and bugs that assaulted man were combated by man with man made solutions: DDT, lead arsenate, Aquathol K, and Abate.

You probably never thought about it but, some of the things we take for granted, like fertilizing the lawn, flushing the toilet and washing our clothes produce another kind of man-made solution that the bugs and midges, in particular, thrive upon.

Something we can all do to help, right now, is to be sure that septic systems around the pond are functioning properly and making sure that drains for run-off do not send things like washing machine waste water into the pond. Lawn chemicals that have nitrogen or phosphorus are also friends of the midge population. Nutrients such as these, combined with the shallow, warm water make a very nice and comfortable environment for mating midges.

We can't stop flushing the toilet or washing our clothes but we can deny the pond's plants and animals these dirty waters. We'd all love to have perfect lawns but if we keep feeding them and the pond with fertilizers and weed killers the midges will deny us the pleasure of enjoying them and we can admire the green, weed-free yard from inside.

I don't know about you but I don't look forward to being held hostage by bugs every summer.

For more information on how you can help Straits Pond contact your local Conservation Commission.

Reader helps voters to understand OCRR

LETTERS

To the Editor:

To help voters understand the issues related to the Old Colony Railroad Rehabilitation (OCRR) project, I have prepared some factual information that may be useful.

The OCRR project calls for restoration of commuter rail service along three lines, two of which currently carry freight (Middleborough and Plymouth) and one which was abandoned in 1959 (Greenbush).

All lines start at South Station, Boston, traverse Quincy (with no stops) and Braintree and then continue to terminal stations in Middleborough, Plymouth and Scituate.

The first table speaks broadly to the need in terms of population growth:

	Population (rounded) 1980	1990 Prelim.)	Percent Increase
Old Colony Region	576,000	606,000	5.4
By line:
Middleborough	304,000	317,000	4.2
Plymouth	222,000	238,000	7.2
Greenbush	177,000	173,000	-2.3

The Old Colony Region defined by the MBTA includes the 32 towns (starting with Braintree) served directly by the three lines and several adjacent towns. The "By line" totals do not add to the region total because Braintree and Weymouth have been included in more than one line.

Do these growth figures constitute a basis for the CCRR? It is a judgment call. By way of reference, the MBTA's supporting study projected an increase over the 20 years to 2000 of 15 to 20 percent. On this basis Plymouth looks like it might reach the lower growth target while population along the Greenbush line is declining.

If the OCRR project were in operation, how many people would be attracted and what would be the impact relative to overall transportation on the South Shore? The following are MBTA estimates of ridership by the year 2000 (A.M. peak period inbound boardings):

Line	Riders diverted from bus and boat	New Riders diverted from cars	Total
Middleborough and Plymouth	2,600	5,000	7,600
Greenbush	1,400	1,900	3,300
	4,000	6,900	10,900

These figures need to be related to total commuter travel on the South Shore. The MBTA estimates that there are—

- 270,000 daily work trips, of which
- 44,000 are to Boston and Cambridge (the principal destination of Old Colony train riders), or about 1 in 6 commuters, and that
- 10,100 of these Boston/Cambridge commuters currently use public transit.

The OCRR project would not increase riders to Boston, but rather divert 4,000 riders from existing bus and boat service and 6,900 from their automobiles. Thus the MBTA estimates that the OCRR would increase public transit ridership from 3.7 percent to 6.3 percent of the daily work trip total.

The nest issue is whether the proposed OCRR project meets some rational test of financial merit. In this case it would appear reasonable to see how it measures up to the MBTA's past performance during the last decade when major capital improvements were undertaken.

Projects	Capital Spending	New Riders attracted to MBTA System	Capital Spent to Attract each New rider
Many major projects, 1981-1990	$3,300,000,000	100,000	$33,000
OCCR project-all lines	562,000,000	6,900	$81,000

In this instance, and assuming no escalation in cost of the project—an assumption that has rarely been justified in such public transit projects—the cost to increase public transit ridership an additional 6,900 persons to a systemwide total of 666,900 per week day requires an increase in capital spending per new rider attracted from $33,000 to $81,000 or an increase of about 245 percent. The question quickly becomes one of whether this marginal cost increase is worth the added benefits?

Also bearing on the cost-benefit tradeoff is the degree to which the OCRR will increase MBTA indebtedness, currently at about $1.476 billion. Under the hopeful assumption that half the capital cost would be paid by the federal government, the T's indebtedness would increase by 19 percent to $1.757 billion. Can the MBTA continue to support such an ambitious capital spending program which has seen debt service charges grow at more than 13 percent per year over the last decade?

For those who may wonder where the MBTA's money comes from, about $120 million comes from assessments currently capped at 2-1/2 percent growth per year to the 78 cities and towns that make up the MBTA district, a roughly similar amount from fare collections and most of the rest from the state.

This is exclusive of capital grants for specific projects from the federal government.

Aside from the more quantifiable aspects, there are major issues of environmental impact, public safety, historical and aesthetic considerations that should enter the equation.

I would like to defer comments on these for the time being, if for no other reason than that they vary widely from town to town and are more subjective in their nature.

I hope this has been useful.

Charles Y. Chittick Jr.
Hingham Representative
MBTA Advisory Board

Gjesteby replies . . .

policy to keep fares low and affordable to promote transit ridership, keeping in mind the clean air act.

4. There has been no change in the policy allocating the share of capital costs.

5. The capital costs detailed by the MBTA in its environmental impact assessments are based on 30% level engineering design, a reliable level for purposes of cost estimation. The engineering and the projected costs have been reviewed by the Urban Mass Transportation Administration (UMTA), as well as by the MBTA, for accuracy and for efficiency, and have been found to be on target.

6. Construction of the Old Colony Project will truly stimulate the economy. This project will create several thousand construction jobs. These new jobs would have a direct benefit to the commonwealth by taking people off of unemployment. The personal income from these construction jobs also stimulates the economy when it is spent. Jobs become dollars spent for goods and services. Taxes on this personal income will be paid by workers, in turn funding the state and local governments.

If Mr. Tebbetts is truly concerned about costs, he should begin working with our legislators and others representing communities in the MBTA District to support existing funding mechanisms for transit services or to plan ways to avoid major policy or legislative changes that would penalize MBTA served communities.

Commuter rail service is just that - a service. It is an effective, comfortable and well accepted means of travel. Communities with commuter rail service (there are now 58 of them) find it an asset, not a burden. The South Shore needs improvements to its terribly overburdened transportation network. The Old Colony project will only improve the quality of life in Cohasset.

Arts boosters club activities

At a recent mid-year meeting, the Cohasset Arts Boosters Club officers voted to allocate funds raised so far this year to the following Cohasset High School arts areas: laser discs for the library's "hypermedia" computer station; a used keyboard for the audio-visual department; partial funding for the annual literary and arts magazine "Whispers and Shadows;" support for the upcoming Drama Workshop State Festival competition (March 23), Evening of Living Arts (March 27), the Spring Concerts (April 25 and May 1), and the annual Arts Recognition Night (May 22); two scholarships to graduating seniors; and a performing arts grant for an undergraduate.

The Arts Boosters Club, formed five years ago, supports all the fine and performing arts at the junior/senior high school through advocacy and fund raising. Individual and business donations from a fall patrons' letter, a grant from the South Shore Music Playhouse Associates, and student performances were the sources for the recent and planned disbursements.

The Arts Boosters Club thanks all of this year's supporters and welcomes donations (tax deductible) from others who want to help the arts at Cohasset High School. Contributions may be forwarded to Treasurer Carol Martin, 45 North Main Street; checks should be made payable to the Cohasset Arts Boosters Club. The club would be delighted to hear from anyone wishing to work with them and to do so, call Martha Equi (383-0461) or Sue McNamara (383-6945).

Major & Little League events

Opening Day for Cohasset Little League is April 27. Have you registered your child? All those wishing to participate in the 1991 Little League Program must complete a registration form. Forms may be picked up at the Recreation Department Office or at the Paul Pratt Library and mailed back to the League. This must be done soon to insure that your child has a uniform and is assigned to a team. No child shall be deprived the right to participate in the program because of an inability to pay.

On Saturday, April 6, tryouts for the Major League part of Little League will be held. All registered 10, 11, and 12-year-olds who have not yet participated at this level will be invited to tryout. Letters will be sent out to registered eligible candidates informing them of the details.

As soon as the Major League has been set up the Minor and Farm League teams will be decided and each child will be notified by his/her coach.

Little League Day in Cohasset is Saturday, April 27. In the morning, the traditional Little League Parade will be held. All Little Leaguers are invited to march, in uniform, in the parade, which concludes with Opening Day festivities at Barnes Field. In the evening, the Second Annual Little League Adults Dance will be held at the Cohasset Community Center from 8 p.m. until midnight. This popular event will feature a disc jockey, hors d'oeuvres, door prizes, raffle and cash bar. Admission is $10 per person.

Library story hours

Registrations are currently being accepted for Spring story hour series at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library. The series begins on April 25, and lasts for six weeks. Sessions will be offered at 10 a.m. on Thursdays and Fridays. Each 45 minute program consists of several picture book stories and simple fingerplays, songs, and crafts. Children must be at least 3-1/2 to participate.

To register, stop by the Children's Room, or call the children's librarians at 383-1348.

Rail gets Norwell voters' ok

If it was up to Norwell, the Old Colony Railroad line would be restored.

Voters at Norwell's March 16 annual town election overwhelmingly approved the non-binding question that asked, "Do you favor restoration of the Greenbush branch of the Old Colony line which would provide commuter railroad service from the South Shore to Boston along the existing right of way in Braintree, Weymouth, Hingham, Cohasset and Scituate."

Norwell was the first town on the South Shore to vote on the non-binding question.

Cambridge attorney Allan A. Ryan, who lives in Norwell, said Gov. William Weld campaigned on the premise that the Greenbush line would win his support if the people wanted it but not if they didn't. So Marshfield Rep. Frank Hynes sought to put non-binding questions on ballots in the affected towns, Ryan said, "to give the Governor a sense of whether the people want it or don't want it.

Tracks will not go through Norwell or Marshfield, Ryan said, but those towns are still considered part of the Greenbush territory and are "very directly affected because if the line is built it would provide very convenient transportation to Boston."

He said the MBTA has projected who might use the commuter trains and "Norwell and Marshfield are certainly within the zone."

The Norwell election only drew about 20 percent of the town's 5,880 registered voters. Residents voted 733 in favor of restoration and 100 against.

Several poll workers commented that the question was hard to find - because it was on a line above the names of candidates for town office - and that numerous voters said they forgot about it. Only 833 of the 1,381 voters who turned out last Saturday voted on the railroad question.

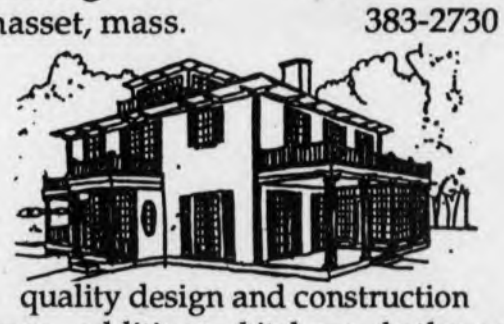
March 1 marked a surprise birthday celebration for Cohasset's Mabel McWilliams and her friend, Camille Lombardi of Nantasket. The two share the same birthday but not the same age.



Linda and David Farrag (Mabel's daughter and grandson) and Celeste Fradet (Camille's daughter) planned a delightful evening. The birthday group left Cohasset in a style, in a white limousine, for a delicious dinner at Anthony's Pier 4 in Boston. They concluded the fun festivities seeing "Shear Madness."

Mabel, who admits only to being "39" celebrated her 80 years and received a congratulatory birthday card from the White House from President Bush and Barbara Bush. She was delighted!

'Prisoner' delivers high intrigue and good humor

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

Do you ever feel like opening a window and yelling back at the world?

That's just how Mel Edison feels in "The Prisoner of Second Avenue", a two-act Neil Simon comedy currently on stage at the North River Community Club in Norwell.

All the little things — like the air conditioner that's on the 'fritz'; the stewardesses in the flat next door who are up all hours of the night; and the garbage, 14-floors below, that emits some pretty foul odors — are getting the best of 47-year-old Mel, who's already in the midst of a bad case of male menopause.

PLAY REVIEW

The NRCP's "Prisoner of Second Avenue" written by Neil Simon and directed by Laurie Grant continues March 22, 23, 29, and 30 at the North River Community Club, 513 River Street in Norwell. Tickets are $9 and may be ordered by calling 826-4878. The curtain rises at 8 p.m.

At first glance the story doesn't sound funny.

Only a richly talented playwright like Neil Simon has the sensitivity to transform a serious situation — that should make us cry — and make us laugh instead.

Saturday's sellout audience loved it.

When Mel, superbly portrayed by John Kuhn, worries out loud that his employer will give his job to "two, 23-1/2 year olds, at half his pay" — the audience roars.

But without great directing, impeccable timing, and careful casting, even Simon's lines would have missed their mark. (Kudos to director, Laurie Grant.)

And that's where the NRCP production really sparkles.

Kuhn's Mel Edison — hypertensive, thin and down-trodden — is entirely believable.

We laugh; he doesn't.

And when he cries out that his 14th-floor, Second Avenue apartment, which he shares with his wife, Edna, is like a "God damned antenna" we understand.

As unflappable as she is stunning, the cool Edna Edison has survived 20-plus years with an over-wrought husband.

VICTIM OF THE RAT RACE

Aptly played by the talented Barbara Weber, Edna is the opposite of the high-strung Mel, until she, too, becomes a victim of the rat race.

For every line that Mel delivers, Edna has an answer that makes sense. But her efforts to soothe her nervous husband only upset him further.

Mel's fears about his job prove true. Mel, who believes there's a secret plot to destroy the middle class, is laid off and then he has a nervous breakdown of sorts.

No, he's not taken away in a straight jacket, but he's derailed enough to require the expensive, on-going care of a doctor.

Up until this point, we've only heard Mel mention his brother and three sisters, so their entrance is not a complete surprise.

But once they arrive, we wonder how we made it so far without them.

Clearly the highlight of the play is the hilarious scene when Mel's four older siblings negotiate among themselves about anteing up to pay Mel's medical bills.

Harry Edison, played by Bob Julian, gets the sisters to agree that they must help.

After some debate Harry says, "We all agree to pay for Mel's doctor's bills which will cost 'x' amount."

'BIG X OR LITTLE X?'

"Is that a big 'X' or a little 'x'?" asks Pauline, played by Dorris Pizzotti.

The three sisters are a treasure.

Their costuming, demeanor, and even their hair styles, reveal all we need to know about their individual characters.

The stylish tightwad Pauline; the outspoken and direct, Pearl (played by Suzanne Tilden); and the sensitive, weepy Jessie (played by Kathie Erickson) bring tears of laughter to our eyes.

In the end Mel gets the medical care he needs without the financial help of his siblings.

But in one of the last scenes, the audience is treated to another visit from Harry, who offers Mel $25,000 (with the help of the sisters whom he'll tell tomorrow) to start a summer camp, which Edna feels would be the answer to Mel's problems.

Harry, who is the eldest sibling, tenderly tells Mel that he'd like to know just for one minute how it feels to be the "favorite." (Mel, the youngest, had been spoiled by his elder sisters.)

Mel is too proud to take the money and when he offers to "kiss" Harry "right on the mouth" to let him know how it feels to be coddled — Harry happily resumes his role as the eldest.

In the interim, Edna — who had switched roles with Mel to become the bread winner — loses her job when her employer goes belly up.

When she comes home with the intention of taking a long, hot bath and discovers there's no water — she comes unglued and then Mel tries to calm her.

Finally, nothing is resolved except perhaps that Mel and Edna know what it's like to be in each other's shoes.

But the comedic relief of the entire show — especially the great one-liners delivered by Mel — should pick anyone up.

So even if you've lost your job — don't put off seeing NRCP's "Prisoner of Second Avenue" — it'll make you smile.

Varsity lacrosse counts on volunteer staff

Amherst. After contributing three years as a midfielder at UMASS, Ekberg stayed on as an assistant coach.

Later Ekberg, took the lead as head coach at Tufts and Brandeis. Kahn, who will direct the junior varsity, is a former Harvard goalie.

Two years ago, Cohasset youths approached Ekberg requesting a lacrosse team. Those interested players rounded up more than 35 participants to form a club sport. In that first club season with eight or nine games on the schedule, Cohasset won five.

In their second year as a club, the Skippers went 4-3-1 with a tie going to BC High in five overtimes that ended with a 9-9 score. It was an interesting game where Cohasset played with out several starters who were penalized from their previous match with Hingham.

Cohasset will be competing independently of the Eastern Mass. Lacrosse Association. "We're not big enough to compete with them," said Ekberg.

A half dozen boys from Cohasset attended an intensive lacrosse camp last summer. "That's going to help us a great deal,"said Ekberg.

Cohasset began practices last week and will scrimmage Barnstable and Marshfield next week on March 27 March 29 respectively. Barnstable should prove to be an interesting match since the Skippers lost to their junior varsity 7-5 two years ago. That same JV squad will probably be the heart of the varsity this season for Barnstable. "It will be a good test for us," said Ekberg.

Cohasset is striving for finesse. "The kids who came out for the team have athletic ability," Ekberg mentioned.

Lacrosse is a sport where you run almost all the time. It has attracted several Cohasset soccer players to the sport. "It's the kind of sport where practice is fun. You're essentially playing all the time," said Ekberg. Lacrosse is a stick game which requires a lot of coordination.

Cohasset's designation as a varsity team means a lot to the participants themselves. It is also helpful in getting a schedule together where opponents want to play teams with varsity status.

Lost to graduation last year were Jason Cameron, who anchored the defense and Jim Reidy an attack wing and soccer goalie.

Travis Coley, Cohasset's goalkeeper, heads the list of returning starters for the Skippers. "He will be our best player," said Ekberg. "His reaction time is very good. His foot speed, anticipation, hand-eye coordination, game vision and his natural athletic ability make him a valuable team player."

Playing goalie requires a special temperament, according to Ekberg. What is difficult about being a lacrosse goalie is that it's not uncommon for a team to score 10 to 15 goals against you and you can still win. "However, you've got to overcome the fact that it's easier to score than to stop the ball. The mental toughness of being a goalie is critical. You can't get down on yourself or the team," said Ekberg.

Coley is a good stickhandler with excellent anticipation. As a two-year starter, Coley recorded 76 saves in seven games.

Ollie Nivaud, the senior defenseman, has the distinction of being the only defense player to score a goal last season for Cohasset. He is described by Ekberg as a punishing checker. Nivaud has started in every game Cohasset has played.

Bill Baird, a third year player, moves from midfield to defense. At fullback in soccer, Baird has a good vision of the game. He possesses athletic ability and mental toughness.

Other defense players are Sean Milligan, Max Nivaud and David Leahy, who lettered last year. Brendon DeVoe will be the alternate goalie. He played in the five overtimes against BC High last year.

Senior Matt Marks scored 17 goals last year and 29 overall. At 6-4 he will play as the crease attackman. "He has the potential to score an awful lot of goals,' said Ekberg.

Third-year player Charlie Endris, a freshman, supplied nine goals on attack last year. He has started every game since he was in the seventh grade. "He's taken some poundings literally. This year he'll start to pay some of those defenders back. By the time he's a senior, he's going to be a very good player," said Ekberg.

John Kisiel and Eric Wall will be competing for that third slot on attack. "Although I think they will both play about the same amount of time," Ekberg said.

The midfielders are expected to be the heart and soul of the team. "They have to play offense and defense," said Ekberg. Many teams have the luxury of using specialized large stick midfielders where as Cohasset will not be able to do this.

Returning lettermen are: Bob Whitaker (2 goals), Jake Powell (2 goals), Scott Varisco (1 goal, 1 assist), Bart Weisenfluh, and Willy Adams. Expected senior starters for Cohasset will be Whitaker, Weisenfluh and Powell. Brendon Murphy will get some playing time also. Brooks Doten, Doug Ellinger and Jim Rosano will give the Skippers depth.

Cohasset is also looking for support from a large number of underclassmen: George Sechen, Doug Schultz, Steve Cahill, Alex Vanderweil, Danny Baird, Chris Adams, Ben Sparks, Eric Drysdale, Ben Chittick, Matt Higgins, Mike Lennon, Ben Redfield and Chip Anderson.

Junior varsity play will be important this year since many of the graduating seniors this June will leave openings for next year. JV has a 10-game schedule.

The Cohasset varsity will play a 17-game schedule including contests against BC High, Wellesley, Waltham, Falmouth and Masconomet.

Divorce program

The financial aspects of divorce are not well known nor easily understood. This important topic will be the subject of discussion on the cable TV show "McNamara on Money" which will air on Channel 53 on Wednesday, March 27 at 8 p.m. Host Michael J. McNamara will interview Attorney Neal Brown on the subject. The fifth show in this series will be a panel discussion with a divorced woman, a divorced man, an attorney, and a financial planner. The discussion will address what divorce means on a personal and financial level, and how to survive a divorce proceeding both emotionally and financially. If divorce is a subject of interest to you, it will be very much worth your while to watch the show.

Business show on cable

Tune in to "The Business Show" on Wednesday, March 27, at 8:30 p.m. on channel 53 and see what some of these other benefits are. Host Steve Toner will interview Joseph Priscella, CPA, about some of the more creative things that accountants are doing with computers these days. This is the second and last show on this interesting topic.

Speaker set for Special Needs

On Thursday, March 21 at 7 p.m. Arthur Anastoupoulos, Ph.D. from UMass Medical Center will speak on Attention Deficit Disorders.

Dr. Anastoupoulos, a specialist in diagnosing and treating this learning disorder, will make a presentation and then respond to questions from the audience.

His talk will be held at the Cohasset High School Cafeteria and will be co-sponsored by the Cohasset and Norwell Parents' Advisory Councils. For further information please contact Norma Grassey at 383-6857.

Easter services listed

Services for Maundy Thursday, Good Friday, and Easter including a twenty-four hour prayer vigil will be held at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, 16 Highland Ave., Cohasset.

Worship will begin with a prayer vigil on Maundy Thursday, March 28 at 3 p.m. which will continue through Good Friday. Prayers of gratitude will be offered for all who have served in the Persian Gulf and for the homecoming. Those who have given their lives will be remembered as well as the innocent who have suffered. Prayers will be given for those who mourn. Diplomats will be prayed for that they may be given the skill to establish a peace based upon enduring respect, tolerance, and mutual trust. Prayers will be offered for the healing of wounds and the bringing in of the new day that must surely come.

The Eucharist will be celebrated on Maundy Thursday at 7 p.m. Instruction will be given on the various aspects of this communion service. The ceremony of the washing of feet will also take place. This commemorates Jesus' washing his disciples' feet which symbolizes an end to selfish pride and an example of service.

Good Friday worship will take place from 12 noon to 3 p.m. on March 28. Prayers, meditations, and quiet will mark this service. A children's service will be held from 2:30 to 3 p.m.

Bishop Morgan Porteus will celebrate the Eucharist at the Easter Vigil on Saturday, March 30 at 7:30 p.m. Confirmations will take place at this candlelight service. The Easter Vigil is the first service of Easter. It begins in darkness with the lighting of the Paschal Candle. At the conclusion of the service a great peal of bells is heard from the church's carillon in celebration of Jesus' resurrection.

Worship on Easter morning is at 8 and 10 a.m. The service will be highlighted with special music and a guest trumpeter. The risen Lord and the joy of new life mark this conclusion to three days in which the Christian faith is experienced to the fullest in worship.

Benefit at Papa Gino's

The Cohasset High School Community Volunteer Service is holding a fund raiser at Papa Gino's, Monday, March 25, from 5 p.m. to closing. Eat in or take out after 5 p.m . Any order, large or small will help fund our future projects.

Easter Bunny Lunch set

Saturday, March 23, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Deer Hill School the Cohasset Community Center's annual lunch with the Easter Bunny will be held.

Children will enjoy a magic show with Goldie the Clown, face painting, a photo with the Easter Bunny, a raffle and Easter crafts: Bunnies, chicks and an edible necklace are among the items the children will be able to make. Each child will bring home a pair of bunny ears. A feast of hot dogs, chips, assorted homemade salads, fruit salad, homemade desserts, juice and coffee will be served to adults and children. Admission is $4 for adults and $3 for children.

Seating is limited, and advance ticket purchase is advisable. Tickets will be on sale at the Community Center in the office or at the nursery school. For further information, please call 383-0088.

Spring Fling set for April 7

The annual Spring Fling sponsored by the South Shore Chapter #1139 of the American Association of Retired Persons will be held on Sunday, April 7, 2 to 5 p.m. at the Sons of Italy Hall on Route 3A in Hingham. Entertainment will be presented by Norm Conrad's Mini Minstrels and music by Nick Latteo. Special homemade refreshments will be served. Tickets are $10 per person and will be on sale at the March meeting. Members of the National AARP or NRTA and friends are welcome to attend.

The Spring Fling is the sole fund raiser of the Guardino Fund, which was established in 1983 to aid disadvantaged children. It was named for Cummings Giardino, who served as Chapter President from 1979-82, and started the project. The donations have for the past seven years sent many children on the South Shore to summer camp.

Scholarship available now

High school seniors who have been accepted to an accredited art school may apply for the Fred E. Bergfors Scholarship and the MacIvor Reddie Scholarship available from the South Shore Art Center. The Art Center, located at 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset, is a non-profit organization representing all of the South Shore communities.

Applicants must deliver to the Art Center a portfolio, brief artist's statement, and the name of the accredited school to which they are accepted, on April 25 and 26 from 1 to 4 p.m. For more information, call the Art Center at 383-9548.

Portfolio help for students

The South Shore Art Center in Cohasset will be conducting two portfolio reviews this spring. On April 27, representatives from area art colleges will conduct private consultations between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. for interested high school juniors. This is an excellent opportunity to learn how to prepare a portfolio for application to art school. Students should call the Art Center at 383-9548 to make an appointment for which there will be a $25 fee.

Artists interested in the Art Center's gallery artist membership may deliver their portfolios May 17 between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Juryiing will take place on May 18 and artists may retrieve their portfolios on May 22 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. For more information, call the Art Center at 383-9548.

The South Shore Art Center, located at 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset, is a non-profit organization representing all of the South Shore communities.

Globetrotting special

The Cohasset Recreation Department will accept registrations via telephone for a special youth basketball seminar for Cohasset youth, scheduled for Saturday, March 30 to be given by the Harlem Globetrotters at Boston Garden.

Participants will be broken down into groups of 20 and will be given the chance to learn some of the tongue-in-cheek techniques of creative ball-handling skills that were first introduced by the Globetrotters. Each participant/parent will be given a commemorative patch and preferred seating to the show that will follow the seminar.

The fee for this unique offer is $22.50 per person, which covers admission and transportation via bus to Boston Garden. The bus will leave from Town Hall parking lot at 11:15 a.m. returning to Town Hall at about 5 p.m. To register, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department office at 383-6791, as soon as possible as only 40 tickets can be sold.

SPRING OUTDOOR PROGRAMS

The Cohasset Recreation Department will accept telephone registrations for 10 Spring Recreation Programs for children in grades K to 6. There will be five programs offered Monday thru Friday, for grades K-3 and five programs for grades 4 to 6, all are scheduled to commence during the week of April 22, continuing for eight weeks to mid-June. Programs are as follows:

Monday, K-3, T-ball, Osgood School, after school-5 p.m. 4-6, baseball, Little League Field, after school-5 p.m.

Friday, K-3, Soccer, Osgood School, after school-5 p.m. 4-6 Sports/games, Osgood School, after school-5 p.m.

Each program meets about two hours weekly for eight weeks all five programs, in each age grouping, represent 80 hours of structured, supervised recreational activities.

These programs can be offered due to deregulation of the Revolving Account Fund for 100 percent Self-Supporting programs and the fees are structured to promote the highest levels of participation as possible. However, the recreation commission remains responsive to any financial burden fees may cause and fee adjustments can be made accordingly. The fee structure for the children's programs are as follows: One child in any one eight week program $22; or: five day programs, one child $75, second child $37, third child free; four day programs, one child $65, second child $30, third child free; three day programs, one child $55, second child $25, third child free; Two day programs, one child $40, second child $20, third child free.

All program are recreational in nature, however, soccer and baseball will include instruction as well as play.

In order that your child may remain after school to participate, parents must complete and sign the permission form that will be sent home via school. The form must be returned to the Recreation office, Town Hall and may be mailed in or dropped off along with fee payments. Any resident who finds the fee burdensome, may request a fee adjustment by asking any member of the Recreation Commission, or Jack Worley.

Passover , March 29, gives congregation a chance to share

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

On the first full moon of spring, Jews all over the world will celebrate Passover. Each year, families gather around a festive dinner table to relive the bitterness of slavery in Egypt and the joy of living and worshiping as a free people.

Getting ready for the holiday is as much a part of the holiday as the holiday celebrations themselves. The month preceding the holiday is a time of cleaning, planning the holiday meal, cooking, studying about the holiday and giving to the poor.

Perhaps more than any other holiday in the Jewish calendar, food takes a central place in the observances. All of the important mitzvot, or rules, concern food and eating.

For the eight days of Passover, Jews may not eat or own any leavened products. In Hebrew, leaven is chametz. At its simplest, chametz is any food made with wheat, rye, barley or oats. Eastern European Jews also included corn, rice and peas among the forbidden foods. In its strictest application, any food made of those ingredients, any dishes, pans or utensils used in making or serving them are considered chametz.

Traditionally, these foods are not eaten so Jews will remember the haste in which they fled pharaoh's Egypt. With no time to let their bread rise before baking, they ate the flat, unleavened bread known as matzoh.

"Passover is what I call a layered holiday," said Rabbi Stephen A. Karol of Congregation Sha'aray Shalom in Hingham. "There are historic, agricultural and moral aspects associated with it. They all combine in a 3,200-year-old tradition."

Karol explains that although the injunction against chametz appears in the the Torah, first five books of the Bible, there is no explanation against the injunction.

Karol theorizes that in addition to identifying with the Jews who escaped from slavery in Egypt, the types of food forbidden are also subject to impurity. Many of the dietary laws in the Torah are attempts to protect public health.

Not eating chametz is relatively easy; making sure none remains in the house is a major undertaking. The family searches throughout the home, gathering all the leavened food together and disposing of it. Then the special dishes and utensils are brought out and the everyday ones are sterilized before being used. Store-bought goods labeled "kosher for Passover" replace the items normally used.

Everything is made new and clean for Passover. It is, in a sense, a ritual spring cleaning.

Disposing of the chametz has always been a challenge. Some people give the food to friends or neighbors, some seal it away in a closed cupboard for the duration, others engage in a symbolic sale.

For the second or third year in a row, the members of Karol's congregation are participating in Operation Chametz, a nationwide project launched by the reform movement three or four years ago.

The families of Sha'aray Shalom are encouraged to bring any non-perishable canned or boxed goods not requiring refrigeration to the temple. The items are placed in large collection baskets in the lobby. On March 27 and 28, the food that has been gathered will be taken to local shelters and food pantries for distribution.

According to Karol, one shelter will accept partially-used packages of items such as flour, pasta, rice, dried beans, cereals, crackers and cookies.

In a letter to the congregation, Karol and education director Joan Carr wrote, "In a world where increasing numbers of people go to bed hungry each night, we can make a difference, and, at the same time, give new meaning to the age-old custom of seeking out chametz in our homes."

Karol sees Project Chametz as the logical fusion of two traditions—eliminating chametz from the home during Passover and sharing food with those who have little or none.

"The Haggadah (a book that tells the story of Passover) says, 'Let anyone who is hungry . . . partake of what we have to share,' " Karol says. "Instead of throwing it out or giving it to neighbors who don't really need it, we can give the food to people who really need it. That sense of hospitality is very much a part of Passover."

This will not be the first or the last time the members of Sha'aray Shalom will share their goods and time with their neighbors.

THE TRIAL COURT
THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT
NORFOLK DIVISION
DOCKET NO. ·91P0551E1

Estate of EVERETT W. WHEELWRIGHT late of COHASSET In the County of NORFOLK.

NOTICE

A petition has been presented in the above-captioned matter praying that the last will of said decedent be proved and allowed and that MADELAINE STOVER WHEELWRIGHT of COHASSET in the County of NORFOLK and DUSTIN E. WHEELWRIGHT of COHASSET in the County of NORFOLK be appointed executors named in the will without surety on the bond.

If you desire to object to the allowance of said petition, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before 10:00 in the forenoon on April 10, 1991.

In addition you should file a written statement of objections to the petition, giving the specific grounds therefore, within thirty (30) days after the return day (or such other time as the Court, on motion with notice to the petitioner, may allow) in accordance with Probate Rule 16.

Witness, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court at Dedham, the sixth day of March, one thousand nine hundred and ninety-one.

Recreation events . . .

Recreation staff will conduct all programs and staff from both the South Shore Sports Center and South Shore Baseball Club will provide clinical instruction on a visiting basis, for soccer and baseball programs.

Programs will be postponed on days during inclement weather and should you be in doubt as to the status of any program, please call the Recreation Department office at 383-6791 for determination.

To register, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department office at 383-6791. All programs must be limited in number and registration will be accepted on a first call basis. Thursday programs meet at the "after school" time of 3 p.m. even on early release days.

Plans are currently being made for Saturday recreation programs for grades K-6, and will be announced soon.

SUMMER SPORTS CAMPS

The Cohasset Recreation Department will offer a variety of sports camps during the summer, for both boys and girls, ages 3 through 18.

Camps include: traditional summer playground, tennis lessons, baseball and softball, wrestling, football, lacrosse, basketball, soccer and pro-play.

Registration will be ongoing throughout spring for all specific sports camps. Monday, June 17 to Friday, June 21, the Recreation Department will be accepting applications for the 1991 summer playground and tennis lessons, also late camp applications will be accepted. Please call the recreation office at 383-6791 for information to register.

Baseball and softball camp: Monday, June 24-Friday, June 28, ages 6-18, boys and girls, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Miliken Field, $100. Directed by South Shore Baseball Club.

Heights dump hopes to handle 10 towns

By Joseph Mont
Mariner staff

A group of local residents are concerned that a proposed expansion of the Cohasset Heights Landfill, for possible use as a regional facility, could be an environmental disaster.

A group calling itself Concerned Citizens of Cohasset (CCC), met last week to shape their response to a Draft Environmental Impact Report (DEIR) that was issued late in February.

The deadline for comments on the report is March 28.

The report outlines a proposal to expand the Cohasset Heights Landfill from 20 acres to 47.5 acres. The landfill is currently restricted to accepting only demolition materials. The expansion plan calls for general refuse.

In the environmental report, prepared by SAIC Engineering of Lakeville, it is suggested that the 10-town South Shore Coalition investigate the site for use as either a regional landfill or recycling facility.

The coalition, which includes Cohasset, was awarded a $150,000 grant to study the long range waste disposal needs of its member towns by the state Department of Environmental Protection.

The report said that if it was warranted a regional materials recycling facility building could be built on 15 acres at the site at the Heights.

It said that the recycling facility could be as long as 350 feet, and might visible from Route 3A.

It would initially be designed to process 150 tons per day with a capacity of 300 tons per day, the report said.

"Whether this facility will be included in the expansion is dependent on the the planning process that is now ongoing by the South Shore Coalition," according to the DEIR.

"It is recommended herein that the coalition consider this site for a regional recycling facility."

The DEIR said that the landfill, a privately owned facility, would be ideally suited for the coalition towns because it is centrally located.

The DEIR said that its recommendations should be used by the coalition as "as a tool in their planning process."

Proponents have said that even though the expanded landfill might fit into the coalition's plan, it is not contingent upon those plans.

The report estimated that coalition towns produce 192,000 tons of refuse per year.

According to Dr. Joseph Godzik, the town's health agent, officials have not crafted an opinion for, or against, the expansion.

Several department heads met with attorney Michael Leon of Warner and Stackpole, the town's counsel on the Coming retirements lead to town DPW

By Charles Mooney
Special to the Mariner

Consolidating Cohasset's public works department into one central facility, with gradual reorganization into one Department of Public Works as department heads retire would be the best way to improve efficiency and cut costs, according to a report to selectmen from the Department of Public Works Study Committee.

The five member committee was formed by selectmen last August and charged with studying the feasibility of combining "two or more" of the Highway, Tree/Park/Cemetery, Wire, Recycling/Transfer, Water, and Sewer Departments. The Committee reviewed the organization of other towns, then studied each of Cohasset's six town public works departments. The committee studied the function, budget, personnel, and equipment of each department, and interviewed each department head.

Committee Chairman Terry Atherton told Selectmen "In spite of the dispersal of town departments around Cohasset, an awful lot of cooperation and resource sharing already exist, in spite of; rather than because of the structure." Atherton said, "Things are working so well because of the good working relationships that have evolved between departments."

The report says "because of this existing cooperation and resource sharing, opportunities for improved operating efficiencies as a result of organizational consolidation are limited." Atherton told Selectmen that the only area his committee saw that needed personnel was the transfer facility, "which could use an extra man on weekends to check stickers and so forth."

An opportunity for reorganization will occur when department heads retire. "It is likely that three (possibly four) department heads may retire at about the same time," the report states. "If this occurs, several decades of accumulated knowledge of the town's operations would be lost, which could be very disruptive." Reorganization would ensure that the current level of efficiency and cooperation would not be lost when new people take over.

The Committee recommends that the Highway and Tree/Park/Cemetery Departments be consolidated first, "as these two departments are already working together quite closely." Consolidation should proceed smoothly, and could lead to more effective sharing of equipment. Next to be absorbed should be the Recycling Transfer Facility, only after the landfill has been capped, and finally the Water Department. The Sewer and Water Departments should be combined, but remain as a separate entity. "The skills needed to run those departments are different, so we feel they should stay a separate department," Atherton said.

Selectman Ned Tebbetts accepted the committee's report with "thanks for a fine job." Selectmen Chairman Rocco Laugelle suggested the town begin to look at sites such as the old skating rink on Route 3A for a home for the new Department of Public Works.

Harbormaster rows with the tide

By Andrew MacLellan
Mariner correspondent

This season, the harbormaster's office will be asked to cut back on patrols due to fiscal constraints within the town budget.

However, if Cohasset harbormaster Irving Gadow has a problem with it, he isn't letting on.

As he readies himself for the beginning of his third summer of duty, Gadow doesn't see any difficulty with the curtailment of his hours, "I've got no complaints yet," said the reticent ex-Coast Guardsman.

When pressed as to just what the cut would mean he replied, "I wouldn't want to say."

He did admit, however, that he would be patrolling randomly in an effort to infuse his tour with an element of surprise.

Gadow is presently working on the installation of a toilet for the harbormaster's shack. What employees had done to answer nature's call before the town granted money for the commode is anybody's guess.

The harbormaster did lend assurance to the fact that his office hours will remain unchanged. He may be contacted any time between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. Monday through Friday. Anyone wishing to sign up for the mooring waiting list may see Gadow during business hours or send a letter addressed to the harbormaster by April 1. Mooring fees, which are also due April 1, must be paid at the

The town's Recycling and Transfer Facility, the RTF, will be closed Easter Sunday due to the holiday.

The facility will be open Monday, April 1, according to a spokesman for the board of health.

Selectmen revote a raise

The result was the same Monday as selectmen reconsidered action on a three percent raise for non-union and elected town employees.

The difference was Selectman Chairman Rocco Laugelle abstained from the vote.

The vote for the raise was 4-0 Monday. Laugelle said he realized after the first vote that he should not vote on raises that affect his immediate relatives. Two of his brothers and a sister are effected by the raise.

Renovation bills come due

Selectmen Monday approved paying a $5,040 bill to the architectural firm of Strekalovsky and Holt of Hingham and another for $86,039 to Lambrian Construction Co. Both bills are for work on the police and fire station renovations.

Cohasset outsells others

Consistently tops in sales for most of the past dozen years, the Cohasset office of the Jack Conway Company once again walked away with the number one spot in 'Conway Country' for 1990.

Cohasset office manager Mary Ellen Neagle accepted the award from Conway President Dick Cahill recently.

To earn the top position, Cohasset had to outsell the other 35 offices in the Conway Company.

Office associates include: Robert Beggan, Edwin Bennett, Paul Bowers, Peter Breen, Jill Caffrey, Eunice Coady, Muriel Desmond, Gloria Ellis, Thomas Finegan, Steven Forman, Ann Gilligan, Marge Gorman, Paula Graham, Carol Ann Green, Marilyn Jarvis, Richard Long, Peter Murray, Don Oppenheim, Susan Ryan, Ruth Underwood-Weiss, Janet Walden and Carol Whitney.

Carleton appointed to League

The Social Service League of Cohasset is pleased to announce the addition of Patricia Carleton, LICSW, to its staff, as of April 1. Carleton is presently a psychotherapist with the Family Counseling and Guidance Center in Marshfield. In addition, she has been an investigator for the Boston Juvenile court.

Carleton has provided individual, marital, child and group therapy to a varied population, and she brings to the League a broad spectrum of clinical skills. The Social Service League encourages the community to avail itself of Carleton's experience. Call 383-0771 or 383-0821.

Girls' softball registration

The Cohasset Girls' Softball League will begin its second season beginning in mid- May. The league has expanded to include 4th Grade girls along with 5th and 6th Grade girls. The season is eight weeks long with games being played on Wednesday evenings and two Sunday afternoon games.

The Cohasset Girls' Softball League will provide participants with an opportunity to learn and improve their softball skills and to have fun! Good sportsmanship and the team concept will also be stressed.

Registration forms will be available at the Deer Hill School or by calling Mrs. Smith (383-2510). Registration must be completed by April 3.

town hall.

Keeping himself busy in the winter, Gadow constantly updates the mooring waiting list and keeps the docks, which are pulled up on the marsh each fall, in repair.

He anticipates putting the docks back in the water around the end of April or the beginning of May to gear up for the warm weather and the crowds.

Last summer's annual rush brought no undue excitement by the office of the harbormaster.

"It was uneventful," said Gadow.

So it seems that despite the cutback, not much will change in Cohasset's cove this season. The same boats will steam in and out, and "Irv" will still be patrolling from White Head To White Rock, keeping law and order in the harbor.

Coach Gill brings the softball team back to basics

By Donna Cogliano
Mariner correspondent

Someone once said that diamonds are a girl's best friend. Were they referring to softball diamonds? You must understand that there are other diamonds such as that place where young ladies toss a softball.

Members of the Cohasset High School varsity softball team might be establishing a close friendship with the sport of softball on the softball diamond these days. The girls are out there five days a week training for the start of their season which begins next week versus Scituate.

It's back to basics for the Cohasset High School softball team as it takes to outdoor practices this week. The strategy is simple for Cohasset coach Mike Gill who is stressing fielding, batting and base running at this point.

"We're getting the arms ready to go," said Gill. Thirty girls turned out to play softball which began March 18. The Cohasset girls are working out on the diamond where they are perfecting their fielding, batting and base running.

Cohasset coach Mike Gill enters his fourth year in charge of the softball team. Last year the Skippers turned in a 5-9 season. Eleven members of the varsity squad are returning from last year and that sounds extremely hopeful.

One of the big guns for Cohasset will be returning all-star center fielder Barbara Lagrotteria who will be the leadoff batter. "She's a tremendous defensive outfielder," said Gill.

Lagrotteria possesses good speed and steady bunting. "We're hoping that she'll be on base a lot," said Gill. Lagrotteria has the potential to lead the league in steals, according to Gill.

Moving over from the tennis courts to the softball diamond will be senior Kara Manion, a three-year starter. Manion traded in her tennis racket for a softball glove this year and Gill is happy to have her three years of experience. Manion will be playing a new position for herself and will be covering left field which requires a reliable glove.

Manion, a senior, is known for her heavy bat and good speed.

Sophomore Alison Ludlow will be starting at shortstop which is a crucial part of the infield.

During her first two years, the versatile Ludlow played catcher. Last year she was named an all-star for her outstanding contributions on the field.

Gill said of Ludlow, "She's an excellent athlete. We're expecting big things from her both defensively and offensively."

Twin sisters Maureen and Kay Long can hit the ball long for the Skippers. The senior duo will provide the offensive punch for Cohasset as a regular part of the lineup.

Junior Heather Bass is returning to play at third base. She will have to cover everything from bunts to line drives on that side of the field. Sophomore Danielle Shaughnessy will be back to play at second base where she started last year.

Fortunately, Cohasset will have a familiar face catching from behind the plate from sophomore Jennifer Knowles. Known as a fine defensive catcher, Knowles is considered one of the team leaders as only a sophomore. Gill is expecting big things from her bat at the plate, this year.

Senior Nicole Barry has won starting honors in the pitching department this year. She filled in last year and was a pleasant surprise with her performances.

Barry worked hard in the off season and it shows. "We'll be looking for consistency from her," said Gill.

Cohasset is also fortunate to have Tyree Peinemann aboard as a junior transfer student from Texas. She is expected to be a solid contributor.

The Skippers will be forced to start the season without Kerri Miele, a captain and first baseman from last year. She will be out with a back injury indefinitely. "We are going to miss her," said Gill.

Four juniors on the roster are: Bridget Leung, Ali Welz, Carol Smith and Rebecca Tosca. Sophomores Lisa Schramm and Jen Anstead will round out the squad.

Carver is expected to be Cohasset's toughest opponent in the league this season. "I think that we should be improved with in the league - improved over last year," Gill concluded.

Prop 2 1/2 will remain, Hedlund says

By Charles Mooney
Special to the Mariner

Freshman State Sen. Robert Hedlund, R-Weymouth, told the Board of Selectmen that "there is no will to weaken Proposition 2 1/2 on Beacon Hill. It seems to be the will of the people — there's no interest in changing it."

Hedlund told the selectmen they have little hope to weaken the statutory limitation on towns from raising taxes above 2 1/2 percent of the previous year.

Selectman Diana Kornet told Hedlund she hoped the legislature would allow "the number for increase in taxes to be real rather than pegging 2 1/2 out of thin air." Kornet told Hedlund she would also like to "have it possible for towns to override 2 1/2 and make it stand."

Hedlund told Selectman Martha Gjesteby he thought local aid should be level funded at last year's allotment. Cohasset faces a $127,000 cut in local aid. "This town is extremely well managed, but we're unclear as to what the state's going to do," Gjesteby said.

Roy Fitzsimmons disagreed with the board, saying "I hope that nothing is touched with Proposition 2 1/2. It's been battered and assaulted. I don't think things are run as efficiently as they could be."

"We've been assaulted and battered by Proposition 2 1/2," rejoined Selectman Chairman Rocco Laugelle. "Try to run a town on it," added Selectman Jane Goedecke.

Experts speak on Saltmarsh April 9

Two experts on Salt Marsh Ecology will speak at a meeting sponsored by The Gulf Association on Tuesday, April 9, in the Unitarian Parish House on Cohasset Common at 7:30 p.m.

Drs. John M. Teal and Susan B. Peterson will present an illustrated lecture on "The Hidden Values of Salt Marshes and their Preservation."

Dr. Teal is a senior scientist at the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, where he has been doing research since 1961. He is a Director of the Conservation Law Foundation of New England and a writer and consultant on wetlands, oil pollution, and coastal oceanography. He is author of Life and Death of the Salt Marsh, first published in 1969 and still, after many printings, the definitive book on salt marsh ecology. He is also the author of other trade books, encyclopedia articles, and more than 125 scientific articles. His previous positions were at the Institute of Oceanography at Dalhousie University in Nova Scotia, and at the University of Georgia Marine Institute at Sapelo Island. His PhD is from Harvard University in 1955, in biology.

Dr. Peterson is the President of Ecological Engineering Associates, a company using ecological systems for waste treatment. She is a Director of the Plymouth County Wildlands Trust and the Coalition for Buzzards Bay. Dr. Peterson's PhD is from the University of Hawaii in 1973, in anthropology. Previously, she worked at Boston University, a fish processing company, and at the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution. Her expertise lies in the field of environmental policy.

Now you can afford to dream in color.

If you've been dreaming of affordable color, meet the new Macintosh® LC computer.

It's a new level of performance and responsiveness in the Macintosh family and, just as importantly, it's a complete Macintosh.

Whether you're in a business where color presentations would pique interest, or in a classroom where color would pique attention, the LC is the most affordable entry into color Macintosh computing.

Its sleek, new, modular design lets you add one of three Apple® monitors, without having to add a video card. And built-in sound capabilities let electronic mail and presentations be heard as well as seen.

Like other modular Macintosh computers, the LC is easy to expand. When equipped with the Apple IIe card, it can run software written for Apple IIe systems. With a communications card—such as the Apple Ethernet card—the LC can network with other computers.

So stop in and let us show you how easily color can take on a whole new value.

Then, go ahead and dream.

Heights dump hopes to handle 10 towns

expansion, on March 21.

The consulting firm Camp, Dresser, and McKee, has been retained to draft the town's official response to the DEIR.

Godzik said that the town's role at this point is not to comment on the plan itself, but the the adequacy of the DEIR and whether or not the report meets the scope set by the Secretary of Environmental Affairs.

He said that the DEIR will be scrutinized for how it deals with the issues of odor, traffic, and groundwater protection.

Alix White, a member of CCC, said that her group is worried that the expansion could threaten the town's water supply at Lily Pond, which is less than one mile from the proposed expansion.

She said that it was folly to build a "landfill of this magnitude so close to a major water supply."

"People are starting to understand that you can't play with fire anymore, you cannot mess with the water supply," she said.

The DEIR claims that there is no threat to the public water supply or private wells.

"The body of work indicates that there is no reason to assume that the existing facility has caused any significant adverse impacts to public health, safety, or the environment," it said. "Several studies have confirmed that ground water and surface water divides exist in the wetlands area surrounding the site."

"These divides direct the major portion of groundwater and surface water migrating from the landfill into Great Swamp and eventually toward the north and Turkey Hill Run Brook."

The report maintained that neither the current landfill, nor the proposed expansion would impact the public drinking water source at nearby Lily Pond.

"There are no existing or potential, public or private water supply sources, downgradient of the proposed expansion," the report said.

It also said that no private water supply wells are within 500 feet of the site.

Paul Barry, the owner of the landfill, said that the existing landfill is regularly tested to make sure there is no contamination to the water supply.

He said that in its nine years of operation all tests have shown no contamination and the facility has never been cited by the state.

White and her group also expressed concern that the expansion would affect environmentally sensitive areas near the landfill, such as the Weir River and the Great Swamp.

The DEIR expressed similar concerns, and explained that, runoff would drain into Great Swamp.

The report said that the expansion could impact three environmentally sensitive areas: Whitney and Thayer Woods in Hingham and Cohasset; Wompatuck State Park in Cohasset, Hingham, Scituate, and Norwell; and the Weir River Estuary in Cohasset, Hingham, and Hull.

White said that the odor is another major concern.

The DEIR said that the landfill will use a gas collection system that will burn off dangerous and foul smelling gasses.

Godzik said that such a system may be "more or less the state of the art," but that he still had reservations.

"Whether or not that is going to be completely effective against these odors I don't know," he said.

According to a report by Avid Gordon Associates of Newton Upper Falls, a consulting firm whose 1988 report is included in the DEIR, said that between the gas and leachate collection systems could virtually eliminate the problem of odor.

"The only exceptions would be an equipment malfunction or an act of God."
Avid Gordon Associates

"It is our professional opinion that when those recommendations are implemented, odor emanations from the landfill will cease at all boundaries of the landfill," the report said.

"The only exceptions would be an equipment malfunction or an act of God."

The report said that a proposal to use an activated charcoal system in leachate tanks could keep any odors from drifting outside the landfill.

The report said that the smell often found near the landfill, which one letter referred to as "a nauseating chemical smell" were not caused by the landfill.

"The results of the sampling effort clearly indicate that the odors found on Route 3A, and other areas of the town, did not originate from the landfill," the report said.

"The offending odors on Route 3A were caused by decomposition of organic material in the swamp across (the street).

The odor survey concluded that the landfill is "the best" in terms of odor control they had seen."

Godzik said he did not think rodent and insect control would be a problem for the expansion.

"With a well-operated landfill that should not be an issue," he said, "a bigger issue is the birds. There has been a problem with seagulls in the past and they are probably going to be a problem again if (the landfill) goes back to general refuse."

He said that in the past air cannons were used to frighten off the scavenger birds.

"That was not a very good solution in the past," he said, explaining that the noise was often more aggravating to neighbors than the birds themselves.

Godzik said he was also concerned that the expanded landfill would have a tough time keeping up with litter control.

He said that the current plan, which uses a nightly covering and portable fences, probably would not be enough to keep trash from blowing in all directions.

If the expansion does not go through, one possible use for the land is the construction of an industrial park.

Barry said that this was only an outside possibility, and he agreed with the DEIR's assertion that the industrial park might be just as environmentally damaging

"An industrial park development would create potential impacts to surface and groundwater, as well as traffic and noise, that might require mitigation," according to the DEIR.

Easter services at St. Stephen's

Services for Maundy Thursday, Good Friday, and Easter including a twenty-four hour prayer vigil will be held at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, 16 Highland Ave., Cohasset.

Worship will begin with a prayer vigil on Maundy Thursday, March 28 at 3 p.m. which will continue through Good Friday.

The Eucharist will be celebrated on Maundy Thursday at 7 p.m. Instruction will be given on the various aspects of this communion service. The ceremony of the washing of feet will also take place. This commemorates Jesus' washing his disciples' feet which symbolizes an end to selfish pride and an example of service.

Good Friday worship will take place from 12 noon to 3 p.m. on March 28.

Election loss leads to job for ex-candidate who plans to create more jobs

By Joseph Mont
Mariner staff

"Jobs, jobs, jobs."

That's the mantra of Daniel Daly, a Hingham resident who is the the new undersecretary of economic development for the Weld administration.

Daly, the one time wunderkind of the GOP, was once thought of as the great white hope to unperch the liberal Senator John Kerry.

He never made it to the election, but his campaign introduced him to Gov. William Weld, who named Daly to his new post.

Daly's job is to kick start the ailing Massachusetts economy, which to paraphrase a late night television ad has "fallen and it can't get up."

As a political newcomer and a former small businessman, Daly said he stresses a break from the past to "change the image of Massachusetts in the business community."

"We want the message to be that the Weld administration definitely wants jobs to stay here and grow here," he said. "Jobs are the governor's number one priority."

He said that one of his primary duties is to spread the word that the state is mending its ways. He said he wants that message to bring back confidence in the state.

He admitted that the administration has a lot to accomplish in a very short period of time.

"In the amount of time we have, these are not going to be perfect decisions," he said, "but I think what we are doing is right and had to be done."

He said that the governor's "most positive message" to date was the repeal of the sales tax on services.

"That didn't just happen, it came from a change in attitude," he said.

He said that the administration is trying to undo the damage of year's of deficit spending and "throwing money at problems."

"We can no longer waste money in state government, because if we continue to waste it we will not be able to deliver the basic services state government is obliged to do."

He said the governor is now designing a fiscal package "that will send a strong message to employers."

Another reform Daly said he is seeking is in the regulatory process for new developments; the slew of draft environmental reports and hearings that are required before a new project can break ground.

"I want to make the regulatory process for any kind of approval more efficient," he said. "This is not to compromise on protecting the environment but to make the process more efficient and less costly."

Daly said the state should also steep up its efforts to attract defense contracts which make up a "significant portion of the states GNP."

He said that the success of technical weapons systems, many of which were designed and built in Massachusetts, shows what the state has to offer.

He said that Massachusetts could be at an advantage as "states vie for shrinking defense dollars."

"I think we can bring defense dollars back that are not wasted," he said. "We are good in these areas — they are not pork barrel projects."

"These systems and weapons in the Gulf proved that they work. We always wondered if they would work and they did. I think our congressional delegation should be competing for those legitimate dollars; it doesn't have to be $100 toilet seats it can be legitimate projects."

He said that he would also push for an increased role in international markets.

He said that the state should not only concentrate on exports, but also on establishing itself as a gateway to the Atlantic rim for companies based in other states.

Daly said that he saw the South Shore as having a thriving business climate. He said the area has a lot to offer business that might want to move out of the city.

"The South Shore has a strong economic backbone, and it is one of the fastest growing areas in the state," he said.

"It has a good infrastructure and an attitude that is pro-business and pro-employment. It is a great place to be.

"You may very well see an infusion of service companies moving into the South Shore, out of the Boston area, when the big did starts.

Daly said that the South Shore also has a good potential for tourist dollars; a business that has not been developed as well as it could.

Library story hours

Registrations are currently being accepted for Spring story hour series at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library. The series begins on April 25, and lasts for six weeks. Sessions will be offered at 10 a.m. on Thursdays and Fridays. Each 45 minute program consists of several picture book stories and simple fingerplays, songs, and crafts. Children must be at least 3-1/2 to participate.

To register, stop by the Children's Room, or call the children's librarians at 383-1348.

AROUND TOWN

❑ Congratulations go to Megan Manion this week! She made the Academic Honors List for the fall semester at Saint Mary's College, Notre Dame Indiana. Megan graduated from Cohasset High School in 1987, many of you will remember her as the captain of the cheerleaders. You can tell that she is putting forth a lot of effort and is dedicated to her studies, and everyone is proud of her.

❑ Happy belated birthday greetings go to Bob Johnston, his big day was March 22.

❑ We hope that John Winters is feeling much better as he reads this. It is almost time to begin that wonderful garden that he has every year, so you can bet that will get him going quickly.

❑ Brian P. Pompeo received his varsity letter for hockey recently, awarded by Christopher Wadsworth, headmaster. Brian attends Belmont Hill School, an independent day and five-day boarding school for boys in grades 7-12. Small classes, a rigorous and traditional academic program, schoolwide athletics and other activities provide students with the opportunity for personal development and strong college preparation.

❑ Have to send more birthday greetings to the Johnston household, this time they are a bit early...Sydney Johnston will be 11 on April 7, and we certainly hope that it will be a happy day for her.

❑ A get well wish for Leona Pratt this week, hope that you are up and around in no time.

❑ This Saturday is a special one for all of the kiddos, the Cohasset Recreation Department will hold its 15th annual Easter Egg Hunt. It will be held at the Deer Hill School, at noon, and is for ages 3 through 11. There are rumors that the Easter Bunny will be there, and there will be other live animals there too. Hats off to the Cohasset Rotary Club, Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 9146, American Legion Post 118, the Cohasset Police Association, and the Chamber of Commerce, who are sponsors of the event. If it rains, the egg hunt will be held on April 6, same time, same place.

❑ Congratulations to Derek Lacks and Lee Lacks, both of whom made the Dean's List at Providence College. To attain the Dean's List a student must maintain a 3.250 or higher cumulative average, with no grade lower than a C. A grade of B is equal to a 3.0.

❑ That was quite an article on Barbara Malley in last week's Quincy Patriot Ledger. In case you missed it, she has written a book entitled Take My Ex-Husband, Please—But Not Too Far. Barbara spent most of her married life in our fair town, and now makes her home in Weymouth. It must be exciting to have her first book published, it promises to be a funny one indeed. In case you want to catch up with her, she will be in Hingham Square at the Bookport on May 4 from 3-5 p.m.

❑ Hats off to the Beechwood Congregational Church for holding another successful "Election Supper." To most that is a big part of the running for an office, and it is reminiscent of the olden days...so nice.

❑ Many are still talking about the Flower show that was held at the Bayside Expo Center two weeks ago...it was said to be the best one yet. We congratulate the Community Garden Club and the Cohasset Garden Club for their prize-winning efforts.

❑ Finally, don't forget that this weekend is the deadline for registering for the Rotary Road Race (March 31 is the last day). There is a fee of $8 and the number of runners is limited to 800. The race will begin at 1 p.m. on Sunday April 7. Applications are available at Curtis Liquors, Cohasset Pharmacy and Good Sport. This race has become a noted one, attracting runners throughout New England. The magazine The New England Runner claims it to be the most scenic race. Even if you aren't planning to run, don't miss it.

❑ That's the news for this week...what's new in your family? Let us know!

Donations sought for restoration project

There's an exciting new project now underway at Cohasset High School's Alternative School. Under the supervision of teacher Jack Buckley, 14 students are restoring a 26-foot Monomoy Surfboat, which they plan to finish in time to row in the Harbor Fest here this June. They are doing much of the work themselves, guided by a marine carpenter. They have also acquired impressive rowing skills, competing in several fixed-seat rowing races last fall (in a borrowed boat) and winning one of them.

The Surfboat is on long-term loan to the High School from the Hull Lifesaving Museum, which has an active Rowing Association, led by Ed McCabe, that sponsors rowing programs in several communities around Boston Harbor. McCabe oversees the Cohasset High School program from the rowing skills and water safety standpoints.

The Surfboat is basically sound, Buckley says, but it needs about $2,000 worth of professional marine carpentry and about $2,500 in materials and equipment to get it ready to row. He says this $4,500 investment, plus a lot of work by the High School "crew," will produce a boat that would cost at least $10,000 on the open market – "one that the High School can structure a rowing program around for years to come, which is its intention," Buckley adds.

A group of Cohasset residents, headed by Jack Hubbard, is undertaking to raise the needed funds for this project by voluntary contribution. With a solicitation letter he has sent to people thought to be interested in the rowing program, Hubbard enclosed a "Requisition List" itemizing the marine carpentry, materials and equipment needed to get the boat in the water. Included are such items as $216 for 12 rowlocks, $300 for 12 oars, $480 for 12 lifejackets, and $85 for topside and bottom paint.

Hubbard invites anyone wishing to support the restoration project to "buy" one or more of the needed items. One rowlock, for instance, costs $18; an oar costs $25. He says contributors can send checks to the Hull Lifesaving Museum, Box 221, Hull, MA 02045. Checks may be made out to "HLM/Cohasset," and contributions are tax-deductible, Hubbard says.

"Those who contribute to this project," Hubbard adds, "will not only help to restore a good boat; they will help to preserve Cohasset's seafaring tradition and build strength of character in Cohasset's young people, besides."

For further information, please call Jack Hubbard at 383-0586.

Troop 28 succeeds

Troop 28 of Cohasset started the new year with an Eagle Court of Honor celebration for David Farrag. Congratulations David, for achieving the highest rank in scouting.

In following the Scout motto, "be prepared," our scouts spent a weekend at Camp Child in Plymouth preparing for the Annual Great Klondike Derby Weekend.

The Klondike Derby was a great come back for Troop 28. They certainly proved being prepared pays off by placing fourth against 19 troops in the Klondike Derby. Over 400 Scouts attended the event at Camp Sayre in Milton.

A great job was done by scouts Frank Abadie, Ryan Bishop, Jerry and Sean Cogill, Jay Nothnagle, Lodovico Sestito, patrol leader; Bill St. Croix, Chad and Mark Whitman who were led by Howie Motenko, scout master.

Save some time to join Town Meeting, April 6

Save Saturday, April 6, for Town Meeting.

This is our chance to make the financial decisions the town will live with in the coming fiscal year.

Town Meeting begins at 10 a.m. in the auditorium at the junior/senior high school.

The town's decision on an override is crucial this year. The first step towards an override will be taken by the voters assembled for Town Meeting. The second step will happen later at a special election — if Town Meeting goes along with the advisory committee recommendations.

Two areas of government are on shaky ground this year. The youngest and oldest of our residents are both dependent on town budgets that exceed the spending cap imposed by Proposition 2 1/2. We happen to believe the limits of Proposition 2 1/2 are fine — most of the time. We wouldn't like to see the limit changed.

We hope, however, that both the school system and the council on aging are able to find the resources they need to continue their work. We haven't heard from anyone who could find fat in either budget. We have seen only good things in the school system and in the programs for the seniors.

We hope the needs of the young are not pitted against the need of the elderly — if the cap is maintained.

We believe a prime purpose of government is to care for the needs of both these populations.

But no matter how you feel, we hope you take the time to be there when decisions are made April 6.

Don't let them use the Heights for the regional landfill

Putting a regional landfill off Route 3A at Cohasset Heights is a bad idea.

We can't think of a worse idea in recent history.

The change at our own dump has been fantastic since the switch to a recycling and transfer facility.

Now we might save a great deal of money if the regional landfill were within our borders, but the cost in aggravation and general aesthetics would far outweigh any financial gains.

Actually, it seems incredible that the same state agency that has been trying to close municipal landfills would give serious consideration to a private landfill built on a secondary roadway.

Council on Aging Budget defended

To the Editor:

The Council on Aging has been providing services for 20 years, but the concept of the Senior Center and all the programs and services it encompasses is relatively new since 1986.

The needs of the senior citizens become more apparent each year and should be recognized and understood. The importance and scope of the duties that the Council on Aging department has been appointed by the town to oversee is vast and varied. The Senior Center programs have increased 40 percent since 1986. In 1987 there was one desk, one phone, a typewriter and the director in the office and occasionally a volunteer. Now there are five desks and four phones. The director has applied for and received grants for a Senior Aide — on duty 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. every day; for a SHINE coordinator — 20 hours a week; and an outreach worker — 18 hours a week. In addition one or two volunteers work in the office on a regular schedule.

The director's presentation of facts and figures has resulted in Cohasset being awarded over $90,000 in federal and state grants since 1987. Some of the duties of the director — chosen by the nine member board — are to oversee:

1. The SHINE coordinator who trains others, and they assist with health insurance questions and claims and give referrals to pharmacists and physicians. She also plans educational programs.

2. The Outreach worker whose duties are of the utmost importance to the growing number of senior citizens who are isolated and unaware of the sources available to them such as home help care. She also oversees educational programs.

3. To coordinate the necessary van trips for appointments and shopping and to the many programs and seminars offered through the Senior Center, and to plan cultural, educational and recreational events.

4. To select and train the volunteer office staff to record attendance, to keep the books and to plan activities — and to seek out the many volunteers (including the 67 van drivers) all of whom have a dollar value of well over $100,000 a year.

Each year town departments are asked to present a level funded budget to the advisory board, and they are told there are no funds for increases. However, in two years — 1989 and 1990 — a total of $1,104,805 was added to five departments, $505,000, to the schools and the rest to General Government, Public Safety, Social Service League and Recreation.

This past year (TOWN MEETING 4/7/90) the total recommended for the Council on Aging budget $33,898 was less than the two previous years. The operating expense account has shrunk from $10,639 in 1989 to $3,836 for 1992.

Subtracting from a department receiving a minimal budget, (receiving less than 1/3 of 1 percent of the total $12 million budget) is not equitable. Schools and education are very important. The needs of the elderly are very important.

Expecting a department that accomplishes as much as the Council on Aging does to operate with only $3,836 is not farsighted. When senior citizens keep well emotionally and physically, the need of hospitalization and nursing homes is often eliminated or postponed. They do not become dependent on their children. You, the taxpayer, will be paying more federal and state taxes to pay Medicaid bills — if hospitalization is needed.

The amount needed for operating expenses will not continue to grow so dramatically in future years. But additional funds will always help to insure expansion of programs. Certainly those who have been productive most of their lives — and still are (saving the town funds by mailing the tax bills and the town warrants) — deserve some small measure of caring and attention when they find themselves alone and vulnerable and with physical limitations.

The Council on Aging serves the fastest growing segment of the town's population, we need the support of all the townspeople to support the Council at this year's Town Meeting for the Council's Budget and the Outreach Workers' position - Article #31. (4,169.00).

News from home can disturb

This letter is in response to Patricia Desmonds' editorial "We honor our peace-keepers" dated March 7.

If the editor had found the time to contact the Sons of the American Legion, the American Legion or the Veterans of Foreign Wars first, Ms. Desmond would have discovered diligent plans to honor our returning servicemen were already underway.

Imagine, an editorial such as Ms. Desmond's, arriving in the Persian Gulf, as many Mariners are forwarded, and our local soldiers hungry for "news from home."

Greenbush line attacked again

To the Editor:

Given the South Shore demographics and the history of ridership on the P&B Bus, it appears as though the Greenbush train line would be a misuse of funds.

Recent studies, the most pertinent being in the Boston Globe September 9, 1990, have shown that the population of Cohasset has actually decreased by two percent over the past decade while the Plymouth-Kingston area has shown explosive growth. By taking the southwestern cars off the road through renovating existing tracks toward Plymouth, and increasing the boat service for the shoreline communities, the Transportation commission would have the greatest impact on road traffic (with the least amount spent) and will alleviate the congestion on the Southeast Expressway.

Having been a commuter into Boston at odd hours for seven years, I have witnessed that the only time the P&B Bus was filled was during rush hour, and even then, there were frequently many seats left unfilled between Cohasset and the Rockland central parking lot.

Over this past decade, the Plymouth and Brockton bus line has relentlessly cut back on its scheduled runs, and now does not even pass through our community on weekends. Perhaps they have learned that it is not profitable to offer public transportation on this route unless it is rush hour. How can this beleaguered state possibly consider spending millions of dollars on capital improvements for tracks which will require constant and expensive maintenance, and will never bring a profit but only require even more substantial subsidies than the "T"? The amount of money this Greenbush line will lose due to maintaining the right of way and running nearly empty trains during all but rush hour will be staggering. At least the P&B can move its buses to a more profitable route during the off-peak hours on the Greenbush line, but the train tracks are a non-negotiable item.

Public transportation takes many forms. Perhaps the coastal communities should focus on the boat while the inland communities, built for highway access, take advantage of the train.

Kasperowicz hits town officials

By Tanna Kasperowicz

COMMENTARY

Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray listened to Selectmen Diana Kornet and Ned Tebbets moan at the selectmen's March 18 meeting. Kornet wants the state to make Prop. 2 1/2 easier to override so she can raise your taxes. She doesn't understand that we're in a recession, she thinks you're just in a bad mood. If you like Prop. 2 1/2 and don't want anybody fooling with it, let Kornet know.

As far as I'm concerned, Ned and Flamingo Legs Weld have lots in common ... Legs wants Cohasset to share more of the state's financial burdens ... Ned wants Cohasset voters to share more of his and Jane's (Goedecke) taxes. Let Ned and Jane know how you feel about them, as FINANCIAL OFFICERS OF THE TOWN, suing the town. If they all win, it will cost "the rest of us" $80,000 a year for three years, and that's not including 'Richie's (Henderson) and special counsel's fees.

Where were any of the selectmen when the Cohasset Town Employee group voted in favor of the removal of the $30,000 pension cap? This issue was debated by everybody for nine months before town employees in the county voted. It apparently went right over the heads of the Cohasset Selectmen and their nifty little South Shore Selectmen's association. They were probably discussing what color their town reports would be this year. The pension cap override's first time cost is in the vicinity of $80,000 to $120,000.

"Well, that's voted by town employees and we have nothing to do with that." — that's what they'll say when you ask them. But that's not the point. Selectmen could have put some pressure on town employees. Selectmen could have recommended no raises this year, next year, whatever. No, they discussed what color the ribbons on the town common should be.

My first joke on Skinny ...here goes. I'm at the dump, sorting my glass, when Skinny comes up and says: "Don't you think there are too many women on the board of selectmen?" and I sez: "Yep, let's put a man on this year. Better yet, let's put a policeman on."

Credit to Rocco Laugelle who recently noted that none of the private ambulance services who bid on the selectmen's request for proposal could come near to offering the type of service the town offers. That's because in Cohasset there's no charge for the ambulance ... it's free. It's sure hard to compete with free. Don't tell me how firemen are in the business of saving lives, not collecting dollars. They practically all have second jobs, and I bet they bill and collect from their customers promptly.

Last I heard, selectmen's goal for ambulance collections are 60 percent of billings. If this is all the Selectmen expect, then I suggest the selectmen shouldn't be managing the ambulance service.

Nice work, Jean Cotton. You weren't quoted anywhere that I'm aware of, but I'm going to paraphrase what you said here. The Government Structure Committee met with selectmen on March 4. Subject: Cohasset Ambulance Service. Dr. Mark Friedman, Chief of Emergency Medicine at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, and the Cohasset Board of Health are all very interested in the structure committee's (chaired by Roy Fitzsimmons) suggestions ... but not our illustrious selectmen. Kornet said something like this is all very lovely, but none of us have requested this, and why do you continue to do this when we don't care?

Laugelle said something like, "Certainly hope you look into other things as deeply as the fire department." Somebody on Government structure recited a list of other stuff the committee had looked into. And then Jean Cotton, said, and I paraphrase from memory: "We were created by Town Meeting in (forget the year) to look into anything we wished. As a courtesy to the Selectmen, we are here this evening to apprise you of our research. Generally speaking, we report to town meeting."

BUT. If the override fails, what plans have the selectmen made? Well, one plan, for awhile, was to sell the Bates building for $1. That will help our treasury a lot. Town meeting has previously given permission for Selectmen to sell both the Bates building and the Independence building. Nobody's sure why they keep asking us, but I'll say one thing in favor of not giving any property away to worthy causes. In a time when unemployment in Cohasset is 6.5 to 8.5 percent (depending on which newspaper you're reading) Selectmen owe it to townspeople to keep taxes as low as possible. Selectmen should be in the business of government. They have a history of being terrible landlord/managers: can't collect rents, can't get people

'Fit Tips' with Normandie Nighe

Dear Normandie,
I have been taking aerobics classes for the past two years. I feel that I'm in pretty good condition overall, and have decided that I want to run in the Cohasset Road Race this year. Will the aerobics be enough to get me ready for a 10K race? Bob, Cohasset.

Dear Bob,

You are probably in excellent cardiovascular shape, which means that your heart and lungs are very strong and quite capable of sustaining you through a long run. But you need to remember that training in one particular activity prepares us better for that activity, not necessarily a different one which uses different muscles, movements, and coordination. It's called training specificity.

In your case, Bob, aerobics will strengthen your heart, lungs, and lower body, which will all help in running. But the dynamics of running forward are much different than the dynamics of low impact aerobics, which involves many lateral movements and so uses different muscles. Fit individuals, like yourself, can usually do very well at a variety of sports or exercises, but it may not be as easy as expected if the individual hasn't been specifically using the muscles involved in the new activity.

Because different movements place different stresses on the body, new exercises should be done in small doses until the body has the time needed to adjust to the new activity. This is another good reason for people to start slowly and build up gradually, and good case for participating in a variety of activities, so that the body is physically well balanced and strong in all of the major muscle groups.

I would suggest that you begin training specifically for the road race by running short distances until you can run the entire course. Another option would be to participate in the morning walk this year and build up to the run next year. If you walk at a rapid pace, you will probably be able to reach your training heart rate and you will put less strain on your body than you would by running.

You will still need to prepare your body for long distance walking by strengthening your shins. This can best be done, believe it or not, by tapping your toes. The great thing is that this can be done at about any time or place, just start tapping away. Keep the toes turned front and then turn out to the sides while tapping. It won't take long before you feel the strength building in the lower leg. Stretch the muscles afterwards by pointing your toes downward, which elongates the shin muscles.

The most important thing to remember, Bob, is that specific training should be done before participating in any activity which will place a high degree of stress on your body. Good luck with the Road Race or Walk!

Please send suggestions for topics, questions or comments to: Fit For Success, 115 Ripley Road, Cohasset, MA 02025 (617) 383-2515 FAX (617) 383-2732.

PRE-SCHOOL SUMMER CAMP:

CAMP QUONAHASIT: All the joys of summer lay in store for pre-schoolers ages three to six at the Cohasset Community Center's Camp Quonahasit. The program will consist of free play, group games, arts and crafts and other creative activities, music and exploratory nature walks. Emphasis will be on outdoor activity. Children will attend Monday through Friday 9 a.m. to noon. Ten one-week sessions will be held starting June 10. Each week will have a special theme.

For information call Cohasset Community Center at 383-0088.

Dog obedience classes

The Cohasset Recreation Department will accept Telephone registrations for beginner and intermediate dog training classes to be taught by Laurie Cleveland. Classes will be held Tuesday evenings at the GAR Hall, Scituate, starting Tuesday evening April 2.

Beginner classes will be from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. and the intermediate/advanced class will be from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. both on Tuesday evenings. The fee for the eight week program will be $38. Checks, made payable to the Town of Cohasset may be brought to the first class. Participating dogs should be a minimum of three months of age. The purpose of beginner classes will be to teach novice pet owners basic obedience and responsible pet ownership. Subjects to be covered are proper use of voice corrections, stay commands, getting the dog to come, heel, etc. Helpful hints on ownership and responsibility will also be included. The training will include those exercises beneficial to the pet owner as well as those thinking about eventually showing their dog in obedience. The intermediate/advanced class is designed for dogs that have completed the Recreation Department beginner class.

For the classes, owners are required to have their dogs equipped with a humane choke chain. The proper size of the chain is determined by measuring the dogs neck and adding four inches. Absolutely no spike collars allowed. It is also strongly suggested that the handlers wear comfortable shoes and clothes for this session. For all classes: the fee is $38 per dog for the eight week, one hour per week program.

To register, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department at 383-6791. Classes are limited in size, non-residents will be accepted on a space available basis.

Register for recreation

The Cohasset Recreation Department continues to accept registrations for a number of Spring Children's Programs scheduled to begin the week of April 22. These programs are available due to the expanded use of our Revolving Account Fund last month. Program schedule is as follows and details will be available during March:

Mondays—Grades k-3—Soccer clinic, after school, 5 p.m., Osgood School Field.

Tuesdays—Grades 4-6—Soccer clinic, after school, 5 p.m., Deer Hill School Field.

Wednesdays—Grades k-3—Sports and Games, after school, 5 p.m., Osgood School Field.

Thursdays—Grades 4-6—Sports and Games, after school, 5 p.m., Deer Hill School Field.

Saturdays—Grades k-3—Sports and Games, 9 to 11 a.m.

Grades 4-6, Sports and Games, 12 to 2 p.m., Osgood School Field.

Each program will be eight weeks in duration and the fee structure will be approximately $20-$25 for the eight weeks and discounts for second and subsequent children will be available as well as fee reductions/waivers upon request. The programs will be conducted by Cohasset Recreation Department Staff members. Registration details will be forthcoming soon. The concept of the above programs are to provide youngsters the opportunity and benefits incumbent upon structured activities, games and sports. While soccer clinics will consist of instruction, an emphasis will also be placed on play, affording children more "hands on" experience, exercise and fun. Low-organized games and sports will be provided for children simply for fun and exercise within a structured environment.

BULLETIN BOARD

the 15th annual Easter Egg Hunt, for children 3 to 11 years, on Saturday, March 30, at noon at Deer Hill School.

This year there is again the distinct possibility that the Easter Bunny and helpers will be on hand. There also will be live animals at this year's hunt, as well as the other attractions.

Children will be divided into 3 separate chronological groups:

Group 1—Ages 3 and 4 (with parent). Younger than 3 may also attend, but with at least one parent at all times.

Group 2—Ages 5-7

Group 3—Ages 8-11

Please gather around your designated area sign before noon. Bring a small paper bag or container for your candy.

Individually wrapped chocolate eggs will be scattered about the designated areas. In each group some of the eggs will be wrapped with masking tape that will have a number on the tape. Should you find one of the numbered eggs, hold on to it as you will receive a prize from the Easter Bunny.

This year's program sponsors are: Cohasset Rotary Club, Veterans of Foreign Wars-Post 9146, American Legion Post #118, The Cohasset Police Association, and the Chamber of Commerce.

Rain date will be on Saturday, April 6, at noon, Deer Hill School Field.

During the past years, the Easter Bunny and helpers have visited Cohasset residents who are hospitalized or homebound, during the Easter season. Should you know of anyone that you feel could benefit from a visit by the Easter Bunny and helpers, you may call either the Recreation Department office at, 383-6791, or you may call Jean Salvador, and in either case, arrangements will be made.

'Spring Fling' set for April 7

The annual Spring Fling sponsored by the South Shore Chapter #1139 of the American Association of Retired Persons will be held on Sunday, April 7, 2 to 5 p.m. at the Sons of Italy Hall on Route 3A in Hingham. Entertainment will be presented by Norm Conrad's Mini Minstrels and music by Nick Latteo. Special homemade refreshments will be served. Tickets are $10 per person and will be on sale at the March meeting. Members of the National AARP or NRTA and friends are welcome to attend.

The Spring Fling is the sole fund raiser of the Guardino Fund, which was established in 1983 to aid disadvantaged children. It was named for Cummings Giardino, who served as Chapter President from 1979-82, and started the project. The donations have for the past seven years sent many children on the South Shore to summer camp.

Scholarship available

High school seniors who have been accepted to an accredited art school may apply for the Fred E. Bergfors Scholarship and the MacIvor Reddie Scholarship available from the South Shore Art Center. The Art Center, located at 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset, is a non-profit organization representing all of the South Shore communities.

Applicants must deliver to the Art Center a portfolio, brief artist's statement, and the name of the accredited school to which they are accepted, on April 25 and 26 from 1 to 4 p.m. For more information, call the Art Center at 383-9548.

Portfolio help for students

The South Shore Art Center in Cohasset will be conducting two portfolio reviews this spring. On April 27, representatives from area art colleges will conduct private consultations between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. for interested high school juniors. This is an excellent opportunity to learn how to prepare a portfolio for application to art school. Students should call the Art Center at 383-9548 to make an appointment for which there will be a $25 fee.

Artists interested in the Art Center's gallery artist membership may deliver their portfolios May 17 between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Jurying will take place on May 18 and artists may retrieve their portfolios on May 22 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. For more information, call the Art Center at 383-9548.

The South Shore Art Center, located at 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset, is a non-profit organization representing all of the South Shore communities.

Duo performs in Hingham

Robert Olivia, clarinetist, and Victoria Griswold, pianist, will perform a free concert in Cox Hall at the South Shore Conservatory on Sunday, April 14 at 4 p.m.

Olivia began his study of the clarinet at the age of five with his father, Robert R. Olivia. He later continued his studies with jazz clarinetist Bob Wilber and at the Manhattan School of Music in New York City with Leon Russianoff.

Having served as principal clarinet of the International House Chamber Orchestra in New York, Olivia has also appeared as soloist with the Plainfield Symphony in New Jersey. Last year he performed Mozart's Clarinet Concerto with the orchestra of the South Shore Conservatory.

The sixty minute program will include works by Dello Joio, Pautza, Bernstein, Weber, Schumann and Templeton.

The concert on April 14 is free to the public. For information, call the Conservatory at 749-7565.

Rail costs worry taxpayer

LETTERS

To the Editor:

Before you go to the polls to cast your vote pro or con for the train, you should consider a few issues. The first deals with the cost. Who will pay for this train? We all have read about the status of the Federal government and the difficulties they face. They have promised at best to fund to project by half "in principle" and then only a year at a time. I don't even need to remind voters of the state of the state. We have all heard that the Mass. bond rating (a prime source of this project's funding) is the lowest in the nation and that its next step is junk status. Then who is left to pay for the Old Colony Railroad? The Town of Cohasset now is assessed $149,000 per year for T service. We are rebated $134,000 yearly due to lack of service. Do you honestly think, given our current economy, we will continue to receive this rebate? This means that we will be expected to pay our full $149,000 plus the yearly increase allowed under pro 2 1/2.

Read your Town Warrant and your local papers, attend Town Meeting or follow it on T.V. Look at all of the issues that are asking for money — school, police, fire dept. safety, etc. Then ask yourself, do you want to commit yourself even more, financially, to a train that will be used daily by only 250 citizens, that will not run any more frequently than the commuter boat, that will not stop in the center of town and that once built will require your tax dollar forever. Think long and hard before you vote yes or no.

Kasperowicz hits town officials

to pay their ambulance bills, real problems with money.

Let me leave you with this thought. Medical benefits for a town employee (family of four) costs the town $660 a month. In comparison, the Kasperowicz family plan is $287 a month. We need our selectmen to be visible and vocal at the state house with regard to giving us some well-needed relief. If non town employee families of Cohasset (there still are some) can't afford to buy this kind of coverage for their own families why should the state mandate they buy it for town employees?

See ya.

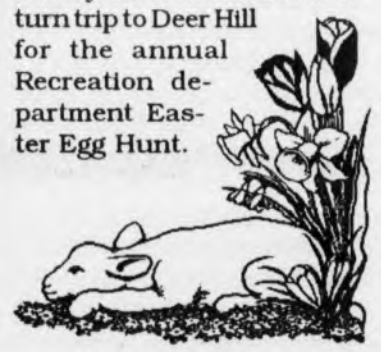
The Easter Bunny visits Deer Hill

1. The kids could barely wait for the Easter Bunny to sit before they began to get closer to the special character.

2. Andrew Walsh concentrates on putting stickers in just the right place on his crown while waiting for the Easter Bunny.

3. Taylor Bukowski, 20 months, is all dressed in her new spring outfit. She's waiting with her father, Kirk Bukowski, for the big rabbit's attention.

4. Ryan Johnson and Jared Kropzzak enjoy the cupcakes decorated as Easter baskets.



5. Alicia Sanchez eats away at her craft package while designing a necklace.

The rule of the day was fun as the Cohasset Community Center brought the Easter Bunny to Deer Hill School March 23 for a special lunch.

There were a number of craft activities to keep kids amused during the wait. But best of all the food was great and the Easter Bunny was appropriately fluffy.

On March 30, the Easter Bunny has scheduled a return trip to Deer Hill for the annual Recreation department Easter Egg Hunt.

Happy Easter !

BULLETIN BOARD

Spring soccer registration

Anyone who wishes to register for Spring Soccer, CYAA Baseball, Cohasset Road Race By The Sea and various other Cohasset Recreation Department programs may obtain forms at the Recreation Office, 1st floor, new addition of Town Hall, or call the Recreation Department at 383-6791 for further details.

Those who desire to play in either Spring Soccer or CYAA Baseball should make arrangements to register immediately if you have not already done so.

Registrations for various adult programs are being accepted currently and registration forms for 10 children's spring, outdoor programs will be coming home via school shortly, or forms may be obtained at the Recreation office for these programs which are scheduled to begin during the week of April 22.

There are five programs, Monday through Friday, for grades K-3 and five programs in the same days for grades 4, 5, & 6. Discounts are offered between programs should children wish to participate in any number of the offered activities for their respective age group. Further, fee adjustments will be granted by the Recreation Commission should a financial burden be placed upon any family.

Information regarding Safe Boating class will be forthcoming via local news media soon. The Cohasset Recreation Department and United States Coast Guard Auxiliary will offer a Spring, (May), Safe Boating Course again this year.

The Safe Boating Course is designed to certify teens and adults in the practices of safe boating and boat handling. This course is ideal for all family members aged 10 and over, who plan to do any boating now, or in the future. Further, once certified as having passed the U.S.C.G.A. Safe Boating course you are eligible for reduced boat insurance premiums.

Details and registration information regarding this opportunity will be forthcoming soon and the Cohasset Recreation Department considers it a privilege to be selected as a sponsor for this greatly sought program. There will be a small per capita fee for this program that will offset the costs of text and materials needed for course participation.

Telephone registrations are currently being accepted for some adult recreation programs: should you be interested in Furniture Restoration-Repair-Refinishing or caning/rushing, or Dog Obedience training classes, or adult Golf Lessons, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department office at 383-6791.

Rotary race attracts locals

The 1991 Cohasset Road Race by the Sea sponsored by the Cohasset Rotary Club will be held on April 7, at 1 p.m.

The Cohasset Community Center annually awards the Nate Hurwitz Trophy to the first Cohasset resident to cross the finish line. This trophy was instituted by the Center in 1988 to honor its first Director, Nate Hurwitz, father of Rep. Mary Jeannette Murray. Nate was instrumental in the beginnings of the Center. The trophy was first awarded in the 1988 race to Kevin McCarthy who won again in 1989 and 1990.

Financial survival seminar

On Monday, April 1 at 7:30 p.m., the Cohasset Community Center will sponsor a Seminar on Financial Survival and Prosperity for Baby Boomers or How to Plan for College Educations and Retirement.

Unless you are sure that your child will be receiving a scholarship, the chances are that you are going to be writing some large checks for one or more college educations.

You may have also come to the conclusion that retiring and living happily ever after could be a problem. Inflation and taxes rob you of your ability to build a nest egg. The chances are that Social Security checks won't be enough for you to live comfortably. And even if you have a pension along with Social Security, this combination may not do it.

If you are like most people, you are spending everything that you earn, and you can only wonder how to begin saving for college educations and retirement.

The Seminar with Michael J. McNamara, of McNamara Financial Services will feature all of these issues: Specific subjects will include: Projecting college expenses; starting a college investment program; beginning a retirement investment program; appropriate retirement investments; dealing with the effects of inflation; and lowering your tax bill.

The cost of this seminar is $15. Please call the Center at 383-0088 if you are interested in attending.

Deer Hill pays attention to Mozart – or at least his music

The program on Mozart was brought to both the Deer Hill and Osgood Schools March 25 under the sponsorship of the PSO.

Dennis Kobray, an actor, gave the students a lesson about the genius of the composer by portraying the character of the man.

AFSers see exchange leading to world peace

By Donna Cogliano
Mariner correspondent

Getting to know people from other countries could be a deterrent from war according to two visiting foreign exchange students at Cohasset High School.

These two students are spending a year in the United States during a time when they expect to grow and learn considerably.

Two Cohasset families on Fair Oaks Lane are playing host to a couple of foreign exchange students who are attending Cohasset High School this year.

Visiting from Portugal is 17-year-old Patricia Soares who is staying with her host sister Katie McNamara. Soares goes by the nickname of "Tica". She is from Sintra, Portugal which is an hour outside of Lisbon. Tica has been in Cohasset since September.

Sirpa Rissanen, 17, came to Cohasset from Quincy in January on a memorable day when the war broke out. She is from Espoo, Finland which is close to its capitol of Helsinki. Sirpa is staying with the Christoffel family on Fair Oaks Lane.

These foreign exchange students were brought here through the American Field Service and they are better known as AFS students.

Tica talked about her impression with her travels and with meeting people from all over the world. "It has changed my life forever. It's so great. I've met people from all over the world," she said.

Sirpa says people should try to get to know people from other countries. "I believe that it makes a difference in world peace because if you knew someone from another country you wouldn't want to fight them," said Sirpa.

The two students spoke about world peace and love. "It's really cool when you find out that people are basically the same. They're good inside," said Sirpa.

"You just have to know them. Everybody's human like you," said Tica. Everybody has feelings, Sirpa added.

Cohasset High School teacher Jo-Ellen Wood said AFS students attend monthly meetings of support with other students visiting the country. She said, "The students encounter the reality of other people instead of a concept of a nation."

Besides seeing a lot and becoming aware of another culture, the girls said this would be a big growth period for them and Wood agreed. "You learn to be resourceful. You learn that you can make it on your own," said Wood.

The visiting students learn and use another language plus they've adjusted to a new group of people. "All of that causes enormous emotional growth,"according to Wood.

The exchange also serves to benefit the Cohasset students. "They bring another culture and expand our horizons. They do our students a favor. It's really helpful," said Wood.

"These particular girls are very cooperative and pleasant," said Wood. "They bring us the gift of another culture and that clarifies our students' perspective."

Both young ladies converse in English very well.

Tica's classes are history, English, AP French, health, art and chorus. She has studied English for five years. "Everybody was surprised because I spoke really well when I came. It wasn't really hard. I could understand everything.

Tica finds that there is a variety of food here. "We can find so many kinds of food here," she said. One of her favorite meals is lobster.

Tica's biggest complaint here is that Americans do everything earlier - meaning the night life. "You guys do everything earlier," she said. "And here everything is closed at 12."

In Portugal, the discos and pubs stay open to between 3 and 6 in the morning. "And there's no drinking age. But it's kind of different because we've grown up with no drinking age and we're responsible about it. I think they shouldn't have a drinking age (here)," said Tica.

She suggested no drinking age in America. At first there might be some abuse but then people would be responsible, she said. "Then it would be a normal thing in their lives," said Tica.

In Portugal, Tica heads out to the clubs at 10:30 or 11 p.m. She wants to go to a club in Boston and will turn 18 in May. "I'm turning 18 in May so after that here I go," she said.

Living close to the water these days, Tica is hoping that she get the chance to sail before she leaves. "As long a someone can teach me, here I go,"said Tica, "I love the sun and warm weather. If I had the chance to do sailing I could enjoy it."

Tica hadn't seen snow since her childhood when she visited Northern Portugal. Recently she traveled with her host father Jack McNamara to do some skiing in Vermont.

"It was awesome. I loved it. But I was so tired my legs were killing me. I really enjoyed it," said Tica.

Harvard Square has been a favorite spot for Tica and Sirpa. "You find such neat things," said Tica.

Another difference between Portugal and America is the way people dress everyday. "In my country," Tica said, "Young people dress really well... here young people dress more practical."

Tica will be spending April vacation in Pasadena, California. "I'm going to see everything. My dream was always to go to California. It seems like everybody was always having fun and it's warm," she said.

Tourism is calling Tica to possibly become a tour guide some day. "I would like to travel a lot. I would like to see everything. If I were a tourist guide, I would have the chance to see everything," said Tica.

Another difference between Portugal and Cohasset High is the homework. It seems as though there's considerably more homework to do here in Cohasset. Plus Tica explained that if she were in Portugal, that she would be taking only three classes instead of four. Plus she would attend school only four days a week.

In closing Tica said, "I think that people really grow a lot in AFS."

Sirpa is taking a class called, "International Relations". "It's a really good class. It's real interesting," said Sirpa. Her other classes are: art, health, US History and American Literature.

One big difference, Sirpa has noticed is sports offerings in the schools. In Finland, sports are only offered by private clubs.

Sirpa has done some challenging activities such as parachuting, water skiing, horseback riding, downhill skiing and swimming. She loves to meet new people. "I love Boston. I go there a lot," she said.

Though Sirpa has skied in New Hampshire a couple of times, she has also skied in Austria for the last four years.

Sirpa prefers eating in Finland to the food in America. "The food here is good but in Finland we've got more nutritious food with fiber and fish."

Perhaps the biggest disappointments for Sirpa have been seeing poor people and discrimination here. "In Finland, nobody will come up to you and beg for money. Nobody is there for a whole day begging," she said.

Sirpa questioned if you could go to a good hospital here even if you didn't have money. Plus she mentioned that in Finland, they didn't have to pay for higher education.

"I'm proud of my country. We've got education. Everybody gets a good education," she said.

Sirpa would like to work with children some day and to travel a lot meanwhile. "You can't know where you'd be happy if you haven't seen a lot," she concluded.

Plaza Liquors grows

Selectmen granted permission to Terry Collins of Cohasset Plaza Liquors on Route 3A to expand its interior from 3,500 to 4,165 square feet. "It's just remodeling — we're not expanding from the current footprint of the building," Collins said.

Course offerings continue

The Cohasset Community Center is accepting registrations for classes which will be starting this month and the month of April.

The Center offers a course in Pediatric CPR given by Dr. Equi and Ms.Linda Farrag on Wednesday and Thursday, April 3 and 4 from 7 to 11 p.m. at a cost of $35. This course covers the hazards to which children may be exposed, how to make the environment safe, and basic rescue techniques such as CPR and alleviating airway obstructions for infants and children. This course teaches procedures for both infants and children.

Cohasset Tigers Hockey Club skates forward

By John Kinchla
Special to the Mariner

The Cohasset Exxon Tigers, Cohasset's entry in Hingham's Pilgrim Arena High School Developmental Hockey program took another giant step forward towards future Division 2 high school hockey success last Saturday night when the team tied Weymouth four to four.

Spectators for both teams were treated to a great game of hockey. Cohasset came out buzzing and had rolled up a three to one lead after the first thirty minutes of play. Both teams played a scrappy game and both teams took seven penalties. Cohasset's penalty situation caused problems in the rotation of players throughout the contest since the Tigers wanted to either tie or win and tried to skate four lines to Weymouth's two.

Since the Pilgrim's program is developmental, Cohasset's philosophy is that a tie is as good as a win, if all the players get to skate. Last Saturday, the Tigers were ahead three to one at the end of 30 minutes. By the end of the game, every one had seen plenty of action.

Cohasset jumped ahead in the first thirty minutes of the game on goals by Charles Smith, Mike Reynolds and Kevin Mulcahy. Cohasset then removed its first two lines of Mike Reynolds, Matt Kramers, John Murphy, Charlie Smith, Pat Reynolds and John Kinchla and replaced them with two younger lines of Matt Graves, Anthony Wigmore and Mike Shields and Brendan Kinchla, Dan Demichele and Brian Buckley.

The younger boys played very well as they tried to contain the more experienced Weymouth players over the last thirty minutes of the game. Weymouth, however, was able to tie the game and then went ahead four to three.

The Cohasset players, however, were ready for the challenge. With three minutes left in the contest, Mike Reynolds, John Murphy and Matt Kramers were returned to the game. Reynolds then broke away into the Weymouth end. He steered the Weymouth defensemen towards the boards. Defenseman Kevin Mulcahy took Reynold's pass and blasted his second goal of the evening into the Weymouth net.

Defensively, Cohasset got strong performances from Tim Conroy, Charlie Shields and Kevin Mulcahy, while Jeff Stone continued to excel in the goal. Stone turned away 25 shots.

Cohasset has now evened its record at 1-1-1. The team plays the Hingham Raiders on Saturday, March 30 at 8:30 p.m. at the Pilgrim Arena. Spectators are encouraged to attend. They will be treated to a great game of hockey. There is no admission fee. Donations to support the team, however, can be sent to the Cohasset Hockey Boosters C/O Jack Conroy, 379 Atlantic Avenue, Cohasset, MA 02025.

The team is greatly indebted to Fiori's Exxon on Route 3A for their sponsorship.

The price of authenticity is surprisingly affordable...

When you purchase a piece of Eldred Wheeler furniture.

In this economy it pays to purchase furniture that has authentic construction and finish. Why? Because handcrafted furniture will endure like an antique while increasing in value over time.

*So the choice is yours: buy a commercially produced bed that comes off a North Carolina assembly line and costs $1,300, or...buy our handmade bed for less.

It's time to visit us and take advantage of a special value being offered for a limited time

ELDRED WHEELER

Value and authenticity are nothing new, we've just popularized the idea.

2051 Washington Street, Hanover, MA 02339 (617) 871-0612

Please send me a copy of Eldred Wheeler's all new color catalog (containing every piece in the Eldred Wheeler Collection).

I've enclosed a check for $5.00.

SCHOOL NOTEBOOK

London may be large but people are the same

By Katie McNamara
Special to the Mariner

The whole situation was crazy. What in the world was I doing here? How many people move from a tiny little town, to a place like London for a semester? I was offered this unique opportunity, and now here it was, the orientation for new students at school. The booklet said it would be a great chance to see the school and meet all the new kids. When I got there, I was shocked to see high metal fences and security cameras everywhere. I had never seen anything like it. To me it seemed more like a prison instead of a high school.

Inside, the school was large and complicated with many hallways and staircases. The first thing I saw when I walked in was the security desk. A security guard was sitting there watching the T.V. screens and responding as people buzzed in to have him unlock the fences. He actually looked rather bored; I know that job could not be that difficult. We were supposed to meet in the auditorium so I asked him where to go. "Right through there," he said. "then just look to your right and there it is. You can't miss it." He directed me through these double doors which led into what I assumed was the cafeteria. I looked around and there were doors leading off in every which direction and through the doors all I could see were lockers and staircases. I knew there was no way I was going to find my way around here.

I was completely surprised when I walked into the auditorium. There were about two or three hundred kids sitting around looking extremely nervous but trying to act like they weren't. Back home, the only time I saw this many people together was at a state soccer or basketball game and it was just as loud in there as at those games. All of a sudden my palms got real sweaty and I felt shaky. I hadn't felt nervous or scared up until that moment, but I knew I had to make the best of it. I did, however, want to be as inconspicuous as possible so I quietly slid into the first empty chair I saw.

"Hi," said the girl sitting next to me. She sounded terrified. "My name's Mary." She was only a little bit taller than I, with blonde hair and a face like a cabbage patch doll. I told her my name and to lighten the mood a little I said, "I'm so scared, I'm about to have a serious accident." She laughed, which made us both relax a little. Then we started talking about where we were from, why we had moved, where we were living in the city; things that people talk about when they first meet.

The organizers started us on different activities to get to know each other better. Most of the time we were divided into groups with such common traits as where we lived, our birthdays, and our favorite subjects in school. We would sit and talk, which I love to do.

Next we took a tour of the school which was completely overwhelming. The school seemed so big and everything so separated. I had come from a school where most of my classes were in the same hall and it was so easy. Here, on the other hand, the school was divided into six sections, each with their own color coding. All of them led into the commons, the lounging area and the cafeteria, I recognized as the place I had walked through to get to the auditorium. In each colored section there were three floors, and on each floor, five classrooms created a circle which centered around a small common area. Each common area had a couch, a computer and a phone so that the different sections could stay in contact with the others and with the main office. In addition, lockers were on each separate floor of every section. All I could think was, "A person could end up doing plenty of sprinting up and down stairs to get to their lockers and their classes." I guess we all must have looked really distressed because the leaders told us it really wasn't as bad as it seemed.

One of the leaders, a girl, asked me if I wanted to go out with her and some friends that night. I thought it was the nicest thing anyone could have done for a new kid. Another girl and I made plans to meet them that night. By the end of the orientation I had met some really nice people and already had plans to go out that night. Everything seemed so exciting – the school, the kids and the city itself. The move prepared me in many ways for college in that I had to adjust to a whole new environment and meet all new people, and I loved every minute of it.

(Katie McNamara, a senior at CHS, spent a semester in London.)

Policeman brings Hug-A-Bear

Patrolman Michael Peraino of the Hingham Police Department came to his daughter, Heather's, kindergarten class to give a safety presentation.

Officer Peraino brought in the Hug-A-Bear that officers are carrying in their cars. When children are involved in an accident they are given this new friend for a sense of security while parents are filling out forms.

Officer Peraino answered questions and discussed "Buckle Up" safety. The children had many stories about various accidents they had observed. They were thrilled by their "Buckle Up" safety bags containing literature for adults, "Buckle Up Bear," coloring book key ring, and stickers.

The children enjoyed asking Officer Peraino about his uniform and trying on his hand cuffs.

Many thanks to Officer Peraino from Heather and all her friends in Marie Price's afternoon kindergarten.

The PSO reports

In the Continental Advanced Placement Calculus Competition for the March competition the following students were top scorers Doug Drysdale, Douglas Mac, Mike Ciseros, Steve Almeida, Mary Hurley and Patrick Mulligan.

In the March New England Math League Competition Dan Baird was top man and Kate Barrett was in second place. Also participating from Cohasset were John Maynard, Peter Fahey, Jacob Powell, Andrew Ross, Sara Deveney, Alex Vanderweil, Nathan Fiore and Will Adams.

Weekly News

Osgood School Principal Linda Whitney, will host a meeting to discuss grade level curriculum for the 1991-1992 school year at the Parish House, North Main Street, Cohasset as follows: Current First Grade parents—Thursday, March 28, 9:15 a.m. Current Second Grade parents—Tuesday, April 2, 9:15 a.m.

Coffee and refreshments will be served.

BUS MEETING

A school bus meeting will be held at the Osgood School on Monday, April 1 at 10 a.m. Due to problems that continue to arise regarding the bus and discipline on the bus, we have scheduled a meeting for all interested parties on April 1 at 10 a.m. This will be a forum to discuss the problems and potential solutions.

PSO PHONE-A-THON UPDATE

The Fundraising Committee of the Cohasset PSO would like to thank the parents who participated in the annual Phone-A-Thon on March 13. Volunteers attempted to phone every family in the school system, asking for a pledge donation. This money is used to fund the many enriching programs that the PSO brings to the schools each year. Parents will be receiving a letter this week from the PSO, together with a return envelope for their tax-deductible donation. If you were not contacted and would like to participate, you may send a check to the Cohasset, PSO, Box 30, Cohasset, MA 02025.

PSO NOMINATING COMMITTEE

The PSO Nominating Committee has convened to prepare a slate of nominees for the 1991-92 Executive Board. A list of candidates will be mailed to the general membership in April and voted into office at the Annual Meeting on May 2. If you would be interested in serving on the Executive Board, would like to make a recommendation, or would like more information, please contact any Nominating Committee member: Joan Pyfrom, Chairman, 383-1428; Judy Simons, 383-6220; Joan Kovach, 383-5358; Barbara Meehan, 383-6785; Linda Gaston, 383-6627; Ruth Wilcox, 383-1827; and Elaine Smoot, 383-1195.

Smoking extinguished on school grounds

By Donna Cogliano
Mariner correspondent

It may have been April Fool's Day but it was no joking matter Monday as the Cohasset school committee moved toward implementing a smoke-free policy in the Cohasset schools.

Sparked by a request from the Cohasset High School student council, the committee is well on its way to approving a new non-smoking policy for all schools in the town. Last month the student council submitted a written request that a smoke-free environment be established.

Smoking would not be allowed in any school building or on the grounds during school hours. The smoke-free policy would probably be implemented for next year in September.

The proposed smoking ban would be targeted at teachers and staff since students are currently not allowed to smoke anywhere on school grounds.

School committee member Chris Ford said, "It's a shame you didn't do it ten years ago. To still allow smoking in schools is an embarrassment."

Barbara Bliss, chairman of the school committee, said, "We're making a step in the right direction." According to School Supt. Stephen Hart the teachers association is in favor of the smoke-free policy.

The committee will post the new policy before voting on it sometime next month.

Mike Gill, Cohasset High School's health education coordinator, said he supports the move to a smoke-free school system. "I think this is the best thing," he said. Otherwise you sending mixed messages to the students, he added.

The student council proposed the non-smoking policy four two reasons. First, because it represented double standards whereby faculty could smoke and students couldn't. Secondly, it was a move toward what the Heights dump fought by town

By Andrew MacLellan
Mariner correspondent

In a report to the Department of Environmental Protection, selectmen began the process of formally fighting plans to double the size of the private landfill at Cohasset Heights.

Selectmen met the March 28 deadline for comment to the Draft Environmental Impact Report for the proposed Cohasset Heights landfill expansion.

Meanwhile Paul Barry, owner of the private landfill offered to sell the dump to the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority for $20 million for use as a sludge dump. The MWRA isn't jumping at the offer.

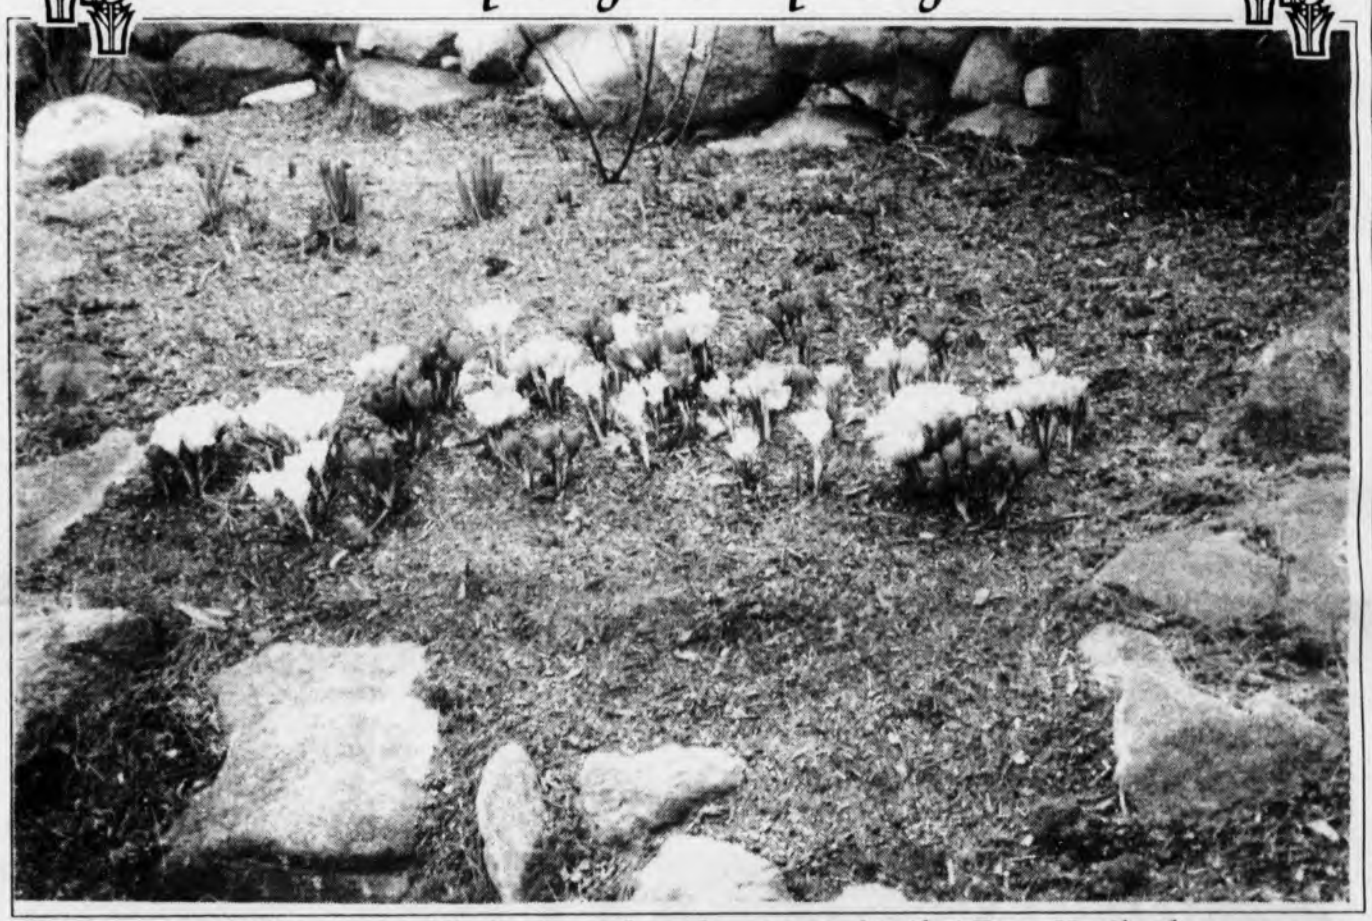
The selectmen's report, filed before learning of Barry's latest plan, asked the Department of Environmental Protection to "find that the potential adverse environmental impacts will outweigh any societal benefits such a facility might provide."

The response cited health and conservation problems including the possibility of ground water contamination and foul odors.

Selectmen were concerned with the visual impact upon the town caused by blowing litter, the attraction of sea gulls to the site and the contiguity of the facility to Route 3A.

The owners first plan, on file with the state, calls for the 47-acre site to be used as a landfill for the South Shore Coalition towns of Weymouth, Hingham, Cohasset, Scituate, Marshfield, Duxbury, Norwell, Hanover and Rockland.

Cohasset is working together with the South Shore Coalition to establish a regional solid waste and recycling program but has no plans to build such a facility in town.



Town trash is hauled to the SEMASS trash facility.

A letter on the region's plans came as a result of a $150,000 grant the Coalition received from the DEP to study the long term waste disposal needs.

According to the letter to the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs, the Coalition has concluded that the area is unsuitable for placement of a regional landfill due to its "proximity to a densely populated area with a high water table, and near-by surface drinking water supply."

Lily Pond, which is near the proposed site would run the risk of becoming incorporated in the migratory patterns of sea gulls, further exacerbating the pollution problem, selectmen said in the official response.

Spring has sprung!

The crocuses are blooming and Easter trees abound — a sure sign that Town Meeting happens soon. Indeed, mark your calendar for 10 a.m. Saturday, April 6, when the meeting convenes at Cohasset High School. (PLD photo)

Rotary Club runs 50th anniversary

By Patricia Desmond
Mariner staff

None of the original group of Cohasset Rotarians are left. But 50 years is a long time.

Ed Mucahy, a Rotary member today, is the son of one of the founding members.

Back in March, 1941, the Cohasset Club was formed under the sponsorship of the Hingham Rotary. A dinner was held at Osgood School to mark the event and hundreds to people showed up from all over the state.

There are now about 30 people in the group that gathers weekly at Rotary Hall to enjoy good company and work for worthy causes is planning a special celebration in the fall to commemorate the 50th anniversary.

Bill Ripley was an early member.

Fred Howe joined in 1949, left in '55 and returned in '71.

Ozzie Ingram was another of the early members of the club.

Cathy Dwyer, who is a relative newcomer to Rotary — women were only admitted by the International two years ago, said plans for the anniversary are still being worked out.

But this Sunday, April 7, the Rotarians will have a chance to pick up some speed on their plans as they run the 15th Annual Cohasset-By-The-Sea Road Race.

Peter Logan, one of the organizers, pointed out that the race is probably the "most scenic" in all of New England.

Last year there were 1,000 runners moving along the course.

Puppeteer pulls some hare-raising strings

By Alison Cohen
Mariner staff

Pat Boylan spends most of her professional life working behind the scenes and manipulating events. If you think that makes her the kind of person you wouldn't like, guess again.

Boylan's smoke and mirrors really are smoke and mirrors. She isn't a back room politician, she's a puppeteer.

For 10 years, she has delighted children with her versions of familiar folk tales and fables. Most of her shows feature three stories the children already know by heart. She dazzles preschoolers by bringing their bedtime stories to life.

"I use traditional tales for a reason," Boylan explains. "For preschoolers, a puppet show may be a new experience. I give them something familiar to help them concentrate."

She adapts her tales to the constraints of a puppet stage. She can't have the wolf falling down a chimney into a pot of boiling water, so she has him blow himself away to where he can never bother the three little pigs again.

"He's kind of a silly wolf anyway," she says. "He

COHASSET'S WEEK

Daylight savings begins

Sunday, April 7 marks the beginning of daylight savings time. It's time to spring ahead!

Remember to turn your clocks ahead one hour Saturday night and be prepared to lose an hour's sleep.

Cable offers help in school

Wendy Forman, Area Program Director of Continental Cablevision, spoke to the Cohasset School Committee Monday concerning Cable in the Classroom. She told the committee that she was available to assist teachers. "I would like to lend a hand in helping the teachers," said Forman.

One of the programs Forman outlined was a CNN news program which provides an upbeat look at world news. The feedback from students has been noteworthy. "They're looking at television in a different way," said Forman.

In addition there is an appreciation of world news so that children can talk with their parents on such topics, she explained.

School repairs on way

School Supt. Stephen Hart submitted a five-year plan for the repair and maintenance of the Osgood School to the school committee Monday night.

The plan calls for nearly $55,000 in repairs which would cover mostly materials since the work would be done by the school's own custodial staff.

Some 23 windows will be replaced while another 43 would be repaired along with the trim. Sixteen doors need repairs or replacing.

The plan calls for repairs to a chimney plus repainting a fire escape. Roof drains need repairing and an outside drinking fountain will be installed.

Inside some quick improvements would be realized by painting the classrooms and replacing the carpeting.

Hart said, "The school is structually in good shape and well maintained but there is minor work that needs to be done."

Chamberlain will serve

The Cohasset school committee appointed Richard Chamberlain as the new boys' tennis coach to succeed Edward Amaral, who died last month. The committee voted 3-0 to name the new coach on Monday.

Homemakers available

Services for Seniors is a service which helps make homemakers, home health aides and nurses more accessible to elders in need of assistance with personal care, meal preparation, light housekeeping, shopping, companionship, or respite care. Names of these workers are provided free of charge to elders, who then negotiate directly with the workers. Those wishing to learn more about the program are encouraged to call Mary Beth Worrick, Program Coordinator, at 383-0771 or 383-0821, Tuesday or Thursday from 9 a.m. until noon. Services for Seniors is a program of the Social Service League of Cohasset and is partially funded by South Shore Elder Services.

Computers need update

Cohasset's computer system is outmoded, says Richard Daniels, a resident and computer systems analyst. The report, resulting from a volunteer study, determined that the maintenance costs of the town's VAX system are out of line with what the industry can provide today.

"The current system is about ten years-old," said Daniels, "And in the computer world that is ancient."

Daniels assisted in a review of most of the town's departments, gaging employee satisfaction with the town's VAX 750 system, and determined that the hardware, which is about three times the size of today's industry standard "would make an excellent mooring."

He observed that operating costs for both software and hardware total about $40,000 a year.

"It uses a lot of power, generates a lot of heat and requires a lot of maintenance," Daniels said, in reference to the VAX.

Pending the final outcome of the study, selectmen may open up bidding for a new system to area computer manufacturers. The town's present system is serviced by Data National of Hingham.

Town wins $4,295 for recycling

State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray (R), Third Plymouth District, has been notified by the Department of Environmental Protection that it has awarded $1 million in recycling equipment, including more than 142,000 curbside set-out containers made partially of recycled plastic, to 70 Massachusetts towns and cities. By granting the equipment, DEP is helping make possible the near-term launch of curbside recycling in some communities and the immediate expansion of drop-off recycling in others.

Rep. Murray notified the Cohasset Selectmen's office and the Board of Health office that the Town of Cohasset has been selected by the Department of Environmental Protection to receive a Recycling Equipment Grant Award. DEP has awarded Cohasset one roll-off valued at $4,295.

In its continuing effort to foster the growth of regional recycling programs, DEP has awarded over 142,000 curbside set-out containers and 148 roll-off containers to 70 communities.

DEP awarded 17 towns and cities more than 142,000 plastic set-out containers for use in community-wide or pilot curbside recycling programs, whether municipally or privately operated. The set-out containers will be supplied to participating households. The agency granted 148 roll-off containers to 61 municipalities for fixed-point collection of recyclables. Eight communities – Boston, Cambridge, Framingham, Gardner, Marblehead, Norton, Provincetown and Somerville – received a combination of equipment.

The equipment grants are a critical component of DEP's ongoing effort to foster the growth of regional recycling programs in the Commonwealth. By making these investments, the agencies will help communities divert combustion facilities, thus reducing their disposal costs while utilizing more environmentally sound disposal practices. DEP also has made arrangements for all Massachusetts towns and cities to purchase recycling equipment at a significant discount under blanket contracts with vendors.

DEP sent applications to municipal officials last fall and 130 communities responded by the December 3 deadline. In reviewing applications, the agency most seriously considered municipal recycling programs that were either poised to expand or threatened by budget cuts. Municipalities also received higher rankings if they demonstrated, through local ordinances, a commitment to recycling on a regional basis.

Rep. Murray is pleased that DEP has arranged other recycling cost savings opportunities for communities; they may also purchase equipment at a significant discount through DEP's contract with its vendors.

Pat Boylan pulls the strings . . .

comes on the stage singing 'Pig for me' to the tune of 'Tea for two.'

The most important element in the tales she tells is the reassurance that good always wins. Although the children love a little bit of the scary stuff, they want to be sure of a happy ending.

"My gingerbread boy always gets away," Boylan said. "He floats down the river singing 'Nobody will ever eat me.' Of course, in the real world the water would dissolve him, but the children never think about that."

She finds the children rarely warn the puppets of impending danger, although they love to burst the troll's bubble.

The troll boasts that he will be eating the billy goats gruff for breakfast, lunch and dinner.

"And don't tell me that I won't," he snaps at the audience.

"Oh, no you won't," the children call back.

"Oh, yes I will," he bellows in reply - and then pandemonium breaks out.

"I love the children's reaction when the biggest billy goat gruff comes out," Boylan laughs. The children know that the troll is about to get his comeuppance.

Older children respond better to the fables because the message is more subtle. Boylan's puppet pals act out stories such as the tale of the city mouse and country mouse, the grasshopper and the ant, the tortoise and the hare, the lion and the mouse and the donkey in the lion's skin.

Recently, Boylan added the story about the little red caboose that hated being last all the time. Her story has no puppets, just scenery and railroad cars. She described it as being more like storytelling with props. The children at the monthly puppet show at the Cohasset Community Center just loved it.

She does confess to having a favorite among her repertoire.

"Of all of them, I enjoy 'Peter Rabbit' the most," she said. Peter is a delightful little cinnamon-colored rabbit in overalls and Farmer McGregor is a red-haired curmudgeon protecting a blue-ribbon-sized cabbage. But it isn't the story or the wonderful puppets that makes it her favorite. She just has really warm and wonderful memories to go along with the production.

Many years ago when she was putting on the play, her son was in the audience. During the production, she was a little scattered. During the part where Peter is tunneling his way under the fence to get to that mouth-watering cabbage, the stage is in darkness. During the scene, Peter is supposed to greet "Mr. Worm" so the children understand that he is underground. Unfortunately, she forgot the line.

"Then I heard a little voice saying 'Mommy, you forgot to say "Hello, Mr. Worm," she recalls. It is one of those memories of which magic is made.

Boylan has a few larger scale productions that she puts on with her mother-in-law, Eleanor Boylan. Together they mount shows like Cinderella, Heidi and Jack and the Beanstalk at the Brookline Puppet Showplace and Cranberry World.

"My mother-in-law has been a puppeteer for 35 years," Boylan said. "I had used puppets in my classroom in New Jersey. When I moved to Hingham, she suggested I start giving puppet shows because no one was doing preschool puppet shows on the South Shore."

The Boylan puppet tradition is about to take in three generations. Pat Boylan's son, Michael, has always been his mother's most faithful audience and best critic. Now the 12-year-old student at Foster School in HIngham will lend a helping hand when he isn't involved with baseball or basketball. Pat Boylan looks forward to more collaboration with her son since Eleanor has retired to Florida and has begun to pursue a mystery writer career. At 77, Eleanor Boylan has two published mysteries, Working Murder and Murder Observed, and a third is at the publishers.

During the shows, Pay Boylan pops up between acts to tell the children about puppeteering. She thinks it is the perfect medium for children's creativity.

"It is accessible to children and it's a comfortable medium. They don't have to be on the stage in front of a lot of people. The puppets do the talking for them," she explains.

She tells the children they don't need a fancy puppet theater. They can get down behind the sofa or drape the ironing board with a blanket. The puppets and props can be made from found materials, too.

"I tell the children I'm not a good sewer," Boylan said. Most of her puppets are made by other people, she said. She shows the children how she created her bumblebee puppet from a styrofoam ball covered with a black stocking and two pieces of black cloth stitched together to make the body of the puppet. She stuck a cardboard tube into the base of the styrofoam ball to make a place for her fingers, glued the fabric to the tubing and added some glitter and netting for wings and eyes.

"And that's my bumblebee."

Boylan's props are equally simple and inexpensive.

"I just use the things I have around the house," she tells the children.

For instance, Valerie Mouse, who lives at an upscale city address, sets her table with cheese created out of cardboard and yellow felt and a basket of miniature plastic fruits and vegetables salvaged from some old floral arrangement. The table is a show box covered with a remnant of elegant peach-colored lace. Martha Stewart would be proud of Valerie's ingenuity.

Boylan carts her puppets and props in specially designed storage bags. A Hingham resident who specialized in applique work created designs to match six of the shows Boylan puts on.

For the past four years Boylan has been a fixture at the Cohasset Community Center. On the first Friday of every month, children from all over flock to Cohasset Village to see the shows. On the average, Boylan will entertain 150 children per show. Many children have become old regulars, but every show brings in some new friends.

Although the children never tire of their old favorites, Boylan is always on the look out for new material. Right now she is toying with the story of the Magic Fish. She imagines the main puppet as a fish with a tiny crown and flexible fins.

Boylan said she plans to create a new cabbage for Farmer McGregor to protect over spring vacation. The old one is definitely looking tatty. She and Michael will create the new crop out of styrofoam covered with the stuff doctors used to use to make casts for broken bones.

Boylan can't seem to leave the preschool set behind. When she isn't puppeteering, Boylan can be found teaching at the nursery school at St. John's in Hingham. She loves being a full-time teacher as much as she loves her puppet work.

Boylan offers some advice to would-be puppeteers: Don't try to compete with television by trying to do Superman shows or holiday extravaganzas, concentrate on animals, familiar situations and traditional folktales and give the children an opportunity to shriek, let loose and stretch their muscles.

"And whatever you do, don't follow Santa Claus."

In the past ten years, popular culture has changed, but preschool kids still love the same old shows. They still laugh when Peter Rabbit flops on his back on his bed and says, "Oh boring" when told he has to babysit for Flopsy, Mopsy and Cottontail.

"The children become so entranced," Boylan said. "I love their answers and their spontaneous reactions."

Boylan does children's birthday parties and fund raisers by request. Between October and June she can be found in performance at the Cohasset Community Center on the first Friday of every month.

April brings the tortoise, the hare and the gingerbread boy along with one more show to be decided soon.

For more information, call the Community Center at 383-0088.

Rotary Club runs 50th anniversary

But Logan said there is actually an official quota of 800 runners.

This year there will be a walk in conjunction with the road race. Some people pla to show up in costume and walk the route. The walk begins at 10 a.m. at Sandy Beach. It ends at the smae spot.The race is at 1 p.m. beginning from the town Common and running along by the sea.

The club uses the race as one its two big fundraisers of the year. The other is the Rotary telephone book. The two events serve to finance scholarships amounting to nearly $20,000 for students from Cohasset High and South Shore Vocational Technical School.

The club gets involved in other goodwill ventures. They are approached for most every cause in town — and they give to many from a boy scout troop to the Special Olympics.

Every year the club presents Paul Harris awards to some of its hardworking members. This year Brian Noble, Ralph Harrison, Mark Cirone and Mike Equi were all honored with the Paul Harris award designation.

Austin Lyne, Rotary president, explained that Paul Harris was the founder of Rotary.

The International club has been working in recent years to stamp out polio. The organization backs a vaccination drive throughout the world.

Planning candidates see opportunity

By Alison Cohen
Mariner correspondent

When long-time planning board member Dan Cotton decided not to seek re-election, this contest was up for grabs. Both Terry Atherton and Jean Simonds are vying for the opportunity to help guide and shape Cohasset's future.

TERRY ATHERTON

Terry Atherton thinks it's time to get involved in his hometown after 15 years of residence. He thinks the planning board is the natural place for him to do that.

"I'm at the point where I feel it's time to give something back to the town," he explained. "This is an area where I feel the town can benefit from my expertise."

This will not be his first venture into town governance, however. Atherton is chairman of the town committee looking into the feasibility of combining various departments into a department of public works in order to increase efficiency and save money.

Atherton, 44, of 34 Clay Spring Road, is a principal with Cambridge Systematics, a transportation consulting firm in Boston. He holds a bachelor's degree in civil engineering from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and a master's in transportation planning from MIT.

"As a transportation planning professional, I have an understanding of the planning process. I know what is expected of me in the process," Atherton said. "I have experience with federal, state and local agencies and I have the technical skills to do the assessments."

Atherton believes his professional experience means he will be able to be a productive member of the planning board from the beginning.

If elected, Atherton would set as his top goals preserving the town's character, being prepared to deal with issues surrounding the proposed restoration of the Greenbush line of the Old Colony Railroad, and uniform and strict application of the zoning bylaws.

"We need to preserve what is unique about the town's character," he said. "That's why we moved here and that's why we stay here."

Key elements to be protected include the common and the village business district. Atherton said the town needs to strengthen the village business district.

If the railroad comes to town,Atherton thinks it will bring both problems and potential. The planning board can help mitigate problems associated with the train such as traffic flow, noise and pollution. He also wants the town to be ready to take advantage of the economic potential that increased access to the village business district will bring.

Finally, Atherton believes that enforcing the zoning bylaws is essential. He recommends close cooperation with the building inspector and the zoning board of appeals to achieve a uniform and strict application and enforcement of those bylaws.

"If we let it get away from us, we just open ourselves up," Atherton explained.

Atherton sees few opportunities for development in Cohasset, but said that could change when the economy improves. He would like to take advantage of the relative lull in building to develop a long- range planning process so the town and its zoning bylaws are ready for the next 10 to 25 years of growth and development in town.

Atherton and his wife are the parents of a daughter, Sarah, 15, and a son, Leigh, 11.

JEAN SIMONDS

Jean Simonds fought to preserve the beauty of Cohasset and the surrounding towns as a member of the Trustees of the Reservations and a Friend of World's End. Now the Cohasset native wants to bring her talents and time to the planning board.

"I have lived here all my life. It's time I gave something back to this beautiful town," she said. "The town means everything to me. It's my home. It's important to me."

Simonds, 67, of 107 Nichols Road, is a widow who shares her home with her 101-year-old mother. Prior to her marriage she worked for a fiduciary trust company in statistical analysis. Since that time, she has devoted her energies and talents to raising her family and volunteer work with conservation groups, the historical society, the community center and church groups.

Simonds believes her greatest assets to the planning board will be her availability and the different perspective she would bring as the only woman on the board.

"The main thing is my availability. If elected, I will be the only member available during the day to answer questions," she said. "There just isn't time during meetings for a person to walk in and ask a question."

Although she doesn't have the technical expertise of her opponent, she doesn't see that as a deficit. The board has a long established policy of hiring an engineer to analyze and make recommendations on projects at the developer's expense, Simonds explained. The primary function of planning board members is to apply the zoning bylaws.

Her primary goal as a member of the board will be to apply the zoning bylaws fairly and strictly.

"The bylaw is the bible of the board. If people have a problem, they can go to the zoning board of appeals or introduce an amendment to be voted on by town meeting," she said. Simonds sees no need for any major revisions of the bylaw.

"I think it's doing a very good job," she said. "They haven't mucked up the town since I was a girl."

She does see several challenges ahead, however.

Simonds wants to see the planning board support and encourage new businesses in the village business district as long as they comport with the bylaws.

"We need the business base for tax purposes," she explained. "And if the village dies, the heart of the town is gone."

Then she turned her attention to the always controversial development of Route 3A.

"A lot of people complain about it, but it was zoned for business," Simonds said. She believes that as long as businesses develop in accordance with the bylaw provisions for setbacks and green spaces, they can be an asset to the town. Simonds cited Bergson's Restaurant as an example.

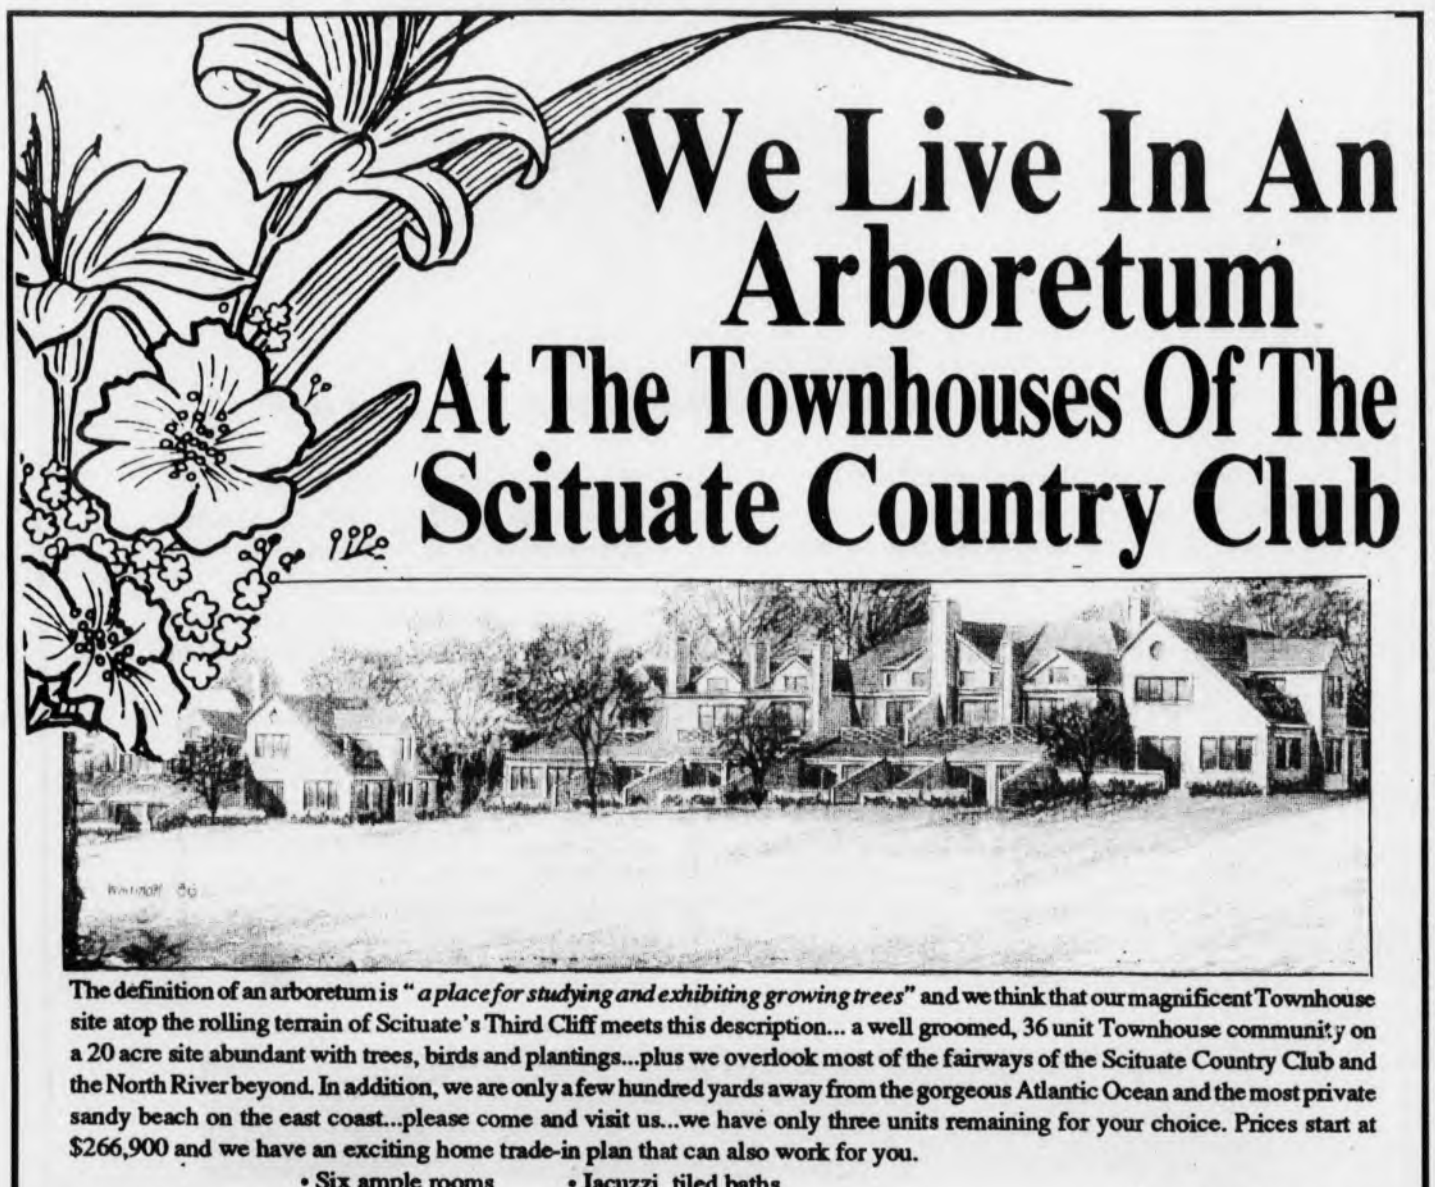
"I'm absolutely thrilled with Bergson's," she said. "I'd like to see more of that kind of cooperation as the business section is built up.

"We need to control development, not squash it."

Berg forms new financial business

Peter Berg of Cohasset announced this week the formation of the Independent Financial Collaborative (IFC), an organization designed to offer a wide variety of financial services to businesses and individuals. The company offices are located at 1017 Turnpike Street in Canton.

In making the announcement, Berg said, "This is very exciting to me and my associates because the opportunity to help individuals and businesses through these tough economic times is enormous."



IFC is an association of leading experts in fields like insurance, annuities and estate planning who work as a team to find cost effective options from a wide variety of companies.

Berg has been in the industry since 1975 when he graduated from the University of Massachusetts with a degree in economics. He later rose to the senior management position in the Lothridge Financial Group, one of the top ten New England Life agencies in the country. He left that position to form the Independent Financial Collaborative.

"It may sound corny, but the single motivation behind this new company is the consumer. My partners and I believe that when it comes to financial products, businesses and individuals need someone who is objective to advise them on things like insurance, pension plans and annuities."

Later this year, Berg will become President-Elect of the Boston Chapter of the Charter Life Underwriters Association, the oldest CLU chapter in the country.

Berg has long been active in community and charitable organizations that range from the local Little League to helping support the work of Por Cristo, an international medical volunteer organization.

Girls tennis team looks sharp

By Donna Cogliano
Mariner correspondent

With eight returning players, the Cohasset High School girls' tennis team will open its season April 9 with some valuable varsity experience. The Skippers will host East Bridgewater on that date in their season opener.

Betty Zadel will coach Cohasset in her fourth year with the girls. Last year, the Cohasset tennis girls posted a record of 10-4 overall.

At the close of the first week of practice, it was reported that the girls were running a mile and a half each day. Zadel said the girls will be hitting a lot of balls during upcoming practices.

"The girls were looking very sharp. I was happy with that. We're off to a strong start," Zadel said.

Senior Sophie Redfield, an all-star last year, had a terrific 8-5 season last year at the second singles position. "She's a strong singles player. She's very athletic. She's an all-court player. She likes the baseline as well as the net. I'm looking for big things from Sophie this year," said Zadel.

Junior Nicole Bieryla played third singles last year with a respectable 6-7 record. That was very impressive for a sophomore, according to Zadel. Bieryla was described as a tenacious baseline player. "She likes to hit the ball 100 times before the point is won. She's a very strong player," said Zadel.

Bieryla experienced some elbow problems last year. "This year, she's healthy and I expect a better season from her this year," said Zadel.

Another great singles prospect is sophomore Karyn Murray, who was valuable last season when players were out injured. "She did real well for us. She's a very strong player - equally strong off the backhand and forehand," said Zadel.

Rounding out the singles action will be junior Corrina Minnar and senior Katie McNamara. Both athletes earned varsity letters last year.

The senior pair of Ellen Schramm and Rebecca Jordan will be back to lead Cohasset in first doubles action. Last season Schramm and Jordan teamed up for and outstanding record of 11-3.

"I'm really counting on them to be our anchor - to bring in the wins for us. I really expect them to hold their own," said Zadel.

The doubles team is known for its hard hitting and doubles tennis knowledge. "They know what each other is capable of doing because they've played together for two years," Zadel added.

Schramm and Jordan lost only three sets total last year.

Rounding out the doubles scene will be junior Kathleen Conroy who saw doubles action last year with two different partners.

Sixteen girls tried out for the team this year and Zadel kept 12 members. She is delighted to have four newcomers on the team. "I'm encouraged by the fact that we have four new talented players to add to the roster," said Zadel.

Senior Nancy Greco is returning from a year off with a bad back. She made the team as a sophomore. Greco is expected to halp the squad out.

Jessica Pyfrom will compete as a sophomore. "She looks like a very nice player. I think she's got talent," said Zadel.

Eighth grader Alexis Zerendow will compete for the Skippers also.

Seventh grader Laura Slotnick was described as having classic strokes. "She is a very nice hitter. I was very surprised and delighted to have a young player come out," said Zadel.

With five seniors on the team, Cohasset looks to be loaded with experience this year. Norwell and Scituate looks to be Cohasset's biggest challenges this season during the regular season.

Last year Cohasset was edged out 3-2 by Norwell and is looking to strike back this year. "We came close to beating them last year and maybe with a little more luck we will," said Zadel.

Zadel will be working the girls hard in preparation for the April 9 opener. "We're a little bit rusty right now but the girls are very enthusiastic," she said.

Tennis is a terric conditioning sport which also stresses hand-eye coordination. "It's always challenging. You can take it to any level," said Zadel.

No smoking on school grounds

health education program was teaching.

According to Cohasset High School assistant principal Jack DeLorenzo, who is also the student council advisor, few teachers smoke at the high school. He mentioned that only four or five teachers smoke. He also said that the teachers' association was in favor of the smoke-free policy.

But just in case, the committee will post the new policy so that they can hear comments about it before it comes for a vote.

As hospitals and restaurants move toward smoke-free environments so will the schools.

School committee members voiced concerns about whether smoking would be allowed during halftime of basketball games. Smokers would have to step outside to light their cigarettes.

It was also discussed about how this would work for town meeting situations. Again, it was repeated that the building would remain smoke free and that smokers would have to step outside.

School committee members are leaning toward smoke-free buildings with smoke-free grounds during school hours.

The Cohasset student council is also working these days to support the override. Students on the board will be sending former graduates of the last four years, letters asking them to vote through absentee ballots.

In addition the student council is working with the PSO in sending out flyers to local homes which support the override.

Student council at Cohasset High School is making its mark in providing the community with information. In addition the council may very well be credited with initiating such a courageous non-smoking policy.

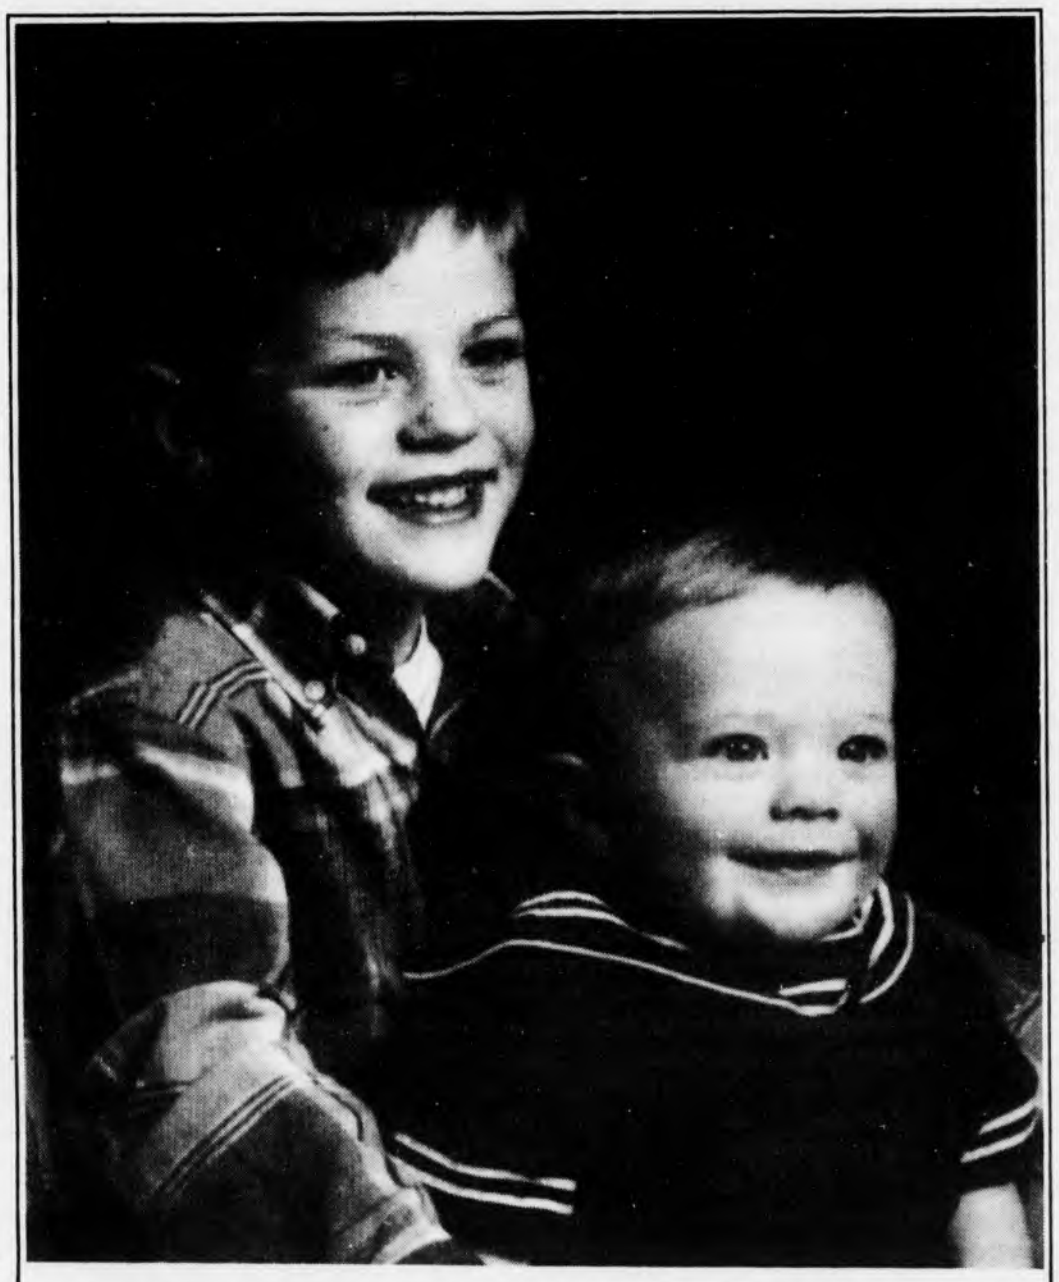
Paid for by the Committee to Re-Elect Rocco F. Laugelle



AROUND TOWN

❑ A huge round of applause goes to Linc Marsac this week. Linc was recently named WATD South Shore Player of the Year, really something to be proud of. When you think of all of the players that are involved...WOW. Of course there is good reason for the honor, Linc made the Quincy Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic Team (for the second time) in both basket ball and soccer, and he was the Captain of the South Shore League Basketball All-Star Team. Whichever school gets Linc sure gets a wonderful athlete (a super guy too), and its for sure that CHS will miss him and his athletic prowess.

❑ Most of you already know about the Cohasset Rotary Club's Road Race By the Sea, which will be held this Sunday. Many may not know about the Walk By the Sea that will be held the same day! This is the first year it has been officially approved, and it promises to be a lot of fun for the whole family. There will be a theme to the Walk, Mardi Gras, so everyone can wear great costumes if they wish. Many prizes will be awarded, to be broken down into several categories. The plan is to meet at Sandy Beach, with the walk to begin at 10 a.m. (there will even be a live Dixie Band to see you off, and entertain you upon your return). After the Walk everyone will remain at the Beach for a "tail-gate party", so that you can all cheer the runners on as they pass you by. Then its down to the Common for the awards, followed by a nice time at the Chart House. So, go ahead, make your plans now for a fun-filled day. Oh, you must register for the walk; you can do so at the Community Center through Saturday, or you can even register the day of the walk. Don't miss what promises to be a great event.

❑ We sincerely hope that John Winters is released from South Shore Hospital very soon, and that he will be back to his old self in no time. Everyone is rooting for you, John!.

❑ The Cohasset Recreation Department was forced to cancel its Easter Egg Hunt last Saturday, but the good news is that it will be held at Deer Hill School at noon this Saturday. It will be fun for the children to have something to look forward to, and we hope that the Easter Bunny isn't too tired from his long weekend last week to be there...rumor has it he will attend.

Michael Snowdale, 6, holds his year-old brother David. The boys are the children of Linda and Alan Snowdale of Mill Lane.

❑ Things are undoubtedly hectic at the Golden home this month. Cari is being married on April 28. What fun! Her wedding is to be held at the Old North Church in Boston, which should be beautiful. Knowing how talented Doris is, it will be a spectacular day, and we sure wish Cari, and her husband-to-be Robert, a wonderful wedding.

❑ Get well wishes for Dot Russell, who is home from the hospital and doing just fine!

❑ Congratulations go to Dan Baird and Kate Barrett, who placed first and second respectively in the March New England Math League Competition. More CHS Math news for the month of March was the Continental Advanced Placement Calculus Competition where the following students were top scorers: Steve Almeida, Mike Cisneros, Doug Drysdale, Mary Hurley, Douglas Mac and Patrick Mulligan.

❑ As this goes to press, everyone in our family is on pins and needles, awaiting the birth of Jeannine (Pompeo) and Tom Coburn's baby. It's due this week folks, so you can be sure that grandparents-to-be Roger and Ann Pompeo are beside themselves with delight and anticipation. And, how about Mimi, she'll have to get one of those carriages for two so that she can wheel both great-grandchildren around town...that's if she can get the baby from its other great-grandmother, Libby Pompeo. As a matter of fact, the Chatterton's have set up Kelsie's little bed, just hoping for a visit...I'll let you know as soon as the great event takes place.

❑ Congratulations to Dominic Cianciarulo, who won a trip to Montreal to celebrate the Popular Feast of Saint Marguerite d'Youville. The trip was sponsored by the hospital where Mr. Cianciarulo works as a supervisor of patient accounts, Youville Hospital and Rehabilitation Center, located in Cambridge.

Dominic Cianciarulo

❑ Finally, don't forget Town Meeting, which begins at 10 a.m. on this Saturday (April 6). It will be held in the auditorium at Cohasset High School. Now is the time to bring your vote and voice your thoughts and concerns about our town. If you don't go, don't squawk about the outcome of any vote that may affect you or yours!!

Don't forget to call me with your news, we all love to hear about it.

Local real estate market is picking up

By Joseph Mont
Mariner staff

Cohasset real estate agents, who have faced lean times for the past year, say that business is picking up once again.

"The market is coming back, and not a moment too soon," according to Barbara Giacchetti, a Realtor with Hallmark 100, which covers several South Shore towns including Cohasset.

Giacchetti said that since early March the market has been gaining steady momentum; she thinks it may coincide with the end of the war in the Persian Gulf.

She said that the fever pitch patriotism brought on by the war may have given buyers confidence in the government and its efforts to reverse the economic down turn.

She said that low and stable interest rates haven't hurt.

"The interest rates are good and that has been a great help," she said. "Usually as the prices drop the interest rates go up, but this time they are both very complementary."

Joan Coyne a co-owner of the Hingham Real Estate Co., which also covers Cohasset, agreed that the floundering market is starting to feel its legs again.

Coyne said that sales over the past few months have been picking up and prices are stabilizing.

"I think the market has bottomed out," she said. "The houses that have been priced to sell have sold. In fact, there may soon be a scarcity of housing."

She said that buyers, concerned that interest rates are as low as they are going to get, are using what may be their last chance to snap up the bargains to be found in a buyer's economy.

Liz Murdy of Hunneman Realty, said that her company is trying to get the word out that it is still a buyer's market.

She said that some of Cohasset's higher priced homes, such as waterfront homes on Jerusalem Road have seen dramatic price reductions. She said that in this current economy people just cannot afford the price of big ticket luxury houses.

She said that some people can really get a bargain with this properties because, "there is only so much waterfront property available."

Giacchetti said the rebound is a welcome change after the dismal profits agents made during the Christmas season.

She market conditions have been the worst she had seen since interest rates soared past 18 percent a decade ago.

"It was really dreadful," she said describing the past fall.

"There were a lot of brokers who, through no fault of their own, had to leave the business. They just could not make a living at it anymore."

She said during that time many agents would go for weeks without a sale.

Over the past few weeks, however, properties have been moving well and several houses are being sold each week through her office alone.

Ruth Rudenaur of Rudenaur Real Estate, said buyers and sellers have realized the folly of the unstable and overpriced market of the past few years.

"Today's sellers are getting the message that the glory days are over," she said. "They are being more reasonable."

She said that her client base has a "real mix."

She said there are a few first time buyers, even though Hingham has traditionally been priced out of their range.

There are also a lot of "in-town moves," and company relocations, Rudenaur said.

She said that several business from California and Texas have been moving into the South Shore area because of "its quality of life."

"We have professional people who want to move here because it is close to the expressway and we have commuter boats," Giacchetti said.

Another strong client base for local real estate agents are "empty nesters," older couples with grown children who are looking to "downscale," according to Giacchetti.

She said that these clients will usually stay within the same town, buying a smaller, if not less expensive, home.

Giacchetti said that the current market may be sour grapes to those who bought a few years ago, when housing prices went through the roof.

She said that most overpaid, and are now saddled with homes they can no longer afford, and can't sell for what they paid.

She said that many who bought condominiums during the market glut, have now decided that they can afford a new home, but they cannot unload their high-priced condos.

She said that many condominiums have had to resort to rentals to stay in business.

While she feels sorry for those the market took advantage of, Giacchetti sad that there is a silver lining for new buyers.

"One person's misfortune is another person's value," she said.

She said that agents, despite initial worries, have had no trouble getting financing for their clients.

"If you are an agent worth his or her salt you get them pre-approved early on."

Michael McNabb's sculpture taken to 'Heart'

The work of Michael F. McNabb of Cohasset will be among the pieces for sale in the 9th annual "Art for Heart" exhibit at the National Fire Protection Association in Quincy.

The exhibit and sale is scheduled for 2 to 6 p.m. Sunday, April 7. It benefit the American Heart Association.

The works of 14 artists will be presented at prices from $60 to $12,000. The $10 admission fee is tax-deductible.

McNabb is a sculptor whose work has been shown at the South Shore Art Festival, the Federal Reserve Bank in Boston, the Copley Society, the Prudential Center, the Duxbury Art Museum Complex, the Main Street Gallery in Nantucket and other shows.

He studied sculpture at the Massachusetts College of Art and worked as an assistant to George Greenameyer.

Daffodils Days succeeds for Cancer Society

Cohasset volunteers and residents helped the South Shore Unit of the American Cancer Society sell a record 140,000 daffodils and raise $56,000 during the recent Daffodil Days program in support of the Society's program of information, education and service in nine South Shore communities.

Cohasset turned in receipts of $1,304 from the sale of "these first flowers of Spring" that have been selected as a symbol of the increasing hope made possible for cancer patients by research sponsored by the Cancer Society.

"We're delighted with the success of Daffodil Days, which was a pleasant surprise considering the current economic difficulties," Pauline Sweeney, co-chair of the Daffodil Days committee, said. "People were wonderful and I especially want to thank the volunteers, residents and businesses in Cohasset who helped to make it possible. With their cooperation, the South Shore Unit again led all 40 units in the state."

Sweeney singled out for special commendation Cohasset Savings Bank, Rockland Trust Company, Pilgrim Cooperative Bank, Aegean Fare Restaurant and Cohasset Junior and Senior High School where Mike Gill headed up the program.

Real estate open house runs through April 21

Hunneman & Company-Coldwell Banker is holding the largest Open House event history in Massachusetts, as part of a national Coldwell Banker campaign, with tens of thousands of homes in North America open for viewing the first three weekends in April.

"From April 6 through 21, there will be numerous homes open to potential buyers, home that are listed with Hunneman & Company-Coldwell Banker in Cohasset, Scituate and Hingham," according to Judy Parsons, Manager of the Hunneman/Coldwell Banker Cohasset Office.

This is Coldwell Banker's fifth annual Spring Open House Celebration, and this year's theme will incorporate the company's 1991 national advertising campaign, "Now's The Time To Make Your Move."

Oriental rugs are constantly picking up various types of soil. Some are greasy and some are gritty. But they all can eat away at your treasured possession.

For your Oriental rug to retain its beauty and value, it should be cleaned at least once every three to five years.

At Grillo Oriental Rug Cleaning, we carefully examine each rug, then give it the most suitable treatment. Sometimes that means gentle machine-washing, other times it means our 'Art-Safe' hand-washing. And our exclusive equipment and methodology enable us to remove the deep-set grit that others miss.

Furthermore, unlike harsh commercial cleaning, our individualized, museum-quality care is always safe, always effective.

Join town meeting at 10 a.m. Saturday, April 6

So what are you doing Saturday, April 6?

Will you be among the hundreds of solid citizens of town who form at 10 a.m. at the high school to conduct the annual business meeting of our government?

The advisory committee has made a good case for fiscal restraint in its simple report included in the warrant.

"The operating budget, as presented, contains no funds for possible pay raises for out employees," the committee states. "Our major unions, teachers, police and fire has as yet no contract in effect for fiscal 1992. Any contract settlements including pay raises would require additional overrides."

That means in addition to the $142,214 override deemed necessary for the basic operating budget of $12.9 million, up 4.15 percent from the current year.

The money to fix up the duplex at Government Island isn't recommended under the advisory committee's plan.

The idea of selling the Bates Building is recommended. We happen to doubt the town will receive much for the Bates Building in this real estate market. We hapen to think the idea of giving South Shore Habitat a chance to help low-income families and put the place back on the tax rolls would be the way to go — if Habitat promises to find Cohasset families for the space.

(It is deeply disturbing that the state has decided other Cohasset housing will go to people from out of town. It's not that we doubt people from other places have real problems. We just believe we should help our own first.)

The idea of paying town employees on a bi-weekly system got the advisors approval.

The two school committee articles totalling $140,000 building maintenance and the first phase of a new high school writing lab. Both articles are fine and thoughtful solutions to the ongoing dilemna of maintaining the school plant in the face of continuing fiscal trouble.

Sidewalks didn't fare well under the plan the advisors recommend. And as much as we think sidewalks are important safety features, we understand the rationale and hope runners and children will find other ways of moving about.

The $4,169 for the council on aging outreach worker is recommended by the advisory committee. Certainly the expense is small in comparison with other expenses. Certainly the work is worthwhile.

The health board proposal for new regulations on public smoking did not win favor of the advisors.

A request for $70,000 for another revaluation of the town is recommended.

The $90,000 requested for a new ambulance didn't win the advisory committee backing.

We wish the committee printed more financial information about the impact of voting in favor of all the recommended articles.

We wish the financial news were brighter. We wish we had some original ideas for solving the current crisis. Maybe some voter out there knows another way of handling the questions at hand.

The only way to make an impact is to show up at Town Meteing and vote.

The Kasperowicz referendum questions lead to open debate

By Tanna Kasperowicz

COMMENTARY

(Note: all questions are designed to educate voters to make correct responses. Train referenda will be on all S.S. Town ballots).

This form is the official voting form. Cut it out and mail it to Tanna K., 172 South Main Street, Cohasset). Forms sent to T.K. without required postage will not be accepted. Results will be published sometime in April.

1. To determine is Citizens will direct the Board of Selectmen: (1) to use all possible means to ensure that when the Greenbush Line of the Old Colony Railroad is restored to service, citizens abutting the Choo Choo be ordered without delay to haul away their junk cars, tires, trash, aluminum cans in order that train passengers will not perceive of Cohasset and area towns as a dumping place of junk cars, and/or other abandoned items (like the stuff in the movie "Deliverance"); (2.) If there is no feasible alternative, to take all possible legal steps to enforce compliance; (3.) To get that old, green car with the flat tire that's been in front of Schiavo Bros. on South Main Street for months, out of town by June.

2. To take appropriate measures to allow Warren Noble of Noble's Camera of Hingham an easement which would allow him and his employees to continue to park on the tracks for the rest of their lives.

3. To see if citizens will order the Selectmen: (1.) To direct an attorney to write a bylaw ordering any elected town official(s) who is/are contemplating suing the town or who is/are suing the town to take a leave of absence from their committee for the remainder of their term(s) of office and/or until such time as action is taken and all parties are satisfied that the case is closed; (2.) And, to direct candidates for elected or appointed offices, to make known any legal suits pending against the town; (3.) And, to allow Cohasset merchants to place huge, back-lighted signs of any size on Route 3A.

4. To direct the Selectmen: (1.) To place the Bates Building, Independence Building, Government Island property with a Cohasset real estate firm (three separate agents for three buildings); firms to be selected by straw ballot. Agents will be directed to auction off properties on or before September 17, 1991, with minimum selling to be determined by Cohasset Board of Assessors; (2.) To tie EMT's paychecks to ambulance collections.

5. To order the selectmen, upon passage of this article: (1.) To direct town counsel to settle the Town vs. Figueirido Case (the defendant of this case is now decreased) which must be the longest-standing case in the town's history; (2.) Additionally, to direct town counsel to annually prepare a summary, for publication in local newspapers and/or the Town Report, whichever is cheapest, of the status of all on-going lawsuits; (3.) And, to construct a real sidewalk with a curb in front of 172 South Main Street.

6. To direct the Selectmen to arrange, before September 1991, public education seminars to be attended by all elected and appointed officials, Selectmen attendance is compulsory, on these issues: Public Records, Open Meeting Law, Campaign and Fundraising Activities and Conflict of Interest.

7. To direct the Board of Health to investigate school premises with regard to the slush puppy machine, the coke machine, the popcorn machine, candy sales, coffee for students.

Train's backers above tradition

To the Editor:

Like a bad penny, the idea of a monorail on the Greenbush Line or in the center of Route 3 keeps popping up. I wonder if those backing such an idea have ever seen actual operating monorails in the United States or Europe. If they have, I am surprised that they feel the concrete pylons or structural steel supports which every monorail requires would be less of an environmental and visual impact than a regular train track consisting of two strips of steel less than a foot above the ground. Such a mini-Central Artery would be in sight 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, while an empty train track is nearly invisible unless you look for it.

To protect downtown businesses, some are proposing that the Greenbush Line be depressed in a tunnel as it passes through Hingham Square. "Out of sight, out of mind?" It seems at first to be a simple, straightforward answer, but in the end, I feel it would almost be as much of a negative as the monorail:

- Trains cannot descend into or rise from a tunnel without a long ramp. Tunnel backers see these ramps located in the swampy area east of West Street and behind the Station Street parking lot. Construction of these ramps would disturb the land and water near them much more than a simple restoration of trains to the former surface track.

- We are close to the sea; flooding and heavy rains would fill the tunnel and interrupt service to towns to our south.

Financial data on rail restoration

LETTERS

To the Editor:

Next week voters in Cohasset will be going to the polls and asked questions on the rebuilding of the Greenbush branch of the Old Colony Railroad. Before the balloting may I suggest your readers answer the following questions:

• Will you mind paying $150 million in Greenbush start-up costs, plus another $10 million year after year to subsidize only 1900 new transit riders — a mere one percent of the total Greenbush population?

• Will you mind losing $137,000 annual MBTA rebates in Cohasset to subsidize less than 300 riders?

• Did you know that the MBTA does not expect a reduction of congestion on Route 3?

• Should we reduce congestion on Route 3 with High Occupancy Vehicle lanes and a widening of the highway for new, elite commuter buses and van pools?

• Did you know that Old Colony will do nothing to address the needs of the 84 percent non-Boston bound commuters?

• Does it make sense to lose the unique, efficient and popular commuter boat to Boston, as we now know it, instead of enhancing that ferry service with reliable feeder buses, faster boats and a convenient parking garage?

• Would you rather send hundreds of thousands of our tax dollars to Japan for their rail-cars or strengthen our own economy with faster commuter boats manufactured right here in Massachusetts?

• Does it make sense in this day and age, to expose our school buses, our emergency vehicles and ourselves to the hazards of the outmoded 43 Greenbush grade crossings? (Keep in mind grade crossings are the single largest cause of public transportation accidents, and indeed the Federal government spends millions actively doing away them.)

There are answers to our coastal towns transportation problems and I hope you ask yourselves these and other questions and vote as objectively as you can for the benefit of us all.

Sincerely,
Marion Sherman

Minority should not decide fate of railroad

To the Editor:

The Great Greenbush Railroad Debate has spiraled to new heights of absurdity. Norwell voted 7 to 1 in favor of rail restoration.

The opposing minority claims the vote is meaningless! What? Have we suddenly been annexed by a Baltic State where majority votes are meaningless? Somehow, this all sounds familiar. I've got a sense of dejá vu, all over again.

Remember in 1985? Every South Shore town voted overwhelmingly in favor of restoring commuter rail to Greenbush. But the opposing minority claimed that all those votes were meaningless.

They claimed that those who voted for restoring commuter rail were ill-informed. They wanted an EIS (environmental impact statement) to provide the information they claimed was lacking. They wanted to educate us properly.

So we got educated. As the result of the EIS process, we've learned quite a lot about modern rail travel. We learned the noise, smoke and vibration created by old locomotives has been eliminated by new, diesel-electric engines. Lighter-weight passenger cars riding on seamless, welded rails produce far less noise and vibration than did the old trains.

We learned that, yes, there would be delays of a minute or so at traffic crossings, but no lengthy tie-ups. We learned that safety, which is everyone's concern, can be enhanced with modern signalization, gate crossing designs and security fencing.

It also helps if we couple common sense with old-fashioned parental responsibility, where needed. But the opposing minority seemed to stop listening. This wasn't what they'd wanted to hear.

We went on to learn some of the benefits of reduced auto usage—less auto emissions; improved air quality; reduced roadway congestion. We found that rail transit can be remarkably fuel efficient.

We learned that, yes, the tracks cross wetlands and habitat areas, but the roadbed has been there for 150 years and the wetlands are still viable resources.

We learned that, yes, rail restoration will will cost money and that, yes, we'd have to pay to ride it. But we're already paying most of the costs via state and federal tax dollars. These will go into rail lines in Needham or Ipswich or San Francisco if they don't get used here.

We learned that Greenbush has the highest passenger-generating capacity per mile of any of the three Old Colony branch lines, making it the most efficient. But the opposing minority had stopped listening.

Then there were public hearings on the EIS findings. The advisory committee endorsed the results. Public sentiment at the hearings ran 2 to 1 in favor of restoration. The Chamber of Commerce voted 75 percent in favor. Quincy and Weymouth voted 3 to 2 in favor. But the opposing minority ignored all that. They still claimed their businesses would be destroyed and their property values reduced.

So, everyone took a train ride to Rockport to see for themselves. Those who went found that the EIS was right. Impacts and problems are minimal, even though the tracks run right through town centers. In fact, the shop owners up there say the rail passengers are great for business. They can't believe that shopkeepers would oppose the train.

Business shouldn't be fighting to stop the train, they should be fighting for the train to stop! Passengers mean profits, not problems. And real estate values have increased, not decreased.

In Beverly, according to the city planner, improved rail service has increased property values throughout the town. In Beverly Farms, Prides Crossing and Manchester-by-the Sea, the value of homes within walking distance to the stations has escalated, according to realtors. But, not one of the minority opposition was there to look. None of them came to see.

Those of us who have stopped to look and listen have become informed. We are better educated and have a better understanding of the issues. We agree that rail abutters have legitimate concerns. These are being equitably addressed as the project continues to evolve.

But we've also come to understand that the myopic minority refuses to see and will continue to do so, no matter what. Their continued intransigence has held the region hostage to their self-interest long enough. Blustery claims that a majority vote has no meaning may work in the Baltic States, but not in my back yard!

The silent, South Shore majority has consistently, overwhelmingly favored restoring the Greenbush commuter rail line. Unfortunately, the noisy minority doesn't want to stop, look and listen. That's too bad. Because they're going to get run over by the next majority vote coming down the track. This time, they won't get away with claiming that it's meaningless.

Fit Tips

Normandie Nigh

Dear Normandie,

I'm just starting to exercise and I'm not sure how often or how long I should work out. Is there a formula which I should follow?

Carolyn, Cohasset

Dear Carolyn,

Yes, there are general guidelines for exercise frequency, intensity, and duration which have been established by The American College of Sports Medicine. These recommendations are for the average adult in order to develop and maintain fitness (cardiorespiratory fitness, body composition, and muscular strength and endurance).

Basically, their suggestions are that exercise should be done between three to five days a week at a training heart rate of 60-90% of your maximum heart rate. Activities should be aerobic in nature, using the large muscle groups, and should be maintained for 20 to 60 minutes continuously. The actual length of time to exercise is determined by the intensity of the activity. (Lower intensity exercise should be done for longer periods than higher intensity exercise because of the potential hazards involved at higher intensities.) Non-athletic adults are recommended to exercise at a low to moderate intensity for longer durations.

The ACSM also suggests that strength training be included at a moderate intensity to develop and maintain fat-free weight. Strength training should be done at least two days a week and should include one set of 8-12 repetitions of eight to ten different exercises that condition the major muscle groups.

These are general guidelines for developing and maintaining fitness. By offering you these guidelines, I do not want to imply that I believe that everyone should strictly adhere to the ACSM's formula. The ACSM now recognizes that there is a distinct difference between physical activity which will produce general health benefits versus specific fitness benefits. I personally believe that a great number of people could dramatically improve their health and well-being by adding some type of easy movement, such as stretching, to their daily routine. This minimal amount of activity does not meet the standards currently set by the ACSM for improved fitness but may be sufficient to produce improved health. The amount of exercise needed for health-related benefits has not yet been stated, but it is expected to be somewhat lower from the amounts recommended for attaining fitness benefits.

But let's take a more personal look at the fitness recommendations. You can develop a specific weekly fitness plan if you consider your own fitness goals in relation to these guidelines. If your goals are to improve your energy level and maintain your current weight, you will probably accomplish those objectives by exercising the minimum recommended days (three) for about twenty minutes each time at a moderate intensity. If your goal is weight loss, you may want to exercise more often, at a lower intensity for a longer period. Obviously, your exercise schedule will be radically different if your goal is to run a marathon or try out for the Olympics. You will need to add to the intensity, frequency, and time you exercise in order to prepare your body for reaching your goals.

Fitness should be a personal matter which combines all of the ingredients which will help us to look, feel, and perform our best. Your winning formula will be based on a combination of safe exercise guidelines and a persona evaluation of your fitness and health-related goals.

SENIOR CENTER NEWS

By Kathy Bryanton

We'll leave in late morning for a visit to the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum to see the Venetian Palace of Mrs. Gardner, famous for her extensive collection of art masterpieces—paintings and furnishings! (Audio cassette tapes are available for a nominal fee if you are interested in a more guided tour.)

Following our visit and tour of the museum on April 25, we'll travel across town to the landmark Ritz Hotel for English High Tea served to us in our own private room!

This special tour offers a visit to one of Boston's most famous museums and hotels—an afternoon of quiet elegance and luxury!

Cost for the day is $39 per person, due by Thursday, April 11.

This tour will leave at 11:30 a.m. and return at approximately 6 p.m. Pick up points will be at the Super Stop & Shop on Route 3A in Cohasset and at the Station Street parking lot in Hingham.

1st "WALK-BY-THE-SEA"

The Cohasset Rotary is hosting the 15th annual Cohasset Road Race this year on April 7 at 1 p.m. The event will be preceded at 10 a.m. by the first official 'Cohasset Walk by the Sea' sponsored by Fit For Success, with all proceeds to go to the Cohasset Rotary's special senior projects. The entry fee for the walk or the race is $8 and includes an event T-Shirt. Registration forms can be obtained in Cohasset from the Good Sport, Curtis Liquors, or Fit For Success. For more information, call the Cohasset Rotary at 383-1944. If you are interested in joining the Walking Club, call Cohasset Council on Aging at 383-9112.

APRIL IS OUTREACH MONTH

My husband and I are having difficulty paying our bills. We're several months behind on some of them. Short of selling our house, is there anything we can do? I don't think we qualify for anything—but I don't know where to find out.

A friend of mine, a frail elderly woman who lives alone, has become increasingly forgetful. Some of us are concerned about her safety. She is losing weight and is isolating herself, but refusing any assistance. The family wants to get involved, but isn't sure how to "connect."

My mother, who has Alzheimer's Disease, lives with my family. Whoever said "Caring for someone with the disease makes for a 24-hour day" wasn't kidding. I'd like to know how others in this situation manage. And what about the future? Do I need a lawyer? Do I need to start looking at nursing homes? It's all so overwhelming.

Each of these situations warrants outreach involvement.

In fact, I have worked with Senior Citizens, friends, and family members in each case to help them assess information, services, or programs specific to their situation. These four scenarios have involved "connecting" or "assessing" with the following: Fuel Assistance Program, Food Stamp Program, Social Service League, SSI, Elder at Risk, New Friends, Home Delivered Meals, Services to Seniors, Tuesday Lunch Program, Senior Shuttle, Men's Breakfast Club, Adult Day Health, Alzheimer's Support Group and the Caring for Elders at Home Seminar.

As defined by the Executive Office of Elder Affairs, Outreach is "establishing one-to-one contact with Seniors in the community who may be isolated and unaware of services." As the Outreach Worker, I visit or call Seniors in the community, assess their needs and direct them to appropriate services or programs.

Outreach is available to any senior in Cohasset and anyone can make a referral. If you have any questions or need assistance assessing information, call the Senior Center, ask for Susan Connolly at 383-9112. The key objective of Outreach is to inform persons and family members of services available to help them remain independent in the community as long as possible.

As many as 60-70 percent of the calories in a cup of canned cream of mushroom soup comes from fat, even when its made with water instead of milk!

SHINE NEWS UPDATE

We have heard from several Seniors who have received a mailing from a fund raising organization called "Senior Coalition." According to AARP's December newsletter, this deceptive organization, with a staff of four has an overhead of $300,000 per month. The Honorary Chairman is former Congressman, Mark Seljander from Michigan who according to the newsletter "was never a friend to the elderly." If you have concerns regarding this matter, please call 383-9112.

ELDER SPECIALIST

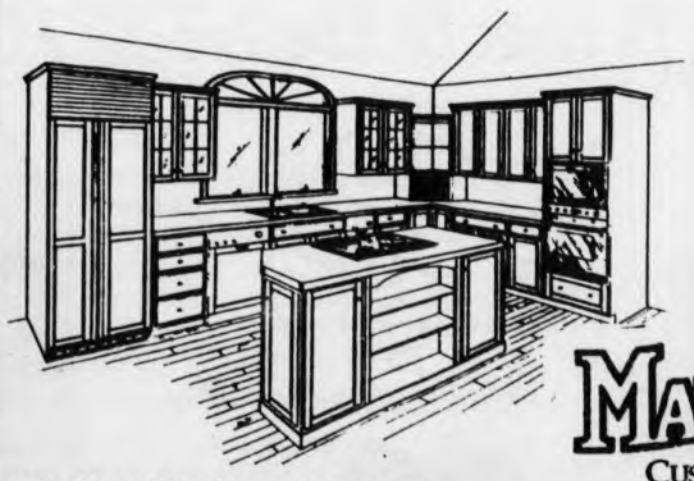
Not too long ago, they didn't exist. Now there are thousands of them nationwide. "They" are elder-law attorneys, lawyers who serve the special needs of older people. This specialty is a relatively new kind of law practice in that it's defined by the client it serves instead of by the field it covers (such as taxes, patents, insurance, etc.) Elder-Law attorneys are versed in age discrimination, estate planning, probate, guardianship, housing and nursing home issues. A free brochure, questions and answers when looking for an Elder-Law Attorney, answers a host of questions about these professionals. Write: National Academy of Elder Law Attorneys, Inc., Dept. MM, 655 No. Alvernon Way, Suite 108, Tuscon, AZ 85711.

SEVERAL REMINDERS

As of 9/1/90 all physicians are now required by law to submit all Medicare claims whether they participate in Medicare or not. Beginning January 1, 1991, Medicare will now pay 80 percent of authorized charges for a routine mammogram screening every other year. Any woman with a family history of breast disease is now covered for a yearly exam. Medex will pick up the remaining 20 percent approved charges. For more information, call the COA, 383-9112. Ask to speak with our Shine volunteer.

NATIONAL VOLUNTEER WEEK

This year's theme: "Volunteers...Hearts At Work."



Remember to say thanks to the wonderful men and women who help assist the seniors living here in Cohasset. All 185 of them!

Mormon general conference

This Saturday and Sunday, April 6 and 7, sessions of General Conference will be held at The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Hingham, during the hours of noon to 2 p.m. and from 4 to 6 p.m. The Conference is broadcast live from Temple Square in Salt Lake City.

Pres. Ezra Taft Benson and General authorities of the Church will offer counsel on gospel principles applicable to present day needs.

There will be no morning worship services.

CANDIDATES CORNER

Jean Simonds

Jean Hendrie Simonds, only woman homeowner and candidate for planning board, told a group of supporters at coffee held at the home of John and Kit Bryant, 253 Forest Avenue, that a great asset of her candidacy was she has the time, interest and availability to listen to and act on concerns of the townspeople, in addition to her thorough knowledge of and dedication to Cohasset's rich history.

Simonds explained that the planning board primarily is a regulatory agency, as are the Health and Conservation boards, and ideally it exercises a moderating influence allowing for growth and change while conserving the essential nature of the town. The planning board regulates the use of land to protect health, safety and the general welfare in addition to recommending, supervising and conducting hearings on by-law changes to keep abreast of changing conditions, new uses, etc. Simonds also pointed out that the planning board publishes or makes known officially the rules and regulations controlling the subdivision of land and common driveways, as well as site plan review in the business and industrial districts. To fully inform all parties, it conducts hearings, so all rules and regulations regarding subdivisions of land are laid out in compliance with statute and bylaw, as well as in the best interests of the town.
